Communication With the Front Is All But Cut Off—Gen. Von Emmich Reported Dead, and His Successor, Gen. Diemling, Said to Have Been Wounded—Doubt About the Operations at Liege—Austrian Warships at Pola—Russians Advance.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16 (2:40 a.m.)—According to a Brussels dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Company, timed 9:30 p.m., Saturday, an official statement has been issued, saying:

"The situation of our army continues excellent. Contact was made today between the French and Germans, with advantage to the French. The forts continue to hold out and do all possible damage to the Germans. On the main roads around Brussels entrenchments have been thrown up for the reception of any German cavalry detachments which may approach the capital."

The correspondent says he has no means of verifying the report of the death of Gen. von Emmich.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Definite information has been received of a strong offensive movement by the French troops on the Franco-German frontier, extending from Luneville to Sarrebourg. Official announcement is made that Blamont, Circy and Avricourt were reoccupied, after a Bavarian army corps was driven out.

The retaking by the French of Thann, in Alsace, is officially announced; and the wounding of Gen. von Diemling, commander of the Fifteenth German army corps.

The French War Ministry prepares the public for a great battle, over a line more than 250 miles in length.

Nothing is known of recent operations around the Liege forts.

It is reported that Germany has sent a note to France and Belgium through a neutral power, accusing these two countries of having organized a popular war against Germany and declaring that any Belgian or French private citizen, not in uniform, who interferes with the German troops will be shot.

The Austrian warships are at Pola, the great Austrian fortress, and the entire coast has been mined.

LONDON, Aug. 15, 11:20 p.m.—Communication with the armies has virtually come to an end, while the commanders in Belgium and along the Franco-German frontier are preparing for a trial of strength which promises to develop the greatest battle in history.

It is known that the Germans are attempting to swing their right around towards Brussels and Antwerp, but with what success nobody outside the field of operations knows. The same applies to the attack on the Liege forts, one of which, Pontisse, is essential to German success, as it is nearest to the bridge over the Meuse which the invaders are using to bring troops into Belgium.

Silence envelops the operations in other parts of the little country which is playing such a big part in the war. On the Alsatian frontier, the French claim another victory in the capture of the Saales Pass in the Vosges Mountains. Here, the French official reports say, the Germans again lost heavily by their tactics of close formation, to which, from all accounts, they are adhering.

Two other small countries, Servia and Montenegro, are playing important roles for, if accounts can be believed, they are not only offering stern resistance to Austria, but have actually invaded Herzegovina, in which they are certain to be assisted by the friendly population. This will divert some of the Austrian forces from the French and Russian borders.

Russians are appearing in greater strength in Eastern Prussia and Austrian Galicia and are busy destroying railways and otherwise hampering the movements of Germans and Austrians.

Germany and Austria are maintaining silence regarding the movements of their troops, so there is really only one side of the picture given.

Aeroplanes are being used everywhere to ascertain the positions of the opposing forces, and according to reports, are doing splendid service, in striking contrast to the feeble attempts of their predecessors, captive balloons.

No definite statement has been issued with regard to the attitude of Japan, but Italy is maintaining strict neutrality.

SAY GERMANS ARE REPULSED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Brussels correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company says that the correspondent of the Brussels paper, Peuple, writing under the date of August 15, gives the following account of a skirmish between French and German troops on the banks of the Meuse Saturday morning: "The Germans, having been repulsed from a bridge last night, commenced a rifle and artillery fire this morning against the French position on the opposite bank and maintained their fire for several hours. The French infantry and artillery responded well with a sustained fire against which the Germans made no serious attempt to advance. The losses in the engagement are not

STEEL BATTLE LINE OF THE MILLIONS TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTY-SIX MILES LONG.

French Government Issues an Official Communication to Prepare the Public for Report of a Tremendous Conflict In a Form So New As to Thwart the Prophets—Plans of the Germans Altered.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 15 (5:55 p.m.)—The conditions under which the great battle between the Germans and the allied forces probably will be fought are made the subject of an official communication issued by the French Minister of War this afternoon. By its development and the nature of the ground over which the battle will be waged, the communication says, this vast engagement will differ profoundly from the battles of other times.

"By reason of the abandonment of the attack which the Germans planned against Nancy," says the communication, "our concentration has been carried out with regularity and in its vicinity, and thus the whole of the French army will battle with the whole of the German forces with the exception of those German troops concentrated on the eastern frontier of the empire.

"The violation of the neutrality of Belgium has extended the Belgian and French lines to the frontier of Holland. The next battle, therefore, will be from Basle to Maastricht, with several millions of men on each side.

"It is this enormous extension of effectives and of front which will characterize the battle, and it will be profoundly different from all other battles.

"When two adversaries engage in battle along a front of from twenty to thirty kilometers (13 to 20 miles) the engagement is characterized by two features—it is rapid and immediately decisive. With a front extending over 400 kilometers (266 miles) it is not likely to be the same.

"It would appear impossible, from all the evidence, that one of the adversaries would be able to gain decisive advantage upon this front of 400 kilometers. The operations along so great a line would have varying fortunes. We will have an advantage at one or several points; the Germans will have an advantage at other points, and the line of battle will continue to be modified until one of the adversaries succeeds by co-ordination of movements and mass of effort in gaining some point, the superiority of which will dislodge the adverse front and mark the end of the first battle.

"These observations have for their object the preparation of the public for a battle in new form and without precedent in history."

The communication adds that news of definite results need not be expected for at least eight days or longer.

TURKS OPENLY COOPERATE WITH GERMANS: MILITARY CENSORSHIP AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(1:30 a.m.)—The Mitylene correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company, who has just returned t[illegible]s post after spending five days in [illegible] Dardanelles aboard the Italian steamer Romania, which the Turks are detaining in the hope of inducing her officers to surrender her cargo of flour, sends the following dispatch:

"I transferred to a small American vessel which left yesterday and arrived here this (Friday) morning. The German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, after escaping the British fleet, entered the Dardanelles Monday night. German officers from the cruisers boarded several ships the next morning and gave peremptory orders that they should not move. The Germans smashed part of the wireless installation on the French liner Saghalien, which had aboard 600 reservists. Turkish officers visited the cruisers. I saw them through glasses fraternizing with the Germans.

"The Goeben proceeded eastward Tuesday. The rumor was circulated that she had been purchased by Turkey and that she was seen in the sea of Marmora Thursday flying the German flag. The Breslau, also flying the German flag, was still in the Dardanelles on Thursday.

"According to reliable information, the Porte apologized to the powers for the arbitrary proceedings, but no explanation was forthcoming as to why the cruisers were flying the German flag.

"The Turks are acting most arbitrarily in the Dardanelles, detaining for days vessels belonging to the countries of the triple entente and Italian vessels without explanation. A strict military censorship exists at Constantinople."

Outlook.

FIRST DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT OF THE WAR MAY BE FOUGHT SOON IN UPPER ALSACE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Daily Chronicle's military correspondent, G. Renwick, writes:

While the eyes of the world are directed beyond the northeast frontier of France, where great armies are massed, enormous forces are gathering in Upper Alsace, where, at any moment, a battle may begin which may have a deciding influence on the war.

The Germans are reported to be concentrated around the south of Colmar. It would be well to discount entirely the reports of engagements of a serious nature in Upper Alsace.

An enormous amount of false news will be circulated in Switzerland by the official German agency, one report stating that in one encounter losses to the extent of between 800 and 1000 men had been sustained.

No encounter of such magnitude has yet taken place. There have been artillery duels in which the Germans have been much more active than their opponents, but the damage and losses have been comparatively small. In the numerous affairs of outposts the French have generally had the best of it.

The French have scored a tremendous moral advantage by having been able to take this position in Alsace. "Nos soldats sont en Alsace." Throughout a large part of Eastern France I have, during the last few days, heard this phrase fly from lip to lip.

It rouses pride and strengthens courage. After forty-four years' waiting the historic phrase, so long thought of, a prayer interrupted for nearly half a century, it may be said has come true.

Our troops are in Alsace. Nothing could make a more resounding and clarion note for the soldiers of France. The French forces in this region then will have a tremendous advantage in the bare fact of their being where they are. There can be no doubt that the German military authorities had considerable difficulties in carrying out the mobilization in Alsace and Lorraine. I learn on very good authority that arrests have been very numerous and there has been wholesale suppression of newspapers. In their retreat from advanced positions the Germans burned many farms. The report of the summary execution of Mme. Favre Schwarz, who is married to a well-known Alsatian, is untrue. The story was first published by a Basel newspaper, but was afterwards declared to be untrue. The lady is, indeed, living in safety at Basel.

At the completion of the second week of the war the Minister of War issued a note tonight in which he presents, in birdseye view, the chief facts from the French standpoint. This statement summarizes the chief advantages gained so far by the French.

FREE HAND IN PACIFIC ENGLAND GIVES JAPAN.

Allies Said to Have Ordered Far East to Be Cleared of Germans.

Move of Great Importance to the United States Declared to Have Been Decided Upon With Wholesale Occupation of Kaiser's Territory in China and Elsewhere by the Nipponese.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 15.—To Japan the allies have entrusted the task of clearing the Pacific and Far East of the Germans. This important news has been received in diplomatic circles here and confirms the advices received two days ago by the State Department.

As a result of the agreement reached, Japan will proceed to capture:

The German district of Kiao Chou on the Shantung peninsula of China.

Ladrone Islands, the principal of which, Guam, belongs to the United States.

The Caroline Islands, lying to the east of the Philippine archipelago.

The Marshall Islands, numbering twenty-five in all, which lie in mid-Pacific.

The Samoan Islands of Savaii and Upolu. Tutuila and Rose islands of this group belong to the United States.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, the northern section of Southeast New Guinea.

Bismarck Archipelago, just off New Guinea.

The British, French and Russian ships in the Pacific will co-operate with the Japanese, but on the latter will fall the brunt of the work of eliminating the Germans from the Far East.

TO DISMANTLE WARSHIPS.

Such German and Austrian men-of-war as have sought refuge at Kiao Chou will be dismantled in order to defend that port. Other German vessels that are cruising in the Pacific will be sought by Japanese, British and French men-of-war and captured or destroyed.

Thus Japan has been given a free hand in the Pacific and the Far East.

It is a matter of great importance to the United States and of possible grave consequence to China.

In operating against Kiao Chou, Japan will be forced to violate the neutrality of China. The Peking government is doing such mobilization as it can, but President Yuan Shi Kai realizes, according to the advices received here, that it would be fatal for China to oppose the Japanese.

Therefore, after a diplomatic protest, China will do nothing and will hope merely that by observing a supine attitude her territory will not be permanently held by Japan.

So far as the United States is concerned, the administration has determined not to make any protest in behalf of China. It would like to see her neutrality protected, but it does not propose to take a stand which might embroil the country in the great war in progress.

The capture of Kiao Chou and the destruction of the German ships cruising in the Pacific will be the most difficult part of the task assigned to Japan. There are no garrisons of any importance in any of the German possessions save Kiao Chou.

Consequently, it will be necessary only to send warships to the seats of government of the Ladrone, Caroline, Marshall and Samoan Islands and to Kaiser Wilhelm's Land and Bismarck Archipelago and formally hoist over them the Japanese flag.

BIG WAR PROBLEMS.

What will be done with these possessions after the war is terminated remains to be seen. It is apparent that Japan will be invited to take part in the congress which certainly will be held and that her claims to consideration must be heard.

Herein will enter a fruitful source of discord. Russia will not like the idea of Japan commanding the capital of China from two points and her control of the Yellow Sea, which this favored situation will assure.

It is not to the interest of the United States for Japan to spread all over the Pacific and particularly to command the routes to the Philippines and from the Panama Canal to the Far East.

There is one feature of the relations of the United States and Japan which is arousing grave concern. The California question has not been settled. Japan has been pressing the United States for months to treat her subjects as the equal of the white race.

With Germany preoccupied at home and with the reduction of German possessions a comparatively easy matter, with Russia straining every nerve to defeat Germany and Austria and with Great Britain likewise engaged, Japan can deal with the United States single-handed.

Great Britain cannot apply any pressure of importance on Japan to compel that nation to refrain from going too far in representations to this government.

DESTROYER HULL ON PATROL DUTY.

U. S. VESSEL AT SAN DIEGO TO REMAIN IN VICINITY OF THAT PORT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 15.—The United States destroyer Hull, which coaled here after arriving from Mazatlan, sailed this evening for the North. The destroyer Hull will patrol the waters in this vicinity to enforce the neutrality laws and the cruiser Raleigh will remain in the North for that purpose.

The armored cruiser Idzuma, which has been expected here for two days from the southern coast, arrived this evening at 6:30 o'clock and is coaling at La Playa, the United States government coaling station. Instead of taking 500 tons of coal as the first request was made for, the Idzuma will take 1000 tons of coal preparatory to a long voyage or cruise. Capt. Sato is in command of the Japanese ship.

The collier Queen Helena, one of the British colliers bringing coal from Norfolk, Va., around the Horn for the United States government, arrived this evening with 7000 tons of coal. The Queen Helena cannot begin to unload until the collier Vestalia leaves La Playa. For a time it was feared the collier Queen Helena which was must later than the Vestalia in arriving might be seized by the German cruisers Leipzig and Nuernburg while in the southern waters.

FRENCH BEGIN THE OFFENSIVE.

ADVANCE IN GREAT FORCE ON FRANCO-GERMAN FRONTIER HAS COMMENCED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Official dispatches announce that the French offensive movement began in great force along the line from Sarrebourg on the Franco-German frontier to Luneville in the department of Huerthe-Et-Moselle last evening. It continued throughout the night with full success and this morning a German standard was captured.

"Blamont, seventeen miles east of Luneville, Circy, still further east, and Avricourt, occupied by a Bavarian army corps, were stormed by our troops," the announcement continues. "The Germans are in full retreat, having left many dead, wounded and prisoners. The French continue to advance to upper Vosges, the Germans giving way before them.

"In upper Alsace we have retaken Thann.

"Prisoners affirm that Gen. von Diemling, commanding the Fifteenth Army Corps at Thann, was wounded. At St. Blaise, in the valley of Bruche, a German flag was taken."

PANAMA CANAL OPEN TO WORLD; ANCON PASSES IN NINE HOURS.

The More Commerce the Better, Is the Watchword On the Isthmus From Now On.

Great Ocean Highway from Atlantic to the Pacific, the Dream of Three Centuries, Is Now a Reality and Dreadnoughts Can Make the Voyage at Any Time—Strict Rules Laid Down for Vessels of Belligerent Nations.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PANAMA, Aug. 15.—The Panama Canal is open to the commerce of the world. Henceforth ships may pass to and fro through the great waterway which establishes a new ocean highway for trade.

The steamship Ancon, owned by the United States War Department, with many notable people on board, today made the official passage which signalized the opening of the canal. She left Cristobal at 7 o'clock this morning and reached Balboa, on the Pacific end, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, having navigated the waterway in nine hours.

The Ancon did not anchor at Balboa, but proceeded into deep water in the Pacific beyond the fortified islands, where she anchored in the channel of the canal until her return to Balboa, when she landed her passengers.

The Ancon will remain at the Balboa docks for some time, discharging her cargo, this being the first commercial voyage made through the canal.

The canal having been officially opened, it will be used tomorrow for the transfer of four cargo ships, which will thus shorten their routes. The private yacht Lasata, owned in Los Angeles, will be transferred to the Pacific, homeward bound.

ANCON MAKES FAST TRIP.

The trip of the Ancon was the fastest yet made by a large ocean steamer, the locking operations being quicker, owing to greater experience. The steamer went through the Gatun locks in seventy minutes, a speed never before equaled. The other lockages were equally rapid.

Col. George W. Goethals, builder of the canal and Governor of the zone, watched the operations closely and was manifestly pleased at the improved handling of the locks. He declared that even this would be made much better with time. Capt. Hugh Rodman, superintendent of transportation, who directed the trip, voiced similar sentiments.

The decks of the Ancon were crowded with guests of the government and officials of the canal administration and the republic of Panama. The peaceful flag of the American Peace Society fluttered from the mast of the Ancon. Beneath her decks, however, were two huge pieces of artillery, which will form part of the defense of the canal.

With the passage through the Panama Canal today of the War Department liner Ancon, the great waterway becomes "free and open to the vessels of commerce and of warships of all nations on terms of entire equality," in accordance with the provision of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Vessels drawing not more than thirty feet of water may now make the passage. It would be possible to put the big American dreadnoughts through at any time.

RULES FOR WARSHIPS.

Any of the foreign warships now in the Atlantic and Pacific waters could also make the trip, but the naval plans of the European powers which have vessels off both coasts of the United States are not known here. Embarrassment will face the United States should one of the vessels of the belligerents seek passage. Strictest rules are laid in the treaty for the perpetual neutralizing of the canal and every detail will be under the direction of Gov. Goethals and his staff.

Except in cases of absolute necessity, vessels of belligerents must make uninterrupted passage through the canal. They may not coal, revictual or embark or disembark troops in the canal zone and these provisions also apply to the terminal waters at both ends of the canal, within a limit of three miles. Twenty-four hours is the limit of time a belligerent vessel can remain within the canal, except in cases of distress, and a vessel of war of one belligerent cannot depart within twenty-four hours from the departure of a vessel of war of another belligerent.

All of the plant and establishments that are part of the canal are immune from attack or injury by any belligerents. Vigilant American pilots will see that no foreign belligerent vessels can make observations of the canal defenses. The principal work remaining to be done in completing the canal is the deepening and widening of the channel through Culebra Cut, as well as excavation operations at both approaches.

SAN FRANCISCO CELEBRATES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The flags of all the nations were flying today from the ferry building, the portal of the city, and many buildings were gay with bunting in a double celebration. The Panama Canal had been opened and the first car had been run over the rails of the new municipal railway down Van Ness avenue from Market street to the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

RIGHTS OF AMERICAN SHIPPERS UNDER LAWS OF CONTRABAND.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — The State Department today made public the German proclamation as to contraband of war. The list corresponds as regards absolute contraband to the commodities set forth in the British declaration. As regards both absolute and condition contraband, Germany gives notice that she will apply the provisions of the declaration of London provided the other belligerents do not disregard them. In making public the lists, Solicitor Johnson of the State Department said his advices were based on the most accepted and generally accepted principles of interna-being unable to forecast the precise course or position of the belligerent governments in particular instances.

The declarations of the other belligerents regarding contraband have not yet been received, but it is assumed they will, in the main, follow those of England and Germany.

SEIZURES.

Regarding the seizure of vessels and cargoes, Solicitor Johnson's statement says:

"Vessels flying the flag of one of the belligerents are subject to seizure and confiscation by the opposing belligerents. Contraband of war on board such vessel is, of course, subject to confiscation, though the property of a neutral.

"Goods not contraband, belonging to a neutral aboard a captured vessel, sel, but not to confiscation, on manifestation of neutral ownership and the non-contraband character of the goods.

"When a vessel containing cargo of a citizen of the United States is captured and is carried before a prize court, as it will be, presumably, he should give notice of his claim of property to the prize court authorities and be prepared to furnish proof of his ownership and the non-contraband character of his goods.

"Goods of a neutral, not a contraband of war, shipped on a neutral vessel are not rightfully subject to seizure or interference by any of the belligerents, and it is not presumed that the vessels of neutrals carrying only non-contraband cargoes will be interfered with."

GERMAN MESSAGE.

ernment, owing to errors in transmission, is somewhat obscure, but it is assumed to coincide with the English declaration and to define contraband as follows: Absolute contraband:

"(1.) Arms of all kinds, including arms for sporting purposes and their distinctive component parts.

"(2.) Projectiles, charges and cartridges of all kinds and their distinctive component parts.

"(3.) Powder and explosives specially prepared for use in war.

"(4.) Gun mountings, limber boxes, limbers, military wagons, field forges and their distinctive component parts.

"(5.) Clothing and equipment of a distinctively military character.

"(6.) All kinds of rarness of a distinctively military character.

"(7.) Saddles, draught and pack animals, suitable for use in war.

"(8.) Articles of camp equipment and their distinctive component parts.

"(9.) Armor plates.

"(10.) Warships, including boats and their distinctive component parts of such a nature that they can only be used on a vessel of war.

"(11.) Aeroplanes, airships, balloons and air craft of all kinds and their component parts, together with accessories and articles recognizable as intended for use in connection with with balloons and air craft.

"(12.) Implements and apparatus designed exclusively for the manufacture of munitions of war, for the manufacture or repair of arms or war material for use on land and sea."

The following articles will be treated as conditional contraband:

"(1.) Foodstuffs.

"(2.) Forage and grain suitable for feeding animals.

"(3.) Clothing, fabrics for clothing and boots and shoes suitable for use in war.

"(4.) Gold and silver in coin or bullion, paper money.

"(5.) Vessels of all kinds available for use in war and their component parts.

"(6.) Vessels, craft and boats of all kinds, floating docks, parts of docks and their component parts.

"(7.) Railway material, both fixed and rolling stock, and materials for telegraph, wireless telegraph and telephones.

"(8.) Fuel lubricants.

"(9.) Powder and explosives not specially prepared for use in war.

"(10.) Barbed wire and implements for fixing and cutting the same.

"(11.) Horseshoes and shoeing materials.

"(12.) Harness and saddlery.

"13.) Field glasses, telescopes, chronometers and all kinds of nautical instruments."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—Silence, profound and terrible, has fallen over the field of battle in Belgium. We know that there are 1,000,000 men, armed with all the awful panoply of war, waiting to fly at each other's throats. At any moment we may hear the earth shaking with the thunder of hundreds of cannon.

It is a nerve-destroying stillness which we endure. The only information to be gained at the War Office this morning was that the night had passed without further collisions between the outposts of the contending armies.

Information brought here this morning by a sergeant of the Belgian army, who got through from Liege, shows that the Germans are by no means at ease there. A member of their general staff committed suicide. He said that Liege would be the tomb of the German army and that he would be the first to enter it.

Eight German soldiers there committed suicide by jumping into the Meuse.

A dispatch rider who arrived in Brussels from the Belgian outposts this afternoon reported that the Belgians gained another victory between Diest and Hasselt resulting in a German loss of 3000 killed and wounded. The Belgians, it is said, lost fewer than 300 killed and wounded. The Germans are now reported in retreat.

PRINT WARNING TO CIVILIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BRUSSELS (Via Paris) Aug. [illegible]—All the newspapers print in large type on their front pages a "warning to civilians" enjoining them to keep their doors and windows closed and in the event that a hamlet is occupied by German troops, to evacuate it in order to give the Germans no opportunity of accusing noncombatants of firing on them.

According to the latest advices from the Belgian capital, barely [illegible] German soldiers escaped unhurt out of the 4000 or 5000 engaged in the battle of Haelen. Many of the field guns of the German artillery were lost in the swamps.

The soldiers who remained of the German attacking column retired to Tongres.

A special train has been sent out from Brussels to collect the wounded on the battlefield. Among them are reported to be two German Princes.

It was officially announced this afternoon that the situation remains satisfactory and that nothing happened during the night.

A Belgian sergeant who came from Liege asserts that there is much demoralization among the German troops there. A German officer and eight soldiers committed suicide by throwing themselves into the River Meuse.

Purpose.

FIRE LOW, GERMAN ORDER; BELGIANS HIT IN LEGS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A medical correspondent of the London Times in Brussels sends this dispatch:

"Two facts have struck me very forcibly. First, a very large number of the Belgian soldiers are wounded only in the legs, and, secondly, many soldiers seem to have collapsed through sheer exhaustion.

"Some of those Belgian soldiers were at work and on the march during the stupendous days of Wednesday and Thursday. Practically without a moment's respite. They went literally until they dropped. Only with actual loss of consciousness was duty relinquished.

"As a medical man this remarkable state of affairs interested me enormously. The victims present a very alarming appearance when first met. They seem to be almost dead. They are limp and pale and cold. After a time, however, strength begins to return and recovery is usually not protracted.

"The fact that so many of the Belgian wounded had been shot in the legs aroused considerable surprise at first in medical circles. It soon became clear that this was not merely a matter of chance.

"When the German prisoners began to come in and were interrogated, the explanation was forthcoming. It transpired that orders had been given to fire low, no doubt in the belief that a man hit in the legs must immediately be placed hors de combat. While there may be something in the theory it remains a fact that a bullet wound in the thigh or calf tends to heal quickly and that many of the wounded are already on the high road to recovery. The German wounded on the other hand have been hit for the most part about the body."

REPORT DEFEAT OF FRENCH CORPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from German official sources in [illegible] lin was received here today via Sayville, L. I., wireless station as follows:

The seventh French army corps and an army division from [illegible] which had invaded upper Alsace were defeated yesterday by German troops near Mulhausen.

The dispatch, somewhat mutilated by poor transmission, indicated that French entrenchments were taken at the point of the bayonet.

OVERSEAS—THE SITUATION TO DATE.

The first really [illegible] official statement issued by any of the capitals of Europe since the war began came last night from Paris. While bearing in[illegible] trinsic evidence that it was drafted and issued to [illegible] French republic [illegible] news it betrays an amount of information lacking in other dispatches [illegible] the course of [illegible] last night. It [illegible] the "Great Battle" of the "Greatest War in the History of the World" must [illegible] "developed" by [illegible] tact over a line extending from Basel to Maastricht, a distance of over 250 miles. The date of the battle is [illegible]. Some persons suggest August 25. Others again think it may be developed in the course of [illegible] fewer days. Still another opinion is that the first decisive battle may be fought [illegible] in Upper Alsace.

Japan loomed large in the news last night as the ally of England and much importance seems to be attached to [illegible] first overt act. [illegible] importance is attached to the attitude of the [illegible] Turkey whence it is possible for the war to reach to India, via Mohammedan [illegible] -nels.

CAN'T GO ON TRANSPORT.

San Diego Man Refused Permission to Go to Spain to Secure Information About Cabrillo.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 15.—Representative Kettner made an appeal this morning to allow Ernest Riall of San Diego to go to Europe on one of the transports which the government will send over for marooned Americans. Riall is president of the Order of Panama and has been commissioned to visit Spain to secure information about Cabrillo, to whose memory San Diego is to erect a statue.

Secretary Garrison told Kettner that it was against the law to take any passengers on transports and that he already had refused 300 similar requests.

IMPERIAL MEN CALL ON LANE.

SECURE PROMISE OF HIS AID FOR APPROPRIATION.

Senator Perkins to Be Asked to Introduce Amendment to Rivers and Harbors Bill Which Will Provide for Million Dollars to Prevent Ravages of Colorado River.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 15.—Representative Kettner accompanied the delegation sent here from Imperial Valley to see Secretary of the Interior Lane this morning to secure his support for the plan to get an appropriation of $1,000,000 from Congress to prevent ravages of the Colorado River.

Secretary Lane assured his callers that he was entirely in sympathy with their mission, and that when asked by Congress he would cheerfully submit his opinion on the merits of the plan. The visitors will look up the report submitted to the Secretary on the Colorado River by Gen. Marshall, and on Monday or Tuesday they will ask Senator Perkins to introduce an amendment to the Rivers and Harbors Bill. The regular course will be for the Senate Committee on Commerce to ask Secretary Lane for a report on the amendment. Representative Stephens said today that he was personally in sympathy with the desires of the people of the Imperial Valley and that he stood ready to give them any assistance in his power.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION.

Conference Which Was to Have Been Begun at Stockholm Is Indefinitely Postponed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Indefinite postponement of the inter-parliamentary union which was to have begun at Stockholm on August 19, was announced in a cablegram which Representative Bartholdt of Missouri has received. The president and Executive Council ordered the postponement as the result of the present disturbed conditions in Europe. There were to have been 748 delegates present, representing forty-one countries.

Pension for Angeleno.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 15.—The name of the postoffice at Hobgood, Imperial county, has been officially changed to Niland.

EIGHT GERMANS SHOT AS SPIES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 15 (via London) Aug. 16.—Prince Aage of Denmark, who was arrested a short time ago by Germany as a spy, but later was released, arrived Friday at Helsingborg from Havre. The Prince said the director of the Hotel Astoria at Paris and seven of his staff, all Germans, have been shot as spies.

In order to reopen Swedish navigation the government has proposed that Parliament fix a guarantee of 80 per cent. war risk on cargoes and hulls, the ship owners taking the responsibility of insuring the crew. Thus, navigation to England and America probably will be opened next week.

REPORT GERMANS FALLING BACK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Paris Temps, according to a Reuter dispatch, thus summarizes the military situation:

"The German forces stretch from Liege to the Muelhausen district, with marked density, north. Their front seems to follow the course of the Orthe River, then the frontier, which is crossed at Longwy and Circy. A large part of this front has been brilliantly carried by the Fren[illegible]erman columns are now falling back. They left behind many dead and wounded, in addition to prisoners.

"In upper Vosges, the French troops also continue to make progress and the Germans are retreating."

SCORES BANK NOTE PLAN.

Chairman Carter Glass Declares Suggestion of New York Bankers Will Not be Adopted.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Chairman Carter Glass of the House Banking and Currency Committee issued a statement today attacking the suggestion that the use of bank notes instead of gold for bank reserve be authorized.

"It seems to me," said his statement, "that this is 'fiatism run mad. Furthermore it suggests that we should temporarily repudiate our gold obligations at home to help certain banks meet their gold obligations abroad and I for one don't think the suggestion should be entertained for a moment, nor do I believe it will be."

Indigestion and Constipation.

"About five years ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets after suffering from indigestion and constipation for years without finding anything to relieve me. Chamberlain's Tablets helped me at once and by using them for several weeks I was cured of the complaint," writes Mrs. Mary E. McMullen, Phelps, N. Y.—

A Simple Way to Remove Unsightly Hair

GROWTHS INSTANTLY VANISH IF EL RADO IS USED—ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS.

It is no longer necessary for women afflicted with unsightly hair growths to everlastingly suffer humiliation. These growths can be removed instantly; positively without the slightest harm, and, without effort, ever after, the unsightly hair can be kept from being noticeable.

While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will permanently remove hair without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El Rado will remove hair for a very long time, and in an absolutely harmless, simple, thorough manner. When the hair finally reappears it is finer instead of coarser, and can instantly be removed again for a still longer period than at first.

A few drops, a single application and, in a moment or two the hair vanishes, leaving the skin softer, velvety, even whiter than before, because of the soothing, antiseptic properties.

Have no hesitancy in using it. Try El Rado on your arm first and prove for yourself the merits of this toilet necessity.

AUGUST TWENTY-FIFTH DATE SET FOR BATTLE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—At the present writing it looks as if the date of decisive conflict between the two great armies now facing each other in Belgium and along the French-German frontier was about correct, although one military authority today estimated that not before the 25th can a decisive issue be reported.

The operations thus far, with the one notable exception of the attack upon and defense of Liege, have been relatively unimportant, and though conducted on a scale which in an ordinary war would have placed them in the smaller battle class, appear almost trifling affairs in the present gigantic struggle of millions of men.

Here and in Brussels and Paris the natural disposition is to look upon these preliminary actions, which are merely covering and reconnoitering and strength-feeling operations, as having been generally favorable to the allies' armies, but it must be noted that it is evident from such reports as come through from Berlin that the German general staff appear to be equally satisfied with the results obtained, an exception being made of the failure to rush the Liege forts.

Among the military experts who have access to official information, opinions as to the plan which the Germans have been forced to adopt as the result of the unexpected resistance by Liege to their progress through Central Belgium is largely conjectural. It is generally believed, however, that some modification of their original plan has been rendered necessary, and it would be absurd to suppose that such an efficient and scientific machine as the German general staff was not prepared with an alternative plan in case the first one adopted went awry in any essential particular.

It remains to be seen, indeed, whether the check suffered by the Germans in Belgium has essentially deranged their plans, as the English writers are only too ready to assume.

GERMAN ADVANCE IS REPORTED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug 16.—A Reuter dispatch from Diest, timed 8 p.m., Saturday, says:

"The night passed quietly here without attack. It is said that the Germans are advancing in the direction of Aerschot, to the west of Diest, where an engagement has occurred at Landen, and that the Germans were driven back.

A German aviator flew over Tirlemont in the direction of Diest at noon today. A shell brought him down."

Austrian Liner Captured.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ALEXANDRIA (Egypt, Via London, 12:50 p.m.) Aug. 15.—The big new Austrian Lloyd liner Marienbad was captured today by a British warship near here while on the voyage from Bombay to Triesta. She was brought into port.

DUTCH QUEEN IS ECONOMICAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Daily Chronicle says that Queen Wilhelmina has decided to institute more economy at the Dutch Court, so that there may be larger funds available for relief work. The usual royal visits to Amsterdam and other places have been abandoned, and the principal court functions for the coming autumn and winter have been cancelled.

MAIL TO EUROPE IS PROCEEDING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Mail to Europe is proceeding expeditiously, notwithstanding the paralysis in steamship communication between the United States and the war zones. An official announcement was made at the State Department today which says:

"Mails for all countries, including Germany and Austria-Hungary, are being dispatched three or four times a week. After the dispatches have been made by the steamers sailing from New York today, no mail for any European country will be left on hand at New York.

"The mails for the different countries are forwarded by the routes which will not require them to pass through intervening countries with which the countries of destination of the mails are at war. Letters and other articles contained in said mails should reach the addresses in due course."

Reports Heavy German Loss.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 15 (7 p.m.)—The Central News correspondent at Brussels, who has returned from the front, estimates that the German losses in killed throughout the fighting against the Belgians so far amounts to 15,000.

Italian Steamer Sails.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

NAPLES (Via Paris) Aug. 15.—The steamer San Giovanni sailed for New York today with 700 American passengers on board. The Carpathia is expected to leave tonight or tomorrow, the San Guglielmo on August 19 and the San Giorgo on August 30.

THREE INQUIRIES ON IN CHICAGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Three inquiries into the causes for war-time food prices were in progress here today. The first, by James H. Wilkerson, United States District Attorney; the second by Maclay Hoyne, State's Attorney, and the third by James H. Lawley, chairman of the City Council Committee on Markets.

Investigators for the State contradicted earlier statements by the meat packers that the sudden boosts in meat prices had been the natural results of an unusual shortage in hog receipts at the stock yards. They returned the information that cold storage houses here have an immense quantity of pork on hand.

Counsel for Armour & Co. informed Mr. Wilkerson that the packers were ready to appear before the grand jury to answer any questions or to produce their books and explain any entries.

The evidence taken in the trial of the packers charged with violation of the Sherman Act several years ago, will be used as a basis on which the inquiry is to proceed. Mr. Wilkerson said reports had been made to him that thousands of pounds of meat have been rushed over the Canadian border since the beginning of the European hostilities.

AMERICANS MINUS BAGGAGE.

Large Number Who Fled Europe Arrive on Celtic With Wealthy Ones in Steerage.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Another baggageless lot of Americans who fled Europe to avoid the war reached New York today on the Celtic. The cabins were jammed and the stewards had a hard time feeding the throng. In the first cabin were 504 persons, in the second 606 and in the steerage 656.

W. H. Vanderpoot, son-in-law of C. K. G. Billings, was a passenger on the Celtic with his wife, child and Miss Billings. He said they were in Paris when the condition of affairs became alarming. The party left on a crowded train for Calais. The Celtic took a northerly course and steamed without lights at night, but the trip was without incident. Other passengers were Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt and son, Capt. C. A. Barbour, Ernest Iselin and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Westinghouse.

More than a hundred persons of means were in the steerage of the Celtic because of the congestion on board. One passenger who fortunately obtained first cabin accommodation refused an offer of $2700 for a stateroom.

The Celtic's passengers appointed a committee to send resolutions to President Wilson, thanking him for the interest he has shown in getting stranded tourists out of Europe.

CHINDA UNAWARE OF JAPAN'S PLANS.

To House the Americans.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

THE HAGUE (Via London) Aug. 15 (11:30 a.m.)—Henry Van Dyke, American Minister to The Netherlands, has gone to Rotterdam to arrange for the housing of the Americans who have arrived there from Germany. He also will arrange for their early transportation to the United States.

WIDOW OF LEO TOLSTOI WOULD ENLIST AS NURSE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16, 1:10 a.m.—German wounded are beginning to arrive at Moscow, says a Reuter dispatch from St. Petersburg, and they are being well cared for. Several members of the Tolstoi family, including Tolstoi's widow, have offered their services to the government for Red Cross or other work.

A semi-official communication is published, denying the charges that Russians have sacked the Armenian districts bordering on Russia and that the Russians have massacred many Mussulmans.

A St. Petersburg dispatch to the Reuter company says two German cruisers on Thursday fired a score of shells at the lighthouse on Cape Dager Ort, the western extremity of Dago Island, between the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic Sea. The lighthouse was not damaged.

PROMISES.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the Russian army, has addressed a manifesto to Poland, appealing for the loyalty of the Poles and promising them autonomy in return. The manifesto reads:

"The hour has sounded when the sacred dream of your fathers may be realized. A hundred and fifty years ago the living body of Poland was torn to pieces, but her soul survived and she lived in hope that for the Polish people would come an hour of regeneration and reconciliation with Russia.

"The Russian army brings you the solemn news of this reconciliation which effaces the frontiers severing the Polish people, whom it unites conjointly under the scepter of the Czar of Russia. Under this scepter Poland will be born again, free in her religion, her language and autonomous.

"Russia expects from you only the loyalty to which history has bound you. With open heart and a brotherly hand extended, great Russia comes to meet you. She believes that the sword which struck her enemies at Gruenewald is not yet rusted.

"Russia, from the shores of the Pacific Ocean to the North Sea, marches in arms. The dawn of a new life commences for you. In this glorious dawn is seen the sign of the cross—the symbol of suffering and the resurrection of a people."

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The Russian general staff announces that Russian troops have destroyed local railroad and telegraph lines in the province of East Prussia at eleven points between Schmalleningken of the Russian frontier, and Tilsit.

German troops also have damaged some of the frontier roads.

On Wednesday the Twelfth German Uhlans and the Ninth German Rifle Regiment, accompanied by artillery, were discovered on the German frontier in the neighborhood of Kalisz by Russian troops. The Germans avoided coming into contact, retiring to the northwest.

Repatriation.

TO NEUTRALIZE FOREIGN SHIPS.

United States Arranges to Bring Back Citizens.

May Restore Vessel Service to Hostile Countries.

No Objection Expected from England or France.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The United States government has notified the powers of Europe that it will regard as neutral ships chartered for the sole purpose of repatriating its citizens who are now "stranded in Europe" and has asked the belligerent governments for a declaration on the subject.

The announcement follows:

"The State Department has issued instructions to its diplomatic representatives in Europe to notify the different governments to which they are accredited that this government will regard ships chartered for the sole purpose of repatriating its citizens, who are now stranded in Europe due to the lack of transportation facilities resulting from the war as neutralized under the principles of international law and as coming within the meaning of article V of The Hague convention of 1907, having to do with the rights of capture in naval warfare of neutralized vessels that are charged with a philanthropic mission. The different European governments have been asked for declarations to this effect."

GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

The government took this position after several days of careful study of the situation and, it is believed, after indications from some of the belligerent powers that ships bearing Americans would not be molested.

Dispatches from Berlin during the day, said the German government would endeavor to neutralize any vessel bearing refugee Americans and it is known that the Austrian government has been seeking definite assurances that the other powers would regard as neutral German-owned ships now in Austrian ports, ready to take Americans home.

No objection is expected from England or France and the success of the project is looked upon by State Department officials as assured.

THE HAGUE CONVENTION.

Article IV of the second Hague convention, to which the European powers are signatories, says:

"Vessels with religious, scientific or philanthropic missions are exempt from capture."

This clearly includes foreign refugees, in the opinion of the American government. With the neutralization of ships owned by belligerents and with the facilities previously provided for the relief of Americans, the problem of bringing Americans home from war-torn Europe is believed to have been solved.

Not only will there be sufficient ships for the purpose, but a regular passenger service from the belligerent countries to neutral territory for the handling of all foreign refugees may result from the action of the American government.

The most immediate need of ships is in German ports. Americans, who have been detained in Germany because of lack of railway facilities during the period of mobilization, can now leave.

BRYAN'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

The following announcement was made in this connection by Secretary Bryan tonight:

"The Department of State has received cable advices from the American Ambassador at Berlin to the effect that the German government is permitting American citizens to leave the empire as fast as train service is restored, and if that government blockades any port, Americans will be allowed to leave."

From Ambassador Gerard also came advices that the American cruiser Tennessee, bearing gold for the relief of Americans, would be allowed to land at a German port, either Bremen or Hamburg, whichever may be found more convenient when the cruiser is ready to proceed from England to Germany.

The charter of additional vessels and other measures for the relief of Americans abroad were discussed at a conference of the Federal Relief Board at the Treasury Department today. Secretary McAdoo announced that the six transports chartered by the board to bring Americans home would be made ready without delay.

SITUATION RELIEVED.

Reports from American Ambassadors and diplomats indicate that the situation has been considerably relieved by the release for trans-Atlantic service of the liners Lusitania, Mauretania, Olympic and Saxonia. The restoration of these vessels will help solve the transportation problem, though some steamship authorities estimate that fully 100,000 Americans await passage home.

The demands of stranded Americans for ready money have been somewhat relieved. The board was informed that the banks now are honoring letters of credit held by American travelers. In cases of Americans without letters of credit American Ambassadors, Ministers and Consuls are extending assistance. The deposits of money with the Treasury and tSate departments and the subtreasuries in other cities crept up to $1,196,000 today. This money is being cabled abroad for immediate assistance of the beneficiaries.

GEOGRAPHER IS SAFE.

Only the British Chauffeur of the American Huntington Was Detained By the Authorities in Germany.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Archer M. Huntington of New York, president of the American Geographical Society, and his family were not arrested, but have been enjoying the fullest liberty at Nuremburg, Germany, according to a message to the State Department today from the German foreign office.

The German government explained that the automobile owned by the Huntington family had been requisitioned and that the chauffeur, a British subject, had been held for a short time, but was released and that all were in Neremburg now safe and well. The American Charge d'Affairs at St. Petersburg reported that nearly all the Americans had left and that others were leaving daily.

SAILORS GIVEN "DANGER" MONEY.

EXTRA PAY FOR WAR RISK IS RESULT OF STRIKE.

Reports from Abroad Indicate Enough Steamers Are Sailing in the Next Few Days to Take Care of All Americans in England and Elsewhere.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The sailors, firemen and stewards of the Atlantic Transport line steamer Minnewaska when about to leave London today with 250 passengers for New York went on strike and demanded "danger" money on account of the risk they were taking in crossing the Atlantic. The trouble was arranged and the boat sailed.

A dispatch to Reuters Telegram Company from Amsterdam, says that 700 Americans from Berlin arrived at the station at Amsterdam during the night. Some hundreds were sheltered at the hotels while others proceeded to The Hague and Rotterdam, where arrangements are being made for ships to take them home. Many of the Americans warmly praised the treatment which they had in Berlin. When they were leaving the German capital, the American Consulate, the railway station and the carriages which carried them to the railway were decorated with flowers. The dining cars of their trains were abundantly stored with food. Many of the refugees had lived in Germany for years and are now returning to the United States, because serious difficulties would confront them if they remained in Germany. It is expected that about 25,000 Americans will leave that country.

The departure of 4500 Americans from Liverpool today was followed by that of another 1000 from Glasgow.

The carrying capacity of the vessels sailing for trans-Atlantic ports during the next twenty-five days is estimated at 60,000 or three times the number of Americans in the British Isles.

While the number on the continent of Europe is not known, it is believed not to exceed 30,000. A large number of these are returning by Dutch, Danish and Italian lines. The members of the American Citizens' Committee say they fail to see the necessity of the dispatch of transports to take stranded Americans back to the United States, in view of new sailings which have been announced. The Grampian sails tomorrow, the Arcadian, the Andania, and the Ausonia August 18; the Olympic August 19 and the Adriatic August 20.

MORE AMERICANS SAIL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 15.—12.10 p.m.—The sailing from this port today of the St. Louis, the Campania and the Minnewaska for New York and the Megantic for Montreal, reduced the number of Americans who had been stranded in England by 4500. The American line steamer St. Paul from New York arrived yesterday.

THE CHECKERBOARD OF THE WAR.

BY HARRY CARR.

HESE are days of dreadful waiting. Army men open the newspapers every morning with the expectation of reading the announcement of a conflict that will rank with the great of the world.

That this battle is actually in progress and has been raging for days seems to be the opinion of many former officers of the and French forces.

One military authority predicts that the battle will last five days will decide this particular phase of the war.

Counting the days of the duration of a fight seems to be cutting ty fine; but I have given up asking military strategists how know. Their pre-knowledge of the events of this war has al- been proven.

The baseball critic knows that the experienced pitcher, with strikes and three balls on the batter, will nearly always a fast ball next. By a similar process of reasoning the mili- itics understand what two military commanders, half a world can be expected to do next.

The reasons assigned by military critics for the belief that a battle of the war is being fought are two:

The character of the attack upon Liege.

The character of the censorship.

The attack upon Liege, in spite of its ferocity and fearful losses, generally interpreted as an affair of the advance guard.

In view of the amazing speed with which the German troops mobilized and put in the field, it is evident that they are busy than at Liege. The assault upon Liege is but a terrific incident, and the "big stuff" is somewhere else. A body of very much larger than the army accounted for in the assault the forts at Liege is undoubtedly in action somewhere. This army, my officer friends assure me, is now fighting a battle will stagger the world.

WHY THE SILENCE?

The second reason for the belief that a battle is being fought is censorship.

In a general way, the news of the United States comes through The silence of London in the face of world events of such importance is interpreted by German military men as being of the success of German arms in the hidden conflict.

The one great dread of England at this phase of the war is that news of the fighting to reach racked, uneasy, rebellious, mutinous India will be the news of a British reversal.

So much by way of speculation as to the cause of the ominous of the telegraph wires.

Assuming that the military critics have again guessed correctly, consider what they have to say as to the effects of the battle.

The effects will be twofold—physical and psychological. The will be quite as important and have quite as sweeping an effect on the future of the war as the purely physical.

In a vague way, the conflict may be said to be raging on the field of Waterloo. At least, somewhere in that vicinity. For obvious reasons, the Germans would, no doubt, like to fight all of this war on the scenes of their former triumphs against France. And you must remember that the Germans have always considered themselves to be the victors at Waterloo; they hold that the English were only "among those present."

The purpose of the now-pending battle from the German view-point is to force a long semi-circular thrust into the heart of Paris. Germans hope to repeat the tactics of Sedan and crush a way to the gay capital and have this phase of the war done with before the troops are fully mobilized.

One German strategist, in writing of the war, states that the of the Kaiser is to force France to withdraw from the alliance from the war at the outset, thus disposing of the French fleets a battle.

At any rate, it is clear that the intention of the Kaiser is to rush completely off her feet at the very jump-off of the hos-

I don't know what is expected to become of the British troops in the event of a German victory in this battle—or what effect a de- have on England.

The result of a possible German defeat has been discussed by several German strategists.

TO TURN THE FLANK.

The battle, from the viewpoint of the allies, is an attempt to turn the flank of the German army and force it back onto German

This would have the effect of forcing Germany to feed her army all from her own warehouses instead of the enemy's. It also open the Rhine to the French armies.

The hope of England in the battle is more complicated from of view of military science.

In the parlance of the street, the great Kaiser "put one over" on a few years ago, when the island of Heligoland was traded for Zanzibar. England, at the time, was glad to get rid of elephant. It turned out to be a war elephant and has since the menace of Great Britain.

The Kaiser built a great ship canal from the Baltic Sea to the Channel and turned Heligoland into a monster fortress more than Gibraltar to guard the mouth of the canal.

If England hurls her great fleets through the Danish straits into after the German fleets, the Kaiser can sneak out the back through the canal and perhaps attack England.

On the mainland near both mouths of the canal, Germany has naval stations. The cities that have grown up near these stations build their houses with the plain understanding that to be dynamited at the outbreak of war.

The Germans, except for a little hot air that some of the sailors supporters, do not seriously claim to be able to compete with fleets in open battle.

"We must be cautious at sea," is the word of the strategists. as they tell it, is to hug the naval stations; strike out at men-o'-war as they become separated in the course of then dash back to the shelter of the naval stations.

war experts have declared that the British must attack the German naval stations by a land assault before they shatter the German fleets.

to this theory, they know what to expect of the British in the event of a German defeat in Belgium. The Ger- that the British, in the event of victory, will turn north the nests from which the German sea eagles are ready a sweeping victory in this battle may mean the battle may mean the wiping out of the naval bases which menace her and the nullification of a very bad bargain.

As far as I can understand them, those are the physical phases of the battle.

PSYCHOLOGICAL.

The psychological next:

One of the features of this war is the great importance placed upon "morale." All the military journals are full of talk about morale. Speak to a German who has served with the colors as an officer and with the second sentence he begins talking about "morale."

Lord Palmerston said that the Germans were a nation of "damn professors." And the fighting professors naturally look to psychology in their fighting.

"Morale" means to the military men what "getting your goat" means to a prize fighter. It is certainly a fact that, in a prize fight, one of the contenders is beaten before the fight starts—overcome by a sort of moral predominance.

The German army men have been laying plans for over forty years to capture "the goat" of the French army at the outbreak of hostilities.

This is one of the reasons for the increase of the use of the lance in the German cavalry. Formerly, the Uhlans were about the only German mounted troops carrying lances. Now the use of the "sticker" has extended to other branches of the German horse. The reason of this is that the lance is a peculiarly terrifying weapon. Soldiers are more afraid of lances than of bullets. Army men tell me that a company of infantry, once attacked by lancers, never afterward shows the same self-confidence.

Often you hear people say, "I used to be a fearless swimmer, but I once got beyond my depth and I have been afraid ever since in the water."

Or they say, "Since I had that tooth pulled, I have been deathly fearful of dentists."

Upon just that dread is based much of the hope of victory of the German arms. France had two teeth pulled in 1870.

This is doubtless the reason for the apparent German intention of fighting the big battle of this war on the battlefields of Sedan and Waterloo.

This is one of the strongest reasons why the German army has worked for speed. "Hurry-up" Yost, the football coach, was no more insistent upon speed than the German War Office. A former officer of the German heavy artillery tells me that, at 10 o'clock on the morning that Russia began war with Japan, an orderly appeared in the barracks of his regiment with an order to mobilize. At noon his regiment, in war uniforms, with emergency rations and ammunition, was waiting with the guns on the platform of a railroad station for the troops to come along.

The Germans figured that this furious speed would have exactly the same effect upon the French army that a burglar's flashlight has upon a half-awakened householder.

Also, the Germans adhere to the theory that real morale lies in aggressiveness and that no army on the defensive can possess morale to the highest degree.

THE SUDDEN CHANGE.

The French formerly built huge forts and literally "got ready to wait" for the German invasion. Within the past few months the French War Office issued a bulletin reversing this policy and informing French commanders that the French theory of war in the future would be that of quick aggression. The bulletin divided battles into two types—Mukden and Waterloo—the battle of prudent retreat when the fighting became too hot and the battle to the death. The last, it was announced, would be the French policy. It is based upon Napoleon's maxim, "The first movement in retreat is the commencement of ruin."

The Germans are inclined to believe, or at least profess to believe, that this sudden change of idea will shake the confidence of the French troops.

On the other hand, the French assert that a pin has already been thrust into German morale by the unexpected fighting in Belgium.

The French army was thirty hours longer in mobilizing than the German; but the French tacticians believe that the Belgians have more than nullified the effect of this delay. Further, that the German soldiers will be shaken in morale by the knowledge that their forty years' practice in hurried mobilization has been, to some extent, destroyed in effect.

Belgian resistance was due to poor diplomacy and the French hope that the German soldiers will feel to their marrow-bones the lack of a Bismarck.

The French base great hopes of success in the active help of England and the passive help of Italy. With no Italian army on her border to guard against and with the English fleets guarding her port quarter, France can mass her whole military strength on the German border.

The French claim to have better officers, owing to the system of examinations and promotions from the ranks. Frenchmen also assert that the present system of infantry attack in extended order favors the French individuality and elan. The Germans, on the other hand, claim that the soldier fighting in extended order must have the moral support of iron discipline—such discipline that puts in his heart the preference of death to disobedience.

The effect of the change in French military policy will, in the opinion of army men, make this the fastest battle ever fought in the world's history—not fast in the sense of short duration, but fast in the sense of speed of movement.

Whereas, it formerly required days or even weeks to change the position of an army, it is expected in this war, that armies will change position almost over night. This is due somewhat to the use of automobiles, but mostly to the superior means of conveying information—by wireless, aeroplane, etc.

In anticipation of this phase of war, the French and Germans both use great bodies of cavalry; and seem to use them after the old methods of Frederick the Great.

From the meager reports coming thus far, it would seem that the cavalry does not fight much in the dragoon fashion practiced by English and American horse troops; but rather cling to the old shock and charge.

THE PIPE-DREAMS.

Much of the silly rot published about the war is due to a misunderstanding of the opening cavalry battles.

I am sure that every Uhlan regiment has been "annihilated" several times during the past week. It is "annihilated;" then it goes cheerfully on and is "wiped out" and then is annihilated again. Some of the Uhlan regiments must, by now, be almost blase and callous to annihilation.

The Uhlans are designed after the specifications of "off again; on again; gone again, Finnigan." They are light, well-mounted, fast cavalry. Their mission is to dash into the enemy's country and dash out again. They are, one may say, specially made for retreating. They are the eyes and ears of the army. They are the dare-devils of Germany. Were these pipe-dreams about the annihilation of the Uhlans really true, the event would have no very great significance.

Win or lose, the German army must look very soon to her Russian frontier. The shambling Russian bear is coming, slow though he may be.

When the time comes to meet the rush of the bear, Germany believes that she can give him as big a surprise as the French. Can wait until his mobilization is almost complete and still beat him to it.

On the Russian border, Germany has seventeen railroads, capable of handling 600 troop trains a day. Russia has but five railroads. In ordnance, wireless stations, engineering equipment, etc., Germany is immeasurably superior to Russia along the border.

The Russian army is the mystery of Europe. The Czar has an inexhaustible mine of men upon whom to draw. Great efforts have been put forth by the Russian government to improve the quality of these troops. It is stated, however, that the French War Office recently delivered some very strong hints to the Czar to the effect that if he wanted to continue in military alliance with the French, he must "speed up" his army.

DENY PAROLE TO "ABE" RUEF.

MUST REMAIN IN PRISON FOR ANOTHER YEAR BEFORE HE APPLIES AGAIN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—No parole for Abraham Ruef. At a meeting today of the State Board of Prison Directors, held in San Quentin, the resolution of Director Warren R. Porter, moving that the board reconsider its resolution not to entertain at this time the application of Ruef for parole, was defeated three to two. The alignment was as expected: For Ruef, Porter and Sonntag; against him, Neumiller, Duffy and McLaughlin.

Seventy-seven other applications for parole were rejected by the board at the same time. The session was executive.

Ruef is now ineligible to make further application for parole before August 7, 1915.

EXPOSES LUMBER CAMPS.

Minister of Seattle Tells Industrial Commission Men Live Under Worst Possible Conditions.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—Stories of alleged exploitation of lumber-camp employees featured today's session of the Federal Industrial Relations Commission. At noon the hearing adjourned and the commission went to a nearby camp to make a personal inspection. The Rev. Oscar H. McGill of Seattle, who visits camps frequently, declared that with few exceptions the men were forced to live under miserable conditions and every effort was made to pay them as little money as possible.

"It has been testified here that the men frequently throw mattresses out of windows," he said. "If you could see some of these mattresses you would not be surprised. I know of a camp where the men fight each night for the privilege of sleeping on the table in preference to their bunks."

Frequent changes in employees at these camps has led to reports of collusion between employment agencies and employers and Mr. McGill said he believed the stories were well founded.

MINERS' WORKING CONTRACT.

Biennial Agreement Reached by Joint Committee, Which Has Been Laboring in Kansas City.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Aug. 15.—An agreement of a new biennial working contract was reached here tonight by joint committee representing the United Mine Workers of America, district No. 14, comprising the State of Kansas, and Vernon and Bates counties, Missouri, and the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association. Conferences have been held daily by the committee for several months. The Kansas coal miners have threatened to strike unless a contract to replace the old one, which expired, July 31, last, was agreed on at once.

Other joint committees representing the operators and miners in Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma, in conference here announced tonight agreements had not been reached, but that negotiations were expected to close early next week.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH.

Fire in Morgan, Or., Destroys a Home, a Store Building, Warehouse Full of Grain and a Freight Car.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HEPPENER JUNCTION (Or.) Aug. 15.—Three people were burned to death and another was injured today in a fire at Morgan, Or., which destroyed the home of Herbert Phillips, and also a store building and warehouse containing 2000 sacks of grain and a freight car. The dead are Arthur Phillips, 21 years; Edna Phillips, 24 years, and Winnie Phillips, 17 years.

THE DEFEAT OF BRISTOW.

United States Senator from Kansas Loses the Nomination in the Primaries to Curtis of Topeka.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Aug. 15.—United States Senator Joseph L. Bristow was defeated for the Republican Senatorial nomination in the recent primary by Charles Curtis of Topeka by 1740 votes, according to complete official figures made public today. Congressman George A. Neely of Hutchinson received the Democratic nomination over Hugh P. Farrelly of Chanute by 2004 votes.

ACCUSED IN FOOD INQUIRY.

First Complaints Are Filed With Special Federal Agents in Philadelphia Against Retailers.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—The first complaints received by special agents of the Federal government investigating the increased prices of necessaries here, were filed today and related to sugar and milk. One citizen complained to the United States Attorney that a firm from whom he bought sugar had raised the price from 4½ to 7 cents a pound within a few days. The other complaint was against the Interstate Association of Milk Producers which, it is charged, had sent notice to its members raising the price of milk.

No More Reservists Wanted.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—On instructions from Brussels the Belgian legation has notified the consular agents throughout the United States that no more reservists are to be returned to Belgium until further notice.

will make the American farmer a king!
Watch good farmland soar in price!

All Europe is now engaged in what will undoubtedly be a long period of conflict. European agriculture and manufacturing will practically cease. The United States must feed the fighting nations. The American farmer will have to work overtime. Farm products will soar in price—and good farm lands will also advance. A great English economist said this week: "The American farmer will now enjoy a period of unparalleled prosperity."

Now is the time to take advantage of the greatest farm land opportunity ever offered in the West—

Milford Valley lands
$30 per acre

Under Gravity Irrigation System
Water right $70 per share with 12 years' time for payment if desired

—a new irrigation project just opened (15,000 acres of virgin soil) in an old, established, successful alfalfa, grain and fruit district of Southern Utah, on the main line of the Salt Lake Railroad, a wonderful district tributary to Southern California. Shrewd California farmers are rapidly buying up Milford Valley lands—men who have farmed successfully in this State from 10 to 20 years. They bought for the following reasons:

1. Milford Valley lands are in a district where crops are netting from $50 to $400 per acre—think of this type of land at $30 an acre.
2. Milford Valley lands immediately become worth from $200 to $250 an acre when in alfalfa.
3. Authorities state this is the best alfalfa district in the West—3 cuttings net $70 and more per acre.
4. 500 to 600 bushels of potatoes to the acre are ordinary crops in this district. As high as 800 bushels have been raised on a single acre.
5. Imperial Valley ranchers are buying Milford Valley lands—in fact, they have been our heaviest buyers.
6. Our great gravity irrigation system insures unlimited water at an annual maintenance cost that should not exceed 80 cents per acre.
7. The soil is of great depth and fertility—the climate is the finest in the West—elevation 5971 feet—as healthful as living in the mountains.
8. Pure, soft drinking water—high priced, eager markets, "main line" transportation facilities—tremendous possibilities of increase in land values — no pioneering — high type of well-to-do neighbors — no "homesteaders"—
9. Best social and educational advantages—land is suburban to live, progressive city of Milford.
10. Milford Valley offers an exceptional opportunity for those who have already "made good," to better themselves.

BRITISH LINER DELAYS SAILING.

PROXIMITY OF GERMAN VESSEL AFFECTS SCHEDULE OF THE MONTEAGLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Aug. 15.—Until the Canadian Pacific Railroad gets some definite information as to the German cruiser Leipzig, the liner Monteagle's sailing for the Orient will be held up. The Monteagle was booked to sail last night for Yokohama and Hongkong, but tonight she was still at her berth and the best information to be obtained at headquarters was that she might sail tonight.

The Monteagle is full of lumber loaded at Puget Sound ports and at Vancouver, and she also carries shipments of general supplies. Among her passengers are a number of Russians and Montenegrins and two Bosnians.

TO COAL THE LEIPZIG.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—A contract to coal the German cruiser Leipzig has been placed in the hands of a towing and lighterage company here. The German Vice-Consul informed Rear-Admiral Pond, U.S.N., superintendent of the Twelfth Naval District today, that no coal would be taken on for temporary purposes, but that if it was decided the cruiser should make a long voyage she probably would come into port within the next day or two. Neither the Leipzig nor the Nuremberg was visible off the heads this morning.

BRITISH VESSELS SAFE IN PORT.

CRUISER RAINBOW WITH ITS CONSORTS IN HARBOR NEAR VICTORIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—The British cruiser Rainbow, the sloops of war Shearwater and Algerine and the two submarines recently purchased in Seattle are at anchor at the British naval station at Esquimalt, near Victoria, B. C. At the station there is no expectation that the German cruiser Leipzig will venture north. The cities of Victoria and Vancouver display no anxiety about the Leipzig, having confidence in the power of shore batteries that command the approach to those cities. The British freight steamer River Forth was halted off the Washington coast last Thursday by the Algerine, which took from her 100 tons of coal, leaving the freighter with barely enough fuel to bring her to Seattle. The River Forth arrived here today.

Defeat of Teutonic Troops in Alsace Reported.

Kaiser's War Train Has All the Comforts of Home.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—"There are indications of an intention on the part of the German troops to envelop the extreme left of the allied forces," according to a statement issued by the official press bureau here this afternoon.

The statement adds:

"No news of special importance has come to hand. There have been engagements at one or two points, but these appear to have been mainly outpost affairs.

"News from official sources continues to indicate that the French and Belgian artillery is proving superior to the German and also that the German infantrymen do not care to face bayonets."

The communication says:

"French troops are advancing in the high Alsatian valleys of the Vosges Mountains. Since their occupation of the Saales region in German territory on the frontier of Alsace, announced yesterday, the French troops have entered the town of Saales, driving out the German troops. Today they collected the kits abandoned by the German fugitives.

"In the Woevre district, in the Department of the Meuse, the French troops today fired at and brought down a hostile aeroplane flying at a height of over 1000 feet. The men in the flying machine were taken prisoners. In the same district a battalion of French light infantry put to flight a battalion of German Landwehr, taking forty prisoners. The Belgian cavalry continue to be successful in the vicinity of Hasselt."

REPORT RUSSIAN VICTORY.

The French Minister of Foreign Affairs, in telegraphing to the French Embassy here today a summary of the various conflicts about which reports already have been made, gives official confirmation of a Russian victory over the Austrians on the River Dniester. He says the Fourth Infantry Regiment and the First Cavalry Regiment of the Austrian army were annihilated by the Russians. The French Minister of the positions in Upper Alsace Liege, Belgium, are concludes:

"In consequence of the outcry the German government decided to remit to the former Fr Ambassador at Berlin the $500 had been compelled to pay for journey back to France."

"DOWN WITH WAR" CRY IN PARIS.

FRENCH ARE NOT A UNIT FOR THE CONFLICT ACCORDING TO PROF. ARMES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Aug. 15.—At the time of the outbreak of hostilities between Germany and France, anti-war sentiment was much in evidence in Paris, according to William D. Armes, associate professor of American literature at the University of California, who has just returned to Berkeley.

"When I left Paris, August 2," Prof. Armes said today, "the streets were filled with excited crowds crying, 'Down with war; we want peace!'"

Prof. Armes said that he and Prof. and Mrs. Paul Steindorff of the university had no difficulty in leaving France.

English Charge Thinks the Instruments of the Company With Offices in New Jersey Should Be Sealed to Prevent the Use of Neutral Ground for Direction of War.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—England, Russia and France have intimated to the United States, it was understood today, that they do not regard the recent application of censorship to the wireless stations as necessarily requiring similar restrictions on cable messages. The Russian Ambassador, George Bakhmetieff, came from Newport, R. I., especially for a conference with Secretary Bryan today and returned immediately afterward to the summer embassy. It was believed he discussed the proposed censorship of cables.

Colville Barclay, the British Charge d'Affaires, who was at the State Department later, said that the censoring of wireless messages was natural prohibition required under general principles of international law, for by sending messages direct from American shores to belligerent ships, neutral territory would be used as a basis for hostile operations. Mr. Barclay held that the Tuckerton (N. J.) station should not be allowed to operate at all, as it was established since the war began.

THE ENGLISH VIEW.

"Cables are different from wireless," he said. "It takes several hours to communicate the movements of a ship for instance, by cable, to the home government. Then the message must be relayed by wireless back across the ocean, all of which takes more time. The actual order is given on the territory of a belligerent to its vessels. Also any belligerent can cut the cables of any other country with which it is at war, but you cannot prevent a wireless station on neutral soil from operating and the only protection a belligerent has against this is the strict observation of neutrality by the neutral country."

AS TO CABLES.

If a censorship were established at cable offices it might seriously interfere with the sending of code messages to the various European governments from their embassiesand consulates as code messages probably would be prohibited. It is believed that the Russian Ambassador discussed this phase of the subject today, but he declined to reveal the object of his mission.

Final decision on the wireless-cable controversy, is not expected before Monday. It had been the intention of the Washington government to censor cables as well as wireless, but commercial companies have questioned the legality of such an act and Atty.-Gen. McReynolds has been asked for an opinion.

WILSON OPPOSES FOREIGN LOANS.

Formal Disapproval Is Voiced by the White House.

No Objections, However, in the Case of Neutrals.

Switzerland Trying to Obtain Money in America.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—President Wilson today formally disapproved of the plans of American bankers floating loans in the United States for the benefit of belligerent countries of Europe, but expressed no objections to loans made to neutral countries.

A formal statement to this effect was issued today. The mention of neutral countries in the expression from the American government was made because it is understood Switzerland is endeavoring to float a big loan in the United States. The Swiss Charge d'Affaires had a conference with Secretary Bryan today, but declined to discuss his visit.

The rejection of the proposal that American bankers be permitted to float a loan for a belligerent country resulted from an inquiry from J. P. Morgan & Co., in which they stated that certain private interests had approached them concerning a possible loan to France. The Morgan firm stated that no request had come from the French government and that the inquiry was made early to learn the attitude of the State Department in case such action might follow.

Secretary Bryan announced that Switzerland had formally inquired as to the atitude of the United States toward the floating of a loan for her in this country and that the statement with reference to neutral countries was intended to cover the inquiry today by the Swiss Charge d'Affaires.

THE STATEMENT.

Secretary Bryan gave out the following statement:

"Inquiry having been made as to the attitude of this government in case American bankers are asked to make loans to foreign governments during the war in Europe, the following announcement is made:

"There is no reason why loans should not be made to the government of a neutral nation, but in the judgment of this government loans by American bankers to any foreign nation which is at war are inconsistent with the true spirit of neutrality."

This principle represents an advanced attitude on the part of the United States on a much-mooted question. Hitherto loans have been floated in the United States as well as other neutral countries for the benefit of belligerents, as during the Russo-Japanese war, loans for Japan were floated in this country and in Europe, while Russia obtained money from different countries in Europe.

International authorities have been agreed that while loaning of money is forbidden to any neutral government her subjects might engage in the practice without involving the responsibility of their government.

Many writers, however, have argued that by furnishing the wherewithal to continue a war, the loaning of money was inconsistent with a true spirit of neutrality and the Washington government has decided to adopt this view. Dr. Charles Paul Huebscher, the Swiss Charge d'Affaires, who had a long conference with Secretary Bryan, said he had no information as to the amount of money desired by Switzerland or through what firm it would be obtained in the United States. He said it was not a governmental loan, but a private banking transaction. He declared that Switzerland, like the United States, would of course, observe strict neutrality and refuse to loan any of her funds to belligerent countries. He said Switzerland needed money to keep her forces in the field to preserve her neutrality and for her internal needs, inasmuch as she was hemmed in by warring countries and money was a dire necessity on account of the general paralysis in international finance that had visited Europe.

FIRST CALL FOR NURSES.

Divisions of the Hospital Units From the United States Will be Sent Over to Europe in Chartered Ships.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The first call for enrolled Red Cross nurses for the European expedition has been sent to the Red Cross nursing committees in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Rochester, Albany, Buffalo and the States of Connecticut and New Jersey. Nursing divisions of the hospital units to be sent over in the chartered ship will come from those cities and States, and it is probable additional nurses from other Red Cross nursing committees in the sections will be enrolled. The Red Cross plan is to take physicians and nurses who are native-born Americans to make sure of absolute neutrality.

AMERICA NEEDN'T WORRY, ASSURANCE OF JAPAN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Cable dispatches from Tokio to the East and West News Bureau, a Japanese news agency, are as follows:

"A high official of the Foreign Office says: 'Japan has received no note whatever from the American government in connection with the present crisis. Even in case of necessity arising for Japan to take upon herself the duty of discharging her treaty obligations to Great Britain, Japan sees no need of any explanation for such an action, for she shall act with a clear conscience in conformity to justice. We are confident that the United States understands full well this position of Japan and consequently we cannot think for a moment that our good neighbor, America, shall be swayed by any uneasiness at the attitude of Japan.'"

Count Okuma, Japan's Premier, declared that "Japan, if forced to join the European conflict, will do so with the single purpose of fulfilling her treaty obligation to her ally and of upholding the cause of justice. Her object is the maintenance of peace in the Orient.

"Japan's proximity to China breeds many absurd rumors, but I declare that Japan acts with a clear conscience, in conformity to justice and in perfect accord with her ally. Japan has no territorial ambition, but hopes to stand as the protector of peace in the Orient.

"This frank declaration of Japan will surely be welcomed by China with appreciation and thanks."

OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL.

They Are Not Synonymous Terms According to a Presentation Made in San Francisco by the S. P.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The ownership by the Southern Pacific Company of 1600 shares of the Sacramento Transportation Company, a controlling interest in the Associated Oil Company, and the control of the Albion Lumber Company does not affect the steamers operated by the three companies mentioned, according to representations made here today before Interstate Commerce Commissioner Henry C. Hall. The cases were taken under advisement.

The Southern Pacific Company is seeking to retain its interest in the three companies, maintaining that its railroad lines are not in competition with the steamers of the oil and lumber companies and that it has had no voice in the affairs of the Sacramento Transportation Company, which operates a line of river steamers.

AAGE OF DENMARK SAYS HE WAS ARRESTED IN GERMANY AS A SPY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16, 1:50 a.m. — A dispatch to the Central News Agency from Copenhagen says that Prince Aage of Denmark, who recently was arrested by Germans as a spy and later released, arrived here Saturday night. In an interview the Prince said:

"I had an exciting journey through mobilized Europe. I started from Milan and traveled without incident through Switzerland, but as soon as I crossed the German frontier I was arrested as a French spy. My captors stripped and searched me, but eventually set me free. I then drove in a carriage to France, where I was cordially received.

"It took me fifty hours to reach Paris, traveling in a cattle truck and on a military train, my only food being dried bread. Several times I was stopped and examined, but finally got away from Havre on a Swedish steamer in company with several hundred Russian and Scandinavian refugees."

GEN. DIEMLING IN A HOSPITAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16 (2:10 a.m.)—A dispatch to the Central News Agency from its Paris correspondent says that Gen. Diemling, commander of the German Fifteenth Army Corps, is in a hospital at the front on account of a bullet which passed through his neck.

The Brussels correspondent of the Star says a Belgian officer who escaped from Liege brought details of the death of Gen. von Emmich. The officer said that Von Emmich committed suicide. The correspondent says that it is stated that Gen. von Emmich's unlimited confidence in the German army and its style of fighting was shattered by the events around Liege.

SHIPPING RATE JUMPS SLIGHTLY.

War Situation Affects Goods to European Ports.

British Agents Say Contract Justifies the Action.

California Producers Agree to Stand the Advance.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Some advance in shipping rates, although probably not a great deal, on canned goods and like cargoes to European ports probably will result from the war situation, it was stated here tonight on apparently excellent authority.

Discussion at a meeting of shippers and shipping agents developed that existing contracts carry a clause which virtually nullifies rates in time of war. The agents, however, disclaimed any desire to profit by this, holding that a moderate advance would be reasonable because many ships already have lost money by being tied up, and all would have to be remodeled to accommodate more coal. It also was pointed out that a lengthy altercation at this time would be extremely unprofitable to both sides and to consumers.

The shippers, while holding any present obstacles counterbalanced by the advantage to be gained from use of the Panama Canal, were said to favor agreeing to a moderate advance.

GLASS BANGLES IN INDIA.

Are a Popular Ornament, and the Number Worn Depends Upon the Prosperity of the Wearer.

[Consular Report:] Glass bangles are an important article of import into India, owing to the universal wearing of these ornaments by native women and children of all classes around their wrists. The term bangle as applied to the trade in India is equivalent to the term bracelet as understood in the United States. Most of the bangles are imported from Austria and have a variety of colors and range in diameter from about one and one-eighth to one and three-fourths inches for children's bangles and one seven-eighths to two and one-fourth inches for adult ladies' bangles. The most popular colors are said to be amber and lavender. Red, yellow, blue and pink colors are also favorites. The sale of these bangles is one of the most interesting and characteristic features of Indian native bazars.

The number of bangles worn depends a good deal on the prosperity of the persons purchasing them, but even the poorest women and children will wear as many bangles of bright colors as their means will permit and as can be conveniently carried on their wrists. These bangles often look surprisingly small, and as if impossible to push over the hands without breaking. This is usually, however, skillfully done by the dealer who sells them, and once placed on the wrist the bangles stay there until they get broken. For some of the wealthy native ladies bangles inlaid with gold, or even solid gold, may be used. The extensive use of a number of bright glass bangles adds a great deal to the attractive picturesqueness of the appearance of Indian ladies. The poorest women, even of the coolie labor class, like to wear bangles, even if such vanity has to be paid for by sacrifices in other directions.

There is also considerable trade in glass beads for wear around the neck, these being also of European manufacture. Around the ankles Indian women and children wear ornaments of brass and silver, the latter whenever it can be afforded. A great deal of the silver that comes to India is molded into such ornaments by local silversmiths.

A Tonic for Courage.

[Nautilus:] A tonic for courage is the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. A person cannot rise from reading this roll of heroes without being more heroic. Courage is contagious; we become brave by associating with the brave, in literature and in life. The mind that is stored with the great words of heroism is least likely to stoop to deeds of cowardice.

Educated Goldfish.

According to the London Globe, the goldfish in the warm mineral water of the famous Roman baths at Bath, have learned to ring a bell for their dinner. A metal balls floats in the water with an ingenious pivot attachment, from which strings hang down in the water. When the goldfish pull the strings a bell sounds and a cup of ants' eggs is turned automatically into the water.

HARBOR OF NEW YORK IS WELL PROTECTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Target practice last night by the men of the One Hundred and Thirty-third Coast Artillery at Ft. Hancock demonstrated that New York Harbor is well protected from battleship invasions. Out of twelve shots with twelve-inch mortar guns fired at an illuminated target four miles away and moving at the rate of eight miles an hour, the artillery men made ten hits. This, army and navy officers declared, wa sa record, which they doubted had ever been equalled anywhere.

"The Frankfurter Zeitung says that the Russian Emperor has issued a manifesto addressed to 'My beloved Jews,' in Russian and Yiddish, reminding the Jews of the benefits they received from Russia and from the house of Romanoff in particular, and calling upon them to volunteer in the Russian army, as Jewish and Russian interests are identical.

"In return, the Jews are promised permission to live in districts hitherto forbidden them. The newspaper comments:

"'The Jews are somewhat backward in responding to this invitation.'

"The Berlin Tageblatt reproduces a letter from Konigsberg, telling of disaffection among the Cossacks, who declare that they did not wish for war and did not want to fight against the Germans and Austrians. The same newspaper estimates the number of French prisoners at Muelhausen at 1500.

"The Taglische Rundschau prints a statement declaring that Germany's financial conditions is satisfactory."

Massing Cavalry.

MAY REOPEN THE FIGHT IN VICINITY OF DIEST.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 16 (3:10 a.m.)—The Brussels correspondent of the Weekly Dispatch, writing under the date of Saturday morning, says:

"It seems as if hostilities, after yesterday's calm, may break out again shortly in the neighborhood of Diest, Belgium. The Germans are said to be massing cavalry and infantry in that direction. Much of the infantry is being brought up in motor cars, which is regarded here as showing the extreme of force.

"The Belgians at Diest and Haelen have enjoyed the advantage of fighting on lines of their own choice. The German attack has not yet succeeded in driving them from their foreseen position and breaking their line of continuity with the French. The Germans have yet to make, however, an attack in great force on these Limburg lines.

"Brussels is very quiet considering the proximity of the war. There is a steady flow of wounded and prisoners, and there are other signs of combat, such as motor cars with bullet marks over them, which are drawn up outside the cafes.

"The Germans pursue regular tactics with their aeroplanes. Six leave Cologne daily. Three go to reconnoiter points of contact with the Belgians in the field. The other three make a methodical circling journey over the chief towns and the rear of the troops. They are very regular and can almost be timed.

"It is very difficult for airmen to distinguish the presence of troops on the tree-lined roads, but one Belgian airman brought news to his commanders of German dispositions two and a half hours before fighting began and it was possible to dispose the troops accordingly."

Railroad Across Sahara.

[World's Work:] Up in Algeria, running down from the coast through Biskra to a little village called Tuggurt, is a French government line with a name and intentions that suggest something wonderful. It is called the Trans-Sahara Railway. At the present time it is a little narrow-gauge road only 135 miles long. It is planned to cross the great Sahara Desert and to reach ultimately Lake Chad on the northern border of Nigeria. The distance is 1400 miles and the country through which the road would run apparently offers nothing to induce railroad building. On the face of it, it looks like an official railroad dream rather than like a real project; but in those countries where governments build railroads they seem to be built sometimes without the slightest regard to traffic possibilities or money-making possibilities.

Reforming the Weary Willies.

[St. Joseph News Press:] One of the questions which has lately been exercising the brains of medical authorities is the treatment of tired patients, a great army of "Weary Willies." It has only recently been ascertained that this tired feeling is primarily due to the eating muscle being out of order, the eating muscle being one of the most sensitive portions of the human organization. In order to bring back vitality to this important organ the patient is required to lie on a board with his feet two feet higher than his head.

Wealthy Chicago Architect's Infatuation Recalled.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRING GREEN (Wis.) Aug. 15.—A mad chef, armed with a hand ax, today wrote the last page of the romance of Mammah Bouton Borthwick, formerly Mrs. Edwin H. Cheney of Oak Park, Ill., whose affairs for ive years have been named with those of Frank Lloyd Wright, a wealthy architect, and her neighbors. Mrs. Borthwick and five others ere killed, and two were less seriusly hurt. The elaborate "love bungalow," built by Wright for Mrs. Cheney, was burned.

Julien Carlton, a negro cook employed by Wright, and accused of the rimes, surrendered after a search of everal hours had been made for him. He was hurried into an automobile nd rushed to the Iowa County Jai

The dead:

MRS. MAMMAH BOUTON ORTHWICK, cut about the head and eck, her clothing burned.

JOHN BORTHWICK CHENEY, er 12-year-old son, head chopped pen, badly burned.

EMIL BURDELL, 30, draughtsan, cut about head and badly urned.

MARTHA BROTHWICK CHENEY, rs. Brothwick's 10-year-old daughr, cut about the head.

ERNEST WESTON, 13, farm hand, urned about the head.

TOM BRUNKER, laborer, cut and urned.

Fatally injured:

David Lindblum, a gardener, badly t about the head.

William Weston, carpenter, cut bout the neck and burned.

Herbert Fritz, cut and burned, arm roken.

Mrs. Carlton was found dazed after he tragedy, walking along the highay, and was taken into custody. She enied any participation in the affair.

The nine victims were in the ding-room when the negro lighted a g soaked in gasoline in front of the oor, according to William Weston, e least seriously hurt. This left t one means of egress, a window. Mrs. Borthwick was the first to put r head through the window to espe the intense heat.

The negro struck her down with e blow, crushing her skull. He agged the body out and waited the xt. Little John Cheney was the cond. His head was split open.

"As each one put his head out," id Weston, "the negro struck, killg or stunning his victim. I was e last. The ax struck me in the ck and knocked me down, but not conscious. I got up and ran and e negro after me. Then I fell, and hit me again and I guess he ought he had me, because he ran ck to the window and I got up and n. When I looked back, the black d disappeared."

By this time the magnificent bungawas in flames and neighbors shed to the place.

SHERIFF'S SEARCH.

heriff Bauer organized the search Carlton as soon as he learned of murder. Posses of farmers joined h the Sheriff's deputies, and odhounds were obtained to take his trail. The men were at first lined to believe that Carlton had aped down the Wisconsin River a canoe.

While neighbors guarded the unds and the men with the hounds e searching for a definite trace, lton crawled from the door of a ler. He was nearly suffocated the heat and appeared thoroughxhausted.

e said he had taken poison, but ld give no reason for the crime. . Carlton, who had been employed her husband, was arrested shortfter the tragedy when she was d, dazed, walking along the highnear the house. She denied any icipation in the affair.

MANIFESTO TO THE GERMANS.

England and France Are Filling the Air With Falsehoods, According to Statement by Gen. Stein.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

COPENHAGEN (Denmark, via London, 1:05 p.m.) Aug 15.—The Berliner Tageblatt of August 12, which reached here today contains a manifesto to the German nation by Gen. Stein of the German general staff, in which the public is cautioned against believing any statements except those given out by the general staff. It says:

"In England and France, falsehoods are being spread broadcast.

"You Germans have too much faith in your government to accept rumors too easily.

"The English accuse us of having suggested partition with Holland in exchange for her neutrality. Such charges are beneath contempt and demonstrate the righteousness of our cause and the wickedness of our enemies.

"You Germans also are spreading rumors of victories and defeats such as the German occupation of Belfort and the destruction of French regiments wholesale.

"Everything will be published at the proper time and we have given our word that nothing shall be exaggerated and nothing minimized.

"Few except those who are experienced in warfare can know or show with what difficulties victories are won."

Another Berlin paper declares that Germany is paralyzing American diplomatic relations by preventing the American Ambassador sending dispatches in cipher."

"BE CALM" SAYS PAGE. ASSURANCE FOR AMERICANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, Aug. 15, (Via London, Aug. 15, 7:30 a.m.)—The American Ambassador, Thomas Nelson Page, has issued a notice that the American government is sending to Europe transports capable of taking home 8000 Americans. The announcement has caused great rejoicing among tourists and others anxious to leave the country. It is thought possible that further means of transportation will be provided.

To Transport Americans.

ROME, Aug. 14, (8:45 p.m., Via Paris, Aug. 15, 7:30 a.m.)—Dr. John Edward Jones, American Consul-General at Genoa, is endeavoring to engage the steamship Re d'Italia, a sister ship of the Mafalda, for the transportation of stranded Americans back to the United States.

FOR OUR MERCHANT MARINE.

Hamburg-American Line Willing to Dispose of Vessels Valued at $20,000,000 to America.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The Hamburg-American line issued a statement this afternoon saying that it had under consideration offers to purchase some of its steamships in American waters, valued at $20,000,000.

The fleet embraces the great steamer Vaterland, largest in the world. If sold, the vessels would fly the American flag and would be the first big acquisition to the proposed American merchant marine.

The statement of the company read as follows:

In response to the many inquiries as to whether any of the Hamburg-American line ships are for sale, we have to say that it has always been the policy of this company to dispose of steamers whenever a good opportunity offers, provided they can be spared.

As the war has forced all our fleet into temporary idleness and as we now have in American waters steamers worth more than $20,000,000 bona-fide offers for the purchase of some of them are being considered.

The statement is issued over the signature of William G. Sickel, vice-director of the company. Thirteen vessels of the Hamburg-American line have been tied up to their docks in Hoboken practically since the beginning of hostilities between Germany and England. In addition to the Vaterland the big fleet thus forced into idleness includes the President Grant of 18,000 tons, the President Lincoln and the Hamburg of 10,000 tons each, and the Pennsylvania of 13,000 tons. No announcement was made as to whether the offers under consideration included any or all of these ships.

MEN SAVED FROM DRINK HABIT

After Three Days of the Neal Treatment the Craving and Appetite for Drink Is Changed Into Abhorrence for Everything Alcoholic.

The Neal Treatment is the most perfect and modern of all treatments. A Neal Institute — one of sixty throughout the United States, Canada and Australia—is located at 945 South Olive Street, Los Angeles. Thousands of men and women have been successfully treated with the Neal Treatment, many of whom will gladly tell you how quickly and thoroughly the Neal Treatment does away with the craving and necessity for drink. If you are a drink habit victim, or if you have husbands and sons who need help, investigate the good work being done at the Neal Institute. The Los Angeles Neal Institute has been established for four years and is thoroughly reliable. The Neal Treatment is safe, sure, purely vegetable and always administered internally—hypodermic injections are never used. Only three days' time required at the Institute, or at home. Call today and begin treatment now, before something terrible happens, or write or phone G. U. Neal, manager, for full information. Phones Broadway 4602; A4072. All drug habits treated.

ENGLISH FAITH IN THE TURKS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(5:50 p.m.)—The official press bureau of the British Admiralty and War Department this evening issued the following:

"There is no reason to doubt that the Turkish government is about to replace the German officers and crews of the Goeben and Breslau by Turkish officers and crews."

AMERICANS MAY REMAIN ABROAD.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 15 (Via Copenhagen and London.)—The necessity for Americans returning to the United States seems to be less urgent now. A special train which left the capital yesterday bound for Holland was not filled to its capacity with tourists, but at the same time many wish to return as soon as the opportunity offers. Germans everywhere are very helpful.

The Americans in Berlin are not altogether indignant, although about 100 of them have been obliged to seek succor from their German and American friends because money sent to them from America has not arrived.

The Chamber of Commerce of Berlin has arranged gratuitously that sick Americans shall be admitted to hospitals.

CALIFORNIA REFINERIES INVOLVED IN FOOD INQUIRY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The nation-wide Federal inquiry against inflation of food prices was on today in earnest. To the Department of Justice and the Department of Commerce came from a number of cities preliminary reports of indications of increases of prices without cause and conditions were declared, in a number of telegrams, to warrant a most searching inquiry.

A new factor entered the situation today when word came from Kansas City that there was no beet sugar on the market, although the California refineries were to have started manufacturing beet sugar on August 1.

"There is no apparent reason why beet sugar should not be on the market at this time," officers of the Department of Justice announced. The price of sugar has been raised in various cities.

The District Attorney and a special agent working in San Francisco have prevented an increase in the freight rates to foreign ports on shipments of canned goods and food sales at San Francisco are being closely watched. The same vigilance is being exercised by eighty-three other District Attorneys, with the co-operation of special agents of both the Departments of Justice and Commerce.

Evacuation.

RUSSIA QUITS POLAND, GERMAN CONSUL HEARS.

THE German Consul of this city received the following telegram from the German Ambassador at Washington, D.C.:

"Poland has been evacuated by the Russian troops which are now massing their armies further back. The German north army after having taken possession of greater part of Liege advanced their outposts as far as Tirlemont and Namur, where a decisive battle is expected. It is only a question of short time that the last forts will fall. The outer forts of Longwy are silenced. The French army corps Belfort, which pressed our advanced guards was thrown back to the Vosges Mountain under heavy losses by the Fourteenth Baden Corps whose left wing assisted by the Fourteenth Austrian Corps Tyrol has taken up the offensive immediately."

DRAFT MEASURE FOR WAR RISKS.

PLAN TO INSURE A LARGER MERCHANT MARINE.

Members of the Committee Figure that Premiums Will Come in Quick Enough to Furnish Protection Against Possible Losses—Commerce Bureau to Administer Fund.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Informal conferences regarding the proposal for war risk insurance for American merchant ships occupied the Conference Committee members who remained in Washington today, following the conference of yesterday of bankers and shipping men called by Secretary McAdoo.

Secretary McAdoo conferred with J. Parker Kirlin of New York, a member of the War Risks Committee of the conference, with Julius Meyer of New York, secretary of the Hamburg-American steamship line, and with Bernard N. Baker of Baltimore, former steamship president and member of the Transportation Committee of the conference.

The main result was the drafting of a tentative bill putting into technical shape the recommendations of the conference for a government marine insurance fund, for war risks only. This bill, when finally agreed upon, will be introduced in Congress and its immediate passage urged.

The amount of the fund has not been finally determined. Probably it will be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

The War Risks Committee worked on the draft of the bill today. They figure that the premiums would come in quickly enough to furnish protection against possible losses. The fund would be administered by a board or bureau in the Department of Commerce and the amounts of premiums would be left to the discretion of the board.

Great Britain, France and Belgium now have war risk governmental insurance. The British government imposes a premium on ships of virtually 5 per cent. a year and on cargoes of 4¼ per cent. a trip. These countries are now belligerents and the United States premiums might not be as high.

Secretary McAdoo is gathering information on merchant marine and his talks with Messrs. Meyer and Baker were in this connection.

Representative Lewis of Maryland already has a bill pending in the House under which the government would take over all marine insurance. The War Risks Committee which purposes conferring with Mr. Lewis contemplates only government participation supplemental to the operations of the private marine insurance concerns.

Opponents of a government war risks project contend there will be a fight on the floor of the House against any such plan, because it would mean the private companies would assume the good risks and the government bad risks.

Wished it Was T'other.

[Youth's Companion:] The power of first love has received so much poetic attention that we can afford to smile at the serio-comic twist that John P., an ancient Rhode Island worthy, once gave. The old gentleman's habits and manners were as primitive as the time at which he lived.

John P. married twice. On his second wedding journey he visited a business acquaintance in a Massachusetts town. On his arrival, he presented his bride in this graceful way:

"This," said he, "is Mis' P. 'Tain't t'other Mis' P. I wish 'twas."

"Giornale d'Italia."

AMERICAN PEACE PLANS PRAISED BY THE ITALIANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME (Via Paris, 12:30 a.m.) Aug. 15.—The Giornale d'Italia, commenting on the news from America that Washington is being urged to intervene in the European conflict in favor of peace, praises the movement but thinks that any initiative in the matter by President Wilson will be possible only after a decisive battle has shown to which side victory inclines.

EXCITEMENT.

The excitement in the Italian capital has become very acute since the existence of the state of war between England and France on the one side and Austria-Hungary on the other, was declared.

The Tribuna, in an article evidently inspired in official quarters, emphasizes the fact that Great Britain and France did not really declare war on Austria, but simply announced that a state of war existed by reason of Austria's own acts and that therefore Italy is not obliged to assist Austria-Hungary. The most active work is now going on among the governments of the various Balkan states to bring about a reconstruction of the former Balkan league which defeated Turkey in the recent war. The object of the movement is to assist Russia against Austria-Hungary and to keep Turkey inactive.

SPECULATION.

The Italian government shows energy in combatting the various maneuvers adopted by speculators who attempt to make money out of the present tragedy. Ship owners are asking exorbitant prices for the transportation of coal from England and the United States, and as a result the government announces that it is about to make a requisition of all craft necessary to provide the public service companies with the coal necessary for their use.

The effect of the war is being felt also on the finances of the Vatican, the resources of which are deposited in the banks of Italy and abroad, whence it is difficult to withdraw them. Furthermore, remittances are few, the payment of Peter's Pence having been almost suspended.

THE QUESTION OF INFINITY.

Who Can Tell the Number of Suns and Worlds or the Limits of Space or the Future of Science?

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] So many questions on infinity have been received that this note is written in reply to them all. Here are some of them: "Is there an infinite number of suns?" "Is the ancient theory of plurality of worlds true?" "Is the universe infinite?" "Are any stars at an infinite distance from the earth?" "Is space really infinite?"

In reply will state that the thinkers of the world, who think, explore, toil and work as man has never worked before since humans appeared on earth along mathematical, not speculative lines, no longer try to even commence to think of infinity. These are the very ones who know better and have proved that it is useless. They proved it mathematically.

"Is there an infinite number of suns?" I have been asked this orally and in writing many hundreds of times since my eleventh year. The answer is they do not know—and by they is meant mathematicians. Not one of these is able to think of anything infinite. And none is therefore able to think of the effect on humans should the universe ever be made up of an infinite number of suns.

For, if the number of suns becomes infinite, how about worlds? Our sun has eight worlds and twenty-six moons, really little worlds, and on toward a thousand bodies—asteroids—and an unknown number of comets all in regular revolution around it. Speculate that an infinite number of suns, many of them thousands of times larger than our own, have at least as many worlds revolving around them; then there would be a greater infinity of worlds than suns.

But this is absurd, or at least we can not think of two infinities, not being able to think of one. But suppose it is thought of a number of suns next to an infinite number, then, if they all emit light intense enough to reach the earth the midnight sky would be entirely filled with light.

In dense areas of the Milky Way the sky is almost entirely covered by fine shining specks—all huge suns; yet there is a minute portion of black sky between the diamonds. Thus, in the richest regions of the galaxy the sky is not solid light. Then the universe has a limit in these directions; if not, then some of the suns do not appear because their light is quenched in space.

But the very term "next to an infinite number" is speculative, not scientific, because none can think of this word next; for mathematics has shown that if you add or subtract any finite number to or from an infinite number the infinite number is not affected—that is, the finite number, however large, is infinitely small in comparison with a number that is infinite.

Since nothing is known of mind, it is impossible to even start a line of speculation. And a science cannot be commenced on the subject of mind. Nothing can be done in science without some clew at least, or facts at most, to begin with. Then we cannot think of infinite mind. Mentalists versed in mathematics do not try to do this, for mathematics is now known to be infinite.

Mind cannot, of course, think of infinite distance, infinite space, infinite time. Then these subjects are all unknown and the hundreds of questions relating to infinite subjects cannot be answered, for any answer, to be really a reply, must be based on at least one fact; but this one fact on anything that is infinite is missing.

Here is a first-class opportunity to write three very impressive words: Do not know.

Regarding the very ancient question of worlds, one argued since the days of the Chaldeans, Hebrews and Egyptians, the answer is quite familiar: Do not know. It taxes the limits of the largest telescopes and of the most sensitive photo plates attached to them to detect the hundred million microscopic dots, all images of giant suns. Then it follows that all worlds are hopelessly invisible. All that is known is that our own sun has eight planets in revolution around it. Each one of the hundred millions suns may have eight or many more worlds. Each world may be inhabited, but we do not know it. Then this subject is, therefore, speculation.

British Steamer Cloughton,

Discharging Argentine corn at San Pedro for Globe Milling Company. The first cargo ever imported through this port from Buenos Aires.

Los Angeles Harbor.

AMERICAN PILOT SNEAKS BRITISH STEAMER NORTH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Aug. 15.—Steaming slowly up the coast to San Francisco, the British steamer Cloughton has a look-out watching the horizon for the approach of any German cruiser that may be in southern waters seeking to take prizes of war. The Cloughton is under charter to the Globe Milling Company and brought from Buenos Aires the first cargo of Argentine corn. Nearly 2000 tons was discharged here.

As an extra precaution the Cloughton took aboard here Capt. C. F. Hall, well-known coastwise master, who will pilot the steamer to San Francisco and keep her well inside the three-mile limit of American waters.

Coming up the coast from South America the Cloughton almost came in contact with a German warship. Fortunately, the big freighter was close inshore and obscured by the haze, while the German vessel was further off the Mexican coast in clear air. The Cloughton did not keep inside as a matter of precaution, however, and her protection was merely accidental, for members of the crew never knew that England and Germany were at war until their arrival here last Saturday. The Cloughton is expected to arrive at San Francisco before Monday morning.

Another British steamer to get the first news of the war here was the British steamer Frimley, which arrived today from Antwerp. She is under charter to G. W. McNear and will discharge here 2000 tons of coke and steel. Members of the crew apparently were more interested in news from the prize fight ring than from the seat of war. After their first surprise when the news was announced by Port Pilot Johnson, the men crowded to the rail as the steamer approached the dock and instead of hearing questions about the war, longshoremen found they were being bombarded with inquiries concerning the Johnson-Moran fight.

The British tank steamer Clam, which arrived yesterday from Hongkong to load a cargo of crude oil for return, will probably get away tomorrow or Monday. This is the second cargo sent offshore under the British flag since the war, both sent out by the General Petroleum Company. The De Sabla left a few days ago for Rio Janiero with the first cargo of California oil for the Brazilian port.

PASADENA POLICE WANT MORE MEN.

CHIEF ASKS FOR TEN MEN BUT GETS FIVE—BURGLARS FOUND LOOTING RESIDENCE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 15.—In drawing up it's budgets for next year, the City Commission has provided for only five new policemen, although Chief McIntyre asked for ten. The budget has not been completed, but will be adopted some time during the month.

The annexation of Linda Vista and San Rafael Heights had nothing to do with the addition of the new officers as they would have been added had the annexation failed. Chief McIntyre thinks it will require at least four additional men to police the new territory of five square miles. He thinks three men should be on duty at night and one in the day time. San Rafael Heights, being the location of some of the finest homes in this vicinity, is a favorite hunting ground for house-robbers.

The Chief wishes also to add two traffic officers to the four who are usually employed during the winter season. They are stationed at Colorado street intersections with Fair Oaks, Raymond, Marengo and Los Robles avenues.

At present Pasadena's police force consists of thirty patrolmen, three sergeants, two special park officers, one detective, one captain and the Chief.

BOLD BURGLAR SURPRISED.

The family of I. Harris of No. 1394 Garfield avenue, returned home last night from an automobile ride just in time to frighten from their home a burglar, who in his wild flight left tracks which might have been those of a cave man, and took with him $8 and two diamond rings.

The burglar was evidently intending to give the house a thorough ransacking, and would have succeeded in taking away a much larger and more valuable loot had not the family surprised him in his search for treasures.

An encounter between the robber and Miss Esther Harris was prevented only because her family insisted that she go with them autoing. She was not feeling well and preferred to stay at home. One of the rings stolen belonged to Miss Ada Harris, who last spring played one of the leading roles in the "College Widow" given by the Pasadena High School. The other was the property of a brother, Leon Harris.

The burglar made his entrance by cutting away a screen door at the rear entrance. He worked with great boldness, even turning on the lights. The neighbors who saw the light thought that the Harrises had returned home and paid no attention to what was going on.

BUILDING GOOD ROADS.

Claremont District Making Network of Highway With City as Hub. Much Work Done Since June.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, Aug. 15. — The Claremont City Trustees have awarded the contract to Lon Fleming for $20,000 for the construction of the Foothill boulevard through this city. This work will be with a five-inch concrete base similar to the roads now being built by the State Highway Commission.

This is almost the last link in the Foothill boulevard between Los Angeles and San Bernardino. There is still a small portion of road to be built by the State between the city limits of Claremont and San Bernardino county.

The past few months have seen record-breaking work in this vicinity in the construction of macadamized roads. According to Road Overseer Hickman, contracts have been let for several pieces of new road. On San Antonio avenue, from the Base Line to Pomona city limits, there will be one and one-half miles of good road built, and on Harrison avenue there is to be a quarter of a mile of macadam extending from San Antonio avenue east to Claremont city limits.

Surveys and estimates have been completed for the macadamizing of Williams avenue from the Base Line road to the Foothill boulevard and the setting of grade stakes will commence at once.

These, when completed, will make a total of six and one-half miles of road macadamized in this district since about June 1. It is expected that by January 1 the work will be completed.

PLAN TO FIGHT IT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Aug. 15.—An attorney has been retained by property owners in the strip of territory southwest of Fullerton and Anaheim included in the proposed Yorba River protection district, who propose to make a fight against its formation. The strip included is less than a mile in width, running in a southwesterly direction from the river channel at Yorba to a point near the Stanton City limits. While the chance of a break near Yorba is apparent, it is claimed by the protestants that their land is not in danger of injury from any probable overflow, being less likely to be so injured than other land not included. They will appear before the Supervisors when the matter is to be considered next Tuesday, and the claim is made that their protest will have the signatures of a large majority of the parties interested.

VENICE CHAUFFEUR KILLED IN FIRST HUNTING ACCIDENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ACTON, Aug. 15.—William Burdick, aged 23, was killed today by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting deer in the mountains fifteen miles east of Acton. He was standing on a large rock and had placed the gun in upright position, holding it between knees, when it slipped from his grasp, the hammer striking, discharging the bullet,, which entered Burdick's body in the abdomen, tearing through his bowels and back, killing him instantly. The gun was .44 caliber rifle. He had come with party of hunters in auto from Venice, driving Tom Carrigan's machine.

No one was near Burdick at time of accident, but members of the party soon reached him, but nothing could be done for him. The accident occurred on top of a mountain range and it was necessary to carry the body eight miles to camp, where C. W. Holbrook, former Mayor of Venice, was at the camp, and came in his auto and notified the Coroner and the Sheriff's office.

The body was brought in by wagon from the hunting camp to Acton to await instructions from the Coroner. Burdick leaves a father and mother, who live in Redlands. He had been employed for some time as chauffeur for Carrigan.

THOUSANDS OF MOOSE AT LONG BEACH PICNIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 15.—Many thousands of Moose from throughout Southern California assembled today on the strand at an annual picnic. An aeroplane wedding and a drop from an aeroplane by parachute were part of the thrilling features of the day.

Justice Underwood tying the knot, Miss Orpha Hall and Milton Sheets were united in marriage while sitting in Frank Stites's aerial machine. But both declined an invitation by Stites to go up with him over the blue Pacific, and Stites went alone, doing several aerial thrillers for the benefit of the huge crowd.

In the afternoon William Arnold dropped from Stites's aeroplane with a parachute. He sailed gracefully to the ocean, 200 feet from shore. The bath-house lifeguards pulled him into the boat with the parachute.

Lodges represented in today's monster picnic were two from Los Angeles and one each from San Bernardino, Riverside, San Pedro, Pomona, Pasadena, Redondo, Redlands, Anaheim and Santa Ana. From 11 o'clock until 1 in the afternoon basket lunches were discussed by the picnickers at the Forum and on the lower deck of the auditorium.

Motorcycle races and a wrestling contest on the beach were witnessed by thousands. Athletic sports were interesting, and the dance this evening ended the most eventful Moose picnic ever held here.

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 15.—Joe Rivers seems to heed not the speed laws of this city, for today he was haled into court for the third time on a charge of exceeding the speed limit on the the Seventh-street oiled road. If poor little Jose cannot prove that he was doing under forty miles an hour, it will be the black cell and the iron bars for the pugilist for some time. Police Judge J. J. Carrillo told Rivers last time that if he was brought in again for speeding it would be a jail sentence sure.

Rivers was brought in today by Officer Harry Wright and an argument arose as to whether "Motorcycle Mike" Suittie, speed officer, was correct in his speedometer reading, and the reading of the car number. This was proved correct, for Officer Sidney Holt, a plain clothesman, saw the number also. When Holt came to the rescue of the officers, the argument was immedately settled and Rivers's case set for the 22nd inst.

A collision between a motorcycle and an automobile shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon sent Motorcycle Officer Ralph Blum of the local police department to the hospital suffering from a severely-lacerated left arm, scratches and bruises and a bad shaking up, besides the shock of being in the wreck.

Blum was going south on Main street when H. Temple of Fourth and Alta was coming north on the same street. Temple tried to pass a horse and wagon near Hollister street, a dangerous curve in Main street, and went on the wrong side of the road. Blum could not stop and as soon as he saw the car on the wrong side he swerved and tried to dodge, putting on his brakes, but he skidded around and hit the car full in the front, his left arm being ground between his machine and the front of the car. Witnesses who rushed to the injured motor cop picked him up and put him in the Temple car, which was rushed to the hospital.

Temple refused to give his name after having left Blum at the hospital, but he gave it to the police after he was taken to the station. His car was loaded with a number of small children. His auto is registered in the name of Clara A. Temple, Puente street, Covina. Blum lives with his wife at No. 319 Ocean front.

HUSBAND GONE; WIFE IN TEARS.

LAW SAYS, HOWEVER, THEY'RE NOT MARRIED IN FACT. CEREMONY ILLEGAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 15.—When dainty Dorrit Jensen, daughter of Mrs. Edith M. Jensen of No. 1710 Pepper street, and her sweetheart, Louis Hitchcock, son of C. D. Hitchcock of South Raymond avenue, stole a march on their friends last March, going to Santa Ana for a marriage license and returning to this city, where they were married by Rev. William D. White, she had little idea of the bitterness the near future held for her.

After the marriage vows were spoken it developed that the ceremony was illegal, because the license was issued in another county. Becoming suspicious that all was not as it should be, Mrs. Hitchcock—or Miss Jensen—finally decided to tell her father-in-law of the marriage.

The youthful husband, without warning, dropped from sight two weeks ago. No fear of accident is entertained for him by his bride, who feels her position keenly, or by the members of his family. It is generally believed that, afraid of the consequences of having given his age as legal when he was in fact under age, he decided to skip, and his bride is left to face alone the results of love's foolish dream.

HONEYMOONERS SAFE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 15.—Word comes to South Pasadena of others of her citizens who are inconvenienced in their European travels by the war. J. S. Torrance, No. 929 Buena Vista street, and his bride, who are on their honeymoon, are reported as having arrived in London. Mrs. Torrance is remembered as Mrs. Helena Childs of Pasadena, and the announcement of their engagement and subsequent marriage aroused considerable interest in social circles of Southern California.

Proverbial Wastefulness.

It is proverbial that the salaried man, unless he owns his own home, scarely saves a dollar. Commence saving now by paying your house rent on a home instead

HOLDS TAX LEGAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Aug. 15.—Judge Clark of Ventura county has handed down the decision in the case in which the Imperial Land Company, the Oakley Company, F. C. Paulin, L. F. Farnsworth and others, sought to secure a permanent injunction against a tax recently levied by the irrigation district, to the effect that the tax is legal. The case was heard May 27. The decision clears the way and makes the land of all the plaintiffs in the case subject to advertising and sale just the same as other lands not included in the litigation.

BRIDGE GHOST WALKS AGAIN.

EASEMENT NOT SO EASY TO EASE AWAY IN SAN GABRIEL'S WASH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN GABRIEL, Aug. 15.—San Gabriel's bridge ghost refuses to depart. The latest appearance of the ghost came today when George Wallace, nurseryman, who owns the land on the north side of the bridge and who has been asking $400 for the easements, which sum had been agreed upon by the trustees, appeared before the members individually this morning, offering the easements for $300.

While the Board of Trustees would have welcomed the reduction of price according to the original plan, they were not delighted with Wallace's latest proposition, which provides that at any time in the future that he wants to build a cement wall on the property the land will then revert to him. This follows the precedent established at Tuesday night's session of the board when they were compelled to accept the Muloch proposition.

As there seems to be no way out of the predicament, it is anticipated that the board will have to comply with Wallace's demand at its next regular meeting, and it is hoped by all that at the close of the proceedings the ghost will sleep to walk no more.

TO SILENT CITY.

Mrs. Mattie Bedford Ivey, wife of Herbert B. Ivey, assistant cashier of the Citizens' National Bank, passed away last night at the Angelus Hospital. She left, besides her husband, an infant son. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

DIES OF WOUNDS BY PISTOL SHOTS.

MEXICAN UNABLE TO MAKE STATEMENT OF TROUBLE. OTHER NEWS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 15.—Unable to talk to his wife and children who were rushed to the hospital by automobile at a late hour last night in the hope that they might have a last word with him, John Hernandes, shot through the intestines last Sunday by J. Ortes following a quarrel, died at an early hour this morning.

As a result Ortes, who was arrested on a charge of murderous assault, now faces a charge of murder. When Hernandes's condition became so serious last night, Deputy District Attorney Frank Bates, Court Stenographer Charles Flack and Deputy Sheriff E. H. Todd hastened to the hospital in the hopes of securing a statement. Ortes was taken along but the injured man's condition was so critical that he was unable to talk.

Hernandes put up a brave fight for life, but the odds against him were too strong. His intestines are said to have been pierced in eleven places by the shots. He was 36 years of age and leaves a widow and two small children.

WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

His motor car literally swept from under him and smashed into kindling and himself hurled ten feet into the air to alight safely on his feet, was the experience of J. J. Smith this morning, when an express car on the Pacific Electric crashed into him at the I-street crossing on Euclid avenue, the accident being one of many to occur at this spot and the second within the week.

Smith's escape with his life is considered little short of miraculous. Before starting to cross the tracks from Euclid's west drive to the east, Smith noticed a south-bound passenger car pass and, therefore, thought the tracks were clear. He was upon the crossing before he saw the express car bearing swiftly down upon him.

WAR LECTURE.

A large and enthusiastic audience last evening listened to an able address on the European war situation delivered in the auditorium of Bethel Congregational Church by Hon. Charles G. Neely, professor of international law at Pomona College, under the auspices of the Ontario War Study Club.

You're Safe at FIRTH'S

The Surest Fortunes The World Ever Gave Farmers and Fruitmen Await Them Now!

With the men of half the world in arms—
With the farms of half the world in weeds—
With hunger knocking at the portals of Europe and part of Asia—
With the most tremendous cry for foodstuffs ever heard in modern times—

The moment is pregnant with opportunity for every man with ears to hear and judgment to act.

If you are a farmer, plant all the land you can—buy more and plant it.

If you are not a farmer, invest in farming land and have it planted or hold it for the sure and rapid increase in value.

The agriculturist and fruit grower will have an inning now, the like of which was never known.

The demand for farm and orchard products will be unlimited. The prices will soar high. The profits will be large.

Make your fortune during this period when the world's work is war! If you are a big farmer, make a big fortune. If you are a little farmer, make a little one. But make it while the time is ripe.

Search Southern California—You Will Find No Better Field Than Perris Irrigated Farms

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Boyle Heights League Meeting.

The Boyle Heights Civic League will meet tomorrow evening in the Christian Church, Second and Breed streets, to hear addresses on the proposed amendments, by Elmer R. McDowell and others.

Order of Amaranth Picnic.

Southgate Court, Order of the Amaranth, will hold its annual picnic at Venice on Thursday. Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock, p.m. All members and their friends are invited to participate.

Union-Avenue Church Concert.

A free concert will be given in Union-avenue Methodist Church, on Tuesday evening, August 25, under the direction of E. H. Senger. Forty voices, consisting of the choir and outside singers, will render the programme.

Dr. Whitman Returning.

Mrs. Whitman has just received a telegram from Dr. Charles H. Whitman, superintendent of the County Hospital, announcing his arrival at New York on the Cedric. Dr. Whitman hopes to be in Los Angeles by the 20th inst.

Dies While Dancing.

Robert Castle, 62, while dancing in the Mozart Theater Hall, fell dead on the floor last night. The incident caused great excitement. Castle lived with a married daughter in the Coachella Valley.

Plunges to Death.

Thinking that he was stepping into the elevator, Adelburta Kurtz, a bed painter, plunged ten feet down an elevator shaft at No. 1226 Factory place last night and landed on his head on a cement railing. Death was almost instantaneous. The body was taken to the Bresee morgue.

Boy Scouts to the Mountains.

In charge of Scout Master W. E. Riley, Troop II of Vincent Methodist Church, Boy Scouts of America, will start on Wednesday for a four-day camping trip in the mountains north of Azusa. In the presence of their parents and friends, they were invested with their badges at an entertainment given in the church on Thursday evening.

Illinois Social Club Picnic.

The Illinois Social Club will hold a picnic in Eastlake Park on Saturday, the 29th inst., in which the Illinois Association of Southern California will join. In consequence of this arrangement the proposed celebration of the Illinoisans on Admission Day has been postponed, and will be held on February 12, 1915, as a reception to exposition visitors who will be here at that time.

Reception to U.D.C. Officials.

A reception in honor of Mrs. J. H. Stewart, State president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. Gertrude Hartman, president of Reagan Chapter, and Mrs. R. W. Thomas, past-president, will be held at the Golden Apartments on Wednesday from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. Refreshments will be served and there will be an interesting programme. All members and friends are invited to attend.

Knights of Columbus Picnic.

Instead of going out of the city on an outing this year, the Knights of Columbus and their friends will have their annual event of this kind at Eagle Rock Park on Labor Day. Officers in charge of arrangements reached this decision yesterday and base their intentions on the overcrowded condition of the beaches and other public amusement places. A definite programme of events will be announced during the coming week and will include baseball, races and a number of unusual features.

Mass in New Parish.

The first mass of a new Catholic parish for Los Angeles will be said tomorrow morning in a store building at Third street and Western avenue. Rev. William Ford will be the celebrant. He has been engaged for several weeks past in announcing the establishment of the parish and enumerating the parishioners in the district. A temporary church will soon be erected in the neighborhood of Third and Western avenue, the exact location to be determined by Bishop Conaty on his return from Rome.

Board's Policy on Poles.

The protest of property owners on Forty-fifth street, in the Vermont Square district, against the Southern California Edison Company, and their insistence that the poles be placed in the alleys, has brought forth from the Board of Public Works a renewed declaration of its policy on this line. The board has declared that it is its intention to compel the placing of poles in alleys in such tracts where such construction can be made at a reasonable expense, and it has so notified the public utilities companies. The change of the poles from Fifty-fifth street can be made for about $500.

Calico Flags not Wanted.

The determined stand of the custodian of the branch City Hall at the harbor for respectable flags for that building is to bring results. The Board of Public Works tomorrow will formally request the City Council to appropriate sufficient money for the purchase of new flags. The custodian recently asked for two flags. Nothing doing. Then came his follow-up: "I would like to inquire what has been done on my requisition for two United States flags for our building. I was forced to use two disgraceful calico flags on the building today. A little money spent for a couple of flags would be appreciated, not only by the undersigned, but by the people of San Pedro in general."

MOTOR COP INJURED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Aug. 15.—Motorcycle Officer Roy Davenport bumped heads with a yearling colt last night. The colt came off without a scratch. Davenport not only has a large piece of skin missing from his right cheek, but his head feels as though it had been hammered. Davenport was riding his machine near Greenville when a colt jumped out into the road from beside R. L. Tedford's wagon. The motorcycle was wrecked against a bridge. Davenport has sworn to a complaint charging Tedford with driving a vehicle at night without having lights.

BRAWLEY IMPROVEMENTS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRAWLEY, Aug. 15.—The City Trustees have adopted three important resolutions relating to the improvement of the city, one to issue $40,000 bonds for street improvements, one for $8000 to be used in fire protection, and another for the first part of the paving programme. Notices of intention to pave the streets will now be immediately posted, and advertising for bids will be begun September 1, running twenty days, after which paving will follow, to be completed by Christmas.

WHITE PARTY SAILS.

Los Angeles Travelers in Europe Get Safely Away From Paris and Leave Liverpool for Home.

A cablegram from Miss Willa McKee to her father, S. M. McKee, No. 426 South Boyle avenue, yesterday, conveyed the good news that she and the other members of her party got safely away from Paris, where they were staying when war was declared, and sailed from Liverpool for home yesterday.

The party, in charge of Mrs. Cecelia White, numbers twenty persons, most of them teachers in the city schools. They were due to arrive home the last of this month, but their friends feared they might be detained.

The travelers had visited Germany and other European countries early this summer and were scheduled to leave Paris last week. Their departure from Liverpool yesterday was exactly as planned. They will reach this city about September 1.

INDUSTRIAL CITY'S PICNIC.

Torrance People Have Day of Fun on Redondo Beach Sands—Long Programme of Sports.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Aug. 15.—The "Industrial City" of Torrance came bodily to the beach today for a picnic. The baseball game between the Torrance Athletic Association and the Hendrie Rubber Company lasted eleven innings with a score of 7 to 1 in favor of Torrance. During the day a programme of indoor and outdoor sports was carried out, there was dancing in the large auditorium and a band concert out front.

Athletic results were: The 100-yard dash for men—B. Angelo won, R. Arpea second; egg race for ladies, Frances Kiskurd won; 50-yard dash for boys, George Probert won, Rube Pollydoor second; 50-yard dash for girls, Reginia Halgan won, Cecelia Bogan second; 100-yard dash for fat men, W. J. Poulton won, Sam Rappaport second; ball-throwing contest for women, Lea Funk won, Vivian Hollman second; wheelbarrow race on beach, B. Angelo won, S. Heggs second; walking the greased pole, J. S. Daggett won. The committee included R. R. Smith, chairman; F. O. Gould, Sam Rappaport, H. A. Marx, Doc Thatcher, H. Burmaster, H. B. McKeen, G. A. Proctor, H. McMannas, C. Askley, F. Toetz and J. Mitchell.

RUNAWAY MAN LOCATED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Aug. 15.—A telegram has been received stating that A. B. Maguire, who disappeared from Fullerton several weeks ago, has been located at Watsonville, and is being held by the police. City Marshal French left here last night for Watsonville and will return with the prisoner in a few days. Maguire was a cement contractor who did considerable work here during his stay of several months in Fullerton. He left with an automobile which was taken from a local garage under contract to purchase the machine, but for which he neglected to pay. A criminal complaint was filed against Maguire on this charge. It is said he had the machine when arrested.

RUNS AMUCK WITH GUN.

Running amuck with a revolver and attempting to shoot a countryman, it is alleged, Antoni Juarez, Mexican, was arrested late last night and charged with carrying a concealed weapon. The hammer of the gun stuck and prevented the shot he would have fired, while at St. John and Mora streets, but two recently-discharged shells were found in the revolver when the police secured it. The man's previous movements will be investigated.

OFFICER INJURED.

Motorcycle Officer Kiersey, traveling twenty-five miles an hour, crashed into the curbing at Montana and Alessandro streets last evening while chasing a speeder, and was catapulted from his machine to the sidewalk, suffering contusions to both knees and numerous other injuries. The accident was due to the quick turning of the speeding automobilist around the corner just as Mr. Kiersey caught up with him. He was not captured.

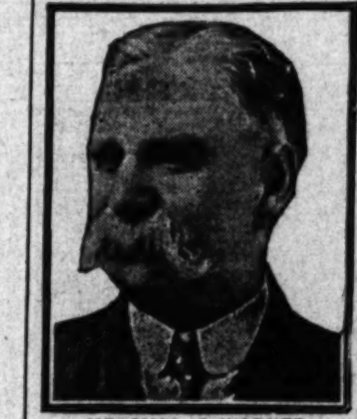
Stomach Troubles Relieved



MR. CHAS. A. WARNER.

"I want to express my thanks for the good Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done me. My attending physician told me I could not live three months and said I had consumption of the stomach. I read your advertisement in the newspaper, bought a bottle, took it, and it has done me so much good I cannot praise Duffy's enough. I have taken it for three years and keep it in the house at all times. I would not be without Duffy's. I am 63 years of age."—Mr. Chas. A. Warner, Cambridgeport, Vt.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

favorably influences weak digestion, increases the appetite, corrects faulty assimilation of food, gives force to the circulation and brings restfulness to the nervous forces. Get a bottle today and be convinced.

"Get Duffy's and Keep Well."

Sold by most druggists, grocers and dealers, in sealed bottles only, $1.00. Medical booklet sent free.

Had Tuberculosis —Now Insured

When you know a man has been afflicted with Consumption, and later obtained insurance, it means that he has recovered his health, as in this case:—

237 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak; having, in fact, absolutely no ambition whatever. I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied, I went to another doctor, who said that I was in the first stages of Consumption. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became looser and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have just been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery." (Abbreviated.)

(Affidavit) W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size $1; regular size $2. Sold by The Owl Drug Co. and leading druggists. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.94; at 5 p.m., 29.88. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 61 deg. and 79 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 98 per cent.; 5 p.m., 51 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., southeast, velocity 2 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 8 miles. Highest temperature, 84 deg.; lowest, 61 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The area of high pressure expanded during the past twenty-four hours and now controls the weather over the greater part of the United States. On the edges of this field of high barometer the pressure is comparatively low and rain is reported, especially in the Northeast and South. The heaviest rainfall, 1.36 inches, occurred at Jacksonville. The distribution of pressure on the Pacific Coast remains unchanged. The barometer is high in the North and comparatively low in the South. These conditions are favorable for continued fair weather in Los Angeles and vicinity during the ensuing thirty-six hours, with rising temperature Sunday.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday, becoming somewhat warmer; westerly winds, backing to northerly.

For California south of the Tehachepi: Fair Sunday.

STATE FORECAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Forecast:

BURGLAR THROWS CAYENNE PEPPER.

CHIEF CHASES THIEF THROUGH LOTS AND OVER FENCES BUT HE ESCAPES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ALHAMBRA, Aug. 15.—While Chief Parker was attempting to search the pockets of a suspicious-looking stranger late this afternoon, the man suddenly threw a handful of pepper in his face and escaped after an exciting chase by the officer.

The attention of the Chief was directed to the stranger, whom he saw hanging about a home on Dos Robles place, where it was known that the occupants were away. In answer to the officer's questions the man said he was looking for the residence of a physician nearby and willingly accompanied Parker to the house.

No one was at home and a handsome walrus suitcase that the man was carrying aroused the doubts of the officer who started to search the man, pulling out of one pocket a bunch of skeleton keys and from another a gold watch and a diamond ring. It was while diving into another pocket that the man struck Parker in the face with his hand full of pepper and, dropping the suitcase, started to run.

Although blinded by the pepper and suffering intensely, the Chief aroused the neighborhood by firing two shots after the fugitive which only made him travel faster over fences and back yards, the officer in close pursuit, until the man finally reached an orange grove and made his escape presumably on a Monrovia or Oak Knoll car into Los Angeles.

One of the rings recovered by Parker is the property of Henry Oleson and the diamond ring, it has been learned, belongs to Mrs. Cora Anderson of Dos Robles place. The suitcase, containing some expensive perfumery and a number of gentleman's toilet articles, has not yet been claimed.

GIRL GOES EXPLORING.

Philadelphia Woman Has Left on Launch to Study Recession of Alaskan Glaciers.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

VALDEZ (Alaska) Aug. 15.—Miss Dora Keen of Philadelphia and her exploring expedition left today by launch for Harriman and College Fiords, Prince William Sound, to study the advance and recession of the glaciers and to map a portion of the Chugach Mountains.

With Miss Keen were Herman L. Tucker, a surveyor who had experience in mountain climbing on Mt. McKinley in 1910, and with Bingham on Mt. Coropuna, Peru; George William Handy, who was with Miss Keen on her ascent of Mt. Blackburn in 1913 and George A. Raniel, an Alaskan.

REPORT PANIC AT TRIESTE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, Aug. 15—(9:15 p.m., via Paris, Sunday)—Advices from Trieste, Austria, say the population is in a panic. Besides the rigor of the police they fear a bombardment which may be followed by a landing. All means for transportation have been requisitioned and all citizens from 19 to 40 years of age have been called to the colors. Three hundred million dollars, which was in the city treasury, has been taken to Vienna. Troops are gathering in the mountains surrounding the city.

Americans in Switzerland.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENEVA (Switzerland, via Paris) Aug. 15.—There is said to be no reason for undue anxiety in the United States concerning the welfare of Americans in Switzerland. France, Italy and Germany have opened their frontiers and are permitting the entry into Switzerland of foodstuffs. The Swiss government controls the price of provisions, thus preventing speculation. Hotel rates have not risen ap-

TO SLICE A WAY FOR TRAFFIC THROUGH BUNKER HILL BARRIER.

WHAT EACH WOULD COST.

Estimated cost of building twin-bore tunnels through the hill at First and Second streets, $2,000,000. This does not include by-passes, elevator shafts nor damages.

Engineer's estimate of making an open cut to include First and Second street, the blocks between and a space 140 feet wide north of First street and the same distance south of Second, $1,313,773. This does not include damages resulting from improvements destroyed and estimated at $900,000.

The cost of changing grades of First and Second streets and the north and south streets between them from Broadway to Fremont avenue is estimated at $[illegible]. This includes excavation of 1,062,000 yards of dirt at 30 cents, purchase of dump at 5 cents, street work, changes in sewer system, tunnel reconstruction at Hill street, Hill-street storm drain, changes in water system, maintenance of traffic, superintendence and miscellaneous.

The estimate for regrading abutting property to new street grade and constructing new connecting streets on high ground is $1,587,273. The item of excavation includes removal of [illegible] cubic yards at .30 cents.

OPEN CUT'S ADVANTAGES.

Substantial relief to congested traffic conditions, wide outlet to residence districts west and northwest, to Hollywood, San Fernando Valley and other points, improved street-car service, enormous increase in values in a zone of six blocks, a stable business district, greater economy of cost as compared with any other means of relief. These are some advantages urged by advocates of the open cut.

Others, concerning more directly property owners on untouched parts of the hill, are contiguity to an active business district where values are increasing and improved street facilities for reaching the main business district. It is argued that the cutting of direct communication on top of the hill is more than offset by the stairways to the lower level in the cut and the two forty-foot streets.

To get the full value of the open cut, street improvements and additional railway service at the western outlet and west of the hill are declared of utmost importance. Movements under way for such improvements will receive the added impetus and co-operation of the men behind the open-cut project.

Predicted transformation of district included in proposed re-grade.

A birdseye view from Hill street west, showing a slice cut out of the hill nearly 1000 feet wide, creating a zone of six blocks having a maximum grade of 2 per cent. The picture is true to scale and proportion and shows exactly how the new district would look when the re-grade had been accomplished and business buildings erected. The maximum cut below the present grade is about ninety feet, but part of the drop is above the new forty-foot streets, north of First street and south of Second street. The maximum depth below the retaining walls is not more than seventy-five feet. The zone of the re-grade, as shown in the picture, extends from Hill street to Fremont avenue. Egress from both sections of the hill remaining are provided by stairways, shown on First and Second streets and by two new forty-foot streets with improved grade.

OPEN-CUT PROJECT COMPLETE; NOW PRESENTED FOR ACTION.

Hill Residents and Business Men Offer Feasible, Practical Plan to Relieve Congestion and Permanently Stabilize Business District.

THE problem presented by the Bunker Hill barrier to traffic is being attacked afresh. This week the City Council will be asked to decide upon the merits of a project to cut a generous slice through the hill and will be given detailed information and engineer's estimates of cost. The proposed cut would bring to a 2 per cent. grade all the territory between Hill and Fremont streets and from a line 140 feet north of First street to a line 140 feet south of Second street.

The estimated cost of the work is $2,313,000, exclusive of damages. This item of damage is largely represented by the buildings and improvements in the zone of the proposed regrade and has been roughly estimated at $900,000. The cost of twin-bore tunnels has been estimated at $2,000,000, exclusive of damages and by-passes.

With their preliminary work accomplished the open-cut proponents have initiated proceedings by circulating a petition asking the Council to investigate and act. The petition suggests that the damages to properties and improvements in the zone of the regrade should be justly recognized and fairly compensated for and that the measure of the damages should be fixed at the value of the properties, together with the cost of the excavation to conform to the [illegible]

The petitioners suggest that the work should be paid for as follows: At least $2,000,000, being the estimated cost of proposed tunnels, shall be assessed upon property outside the lines of the open cut and the balance of the cost upon the property in the zone of the cut in proportion to benefits received.

The open-cut project will be presented to the Council as a substitute for tunnels possessing many important advantages and involving only a little more money. Some of the strongest and most prominent business men in the city are advocates of the open cut. Many of them have worked sincerely for tunnels and are now backing the open-cut project for two reasons: the greater benefits that they believe will accrue from a wide, open-air outlet and several formidable obstacles to tunnel construction that have effectively blocked thus far work preliminary to boring.

Committees that have worked long and diligently endeavoring to secure a suitable entrance to the Second-street tunnel on the east side have given up in despair and regard the existing conditions there as being an almost insuperable obstacle to securing a tunnel entrance at anything like a fair price. Some of these committeemen have now turned to the open-cut project and believe it solves virtually all the problems at a price that can be easily paid with a fraction of the benefits to accrue.

The cut is being urged by the Olive Hill Improvement Association and other residents of the hill who believe that they will receive direct and substantial benefits from the regrade by bringing them on a level and in close touch with the business district. The hill residents have been aided and supported by the Business Stability Association, which has had a committee working on the project for many weeks.

The association only gave its indorsement to the open-cut project after the tunnel project was shown to be facing serious obstacles and it had been shown that the cut is a feasible and economical method of overcoming the menace to business stability and traffic presented by the big hump. The association's committee includes E. P. Clark, F. W. Braun and John Luckenbach, all property owners in the affected zone.

Time, an essential factor in any plan for relief, is about the same in either case. The open cut, including retaining walls, new streets, stairways, etc., would require about a year.

The cut, which involves excavation of more than 3,500,000 cubic yards of dirt, covers an area of approximately 2500 feet, east and west, and 900 feet, north and south. The maximum cut from the upper bank to the new level is ninety feet and from the

A Candidates' Protective Association should be formed. The necessity for such an organization is seen in the activities of mushroom organizations which peddle "indorsements" at so much per, the latest of which is the "California Republican Federation, Unltd."

Really, the direct-primary system is to blame for the scandalous manner in which the car-fare politicians are permitted to operate on so extensive a scale as to get real money from candidates who are blinded by the situation, and who jump at every favoring straw as a drowning man grabs at a passing splinter.

Republicans are the prey of the "organizations" which deal in "indorsements" because in the Republican party is seen the only actual rivalry for nomination. The field appears to be profitable, for it is said that nearly $2000 was snapped up by "workers" for the "California Republican Federation," and that sums ranging from $100 to $500 were gathered from candidates by others. It seems that some of the ward-heelers who always ally themselves with the side upon which most of the money is spent have adopted a sliding scale. The Republicans are spending the most money for the primary campaign because in the Republican party are found the only contests worth while. On the sliding scale, with a 10 per cent. assessment as a basis, good Republicans are allowed to enter by the ground floor route at the minimum; Republicans not quite so unwavering in their party loyalty are taxed 15 per cent., and so on, up.

The primary law does not limit the expenditures of candidates. The competition for nominative honors is so keen that the contestants are forced to watch closely every chance to make votes. Only a few organizations which have indorsed candidates are worth recognizing. The rest are grafting propositions, against which every candidate should be warned. Southern California candidates for State offices who go to San Francisco meet the same class of grafters as the northern candidates meet in Los Angeles when they come here. Impartial guides are hard to find, and the candidate often waltzes like an innocent little fly into a spider's web, gives up the market price for an indorsement and wakes up the next morning to find that he is stung.

All legitimate political organizations repudiate the "California Republican Federation" as they repudiated other cliques of inconspicuous workers who are doing no actual party service, but who are actually hurting party work, and making of the game of politics a sordid scramble in which the relics of the old vote-buying order are predominating.

Candidates who pay money for this sort of service are not wholly blameless, although they are victims of a system which makes for great latitude in campaign expenditure.

If there was any indecision upon the matter of voting for certain candidates for Superior judge, the Bar Association indorsements decided the question and the people now know what to do.

Lynn Helm is worried. He is worried because he believes that Judge Bledsoe has gained a lap in the race for the new Federal judgeship, the appointment for which is expected from Washington most any time. As a matter of fact, the talent has it figured out that Helm will be nominated and up to date he has the inside track for the reason that not only was he a classmate of President Wilson, but because he has the support of Atty.-Gen. McReynolds, which counts a whole lot. The fight has simmered down to Helm and Judge Bledsoe, although the friends of Milton K. Young still insist that the general party indorsement cannot be overlooked in Washington. Speaking of which, it is said that Archie Campbell of San Luis Obispo, Democratic State chairman, has wavered in his support of Young, and is now resigned to the programme of putting Helm across.

Mayor Mott of Oakland is heading an active movement in his city to nominate and elect Capt. Fredericks for Governor. They are all falling into line.

Congressman Knowland is sending, under frank, to Republican registered voters in Los Angeles a pamphlet of the speeches he has delivered "in the House of Representatives." Among them is an address delivered at the Los Angeles Harbor celebration last April. This was later printed in the Congressional Record, but was not delivered in the House.

Constan Jensen, who is running for judge of the Superior Court, is an old-time Republican who has never been anything else politically, and says he will stay by the party, although he is running for a non-partisan office. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, has practiced law here eight years and is a member of many clubs and other organizations.

Leave it to Supervisor Norton and the new Board of Supervisors will be patterned after his own choice. While he is representing one Supervisoral District and is not a candidate for re-election, he is campaigning against Supervisor Manning in the First District and against Supervisor Woodley in the Third. In the First, particularly, the voters resent his unwarranted interference and could struggle along very easily without him. The majority of the voters are against J. J. Hamilton, the Earl-Norton candidate. And speaking of the First, there is a growing sentiment for F. G. Randle of Alhambra, who is said to have the support of the loyal Republicans of the district because Supervisor Manning, with whom he must split the vote against Hamilton, has registered as a non-partisan. In the Third, the situation is considerably mixed, with Sidney L. Briggs, H. G. Dow, O. F. Scherer and Bernard Fry leading at the present writing, although they are being hard pressed by T. R. Eldridge and Supervisor Woodley. T. B. Harris and George McClain are also winning many friends in the district.

Judge Joseph F. Chambers, candidate for judge of the Superior Court, is just winding up his twelfth year as police judge. At his election in 1910, with twelve candidates running and four to be elected, he received 25,697 votes, being the highest vote cast for police judge. This was 7000 votes more than his nearest winning competitor, and exceeded the vote of the highest losing competitor by more new hill streets about seventy-five feet.

Open Cut Project.

IMPROVED GRADES.

The Second-street grade now begins at 15.5 per cent., falls to 5 per cent. and increases to 26 per cent. before the brow of the hill is reached. On the other side the grades vary from 2 per cent. to 15 to 13 to 3.5. The proposed forty-foot street that will extend along the south side of the cut will have a maximum grade of 9.5 per cent. and except for a short distance no heavier grade than 4.5 per cent. The maximum grade in the entire zone of the regrade is 2 per cent.

On the north side of the cut much easier access to the business district is afforded to hill residents by the proposed forty-foot street above the cut there.

The Hope-street grade will be reduced from a maximum of 4 per cent. to 3 per cent.; Flower street, from 6.5 per cent. to 3.5; Figueroa from 9.5 to 3.5; Hill street, from 3 per cent. to 2; Olive street, from 10 per cent. to 2; Grand avenue, from 4.5 per cent. to 2.

The plans provide for strong retaining walls on both sides of the cut and four stairways on each side. These stairways would not be steep, as they extend, not from the top of the hill, but from the newly-created streets bordering the cut.

In the estimates of cost, every contingency has been provided for, including damage to wires and pipes, reinstallation and cost of handling during the work.

Not all the district would be idle during the entire period of the work, as the re-grade could be completed at one end or the other long before the entire project could be finished. The removal of the dirt, it is said, offers no difficulty whatever and there are reasons to believe that it can be disposed of in a manner to materially reduce the estimated cost.

The project of cutting a slice through the hill has not been hastily nor carelessly adopted. It has been studied and analyzed by engineers and able business men for months. In its present form the plan clearly presents itself in every phase. It has been shown to be feasible and practical from an engineering standpoint and the cost carefully estimated. Figures submitted by the Stability Association's engineers have been reviewed and approved by the City Engineer's office. So far as the benefits to accrue, the following are set forth by men who have studied the conditions from all angles.

BENEFITS TO ACCRUE.

The open cut with its re-grade will bring to a level with the adjoining business district frontage on both sides of First and Second streets six blocks long. This property, whose market value has shown a tendency to decline rather than to advance, would be enhanced 300 to 500 per cent. and would be speedily built up to first-class business holdings. Men who are competent authorities on this phase of the situation do not hesitate to predict that work would be begun on a large number of fine buildings as soon as the re-grade has proceeded far enough to permit it.

The re-grade would afford a magnificent outlet for the great residential district to the west and northwest, would afford a new outlet to Hollywood and direct connection with San Fernando Valley and the beaches. In this connection the proponents of the open cut emphasize the importance of improving the western connections to the cut and declare their willingness to aid in securing such improvements.

It is proposed to establish car lines on at least one of the two east and west thoroughfares. This, it is pointed out, will not only be a great convenience and saving to tens of thousands of people who must now go around the barrier, but it will accomplish big results in general traffic relief.

In the matter of traffic, it is argued that the benefits are not confined to the people west of the hill. Residents of the East Side, of Pasadena and San Gabriel Valley will naturally use this outlet to Hollywood and the beaches, without passing through the more congested portions of the business district.

The newly-created business zone, with its direct approaches to a vast, thickly-settled territory, it is believed, would stabilize the general business zone and do much to avert the feeling of unrest that is admittedly injurious to the big interests of the city.

Many hill residents believe that property remaining on the hill on either side of the cut would receive a net benefit. The disadvantage of being cut off from one side of the hill, they say, will be much more than offset by the improved facilities for reaching the downtown district and by their contiguity to an active zone of enhanced values and made easily accessible by means of stairways.

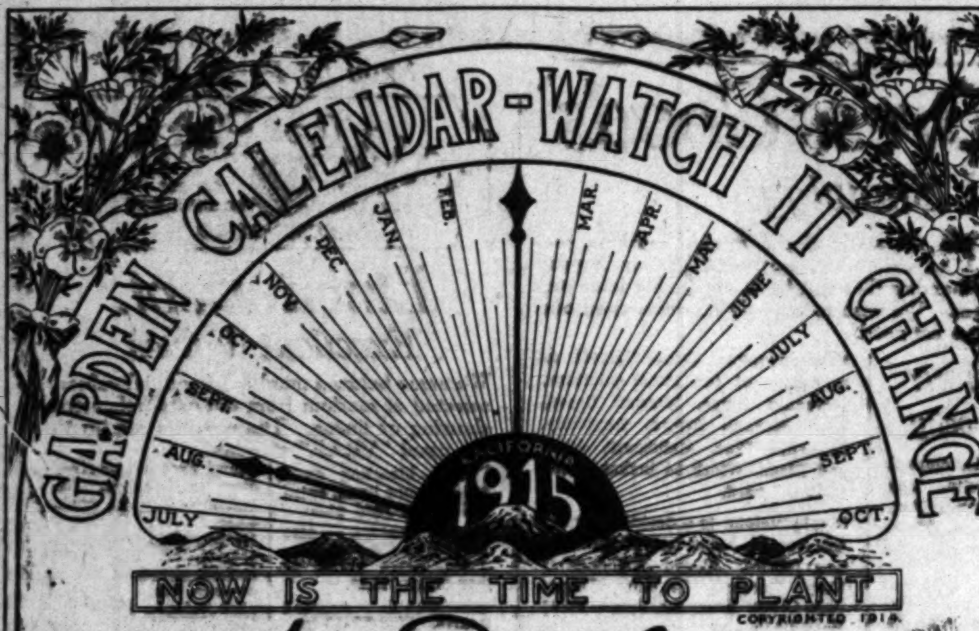
ENGLISH WOMEN ACT.

Call Meeting to Plan Assistance to Families of Those Who Go to War. Three Local Branches.

Representing three chapters of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, a small group of enthusiastic English women met yesterday morning at the Y.W.C.A. and discussed ways and means of rendering assistance to the needy women of England whose husbands, brothers or other male relatives have been called to the front, leaving the families to care for themselves largely.

The three local branches are the Queen Alexandra, of which Mrs. Gerald Ward is regent; the Princess Mary, with Mrs. Aubrey Allen at its head and the Florence Nightingale, in the regency of Mrs. Wilfred Norman. In addition to general relief work for the members of the organization in England, the Red Cross will receive some of the assistance.



Howard & Smith's

FAMOUS FLOWERING PLANTS, BULBS AND SEEDS

THIS IS THE MIDDLE OF AUGUST

If you are looking forward to a late Autumn display in your garden now is the time to act.

SWEET PEAS

Here Is Something Good

Howard & Smith's new, giant, orchid flowering, winter varieties. We offered this seed for the first time last week. As it is now time to plant we are again calling your attention to them, for they are certainly good. The flowers are equal in size to the best late Spencer varieties. The stems are over a foot in length, bearing 3 and 4 mammoth blossoms. There is absolutely no comparison between this new strain and those which you have ordinarily grown in the past for Winter blooming.

We have not at the present time segregated them into separate colors, and offer them only in mixture. The range of colors is wide and varied. It includes pure white, dark crimson, delicate lavender, apple blossom, scarlet, purple and in fact every shade of color known in Sweet Peas.

Fine, fat, plump seed, hand picked from the finest varieties. Put up in half-ounce packages only. Price per package 25c.

Special Offer of New Hybrid Watsonias

There is nothing more beautiful in Spring flowering bulbs than Watsonias. This new strain contains a varied assortment of new colors, running from pure white to apple blossom, salmon, scarlet, etc. Height of flower spikes 4 to 5 feet. Time of blooming—Easter. Plant early, as the bulbs start to grow in September and October. When not planted early the bulbs deteriorate rapidly. If you do not get them in the ground during these months do not plant them at all, for the result will surely be a failure.

Regular price, large flowering size bulbs, per dozen, $2.50. During the month of August, $1.50 per dozen. Mailed free to any address.

Giant Amaryllis

These are one of our greatest specialties. We grow over an acre of these bulbs in one of the finest collections in existence. Having a surplus of our Class C stock we are making a special offer during this month of August of fine, large flowering bulbs, at just one-half our regular price.

These Amaryllis are of superb size and substance. Flowers 8 to 10 inches in diameter.

Regular price, $5.00 per dozen. Special during this month, $2.50 per dozen. Delivered free to any address in Southern California on receipt of price.

Delphinium Belladonna

The beautiful Perennial sky blue Larkspur. Nothing finer for Autumn and Winter blooming. Elegant as a cut flower with the advantage that the clumps last from season to season and flower all the time. Last season we sold over 20,000 plants of this choice variety, which speaks for its popularity. Fine balled plants which will bloom at once, $3 per dozen.

PLANT THESE ROSES NOW!

For blooming in October and November and a glorious display in Spring, 1915.
Here is an absolutely unrivaled offer of the finest novelty roses in existence, along with a few good standard kinds.

AN OPPORTUNITY YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS

The plants are heavy, two-year-old balled stock, guaranteed to grow, and will be delivered free by freight to any one living in Southern California, south of Tehachapi, on either the lines of the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific or Salt Lake routes, or by our own trucks to residents of the city. These roses run about 20 pounds each packed.

You may realize a dozen plants weigh something, but we will prepay the charges to your nearest freight office, and guarantee arrival in good condition, on receipt of price. These roses are the product of twenty years of intensive study and cultivation of Roses in Southern California.

It costs the same to care for and bring to maturity inferior plants. They occupy the same amount of ground, require the same amount of water and fertilizer. Is it worth while to consider the small difference in initial cost? "WE THINK NOT" and grow only the best.

EXTRA SPECIAL OFFER

We will deliver to you Collections A and B, comprising twenty-four different roses, the finest there are in cultivation, for the sum of $12.00.

NOTE: All the above varieties are bush roses with the exception of Climbing Lady Ashtown and Climbing Liberty.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

There is a possibility that the lowering of the floor of the Broadway tunnel may be abandoned and in its place a scheme may be proposed to cut away the entire portion of Ft. Moore Hill easterly from the tunnel The Council has postponed until September 22 action on approval of the assessment for the tunnel lowering.

The City Engineer has been instructed to proceed by force account to deepen a natural waterway at the end of the Arroyo de la Brea storm drain to receive the discharge of storm waters.

The Mayor yesterday issued an invitation on behalf of the people of the city to the National Medical Association to hold its 1915 session in Los Angeles.

At the City Hall.

WOULD WIPE AWAY HILL.

LOWERING OF BROADWAY TUNNEL MAY BE ABANDONED.

In Place of This Project Plan Is Proposed to Raze Entire Hill from Present Bore Easterly, Thus Opening Wide Artery for Traffic-Congestion Relief.

The long-anticipated lowering of the floor of the Broadway tunnel, to provide a traffic grade and relieve congestion, may never be realized. The project may be abandoned and in its stead the entire Fort Moore Hill from the tunnel easterly may be razed to create a new area for business houses and a wide artery for traffic from the north and west.

This phase of the subject was given serious consideration at the City Hall yesterday. Protests against the lowering of the tunnel have arisen from various sources. The Council has postponed action until September 22 on the confirmation of the assessment for the tunnel lowering work. It is possible that by that time a definite proposition as to the hill-razing scheme may be formulated, so that the proceedings may be abandoned. The contract for this work has been awarded, however, and the contractor will have to be taken into consideration.

Councilman Snowden, who is the Council's special representative on tunnel matters, said yesterday that he is inclined to give the hill-razing project serious consideration, and that as there are no valuable improvements on the portion of the hill proposed to be cut away, the amount of money proposed to be put into tunnel-floor lowering would go a considerable way toward the larger scheme.

BY FORCE ACCOUNT.
OUTLET FOR STORM DRAIN.

The City Council yesterday decided to instruct the City Engineer to use force account work to lower a natural waterway from Third avenue to Bronson avenue, as the outlet for the Arroyo de la Brea storm drain. The Finance Committee was instructed to make provision for this extra expense.

It develops that in planning the lower end of the Arroyo de la Brea storm drain the engineers have made the terminus considerably lower than the natural waterway with which it connects, and into which its storm waters are expected to discharge. This means that unless the natural channel is deepened the flow in the storm drain is liable to be checked by the depositing of silt and sand. No provision was made in the original estimates of cost of the storm drain for the excavation of this waterway, and the Councilmen were inclined to criticise the engineering department for this oversight. It is a necessity that must be provided, however, and the city exchequer must suffer thereby.

MEDICOS WANTED.
ASKED TO MEET HERE.

On behalf of the city the Mayor yesterday sent a message to the National Medical Association, in session at Raleigh, N. C., inviting the association to hold its next annual assemblage in Los Angeles in 1915. In this invitation the Mayor says:

It may be of interest to many of your delegates to know that the summer weather in Southern California is more delightful than the winter, and that is above par, for the whole world realizes that our climate, like our hospitality, is unsurpassed. Los Angeles has adopted its convention garb and will be in readiness to make your visit here both profitable and pleasant. The Chamber of Commerce and the civic and commercial organizations are raising a large fund for the entertainment of visitors next year. The Panama Canal having opened for traffic should be an extra inducement for visitors to come to the southland.

City Hall Brevities.

The Board of Education wants to lease from the city seven rooms in the old State Normal School buildings for school purposes, and will pay $125 per month therefor. The proposed lease was submitted by the City Attorney to the Council yesterday, and was referred to the Finance Committee.

Four important ordinances were ready for adoption by the City Council yesterday morning. It requires seven members to suspend the rules and place ordinances on their passage at their first presentation, and as President Whiffen must act as Mayor next week and Councilman Williams will be away on vacation, a hustle was made to get Councilman Wheeler, now on vacation, to return to the Council for this session. Wheeler came, but Councilmen Betkouski and Roberts did not show up and the ordinances could not be adopted. Betkouski had given notice of his intention to absent himself. Roberts could not be found nor reached anywhere by telephone.

The ordinance of intention to widen Wall street, from Forty-third to Fifty-fifth street, has been sent to the City Council by the City Attorney.

The City Attorney notified the Council yesterday that the interlocutory judgment has been entered for the condemnation of land for the opening of Seventy-sixth street, between Figueroa street and Moneta avenue. The City Engineer was instructed to prepare and present the diagram for the assessment district.

The Arroyo Seco Association yesterday petitioned the City Council to provide electric lights for Sycamore Grove. The petition was referred to the City Electrician.

Application was made to the Fire Commission yesterday for permission to store 5000 tons of hay at No. 2800 Alhambra avenue. Fire Chief Eley called attention of the board to the great fire hazard in allowing such a quantity of hay to be stored in a building with windows and within a short distance of the County Hospital. Permission was granted to store only 500 tons there.

The Fire Commission yesterday approved the action of the Fire Chief in accepting the resignation of Capt. Henry T. Hill on August 19 and the emergency appointment of Adolph C. Stammer as captain, as the eligible list of the Civil Service Commission is exhausted. Chief Eley has also appointed Frank J. Gunther as a lieutenant.

Further fire protection for Wilmington district was made by the commission yesterday in recommending that fire hydrants be placed at Ninth and Wilson streets and Park avenue and Patton street.

The Fire Commission yesterday adopted rules similar to those adopted by the Police Commission, providing that when a man resigns from the department and then secures reinstatement, he loses all seniority rights and must enter the service as a new employee under probation.

The Fire Commission yesterday expressed its disapproval of the shifting of men from one city department to another when it approved the action of Fire Chief Eley in disapproving the application of Lawrence E. Washington for reinstatement on the eligible list of firemen. Washington left the fire department some time ago to enter the police department. He now wants to shift back again.

Fire Chief Eley was appointed by the Fire Commission yesterday as a delegate to the forty-second annual convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, to convene in New Orleans, October 20. A strong effort is being made to bring this association to Los Angeles for its 1915 meeting.

The fire loss for the past week was $12,925. There were fifty-four fire alarms turned in, of which seven were false. In fourteen cases there was no loss of property and there were sixteen grass fires.

The Board of Public Works yesterday asked J. E. Botsford, representing the Federal Steel Cement Mills of Cleveland, to submit an estimate on waterproofing the Third-street tunnel with a new composition which this concern is making.

The Normandie Square Improvement Association filed a petition yesterday, asking for the formation of a sanitary sewer district to provide for sewering of Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets, between Normandie and Western avenues.

City Electrician Manahan reported to the Board of Public Works yesterday that the installation of double the present number of electric lights in the Third-street tunnel is estimated to cost $750, and that their maintenance for the year will cost $2250.

ANY CLIMATE YOU WANT.

Party Climbs Mountain Near Los Angeles and Finds Two Feet of Snow There.

Just to prove that Southern California can furnish any sort of climate desired provided one takes the trouble to locate it, a party of fourteen young persons from Cold Brook Camp, in the San Bernardino Mountains, climbed to the summit of Mount Hawkins a few days since and there found the snow two feet deep.

This is the largest party ever known to have reached the summit of this mountain that is perpetually topped with a blanket of snow.

As visual evidence of the success of the climb the party was snapped in a number of photographs, showing the progress of the snow man they made, and several of the snow-ball engagements which took place.

One of the leading spirits in the party was G. A. Kelly, captain of Engine Company 26, No. 2475 West Washington street. Others were: Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Twycross, Sierra Madre; Mrs. S. O. Green, Rodger Little, H. E. Moor, T. R. Feaster, Victor Thomas, Elsie McConnell, Lucile Millsap, Jessie Templeton, W. S. Davis and Etta Little, this city.

Proud Youth Unexpectedly Loses His Beautiful Watch in Justice Court to Pay a Judgment.

"That's a nice-looking watch you are wearing," Justice Summerfield remarked yesterday to Marion I. Clemmer, a railway mail clerk.

"Yes," said Clemmer proudly, "this ticker is worth $50."

"Good enough,' said the court. "Hand that ticker over to Constable Lyons."

Clemmer had been sued by C. F. Frye on a note for $40. The railway mail clerk let judgment go by default. Then he appears to have got his back up.

"It's not a just debt, and I'm not going to pay it," he told Justice Summerfield yesterday.

"Didn't you sign the note?" the court asked.

"Yes," admitted Clemmer, "but I'm not going to pay it."

"Oho," said Justice Summerfield softly, just like that. "Oho."

Then the court leaned over his bench and gave Clemmer the once over, optically speaking.

"I spy a watch," said Justice Summerfield. "Just hand that watch over to the Constable, and if he sells it for $40 or more you won't have to pay the judgment."

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the 5 and 10-cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used for two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use.

5 grains Optona (1 tablet.)
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which would injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. Any Owl Drug Store or any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for once what real eye comfort is.

GRAHAM FREE UNTIL MONDAY.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT BY THE FEDERAL COURT.

Superior Judge Denies Application and Case of Man Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses Is Carried to Higher Authority—Out on Bond.

Superior Judge Willis yesterday denied a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Benjamin F. Graham of this city, charged with having obtained $3000 from Thomas P. Ayers, in a British Columbia lumber deal. Then a petition was filed in the United States District Court and Circuit Judge Ross heard the arguments for and against the issuance of the writ in chambers. He granted the writ, returnable tomorrow morning in his court. In the meantime a surety bond of $10,000 was given by Mr. Graham, and he was released from the Sheriff's custody.

The transaction involved in the case is the sale of 110,000 acres of timber, adjacent to Massett Inlet, on Graham Island, B. C., the price of which under the contract between Ayers and B. F. Graham, president of the Graham Ship, Coal and Lumber Company, was to be $6 an acre. But one payment was made on the property, amounting to $10,000, but the allegation of the petition for the writ sets out that Graham secured $3000 by alleged false pretenses.

It was alleged that the contract upon which the action is based was executed in Nashville, July 27, 1907, but in the argument it was claimed that Mr. Graham was not in Nashville on that date or at any previous time. The indictment, upon which the removal proceedings is based, was returned by the Federal grand jury at Nashville, June 5, 1914. It was argued that the issues of the case had been determined in two actions brought by Ayers against Graham, in the Superior Court of Cook county, Ill., before Judge Carpenter, and in the Federal Court for the northern district of that State, and that in both instances Graham won out.

An effort was made by Mr. Graham to defeat the writ of rendition before the Governor of California, but he was unsuccessful, as he was in his efforts in Judge Willis's court. Evidence on the point that Graham was not a fugitive from justice and that he was not in Nashville at the time the contract was made, was furnished the Governor, who found that the allegations of the complaint issued out of the Federal Court in Nashville, and upon which the warrant of the Governor of Tennessee was based, were sufficient. A feature of the case is that the alleged cause of action arose several years ago, and that two courts have decided in favor of Graham, after all the issues were presented.

NO TIME LIMIT.
RAYNER-GENSHLEA SUIT.

A row of law books in Judge Jackson's courtroom, taking up about eight feet of the table before the bench, was a mute indication yesterday that the argument in the Rayner-Genshlea case may continue a week longer.

On the theory that nothing was adduced during the trial to indicate that at the time Mrs. Maggie Rayner signed a deed transferring her $100,000 worth of property to her daughter, the late Mrs. Helen May Hubbs Genshlea, the elderly woman was incompetent, the attorneys for the defense are arguing that whether the deeds ever were delivered to the daughter or not, the property rightly belonged to her. On that hypothesis they seek to defeat A. F. MacDonald, guardian ad litem of Mrs. Rayner, who seeks to have the deed set aside on the ground that Mrs. Rayner was unduly influenced when she executed it.

Judge Jackson has no other case on his calendar for trial, and he indicated to the attorneys that as the case is of great importance he will not limit the time in which they may present their arguments.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.
PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

WANTS TAX REFUND. R. L. O. Lowry, executor of the estate of William Morgan, known as "Gold Dust" Morgan, filed suit in the Superior Court yesterday, demanding a refund of $6280 paid as taxes on 2000 shares of the Chamber of Commerce Safety Vault Company. The stock was valued by Assessor Hopkins at $280,000, and a double assessment was levied on it this year because of failure to levy a tax on it in 1912. It is claimed by Lowry that the stock is held in trust for the benefit of Cornelia B. Silva, Sarah Wood and Ida Alys Morgan, the widow, and that it cannot be assessed.

SUES FOR ASSAULT. Hamilton M. Tillis yesterday filed suit for $25,000 damages against the Los Angeles Railway Corporation. He alleges he was beaten on the head with a door lever and then with a revolver wielded by a street car conductor. Tillis asserts that attack was made on him July 31 as he was about to leave a car at Forty-seventh and Hoover streets. He declares the alleged assault was unwarranted, and that he has been unable to pursue his usual occupation since it occurred.

SICK CHICKENS. Alleging misrepresentation regarding the physical condition of 150 chickens, H. C. Mundy yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court demanding $1850 from William M. Henrichs. Mundy says he purchased the chickens from Henrichs June 16 for $100. Two days later, he says, he discovered the fowls were suffering from an incurable disease and many of them died. In addition to the loss of the chickens, he said, he was compelled to rid his chicken ranch of many improvements.

INCORPORATIONS. California Architectural and Construction Company, incorporators J. E. MacGibbon, H. O. Fretwell and E. H. MacGibbon, capital stock $30,000, subscribed $502.

SOCIALIST KNOCKS AQUEDUCT. Alleging that water flowing through the aqueduct is impure, Henry A. Hart, a Socialist, yesterday filed an injunction suit to prevent the use of the water in this city. Acting Presiding Judge Works fixed the date of the hearing for the 26th inst. The action appears to be a renewal of attacks that have persisted against the aqueduct for several years. This and other allegations have been made before and have been characterized by Chief Engineer Mulholland as ridiculous.

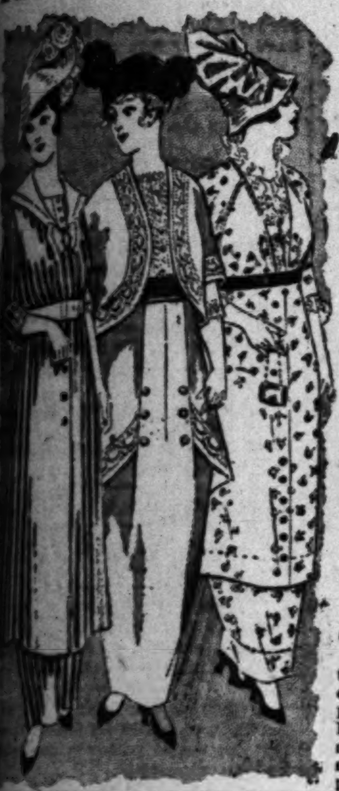
HERE is positively the biggest Ready-to-Wear event that this store has ever featured. Monday morning at 8:30 a.m. we begin the sale of 20,000 pretty tub dresses that were intended to sell for $3.50 to $10 each at the uniform price of $1. It is hard to comprehend just how big this sale is or what an extraordinary saving awaits every woman visiting this store tomorrow.

THE REAL BARGAIN CENTER OF LOS ANGELES
The 5th Street Store
BROADWAY AT FIFTH ST.
MUSE, FARIS, WALKER CO.

Hundreds of Dainty Styles for Street and Evening Wear

$3.50, $4, $5, $7.50, and Many Are Priced as High as $10—All at $1



Always Ask for S. & H. Stamps.

THIS is the largest purchase of dresses ever made in New York by any Los Angeles house. We have every reason to believe that nothing approaching it has ever been attempted in Pacific Coast merchandising. This vast assortment of women's dresses includes the surplus stock of three big manufacturers purchased by our garment buyer on a recent trip to the eastern markets. The price we paid for these dresses was almost unbelievable and permits of savings in their distribution of the most notable nature.

Over One Hundred Salespeople Will Be in Attendance That All May Be Served

WE HAVE made ample preparations to take care of the greatest crowd in the history of the Fifth Street Store. Almost half of our entire Second Floor will be given over to these dresses. Every woman in Los Angeles should be here to secure not only one, but two or three. It is an opportunity that is hardly likely to occur again.

Favored Styles

INCLUDING dresses of fine voile, crepes, tissues, linen, ratine, pique, chambray, lawn, cotton voile, rice cloth and ginghams. Long and short tunic models, plain and lace trimmed and finished with silk or satin girdles. To enumerate all the pretty styles, patterns and weaves would require more space than we have at our disposal. We could not do them justice and you will have to see the dresses themselves to appreciate them.

Plain and Fancy

THERE are dresses of pure white and rich colors in plain and fancy patterns. New Roman striped materials, fancy plaids, pretty floral patterns, fine white embroidered voile dresses. Also many in combination plain bodice and fancy skirt trimmings or vice versa. In fact you will find most any color or pattern you desire here tomorrow morning. A surprise is certainly in store for every woman who is so fortunate as to participate in these values.

All Sizes to 50

IN THIS wonderful assortment of dresses you will find no difficulty in getting the exact size you wish. There are 14, 16 and 18 sizes for misses and 34 to 44 for women and 44 to 50 extra large. Think of what an opportunity this is for large women as well as small or medium-sized women and misses. Dresses in these extra large sizes for $1 is something that we believe has never been equaled in this city. Do not miss this opportunity.

No Phone Orders

THERE will positively be no phone orders filled at this price and not more than five dresses of one size to any one customer. None of these dresses will be sold to dealers, owing to the fact that they will be sold for less than many of our competitors can buy them. Then we wish our patrons to get the advantages we are offering in this sale and adopt this means to protect them as well as ourselves. Sale begins Monday morning at 8:30 a.m. 2nd floor.

IN AND OUT.

One reason why so many motorcycle accidents happen is that motorcyclists try to dodge in and out of so many close quarters that they frequently get in where they cannot get out.

BOTH WAYS.

A British ship arrived at San Pedro from China and learned for the first time about the war. A condition may exist without a man knowing anything about it, but under those circumstances it is just the same to him as if it wasn't.

SHOULD GO THROUGH.

People on Pico street want the Pico boulevard completed to the sea. Santa Monica has already accomplished its share of the work. The project deserves all encouragement. Automobile traffic is constantly increasing and every outlet increases pleasure and safety.

SHOULD BE EASY.

Cotton growers of the Imperial Valley are wondering how the war will affect the sale of their crops. It should make no difference other than to procure good prices. China is not at war, and Japan seems to be able to take care of its own coast and trade. The Orient has always wanted the cotton of the Southwest, and will no doubt take this opportunity to get it.

FULLY PREMEDITATED.

It appears that the Poles have been organizing for four years against the day when the smoldering fires of Europe would break out in general warfare. The assassination of a grand duke was only the thin excuse of the great conflict. At heart Europe was already seething and only awaited its hour of outbreak. Their tongues were preaching peace while their hearts were full of battle.

A BITTER EXAMPLE.

The closing of the great copper mines at Cananea and the temporary abandonment of one of Mexico's best camps is a sad illustration of the manner in which the warfare of that country has brought about its industrial paralysis. Larger and richer copper mines have perhaps never been developed than those of La Cananea. Yet between labor agitation and war despoliation they have been utterly ruined and only a deserted camp stands as a mute reproach to the atrocities that brought about the downfall of a once prosperous town of more than 5000 inhabitants.

SHAKING DICE.

The City Council has been asked to make it unlawful for young girls to conduct street stands where dice are shaken for pennants. It is very likely that this sort of work is not a good influence for the young women who are thus employed. If dice-shaking is to be allowed for cigars and other merchandise of cigar stands and tobacco houses, the same privilege must be extended to dealers in pennants, and these dealers have the same right to employ women as men so long as a child-labor law is not violated. The one way to get at the root of the evil is to entirely abolish dice-shaking for any kind of merchandise. It is a very foolish way to do business under any circumstances. Perhaps the dealers get no other advantage than sometimes making larger sales than would otherwise be the case, but the habit cannot be good for the customer in any sense. If he wins he will smoke too much and if he loses he will either not smoke at all or pay more than he can afford. It is not economic and it is not moral, and with some of the younger men it amounts to a fever. The age has no greater vice than gambling, and it is inconsistent to permit it on any scale or for any purpose.

WORDS, WORDS, NOTHING BUT WORDS.

In a Washington dispatch the information is conveyed, with apparent seriousness, that "Democratic leaders are depending upon President Wilson to make a series of utterances in the coming campaign that will determine the result of the November elections."

Words, words, nothing but words!

In the first place there is to be an "address to the country" when the trust bills have been passed which will be "calculated to have widespread influence in bringing business men to the support of the Democratic ticket."

The attractive feature of that is to be, according to the reported programme, the assurance that for the remainder of the administration business need not fear further enactments against it by Congress.

The idea seems to be that Business will be so grateful for the promises of relief from further lambasting that its heart will overflow with gratitude and it will fall all over itself to kiss the hand that has been smiting it.

It will be recalled that "when President Wilson signed the tariff bill he issued a statement designed to reassure business," and that "he made another assuring address when the finishing touches were put on the banking law."

We remember that the President admonished business men to "whet their wits" to meet the changed tariff conditions. The new banking law is still far from being put in operation. And business is depressed, "psychologically," the President says; but however that may be, the depression is in evidence.

President Wilson's appeal to business men (for votes) will certainly be awaited with interest.

WE MUST HAVE SHIPS IMMEDIATELY.

Our government now recognizes the vital necessity of getting ships under the American flag in order to carry our goods abroad in neutral bottoms at this time of extraordinary demand. The President and the Secretary of the Treasury seem to be confident that a law would be observed by other countries which provided for the transfer of register from foreign flags to our own, although a clause in the London conference agreement holds the contrary.

Nevertheless, there is nothing else for us to do, for there are no ships to speak of owned by Americans and run under the American flag under American register. Congress ought to pass the emergency law introduced to remedy this defect, as far as it can at present be remedied, as quickly as possible; and then let it be tried. It may be, and likely would be, that we could induce the countries in need of our food products and other goods, that is, the countries engaged in the great war, to waive the provisions of the clause in the conference agreement which would prohibit transfer of register just preceding a war or during a war, especially as our needed products could and would be impartially sent to each and all of the warring powers needing and desiring them.

Certainly each of those powers needs food, and ours is the only country from which they obtain food in any quantity.

Of course, foreigners can register under the American flag if they want to. The only difficulty is that, as the existing international agreement stands, such transfer might not be respected by one warring power if the cargo was for delivery to another warring power, unless agreement to respect all such shipments were made—not by any means an impossibility or improbability.

If that point is waived, and there is no good reason why it should not be, when the contesting nations are so greatly in need of supplies while they are fighting, it would be, while we are financially arranging to buy foreign-built ships, the best way of dealing with the present emergency of immense quantities of American products ready for shipment and no American ships to ship them in.

The protests of The Times that the hour would come when we should regret having no merchant marine are heeded now. For many years our neglect has cost us $300,000,000 per annum for freights paid on our goods to foreign ship owners. We must have ships and have them immediately by hook or crook—not only to save our European trade in this war emergency, but also to save as much as we can of the $300,000,000 a year freight money which we have been throwing away for so many years.

"THE BATTLEGROUND OF EUROPE."

This is Belgium's title, and it is as correct today as it was in Napoleon's time and in preceding centuries. From the earliest times nations have fought their battles on Belgian soil. The ancient cities of Liege and Dinant, of Antwerp, Ghent and Bruges, all have a storied past to which war has lent a romance if not a charm. The wheels of the gun carriages and commissariat wagons of Germany, France and Great Britain travel today routes which were traversed by the heavy chariots of the Romans and the crude provision cars of the Franks. The land between the Meuse and the Rhine has provided many a battlefield rich in plunder. Today's struggle is but history repeating itself. Beneath the fields in which so many Germans and Belgians have been buried during the past few days the "unreturning dead" of other days sleep the last long sleep. Guns, pistols, swords, metal trimmings from uniforms, shako buttons and military ornaments are often upturned by the plows of Belgian farmers, relics and reminders of grim wars of other days.

Some of the world's most famous battles were fought on Belgian soil. Old-time Emperors of Germany settled there their grievances with French Kings. British generals won reputations there. The history of the country has indeed been linked with that of Great Britain since a daughter of Alfred the Great, the monarch who was cuffed for burning the cakes, married a Count of Flanders. The early day Counts were ever at war with fierce Norman invaders, German Princes and French usurpers. France, Spain and Austria in turn conquered the country and there, 101 years ago, Napoleon Bonaparte met his conqueror on the field of Waterloo.

Even since Napoleonic days Belgium has constantly been the scene of bloody conflicts. After the fall of the Corsican the country was placed under Austrian rule. This not proving a success the country was united with Holland under William of Orange as King of the Netherlands. But this was not a happy marriage, as in race and religion the two countries were diametrically opposed.

This antagonism culminated in the revolution of 1830 when, after a short but fierce fight in the streets of Brussels, the Dutch soldiers were beaten and the provisional government of Belgium was formed. Great Britain and France intervened and, after negotiations, Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg was placed upon the throne as the first King of the Belgians. He made his triumphal entry into Brussels, the capital of his kingdom, July 19, 1831.

This did not end Belgium's troubles. The King of Holland failed to take kindly to the slicing of so prosperous a section from his none too large domain. Leopold I was on the throne but three weeks before he had to change the pleasures of court life for "battle's magnificently stern array." France sent 50,000 troops to his aid, but the quarrel with Holland lasted for eight years. After a conference of the powers in London peace was restored and since that time Belgium has been a separate kingdom. It enjoyed repose until this month when the German troops marched across it with fire and sword toward France.

After his eight years' conflict with Holland Leopold I enjoyed a long and prosperous reign. It is a notable fact, indeed, that when in 1848 Europe was convulsed by revolutions the Belgian throne was one of the few on the continent which remained unshaken. Leopold II, of none too savory reputation, whose relations with "the Baroness," with Cleo de Merode and other fascinating women, provided Belgium and the world with some of the spice of life, ruled the country from 1865 until 1909, when he was succeeded by his nephew, the present King Albert.

Under her three Kings Belgium prospered enormously. In art, commerce and manufactures she won an important place in Europe, quite out of proportion to her area and population. Now she is under the menacing shadow of the German eagle and if German arms are successful in the present war Belgium may be in danger of again losing her identity and of becoming a part of the German Empire. The Kaiser has long had his eye upon Antwerp, Belgium's chief port, as an outlet for his country's vast and growing overseas commerce. In point of fact Antwerp often has been referred to as "the Naboth's vineyard of the German Chancellerie."

It is known from recent utterances of King Albert that he was not surprised when Germany violated Belgium's neutrality. Antwerp has for years past been provisioned and prepared to be the rendezvous of the Belgian army should the Belgians, after being forced to take up arms in defense of that neutrality, find themselves compelled to retreat before the enemy. Some European military authorities have calculated that it would require an army of 300,000 to besiege Antwerp successfully and the city is believed to be so perfectly provisioned that it would take a year to starve it into submission.

A TRIUMPHANT BUGOLOIST.

Time was when the University of Illinois would not suffer an unorthodox person to avail himself of its educational facilities. Foster North lost his collegiate degree because, when questioned as to his religious belief, he declared that he was an entomologist rather than a Christian. He averred that a careful examination of the vermiform appendix of a cockroach had convinced him that Darwin and Huxley and Herbert Spencer were right, that Adam was developed from an oyster and Eve was made from better material than the rib of a cowardly man who gave her away. He claimed that acceptance of any brand of theology is not a necessary qualification for a college diploma, and that the right of a free American to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience includes the right to select the Divinity he will worship. That if he prefers Mahomet and Allah to Moses and Jehovah or the Analects of Confucius to the orations of Saint Paul that is his privilege.

The magnates of the University of Illinois would not stand for Mr. North's defiance of college rules and they fired him. He appealed from their decision to the Supreme Court of Illinois and lost his case. Then he devoted himself to the science of entomology and is today renowned in Europe and America as a bugologist.

The present president of the university recently overhauled the papers in North's case and wrote North that the chapel rules of 1885 were obsolete and that he wanted to give North his belated degree. North accepted it and was received with cheers by the undergraduates.

SANTA CLAUS BRYAN.

And now comes Costa Rica and asks Chautauqua Bryan and his plunderbund of Washington lawyers why she cannot be considered, as well as Nicaragua and Colombia, in the great American gift enterprise? Did not the Panama Canal put an end to all hopes of a revival of the Nicaragua route? And was not the Nicaragua route, when it was used, a source of revenue to the people of Costa Rica, and is not Costa Rica to be indemnified?

And what is the matter with Honduras, and Salvador, and Venezuela and Ecuador? Shall Santa Claus Bryan be suffered to pass by their empty stockings and leave them out of his distribution of Uncle Sam's surplus cash? And what about poor old Patagonia, which will really and truly be a sufferer by the completion of the Panama Canal? Clipper ships and ocean steamers will no longer pass through the Straits of Magellan, and the llamas of the Antarctic will browse in a lonely land. Why may not Bryan take the doors off the United States Treasury and invite all the senor dons of Central and South America to help themselves? "It is more blessed to give than to receive," especially when you give away other people's money, and get a private rake-off from the recipient.

NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION.

Quality, Not Size, Alone the Real Test of a Paper's Value and Influence.

[Toronto Mail and Empire:] Following the reduction in the price of the London Times from 4 to 2 cents its circulation increased from 50,000 to 170,000. The gain of 120,000 as a consequence of the cut of two cents has brought a considerable change in the quality of the Times' circulation. Referring to this in an interview in London, John A. Sleicher, editor and publisher of Leslie's Weekly, makes the interesting remark that "whatever may be said about large circulation and cheap publications, the greatest influence is exercised by those that maintain prices as well as their dignity." He holds, in common with most publishers noting the trend of the times, that the quality of the reader is the real test of the value and influence of a newspaper, especially where advertising is concerned. The day of cheapening prices for newspapers is practically gone. Instead of enlargement by this method there will be improvement in the quality and class of the newspaper, not necessarily in its size. Emphasis will be increasingly laid upon quality in all cases.

These are views which have become current among American journalists, and are steadily penetrating into Canada. Advertisers have been finding out that in many cases cheap circulation is about on a par with no circulation. There are classes of advertised goods which need the widest sort of publicity. But most advertising is the exercise of suggestion and persuasion upon readers, and here the quality of circulation is doubly important, for where it is high-class the readers are not only real earners and people of thrift, but are more susceptible to good business inducements than those of a less perceiving order. And not alone from the advertiser's point of view, which usually consists in the checking of returns, but from that of general influence and standing—the publication which seeks soundness and quality before cheapness and cheap circulation makes every copy of circulation count.

Woman Under the Law.

[Helen M. Winslow, in Woman's World for August:] "Laws for women" is a phrase peculiar to our day and generation. Fifty or sixty years ago, a law proposing to give a woman permission to manage her own property, or even to make her an equal guardian of her own children with the husband and father, would have been scouted as beneath the notice of a "real lady." When Lucy Stone, about the middle of the last century, urged women to support a bold new law to allow a married woman to continue to manage property of her own that she had successfully taken care of up to the time of her marriage, the whole country rose up as one woman. Women did not want any financial life of their own, and they did not have any business life of their own. They were simply chattels, married or unmarried, and they submitted to the decree of whatever man happened to be over them. If he was a good man, they were lucky and thanked their God as they should. If he was a bad man, they prayed for strength from heaven to endure life with or near him, and let it go at that. There was no other way.

In those days the property of a woman immediately became her husband's at her marriage. There are many instances on record, in the courts as well as out, where a woman brought a goodly estate to her husband, and after living with him some years had the experience of seeing him die and listening to the reading of his will, wherein he left her property to his relatives and entirely away from her.

FACTS DESTROY GOVERNOR'S BOAST OF GOOD GOVERNMENT.

[From the San Francisco Call of September 1, 1912.]

The Call's investigation of the San Francisco Harbor Commission, the Napa Asylum and other State institutions has brought forth facts and figures that utterly discredit Gov. Johnson's oft-repeated boast that he has carried out the provisions of each plank of the Progressive platform on which he was elected.

One of the most important planks of that platform and one that could have been enforced with comparative ease had the Governor been mindful of his pledge to the people has been utterly ignored. It called for:

"The elimination of party patronage from the administrative department of government, and in general the introduction of the merit system in the public service."

Instead of kicking the professional politicians out of office, Gov. Johnson has turned department after department of the State government into a political bureau for the upbuilding of a machine of greater ramifications than was ever dreamed of by the most thrifty boss in the days of corruption of which Gov. Johnson has had so much to say.

Partisan patronage has not been eliminated. It has become a worse fester in State politics than ever before. The San Francisco Harbor front furnishes a most glaring instance of the disregard shown by Gov. Johnson for this important plank of the Progressive platform for which the Call and all true Progressives fought.

Does the delivery of unlimited patronage on the San Francisco water front to "Reformer" Tom Finn by Gov. Johnson, in payment for the votes of Finn's men in the Legislature for Works for United States Senator, indicate a desire on the part of Gov. Johnson to eliminate partisan patronage?

Does the action of Gov. Johnson's Board of Harbor Commissioners in more than doubling the pay roll during the first year of its incumbency look as though Gov. Johnson is insisting on "the introduction of the merit system in public service?"

Does anyone believe such worthy Finn men as Senators Eddie Bryant and Nic Bebans and Assemblymen "Rough-House" McDonald, Vic Sbragia, W. P. Kennedy and Frank N. Rodgers are drawing fat salaries on the water front because of their merit in the public service?

The answers to these questions is told by the figures on the books of the Harbor Commission. They show a padding of the pay roll out of all proportion to the receipts and general business of the Harbor Commission.

When the Stafford board turned over control to Johnson's men there were only 305 names on the pay roll. Their pay amounted to $31,225.05 a month. President J. J. Dwyer, whose chief qualification for managing the affairs of the harbor was his record for handling Hearst's money in the abortive attempt to create the Independence League, acquiesced in Johnson's delivery of the water-front patronage to Tom Finn.

At the time of the Presidential primary, when votes were needed by Johnson to control the delegation to the Republican National Convention, the pay roll was more than doubled. It showed 666 names and a total cost of $65,742.30. In June the pay roll showed 679 names and a total of $65,860.20.

This great increase in the pay roll might be explained by an increase in the business of the commission. President Dwyer attempted in the administration's subservient organ yesterday to explain that the increase was due to the action of the board in doing its work by day labor instead of by contract.

Under the contract system, which, by the way, did not expire until last fall, and several months after the Dwyer board assumed control, the monthly bills of the contractors, the Healy-Tibbitts Construction Company, averaged about $8000. They never reached the $13,000 mark.

The present board's pay roll for the closing month of the last fiscal year was $34,517.25 greater than it was for April, 1911, the first month of the present board's mismanagement of the water front.

Is President Dwyer prepared to assert that the present board is doing four times as much repair work as was done under the contract system?

The administration's assertions that the board is making a record for economy are as responsive to the charges as those denials issuing from Sacramento when the Call proved by the affidavits of a long list of witnesses that the patients at the Napa State Asylum were being starved.

Which is the more convincing—facts and figures or the ostrich-like defense of the State administration in asserting that the Call is lying.

THE BOILED SHIRTS.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

Sweet youth, you come and ask for admonition, you'd have me preach and counsel you a spell; and so I say, to better your condition, go, learn a trade, and learn it passing well. The world is short on skilled and drilled mechanics, but it is long on trifling human squirts, who, facing work, are prone to fits and panics, who wear kid gloves and boiled or scalloped shirts. The man who toils at bench or loom or anvil is worth a gross of those who talk or write; 'twould serve them right to bring some cans from Canville, and put them in, and seal the bunch up tight. The man who takes his tools from out their locker, who swings a sledge or plies the shining saw, is more worth while than any tireless talker, who boosts the Flag, or yet expounds the law. The country swarms with men demanding payment for dizzy schemes, the thought of which appalls; the country swarms with men in princely raiment, and what we need's the man in overalls. Go forth, fair youth, and learn to be a tinker, a plumber bold, a tailor or a cook, and men will say you are a peach and clinker, when on the product of your skill they look.

Words and Deeds.

[National Monthly:] An eminent Methodist bishop was advocating a more liberal loosing of the purse strings, and during a sermon one day told his congregation that at one time he sent an article to a paper, in which he said: "We pray too loud and work too little."

The intelligent compositor did a most satisfying job, and when it appeared it read:

"We bray too loud and work too little."

"I let it go at that," said the bishop. "The fact is, I believe the printer was right, and I never ventured to correct him."

He gave one scream and dropped upon his knees, and I thought the incident would end there, but through one of the low terraces of the yard there came a company of twenty English people, one a young boy. In this company was Frank Verity, an English architect and painter, who had become smitten with my friend, Mary Leonard.

"When the women of the party saw me they fainted. The men stared for a minute, then drew their pistols and shouted, 'Get a candle; get a candle.' They charged after me, and I raced for the dingy and dangerous wine cellar of the castle and disappeared in the musty old place.

"They came after me with candles and guns and sticks, and poked around very close to me. I was so scared I couldn't have talked if I had wanted to. Twice they gave up, but the British boy, unwilling to quit, turned back after the rest had re-entered the court, caught sight of and gave chase to the flying figure that was no longer either stately or pure white, for it had fallen over aged dust heaps, tumbled into and clambered out of double-century rubbish holes, sidled around cobwebby and mouldy walls which had sheltered, and slimy wine-butts which had solaced conquerors and conquered. The flying figure was nearing its goal when a wisp of shawl fringe blew across the vision of the boy. Then there were more yells, more faintings, a pistol shot or two, then the boy was caught by Mr. Verity, a strenuous hand was clapped over his mouth, his menacing cane was snatched away, and in the melee the 'spook' gained her stairway in safety.

"That started the rumor of the reappearance of the 'White Lady.' Everyone credited the story. It was sent throughout the world in the press and Germany was immensely startled. By 10 the next morning, the Major Domo of the Grand Duke of Baden was at the castle to investigate the report, but we could give him no information. Then I got afraid ever to tell.

"The strangest part was that tragedies happened at once. A few weeks after my prank, a son of the Grand Duke of Baden was thrown from a horse and killed. Soon afterward Emperor William died. It was only a little while later that Kaiser Frederick, father of the present Emperor, died. Three deaths in the Hohenzollern family followed quickly in Saxony, and in Bavaria, Marie, mother of Kings Ludwig and Otto of Bavaria, passed away.

"And repeatedly these seven deaths have been referred to as having been presaged by the apparition in the Heidelberg Schloss in 1887.

"The 'White Lady' is supposed to be the ghost of Agnes of Orlamunde, who killed her two children that she might wed Albert of Nurnberg, in 1300. He had told her that 'four eyes separated them.' She thought he meant the eyes of her children and slew them. Instead, he had meant the eyes of his parents.

"All reputable histories and encyclopedias contain the story of the 'White Lady,' who comes only to warn the Hohenzollerns of danger or death. Her last visit, previous to 1887, had been chronicled in 1879, when she gave warning of the death of Prince Waldemar, youngest brother of Emperor William and Prince Henry. For 200 years after her own death she had confined her visits to Baireuth and Bohemia, the home nest of these imperial eagles. But in 1598 she came boldly to Berlin and presaged the insanity of Albert Frederick, the then monarch. In 1619 she was seen in broad daylight, rocking the cradle of the babe Albert, her key dangling at her girdle, a jeweled cincture worthy the woman who, for love of the 'handsome Albert' of Nurnberg, had killed her own two children. Two weeks after this warning followed the death of King Sigismund. In 1667 she announced the quickly coming death of George Wilhelm, and in 1688 she was seen in the place where, on the same night, parted from his body the great soul of Elector Friederich Wilhelm. A week before the death of Friederich Wilhelm III, in 1840, she came again, and ten years later she was seen by many persons at the bedside of a Hohenzollern who immediately died.

"It was with regret her appearance at Heidelberg in 1887 was noted, even by those who did not believe in the superstition."

After she had looked at the old white robe and recalled the dramatic incident that accompanied the last hour of its wearing, suddenly the whim came to the artist to don it again. She draped it about her, flowing and loose in its whiteness. Over her forehead, she gathered her hair low and massed. Around her waist she drew a girdle, made of some metal hangings.

She was walking slowly across the room in her home, when she was attracted by the alarm in the street. Blocks away came the shouting, and then the newsboys came hurrying past her house, announcing an "extra." She startled a boy by calling him to her door, and as she stood there in the white robe that she had worn for the first time in twenty-seven years, the image of "Agnes of Orlamunde" the tragic white lady, she read that Emperor William had declared war against Russia and the other nations.

With almost a shudder, she put the robe back into the chest; and now she says she will never wear it again.

MISS THOMPSON'S PARTY.

A pretty affair of the past week was a party given by Miss Bernice Thompson to thirty-five of her young friends at her beautiful new home on Oxford avenue. Mrs. Nellie Schulze and Mrs. Thompson assisted the young hostess in receiving guests. The house was attractively decorated in oriental poppies, sweet peas and potted plants.

METHODIST PICNIC.

Wesleyans of Southern California Will Gather at Long Beach for Second Annual Outing.

The great success of the Methodist Episcopal picnic of last year has led to prompt arrangements for more than duplicating it this year. A committee has been appointed to make all the arrangements for Bixby Park, Long Beach, on Saturday, August 29. It is expected that at least 10,000 persons will attend from all parts of Southern California and the programme will be of a character to entertain and make the day memorable. The arrangements are in charge of the brotherhoods of the various Methodist churches of Southern California. All persons are expected to take basket lunches, and the people of Long Beach will furnish coffee. The following is the committee in charge: W. L. Cleveland, chairman; C. H. Randall, O. P. Conaway, J. E. Farnham, W. R. Morehouse and W. G. Cline.

TO EXCEED BILLION.

Large Total of Bank Clearings to Be Shown This Year—Increase Revealed Last Week.

Bank clearings for Los Angeles this year will total approximately $1,200,000,000, and the city will rank in the twelfth or thirteenth place among the big municipalities of the country. Total clearings for the first seven and a half months of the year are a little over $750,000,000.

For the past several weeks a steady increase in the volume of clearings has been apparent. Last week's total was nearly $500,000 larger than for the previous week, while the previous week showed a gain of nearly $1,000,000 over the one that went before.

Total clearings for this month will be close to $95,000,000 at the present rate. Los Angeles is now giving one or two cities which have been in advance of her in the volume of their clearings a closer race than heretofore.

COUNTY EMPLOYEES CLUB.

Strong Orgonization Being Formed for Rest, Sociability and Personal Improvement—Dance Next Friday.

The Los Angeles County Employees Social and Athletic Club will give a dance at Rutherford's Hall, No. 1026 South Grand avenue, on Friday evening. The proceeds of the dance will be used to furnish the club and restrooms and outfit the athletic club and baseball team.

Both male and female employees of the county have united in the formation of a club designed to promote the social interests of all concerned, and to provide conveniences for rest during the noon hour. There will be a reading and game room with a good fiction and reference library, and opportunities for all kinds of indoor and outdoor recreation.

The project has been taken up with earnestness and promises to develop into a strong and helpful organization.

THE BUSY BEES JAR THE HONEY.

Produce Ready-Made Exhibits for the Fairs.

Remarkable Accomplishment of Expert Apiarist.

Novelty for Local Chamber of Commerce.

When Joseph Moffatt, known as one of the greatest apiary owners and honey-producers in California, prepared an exhibit for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to take to the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, he accomplished something that by its remarkable novelty attracted the attention of the world. He has now more than duplicated the trick by producing two exhibits, one for the San Francisco Exposition and one for San Diego, where they will be shown by the Chamber of Commerce.

The two novel jars of honey he has wheedled the bees into making for him this year are several times larger than that which resulted from the first successful experiment, and the work of the bees is a marvel of beauty, as well as a mystery to the person who knows little or nothing of the intelligent methods of the little busy workers.

Each of the jars is two feet tall and nine inches in diameter and each is estimated to contain twenty-five pounds of honey. To induce the bees to place the honey permanently in the jar, which has an opening of five inches, a board was laid over the hive with a hole cut to correspond with the mouth of the jar. A small piece of comb was cemented to the inside bottom of the jar with beeswax, when the jar was turned upside down over the five-inch opening. The glass receptacle was then covered entirely dark and packed in excelsior to resist the heat and keep it at an even temperature. As will be seen by the photograph, the bees built five combs of honey in each jar, and it is so perfectly sealed against the glass that there is not the slightest leakage of honey. The top of the jars as they now stand, was the bottom while the honey was being made.

Three different swarms of Italian bees were tried before one was found that would do the work, and that swarm filled both jars, the first full jar being replaced by an empty one. Some idea of the tremendous amount of work that a swarm of bees can accomplish in a short season of four months can be formed by what this swarm did. First, the brood hive must be filled before the bees will attempt to work in the "super," which in this case was one of the big glass jars. The honey placed in the brood hive is to feed the young bees as they hatch out and that in the "super" is surplus, or the honey that is taken from the bees to supply the market.

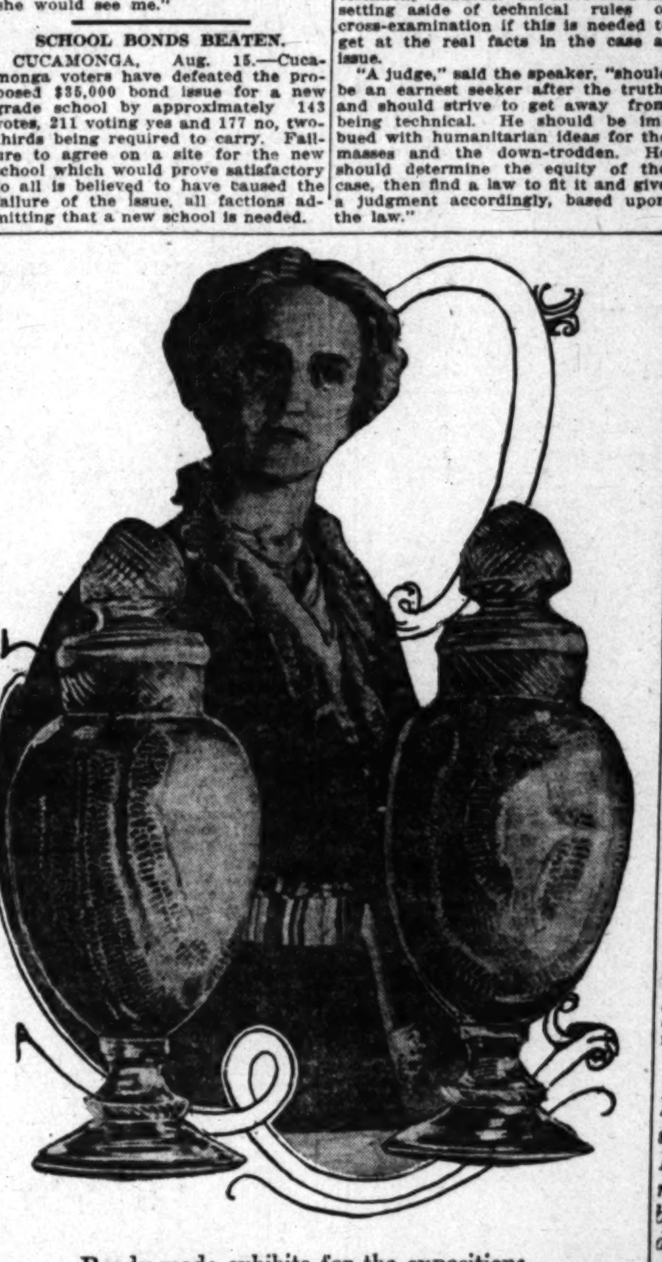
The swarm that filled the jars thus produced fifty pounds of surplus honey as only part of its season's work. The honey is of the most exquisite flavor and as near pure white as it is possible to make it from the white sage. The apiary in which it was made is located close to the aqueduct cascades, beyond San Fernando, on the same site that produced the honey for St. Louis, and consists of 400 stands. The aggregate production of this apiary for the present season has so far been eighteen and a half tons of extracted honey, or an average of ninety-two and a half pounds to the swarm. If the honey was sold in the comb the weight would be largely increased, though if the bees were compelled to build all the comb the output would be considerably less.

Mrs. Moffatt is as great a bee enthusiast as her husband and knows all about bees and how to handle them. She takes the greatest interest in the business. The crop is practically all sold in carload lots in the East, but this year a local demand suddenly materialized and more than a ton was delivered in Long Beach alone.

The crop is light this season, for some unaccountable reason. For instance, in 1903 Mr. Moffatt took the world's record with an apiary of 240 stands of bees, which made fifty tons of honey that season, or over 400 pounds to the swarm. His total production that year, however, was far below this average, the total of 4500 swarms producing something over 100 tons. The champion apiary was located at Castaic. So great was the wonder of this record that A. I. Root, the world's greatest bee expert, came out from Ohio to inspect it, and the State University at Berkeley sent a man on the same errand, who established an apiary near the same place for that institution, which is said to be there still.

A bee's life is from three to four months. They live and work but a single season and then die. The queen bee, however, lives from six to eight years, and with the aid of the drones keeps on reproducing her big family, so that there is constantly a working force in action. There are few things more interesting than a bee and there is nothing more wonderful.

It is also interesting to note that Mr. Moffatt has a record of over forty newspapers that reproduced the story of this novelty from the Los Angeles Times, as one of the most remarkable demonstrations in bee culture.



Ready-made exhibits for the expositions.

Mrs. Joseph Moffatt and the two fancy jars in which the bees of her husband's apiary packed the honey, to be shown by the Chamber of Commerce at San Francisco and San Diego.

DEEP SEA SWELLS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 15.—Owing to the deep sea swell and the high tides of the summer, great masses of sea weed and kelp have been washed up on the shores here and bave bothered the bathers a great deal. The weeds entangle the swimmers' feet and sometimes drag a person under the water if he is not careful. The street superintendent has placed a man on the beach to rake up the sea weed that washes in.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine, as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—[Advertisement.

"Please, I Want a Home and a Mamma."

This is Hazel,

A little girl nine years old, who has been left homeless and with only half a name. She is the ward of Mrs. Mary E. Cope, a probation officer, who is seeking some one who will furnish a home and finish out her name. The child has described her ideal foster mother.

DESCRIBES MAMA SHE WOULD HAVE.

HOMELESS LITTLE GIRL WANTS BLUE-EYED MOTHER TO TELL HER TALES.

Two or three faded dresses that are too short and the name Hazel, are the sum total of all of the possessions of a little girl, 9 years of age, whom the county has placed in the care of Mrs. Mary E. Cope, a probation officer.

The child's mother deserted her four years ago. Her father boarded her around from place to place, where she was usually mistreated, until recently, when he was disabled in an accident and could do nothing more for her.

For a number of reasons, the officers of the Juvenile Court thought it would be best for the little girl to drop part of her name, retaining only "Hazel," which is especially appropriate since she has hazel eyes.

The child has furnished Mrs. Cope with a description of the woman she would like to have for her foster mother.

"I would like for my mamma to have kind blue eyes and light hair and know a lot of good stories to tell me at bed time," Hazel explained. "I like to hear the story of Red Riding Hood, Cinderella and of the two little children who were lost in the woods and were covered up with leaves by the birds.

"For a while I believed in fairies, but none came along and now I am beginning to think that they never get out of the books. Mrs. Cope told me a wonderful story about a woman who was sad because she had no little girl to love. The woman looked a long time for a little girl and finally one came along with hazel eyes and she loved her for ever afterwards. Mrs. Cope tells me that I need a big fairy with a home, bread and butter and some new clothes rather than the kind of fairies that sleep all day under the petals of flowers."

Speaking of her ward, Mrs. Cope said yesterday at her desk in the Hall of Records: "Hazel is just waiting for somebody to call 'mother.' If there is a good woman anywhere in this big world who is lonesome for a little girl with tender features, a loving heart and a clear mind, I wish she would see me."

SCHOOL BONDS BEATEN.

CUCAMONGA, Aug. 15.—Cucamonga voters have defeated the proposed $35,000 bond issue for a new grade school by approximately 143 votes, 211 voting yes and 177 no, two-thirds being required to carry. Failure to agree on a site for the new school which would prove satisfactory to all is believed to have caused the failure of the issue, all factions admitting that a new school is needed.

BURIAL OF MRS. WOOLIEVER.

Body Arrives From New York in Charge of Widower and Services Will be Held Tomorrow.

The remains of Mrs. Maud Ferguson Woolliever arrived here from New York yesterday morning in charge of her husband, Clarence M. Woolliever. The deceased was a daughter of Colin D. Ferguson of this city, was a graduate of the University of Southern California, and enjoyed unusual popularity among her acquaintances. Her death occurred in New York on the 5th inst., an infant daughter being left motherless. The burial service will be held in Rosedale Chapel at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, conducted by Dr. E. A. Healy, dean of the university, and all friends are invited.

THE COURTS' DELAYS.

Judge Tells City Club of Present Conditions and Suggests Possible Remedies.

City Attorney Stephens, who was to have addressed the City Club yesterday on the utility rate crisis in Los Angeles, was detained in San Francisco, and the club was addressed by Judge Lewis R. Works on delays in the administration of justice. He proposed remedies.

The speaker said that the reasons the courts are in disfavor is that the people are unfamiliar with court procedure and their operations. While the courts are one of the most important parts of the machinery of government, the ordinary citizen pays little attention to them. The citizens closely watch criminal proceedings and divorce cases, but neglect to watch important civil actions.

Many delays, said the speaker, came from the temperament of judges, while another serious cause for delays is the laxity of attorneys. A cumbersome system of pleading is in vogue, and many rough corners can be rubbed off by the courts themselves, held Judge Works. He believes, however, that there are changes by legislation to be desired.

Among the changes suggested by the speaker was that of requiring the judge to examine witnesses after the attorneys are through with them if the judge is not satisfied with the testimony adduced. He advocated the setting aside of technical rules of cross-examination if this is needed to get at the real facts in the case at issue.

"A judge," said the speaker, "should be an earnest seeker after the truth, and should strive to get away from being technical. He should be imbued with humanitarian ideas for the masses and the down-trodden. He should determine the equity of the case, then find a law to fit it and give a judgment accordingly, based upon the law."

Chains of fortifications lie along the picturesque valley of the Meuse, in which German and Belgian forces have been operating since the out-break of the war. Namur, which is mentioned so many times in the cable-grams from Brussels, is a historically interesting town much frequented by American tourists on their way down to the valley. Dinant, twenty miles away, is a quaint town of much charm to travelers and boasts of a museum containing a number of relics of the Franco-Prussian war, including interesting objects from Sedan. Givet, which the Germans skirted en route to France, is a brisk town less than fifty miles from Sedan, which witnessed forty years ago the defeat of French hopes.

Brussels, so far the chief center of war news, is almost in the middle of Belgium. Like most of the capitals of Europe it is pleasantly situated on the banks of a river. It has often been the scene of fierce fighting and once was nearly destroyed when the French bombarded it. The battered city was rapidly rebuilt and is now beautiful and enterprising, endowed with a great historic past and the promise of a great commercial future when peace shall have been restored in war-torn Europe.

Travelers declare that this city of 600,000 people has an engaging air which makes it one of the most charming capitals of Europe. With its wide and smart boulevards, pleasant parks, handsome mansions, big blocks of apartments and its splendid stores, Brussels impresses most Americans who visit it as a delightful modern city which yet has managed to retain the flavor of a romantic past.

A HOME OF FASHION.

Tourists say of Brussels that as a home of fashion it bids fair to rival Paris. The famous stores of the Montagne de la Cour, the Boulevard Anspach and other streets are almost as luxurious as those seen on the Rue de la Paix and the Boulevard des Italiens in Paris. In Greater Brussels is found one-twelfth of the entire population of Belgium and during the height of the season thousands of foreigners are seen there.

As the Belgians have made a habit of carrying out the old proverb, "early to bed, early to rise," the night life of the city is distinctly duller than that of Paris and in this respect Brussels is less fascinating and brilliant than the French capital. It has a deserted look at an hour when Paris is feverishly awake.

Brussels is rich in ancient and historic houses. The Hotel de Ville, or City Hall, is described by Clive H[illegible] as one of the most interesting and beautiful buildings of its kind in Belgium. "It is well placed on one of the finest medieval squares in Europe," he says, "and is surrounded by quaint and historic houses. In this Grande Place many tragedies have from time to time been enacted and some of the most ferocious deeds of the inhuman Alva performed." When Brussels was bombarded by the French in the seventeenth century the Hotel de Ville was greatly damaged, but it was reconstructed in the early part of the eighteenth century. The spire of the beautiful central tower was supposed to be in the center of the facade. It is not actually in the middle and there is a tradition that when the designer, Jan van Ruysbroek, found out this discrepancy, he hanged himself from the tower.

Opposite the Hotel de Ville stands the famous Maison du Roi, or Broodhuis (Bread House,) on the site of an eleventh-century building, which Holland reminds us was occupied as a residence toward the middle of the twelfth century by Pope Innocent [illegible] and St. Bernard. The present building dates from 1514. It was restored in 1763, was practically rebuilt in 1863 and was taken over by the municipal authorities in 1898, being made into a museum.

Close by is the famous bronze "Mannikin" Fountain of Duquesnoy, the popular idol beloved by the lower classes, who deck it with flowers and with ribbons on gala occasions and which once was given the Order of St. Louis by Louis XV, who was much taken with the little bronze man when he visited Brussels.

Attached to this quaint figure is the legend that no conqueror of the city who succeeds in carrying it off retains it long. None hitherto has. Although stolen by the citizens of Antwerp, by the English, the French and the Dutch it always has returned to Brussels.

The royal palace of Laeken, situated in its beautiful park, and occupied several times by Napoleon, the last time exactly 100 years ago, is one of the features of Brussels. Another great and historic building is the Palais du Roi, standing in its own park, in which is a theater, a "Vauxhall" garden, small lakes and tree-shadowed walks, which on summer evenings are crowded by throngs of happy Brussels bourgeois and their families who unaffectedly enjoy the scenes of gaiety. The Palais du Roi occupies the site of the castles of the ancient Dukes of Brabant and the Spanish Governors. Close by is the Palais des Academies, formerly the Palais Ducal. It was presented to King William II in 18[illegible], but is now the home of the Royal Academies of Sciences, Lettres, Beaux Arts and Medicine.

At one end of the park are situated the principal government offices, including the Palais de la Nation, in which are the Belgian Senate and the Chamber of Deputies. The imposing Palais de Justice is near by and is said to have cost $10,000,000. Within it are twenty-seven courts, eight open courts and 245 rooms of various kinds connected with the legal work of the nation.

BRIDGE WITHIN GREAT BRIDGE.

Strange Structure to Span the Arroyo Seco.

Will Serve Dwellers on Low Banks at Pasadena.

And Furnish Ready Access to Proposed Park.

What might be termed "a bridge within a bridge" has been started in the bed of the Arroyo Seco in Pasadena. The span is destined to serve Building a large bridge within a greater one across the Arroyo.

The lower structure, costing seventy-five thousand dollars, passes through the piers of the massive one on Colorado street, Pasadena.

people living on the lower banks of the arroyo, in the shadow of the Colorado-street bridge, and will literally pass through the piers of that great structure.

The new bridge, although financed by private means, will be strictly a public enterprise in so far as the privilege of using it is concerned. The consent of both the county and the city of Pasadena was obtained before the project was launched and the structure is to be formally dedicated to the public immediately upon its completion.

The span, originally intended as a means of crossing the arroyo for the small number of families, who were unable to reach either end of the Colorado-street bridge without a long and tedious climb, will have a far more important purpose as the result of the annexation by the city of Pasadena on Wednesday of San Rafael Heights. Several acres of beautiful wooded land below the rim of the arroyo on that side have been deeded to the Crown City, which will convert the ground into one of the most picturesque parks in Southern California. The new bridge will give to this park the needed accessibility.

OLD BRIDGE GONE.

The plan of building a lower bridge under the huge Colorado-street structure was originated by the Assets Realization Association, a corporation owning sixty-five acres of oak and [illegible]-covered land on the lower slopes of the San Rafael Heights side of the arroyo, as well as extensive holdings on the corresponding [illegible] of the Pasadena side. Following the sweeping away of an old wooden bridge during the floods of last [illegible] the members of this corporation decided to replace this unstable structure with a concrete arch, carrying not only footpaths, but a drive-way.

Departing from the customary method of handling such enterprises, the owners and a few others decided to forestall all delay by paying for the improvement themselves. At the same time they decided to rebuild the old Scoville dam, which was swept away by the floods, with a permanent structure.

[illegible] & Parker, of Los Angeles are employed as engineers and [illegible] Hunt of this city as architect. The bridge, as planned and approved by the city of Pasadena, will be 300 feet in length and will extend directly under the enormous 240-foot central arch of the Colorado-street bridge. Owing to the skeleton construction of the great bridge, the lesser span will pass between the main piers of the greater. At the Pasadena end of the new bridge a winding drive will ascend on an easy grade to connect with Grand avenue at the point of juncture of that beautiful Crown City thoroughfare with Linda Vista drive. This roadway will pass through one of the most picturesquely beautiful of Pasadena's residence districts, as well as through Pasadena's present Arroyo Park.

CONNECTING WAYS.

At the other end, the span will lead to a highway ascending through a gentle slope to Linda Vista road on San Rafael Heights. A branch drive will lead to the proposed new arroyo park and a bridle path is to fork through a portion of the sightly Johnson property to the rim of the arroyo. A great deal of the land to be traversed at this end of the highway is the private property of the Assets Realization Association, which is composed of eastern people of wealth who expect soon to build homes on the land.

The dam included in the general plan will be almost directly beneath the arch of the lower bridge and is intended to have the spillway in the center, creating in effect a waterfall that will be one of the interesting features of the park. Work on both dam and bridge will be completed before the rainy season. Those back of the project are expending approximately [illegible] on the work, this figure including the cost of the land required for [illegible].

Political Watch Tower.

than 18,000 votes. Many of the leading attorneys of the Los Angeles County Bar are ardent supporters.

Justice Victor E. Shaw of the Appellate Court has written a letter to voters of the district indorsing the candidacy of Justice Conrey for election as presiding judge. To this letter W. Ona Morton and Frank P. Doherty, head of the Campaign Committee for Judge Gavin W. Craig, the leading opponent of Judge Conrey, have issued a reply, part of which is as follows:

"The purpose and object of the non-partisan primary system in California was to permit the people of the State or the district to nominate judges, and not to permit a self-constituted 'trust' to select such candidates to permit a combination being made by any judges to retain or perpetuate themselves in office contrary to the will of a majority of the people.

"Judge Conrey is no doubt a good lawyer, but his experience on the Appellate Court bench of a few months has not been of so long a period as to make his retention paramount to the desires of a majority of the people of the district. A great man once said, 'God reigns and the government still lives,' and no doubt the Appellate Court will survive the defeat of Justice Conrey.

"The voters of the district are not in favor of a trust in judges, and are not in favor of judges forming a trust to perpetuate themselves in office. The voters have made up their mind to nominate Judge Gavin W. Craig to succeed Justice Conrey and with Judge Craig on the bench there will be no danger of the Appellate Court going into oblivion. 'Let the people rule.' This does not mean that judges should combine to effect their own perpetual succession in office."

The Democratic State organization is considering an unusual move in politics. It is planned to charter a special train and assemble all the candidates who survive the primary and traverse the whole State, making lots of noise, lots of speeches and centralizing the campaign work.

THE WATCHMAN.

CONGRESSMAN KNOWLAND.

A Strong, Clear Statement in His Behalf—His Republican Record and Splendid Steadfastness.

Congressman Joseph R. Knowland arrived in the south from San Francisco on Friday morning, and will be here for several days. Upon the initiative and invitation of The Times, friends of the Congressman have sent to the editor a statement setting forth Mr. Knowland's principles and platform, and also telling of his Republicanism. The statement is as follows:

Congressman Joseph R. Knowland, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, has been a consistent Republican from the time he was first nominated for office in the State Legislature, at the age of 23 years. Every honor he has received has been through the Republican party. His loyalty to the sterling principles of the Republican party has never wavered during the seventeen years he has been in public life.

In Alameda county two years ago when at the Presidential primaries Theodore Roosevelt carried the county by 17,000 majority, Mr. Knowland was given the first primary contest of his public career. He was told that he could not hope to win as a Republican, and was offered the opportunity to enlist under another banner.

Gov. Hiram W. Johnson came to Alameda county and made a speech in favor of the opponent of Mr. Knowland. Francis J. Heney thoroughly canvassed the district against Congressman Knowland. Envoys from other camps sought to swerve the Congressman, but he would not listen to their promises or propositions.

Congressman Knowland won out with the majority of 12,000.

This is indeed a most complete answer to establish the loyalty and consistency of Congressman Knowland. All the above facts are matters of record in Alameda county.

With his usual consistency and loyalty, Congressman Knowland gave the immediate reply that he would prefer to go down to defeat under the banner of Republicanism than to desert the party at so critical an hour. The voters of Alameda county, in giving him 12,000 majority, testified to their appreciation of his staunchness.

Congressman Knowland lent his efforts in turning the registration of Alameda county from the "Progressive" to the Republican column. At one time the "Progressives" held a lead of 5000. At the close of registration this year, the Republicans topped the column with a lead of 1200.

A most searching inspection of the Republican records of Congressman Knowland will not disclose a single instance wherein he faltered or swerved while marching under the Republican banner.

CITY WORKERS' MERRY AFFAIR.

People as Their Guests at High Carnival.

Normal School Grounds Are Chosen for Occasion.

Committees Now Arranging Many Attractions.

For the first time the municipal employees are to hold high carnival and invite their employers, the citizens of Los Angeles, to join with them in their merrymaking. The Municipal Club, recently organized to promote esprit de corps and co-operation among the city employees, is sponsor for the carnival, which will have the active support of the Mayor, the members of the Council, commissions, heads of municipal departments, and a large group of influential, public-spirited citizens.

[Why not less picnic and more work on the part of city employees?—Ed. Times.]

The carnival will be held on the evening of September 8, on the old Normal School site, which is just being taken over by the city. The grounds and buildings will be brilliantly illuminated. Many bands of music will contribute to the gala spirit of the carnival. Provision will be made for open-air dancing for all who care to participate. The poor, over-worked city employees can get some rest, anyhow.

Out-of-door motion pictures will be displayed showing scenes from the recent historical pageant at St. Louis, the transportation pageant at San Bernardino, and other attractive features of municipal enterprise in Los Angeles and elsewhere. Living pictures will portray important events in the history of Los Angeles. The large playground on the campus will be transformed into a brilliant out-of-door cafe. Many other special attractions will be provided as soon as the various department managers and sub-committees have developed their plans in detail.

[By all means, let the poor over-worked city job holders dance and make merry!—Ed. Times.]

COMMITTEES IN CHARGE.

Mrs. D. C. McCan has been appointed by the Municipal Club as director of the carnival. Co-operating with Mrs. McCan will be a number of department managers and these in turn will have assistants to work out the many details that must be perfected during the next three weeks. Mrs. Rose, wife of the Mayor, will be chairman of the Committee on Hospitality. Mrs. O. P. Clark of the Municipal Charities Commission will have charge of the purely social features of the carnival. Miss Florence Moore of the Board of Censors will direct the amusement programme.

Arthur Baker, the city's purchasing agent, has authority over the concessions for refreshments. H. S. Payne of the Utilities Board has charge of all printing. R. H. Manahan, City Electrician, will prepare plans for illuminating the grounds, in which the lighting companies have promised their active and complete co-operation. Frank Shearer of the park department will attend to the decoration of the buildings, grounds and open-air cafe and promises to make a fairyland of color and foliage. Mrs. Estelle Lindsay will act as publicity agent.

[To show the taxpayers that our municipal job holders should have less work and more play.—Ed. Times.]

The municipal carnival is being planned primarily to develop a sense of good fellowship, loyalty and community of interest among the city's 4000 employees and the citizens of the community. The co-operation of citizens and officials in a great enterprise of this kind and the informal mingling of thousands on carnival night is expected to bring about a new recognition of the magnitude and importance of the service rendered by municipal government, day by day, in the promotion of the health, education, recreation, safety, convenience and prosperity of the city's 500,000 citizens.

The municipal carnival was conceived by Mrs. McCan and Director J. D. Burks of the Efficiency Commission as a result of the reception recently given by the commission to the 250 women employed in city departments. This reception was so highly appreciated that plans were immediately laid for a social occasion which should include the entire body of city employees with the co-operation of citizens.

[Every taxpayer realizes that we haven't enough public office holders and that those we have are doing too much work and not having enough rest and diversion.—Ed. Times.]

Use "Gets-It," Corns Shrivel, Vanish!

It's the New Way, and You'll Forget You Ever Had Corns.

"2 drops put on in 2 seconds, corn shrivels, comes clean off!" That's the marvelous story of "GETS-IT," the new-plan corn cure. Nothing can be simpler for the cure of corns—and it never fails.

No Corns to Bump; No Pain, if You Use "GETS-IT."

That's why millions of people are using "GETS-IT" today and throwing away their fussy plasters, sticky tape, toe-eating salves, and "wrapping outfits" that make a bundle around the toe and choke it into pain by pressing either on or around the corn. There is nothing to stick to your stocking, nothing to cause inflammation or rawness, nothing to press on or around the corn. You apply it in 2 seconds. No more knives, razors, scissors or files, with their blood-poison dangers. Try "GETS-IT" for that corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

"GETS-IT" is sold in Los Angeles by The Owl Drug Co.

CANDLELIGHT POKER.

Innovation in Non-Press Club Since Unpaid Electric Company Turns Off the Juice.

Playing poker by candlelight is one of the latest fads adopted by the so-called Press Club of Los Angeles, an organization which recently tried to strengthen its membership by including the police force at $10 per member. The fad was adopted not from choice but from necessity because the electric light company shut off the current for non-payment of bills. The poker game was broken up for a time, but last night a collection was taken and candles were bought, so the game was resumed.

The non-press organization is on the financial shoals, notwithstanding a recent $2 assessment upon each of the members. Failure of a majority of members to pay dues and failure of paying members to receive credit for their regular contributions have put the club in a rocky financial condition from which, say many of the members, it cannot recover.

HURT IN EMPLOYER'S BUGGY.

An employer transporting his employee to and from the place of employment is liable for injury to the employee during such transportation. This is the decision of the Industrial Accident Commission recently handed down in the first case presented involving this point.

William Oldham, a carpenter, employed by John Veneges of San Jose, was driven in a buggy by his employer to and from the place where they were at work, a few miles out of the city. Oldham was injured in a runaway accident and asked compensation of the Southwestern Surety Company, which insured his employer.

The commission, after hearing the evidence, ruled that while ordinarily an employer is liable for injury to his employee only when such accident occurs on the premises of employment, the employer also is liable for injury during transportation to or from the place of work, provided the employer gives his employee such transportation.

COURTESY WINS BRIDE.

Youth in Charge of Hotel Check Room Opens Door of Romance With Politeness.

Courtesy won a bride for D. Walker Thompson, a young man in charge of the check room at the Alexandria. Members of the hotel staff received invitations to his marriage yesterday in Philadelphia to Miss Helena B. Wilson of that city.

A year ago, when the young woman and her mother were touring Southern California on a pleasure trip and were registered at the Alexandria, she lost her valise. Mr. Thompson was very courteous in handling the case and by diligent effort located the lost articles.

The young woman was very grateful and a conversation disclosed the fact that Mr. Thompson came from Philadelphia, where his father is a successful business man. The young man accepted an invitation to call on the young woman and her mother. That was the beginning of the friendship which ended in the Philadelphia wedding.

Just previous to the young man's departure to the Quaker City he received a substantial check from someone interested in the wedding. The couple will tour the East before returning to Los Angeles, where the young man will be seen behind the check counter for a while, at least. He is planning to go into business within the next year.

HUNTINGTON AS HOST.

Employees of Yellow Car Lines to Have All-day Picnic Tomorrow at Redondo Beach.

The 6000 members of the Los Angeles Railway Recreation Association, with members of their families, will picnic at Redondo Beach tomorrow as the guests of H. E. Huntington. A check for $10,000 was received yesterday from Mr. Huntington to defray all transportation expenses and the price of admission for one and all to the concessions at the beach city.

As usual, opportunity will be given to every employee of the "yellow car" lines to spend a portion of the day at Redondo Beach by "breaking shifts" at 3 o'clock. In this way, those who work in the morning will have a chance to go down for the evening entertainment, being replaced by men who spent the morning at Redondo Beach.

A programme of athletic events, including tugs-of-war between various departments and ball games, has been provided. Special cars will be run all day by the Pacific Electric to accommodate the picnickers.

NEAR FOUR MILLIONS.

Amalgamated Will Pass That Figure in Dividend Aggregate in Course of Few Months.

In the course of a few months Amalgamated Oil Company will have crossed the $4,000,000 mark in dividends payed. The company is a subsidiary of the Associated, and is one of the largest dividend-payers in the State. A large proportion of the outstanding stock is owned in this city.

Books will close Wednesday for the company's regular dividend of $1.25 a share, which will be payable August 24. The amount distributed will be about $63,500, and the company has already disbursed over $2,500,000 in dividends.

PAYS REGULAR DIVIDEND.

The West Coast Oil Company yesterday paid its regular monthly dividend of $1.50 a share. The disbursement aggregated $15,000, and the company has paid out altogether about $400,000. The company is a subsidiary of the Associated Oil Company.

SHOWS EVIL OF TARIFF CHANGE.

Cutting Off Cyanide Duty Threatens Mining.

One Remaining Plant May Come to Rescue.

War Stops Importation of the Product.

One of the evil effects of the Demo-cratic slaughter of tariff rates las year is making itself perniciously ap-parent, since the outbreak of the war, in the threatened demoralization of gold and silver mining, particularly the former, as a result of the in-ability of producers to obtain cyanide, the sine qua non of the industry.

Mining companies are peppering supply-houses from one end of the country to another with telegrams, asking for the needed article, which might have been as plentiful as here-tofore, were it not that placing it on the free list caused th edismantling of all but one factory, and made it necessary to import nearly all the cyanide used.

There has been practically no sur-plus of cyanide during the past de-cade, and mine operators are facing a temporary shut-down, unless the single cyanide plant now operated, at one-tenth its original capacity, comes to their rescue by again resuming manufacturing on its old scale. This would require several months, in any event, however.

"Before sodium cyanide—the com-mercial product which is now used in gold and silver mining the world over—was placed on the free list, 90 to 95 per cent. of the consumption in this country was supplied by domestic production," said F. W. Braun, of The Braun Corporation, yesterday. Mr. Braun is in charge of the distribution of the product on this Coast and is an authority on the conditions which govern its production and consump-tion.

"Following the removal of the tariff, the reverse became the case—90 to 95 per cent. has been imported, principally from Germany. Now this supply has been cut off and gold and silver producers are face to face with a cyanide famine.

"A ray of hope appears in the situation, however, owing to the fact that the largest plant, although partially dismantled and operated at about one-tenth of its capacity is still in existence. Before the tariff was removed this country produced 16,-000,000 to 18,000,000 pounds a year, of which the large plant located at Perth Amboy, N. J., yielded 14,000,-000 pounds. They will probably find it advisable under present conditions to resume operations, provided they can be assured of some protection in future, against foreign importations.

"Of the $450,000,000 to $500,000,-000 gold produced per annum, about 70 to 75 per cent. is recovered by the cyanide process. Not only would the mines in this country find it necessary to close down, but those in South Africa and elsewhere will undoubtedly find themselves in the same position, owing to the fact that their supply is nearly all secured from Europe."

The great growth in the production of gold during the past quarter cen-tury has been due to the discovery of the cyanide process. In the twenty years preceding 1890, the average output was about $110,000,000 per annum. By 1902, however, it had in-creased to nearly $300,000,000, and in the last ten or eleven years the output has nearly doubled. Silver would not be so seriously affected by the depletion of the cyanide supply on account of the present low price of the metal.

It is believed that the mining men generally will make an effort to have the tariff once again placed on cyanide importations, to prevent any future contingency like the present one. Provided satisfactory arrange-ments can be made to operate the re-maining plant, the gold mining in-dustry in this country will be able to go ahead at about the same rate as prior to the removal of the tariff. Other plants will also start up, if they find they are again protected.

It was largely at the instigation of mining men that the duty on cyanide was originally removed. The saving accomplished by the change did not amount to more than 10 per cent. and they are now reaping very un-pleasant results.

The original duty on imported cyanide was 25 per cent., and the American manufacturers expressed themselves as satisfied if it were main-tained at 10 per cent., when the Legis-lature took action on the tariff change.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES OF CALIFORNIA

Educational.

SUNSHINE AND BRAIN THRIFT.

Southern California Nature's University.

A World's Great Center of Educational Activity.

Schools for Every Phase of Useful Learning.

Have you ever thought that plen-teous sunlight, which has so wondrous an effect upon the growth of vegeta-tion, may have a like effect upon the development of the human brain?

It is a known fact that in those Arctic regions where long periods of darkness hold the world in thrall, a benumbing effect upon human activi-ties is noticeable. If you think about it, you will recall that upon a dark and gloomy day you feel a lack of energy and are inclined to do little but what must be done, whereas, when the sun is shining and the air is sweet, you are inspired to achieve-ment.

In boasting of the advantages of Southern California climate, it may not have occurred to us that it may actually prove an important fac-tor in education, and yet this is doubt-less true. The fact that pupils work-ing in badly-lighted schoolrooms have long been considered dull, when in reality poor light had much to do with their lack of progress, points the way to appreciation of the glorious California sunshine as a stimulus along educational lines. It is conced-ed that California is the place par excellence for fine optical work be-cause of the extraordinary sunlight, and factories have for that reason lo-cated here.

Not only may better work be ac-complished educationally, where light is abundant and the climate such as to favor the highest development, both physical and mental, but there is another side to the effect of our climate upon education. While some are apt to jest about "climate as an asset," it is undoubtedly such, and particularly so in educational ways from the fact that to this salubrious cli-mate are attracted many of the very best educators from the great world outside. Thus, even did our State not put forth an effort to secure great educators, it would be supplied with splendid pedagogues, and in addition to the number of those who come voluntarily to augment the teaching force, California is ever on the alert to draw from wherever they may be found, those who lead in educational methods and originality of education-al thought.

In Southern California and in Los Angeles no branch of education is lacking, from the kindergarten and Montessori methods to the post-graduate course in college. For every age and condition there is an educa-tional system and whatsoever profes-sion or art it may be the wish to fol-low, a well-rounded training for that art or profession may be here ob-tained.

BEGUN AT THE TOP.

The public schools of Los Angeles are of the very best. While many eastern towns and cities are wran-gling as to whether this or that plan would be efficient, Los Angeles has put the plan into effect. Building anew as this city has done, within very re-cent years, she "began at the top," adopting the best which had been worked out. She had little to undo and so her equipment was of the best from the first. Her accom-plishment along educational lines, within a few years, has been mar-velous. High school groups have sprung into being, Minerva-like, from the brain of the mightiest of educa-tional leaders; and all that it has tak-en older and slower cities and com-munities many years to put into ac-tion has here been brought into ex-istence as if by magic.

The Polytechnic High School, with its amply-equipped shops and labora-tories, where boys may fit themselves by actual participation in the work of maintenance; the Manual Arts High School, where arts and crafts are a leading feature; the Los Ange-les High School, which more nearly approaches the university than do the others; the Gardena Agricultural High School, where practical farming is taught and practiced; Hollywood High, which embodies many salient features of the other high schools, together with a savor of its own, both scholastic and social; and San Pedro, where the sea and its activities form the basis of a unique curriculum. These, together with the intermedi-ate and grade schools, preparatory and final courses, comprise a sys-tem of public schools of which any city might be proud.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS.

For those who prefer private in-struction, there are many excellent schools, both for girls and boys. There are schools where all the gen-eral arts required for entrance into polite society form the main ob-ject; there are those which have as their basis the formation of char-acter, and others where pupils are prepared to wrestle with the business of making a living. In the latter line, there are few cities better supplied with schools and colleges which not only fit their attendants for business but procure for them opportunities to put into practice, directly upon leav-ing school, the learning which has been acquired. Whether you may desire to become a lawyer, a clergy-man, a physician, a business man, a stenographer, a telegrapher, anything pertaining to the learned professions or to the arts or crafts which rely for success upon the training of the individual, you may obtain in Los Angeles training for that calling.

The higher educational life is sup-plied by the university and the col-leges, which rank with those of any in the land. These colleges and uni-versities, founded along the best lines, have increased in capacity and equip-ment from year to year, and have in a measure kept pace with the ever-increas-ing demands of the fast-growing pop-ulation.

If music is your bent, you may choose from among the many musical schools those that are best suited to your individual needs and rest assured that the instruction will be equally as good as those obtainable in eastern or foreign centers.

ARTISTS, TOO.

Do you feel yourself called to the art which expresses itself by means of brush and oil or water colors, there are schools which can help toward the unfoldment of your talent. The teachers in these schools are drawn from the wide, wide world, for not only the climate of Southern Califor-nia attracts such, but the scenery of-fers to them great allure. Here, as in the domain of public school teach-ing, we are supplied with the very best instructors and the best material with which to work, for the natural beauties of our country should inspire to artistic creation, if any talent what-soever exists.

Whether you are in need of physical instruction, of mental training, or ed-ucation which will prepare you for social leadership, or to fill a place in the world of affairs, you may without leaving the environs of Los Angeles, fulfill your aim.

There are schools for dancing, schools for swimming; gymnasiums where the physical training is equal to any, and schools where physical development may be turned to ac-count in acquiring proficiency with the automobile.

There are cooking schools and sew-ing schools and schools where one may learn to cut and fit patterns and garments.

Every "school" of medicine is rep-resented here, from the "old school" to the latest fad of foodists and bath-ists—or otherwise, dietarians and cultists.

There is even a school for aerial navigation; while wireless telegraphy has long formed a part of the curric-ulum of several of the High Schools.

The military schools of Los Angeles are well equipped, occupy commodious quarters and have a reputation which has brought to them boys from far away as well as those within the city.

DEFICIENTS DEVELOPED.

Not only is there ample provision for the education of those whose alert senses make education a pleasure, but there are institutions where the child scantily endowed with intelligence or with an intelligence scarcely awak-ened is patiently trained to make the most of his feeble powers and by means of which he may be equipped to bear at least a part of his share in the world's work.

There are schools for the blind and schools for the deaf. There are schools for those who can neither hear nor speak, and in these every known method for bringing out the abilities hidden behind the screen of silence is put into effect.

There are day schools and schools held during the evening, so that those engaged during the working hours may not be deprived of the advantages enjoyed by those having more leisure. The Evening High School, free to all under 21 years of age, and having a nominal tuition for those over that age, is in fact one of the most helpful institutions in the city, since it en-ables those desiring to augment their learning for the purpose of advance-ment in their lines of work, to avail themselves of a liberal education at little or no cost. This school occu-pies the Polytechnic High School building and utilizes the ample equip-ment of this institution in the pursuit of its shop and machine work.

There are denominational schools, available for those seeking a religious environment, and there is nearing completion one of the largest, if not the very largest of Bible schools (non-sectarian) in the world, where every facility for the study of the Bible along orthodox lines is obtainable.

SAN DIEGO ARMY and NAVY ACADEMY

Pacific Beach, Cal.
Aug. 16, 1914.

TO THOUGHTFUL PARENTS:

On next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 17th, 18th and 19th, I shall be in Los Angeles at the Hotel Alexandria, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., when I should like to talk with you regarding your boy and his school for the coming session. I want to tell you of our

1. Recognition by the United States Government, whereby a regular Army officer will be detailed in September as Commandant of Cadets and Professor of Military Science and Tactics.
2. Recognition by the Educational Institutions, including the University of California, University of Southern California, Occidental College, Pomona College, University of Redlands, in granting our graduates admission without further examination.
3. Recognition by the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions, by their invitations to participate in their Military exhibitions.
4. Recognition by patrons, who, by their appreciation, have caused our enrollment to grow, in three and a half years, from 13 to 123 cadets, representing fifteen States and four foreign countries.

And then, I want to tell you of our superior instructors, from leading Universities in this country and in Europe; of our delightful location at Pacific Beach, a suburb of San Diego on Bay and Ocean; of our out-of-door sports throughout the year; and, above all, I want to speak of the emphasis laid upon CHARACTER TRAINING, under the most wholesome influences, and of the HIGH IDEALS for which we have striven in every phase of our school work.

Our charges are less than most schools of our class and there are not so many "extras." The sum of $500 or $550 covers the cost of board, tuition, light, heat, use of arms and accoutrements, and laundry to the amount of 60 cents each week.

Very respectfully yours,

DAUGHTERS OF FAMOUS FATHERS IN VAUDEVILLE.

IT LOOKS like the day of the daughters in theatricals—in vaudeville, at least. The second generation, in that field of entertainment, seems to be coming into its own, and a long succession of names of daughters, nieces, sons and nephews is now very much in evidence in the announcements of coming attractions.

For instance, the Orpheum is just concluding the stay of Liane Carrera, who, in all justice be it said, has one strong claim to fame; she is Anna Held's daughter. Tomorrow the same house has a new headliner, in the person of Chrystal Herne, daughter of the late James A. Herne, in a play by another daughter, Julie, herself not so long ago an Orpheum star. A week later the same theater will present Vinie Daly, daughter of Lizzie Daly, and niece of Dan Daly, one of the best comedians the stage ever knew. And there are others on the same Orpheum list.

Now, while James A. Herne never was in vaudeville—he made "Hearts of Oak," one of the greatest melodramas in history—both his children, as noted, have been and are. Anna Held was in vaudeville before she went into musical comedy, so that Liane Carrera is really the second generation of the same family, and both Lizzie and Dan Daly, though best known in musical fields, were in their day participants in the old-time variety, the progenitor itself of modern vaudeville.

Clara Morton, too, another scintillant Orpheum star, whom we shall likely see here before long, comes of a real variety family—the four Mortons, of whom Sam, the father, was a veteran in the early times. The four Mortons, when Clara was a mere kiddie, were the topnotch act in the varieties, along with the four Cohans, and were very like them in style of work and make-up of family. Of the Cohans, Ethel Levy, who married George, is still in vaudeville, but George now confines himself to musical and comedy fields, while the others are retired. Of the Mortons only Clara is now active. Of the Daly family, Dan is dead, so is Lizzie, and Lucy is the wife of "Hap" Ward of Ward and Vokes fame, while Margaret is Mrs. Vokes. In this case also, Vinie is the only one today in vaudeville.

Ethel Barrymore, who is again flirting with the two-a-day, and whom the Orpheum expects out this winter, is another "second generation" personage. Her father, Maurice Barrymore, and his wife, Georgie Drew Barrymore, as well as her uncle, John Drew, and her grandmother, Mrs. John Drew, the elder, all were in the "legit," and Ethel usually remains in that field. But now and then she hops the line, now everything, between the two forms of stage entertainment, and so she may be considered in this list.

Doris Rankin is still another who is a second generation member of the vaudeville ranks. Her father, McKee Rankin, who died so recently, was not only a veteran of the legitimate, but he also was a vaudeville star of great magnitude, and one of the strongest memories of the old Orpheum in Spring street in the first of the "smut" plays ever put into the two-a-day field—"The White Slaver." In that early time it was regarded as especially daring, but fully justified by the superb art of McKee Rankin and the able support of Doris's daughter. It was a powerful and very true bit of life of the underworld, that makes much of the so-called "punch" drama of today seem puerile.

The Herne girls, both now prominent, are likely to have a long career in vaudeville. Julie has already appeared at the Orpheum, with great success, and now she reappears in that she is the author of "Dora," the play in which her sister, Chrystal, appears this week. The latter is new to this form of amusement, but in the legitimate has made a good name for herself, and she is expected to uphold the family traditions in her new venture. Liane Carrera is a mere child as yet, but even so gives promise of being a real star. She has much of the fascination that made and makes her mother a wonderfully attractive stage figure. While very immature now, she will likely develop the talent, scintillating ways and rollicking fun of her moted "muzzer" as she acquires experience and age.

All of which goes to show that vaudeville itself is now grown up, and itself is entertaining its own second generation. In fact, it may in a way be said to have done that when it leaped from the old-time variety. In that day, when the shows were great but so tinged with double entendre and the like that women did not frequent them, its field was limited almost wholly to masculine patronage. When the Orpheum, under Meyerfeld & Beck, and the Keith houses in the East, began to cater to women and children, variety passed away and vaudeville was born. Even then the same artists who had made variety were those who had to create vaudeville, for there were no others. As time went on, and these older ones died or retired, there came up a new class of entertainers, void of the ancient traditions, unhampered by the former ways and rules, and they are the ones who entertain you today. But in the inheritance of talent and the carrying out of family tradition it is these girls—and they are nearly all girls, though now and then a son pops up, like Pat Rooney II, for instance—these girls are the "second generation" that is the link between the olden times and the now. More power to them; may they inherit the talents and abilities of their progenitors, and acquire and make their own the refinements and the advance of the present day—and may vaudeville appreciate their undoubted purpose and their life-long experience well and thoroughly.

Vinie Daly niece of Dan Daly.
Chrystal Herne daughter of James A. Herne.
Doris Rankin daughter of McKee Rankin.
Clara Morton, daughter of Sam Morton.

At The End of the Day.

Oh, love, good night! The deepening shadows blend
With daylight gold; the silvered moonbeams wend
Their way to light our world till dreams descend.

Oh, love, good night! And may life's shadows blend
With youth's bright sun till evening falls, and then Love's glory light thy pathway to the end!

DOES HE UNDERSTAND MARRIAGE?

Critic Thinks Bernard Shaw Comprehends a Wedding After It Has Occurred, But Has Poor Ideas of How to Bring One About. A Further Discussion of "Misalliance."

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK

IT WOULD be pleasant to interview George Bernard Shaw. He is a vegetarian, and it would be interesting to know how an Englishman manages it without the support of Battle Creek.

It is somewhat less interesting to hear how Shaw, who is not a father and seems never to have been a child, would direct the management of children who cannot, by the way, be handled exactly like the watered stock of a sick corporation.

Shaw is so severely moral as to appear unmoral, and so afraid of the blight of society as to seem to be opposed to society's existence at all.

Aside from his prejudice against eating the flesh of dead things, Shaw's chief pet negation is his frank horror of romance.

If Shaw knew a woman who had read Balzac he would be deeply troubled, but if he ever met a lady conversant with the works of both Balzac and Guy Maupassant he would unquestionably get out a restraining injunction against Providence.

It does not occur to me so much that something has been left out of Shaw's making as that he does not know that something has been left out.

He seems to have fleeting glimpses of marriage after it happens, but he has no idea of how it came about in the first place.

Once he gets them together, his people have as good a chance of living happily ever after as those of any other novelist or playwright, or as much as the people in real life. Yet not one couple in a thousand would wed if they took their tips from Shaw as to how to go about it. Shaw's recipe for love-making is not to make any, whereas everybody in the world except Shaw perfectly understands that the reasonableness of marriage only appeals to those who are in the unreasonable state of being in love.

It may be true that there would be more love-making after marriage if there was less before, but the proposition will remain unproved since marriage is the result of love-making and not love-making the result of marriage. Some couples have both, and it is fortunate for them that Shaw is unable to order their public execution.

Perhaps Shaw is the unhappiest man in the world as well as the unluckiest, for, while he despises romance, he finds it impossible to write a play without resorting to romance, and plays he must write or he would be without an excuse for his long prefaces which are his only source of satisfaction. He seems to argue with himself that, since he is not the father of children, he will become the father of prefaces about the management of children.

In "Misalliance" his main argument seems to be that parents and children are too shy to discuss any of the vital facts of life with one another.

I feel quite sure this does not apply to American families. Personally I have never been an American father, but I was once an American child and I still have two perfectly good American parents. I am sure that I have never hesitated in my duty to either of them. I have done what I could to rescue my father from an unnatural appetite for Victor Hugo and Isaiah, and I would gladly have interposed between my mother and the discipline of the Methodist church had there been the slightest chance of my success in this impossible task.

To illustrate, it was only at breakfast this morning that I interceded with my father for a very much younger brother who was held under an atrocious suspicion of having smoked a cigarette. I explained to father the modern need of small vices as safety valves, and am very sure I would have lost my point had I not carried the thought to its intimate and logical conclusion by explaining that I would trust no bank teller to handle the public funds by day, who was not privately a highwayman at night, that I would be suspicious of any minister who did not tend bar during week days, and that certainly I would never call in a physician who was not the chief owner of a large undertaking establishment and the president of a cemetery association.

This may be beside the question, yet I hope it makes clear the point that American parents and children have an excellent understanding that the children shall bring up their parents to the best of their light. I am sure that I know any number of American girls of from 16 to 25 who exert a beautiful, and, I trust, beneficial influence on their mothers. I only wish that Bernard Shaw could come to America and see how many perfectly trained mothers we

NEW PLAY ON THEATER ROW.

"His Son" a New Melodrama Premiere.

Open Season for Film Plays and Stars.

Chrystal Herne at Orpheum. Other Vudeville.

"His Son," a new comedy drama by Louis Anspacher, will be given its initial performance at the Burbank this afternoon, with Henry Kolker, who has been playing in "Help Wanted" in Chicago for the past season, in the leading role.

The story of "His Son" is said to be one of heart interest, with big situations, but embodies also elements of comedy, lightening the heavier drama. It tells of an old German who has risen from a cobbler's bench to a position of wealth, who wants to give his son all the advantages of education which he himself did not receive. But in this thought for his son he overlooks the interests of his daughter. The son turns out to be a polished and loveable young scapegrace, but the old man's spirit remains unbroken. The play draws many German types with remarkable clearness. The author has produced several successful plays, and is a skilled technician of playcraft.

The cast of the new piece will include Henry Kolker, Donald Bowles, Frances Slosson, Lillian Elliott, Thomas McLarnie, Beatrice Nichols, M. S. Duffield, Winifred Bryson, George Rand, James K. Applebee and Franklyn Underwood.

Orpheum Theater.

Chrystal Herne tops the Orpheum bill next week. Not only as the daughter of her father, James A. Herne, who made "Shore Acres" famous of old, is Miss Herne known, but as a successful actress in her own right. She will appear in a sketch by her sister Julie, entitled "Dora." In writing for Chrystal, Julie has been able, through close knowledge of her sister's attainments and peculiar talents, to fit her with a vehicle which is said to bring out the peculiarly subtle emotional talents of the actress. Miss Herne's support is also said to be of the best.

Clark & Verdi will impersonate two types of transplanted Italians, the newly arrived, with pitifully funny ignorance, and the sophisticated one who has been in America all of three months, and consequently can tell his friend all about everything American from laws to lingerie. So his "wising up" of his countryman bids fair to be a laugh-producer.

A Chinese tenor is sure a rara avis. Prince Lai Mon Kim is that very thing, however. Not only appreciating and being able, to render occidental music, he also has performed the unique feat of rendering into Chinese some of the well-known rags of the day, which should be nothing if not weirdly unique.

Mlle. Asoria is a prima ballerina, who, with two clever assistants, will give a series of ballroom dances, varied with some cyclonic dances popular abroad.

Trixie Friganza, the popular, remains another week.

Corrandini's trained animals, Burns and Fulton, in their delightful dancing turn, and the Melody Maids, are other holdovers. The usual orchestral concerts and the Hearst-Selig view series of world news complete the bill.

Vinie Daly headlines a week later on, with Bertha Kalich soon to make her bow.

Pantages Theater.

Comedy reigns next week at Pantages. With comedy for the motif, acrobatics, music, dancing and pantomime will be presented.

The Hendrix-Belle Isle combination will present a school act in which seven boys and girls supply songs, music and dances. It is said that the Standard Brothers give one of the best balancing acts which has ever appeared on the stage. Flying leaps and the sort of stunt known technically as "top-mounters" lend brilliancy to the act.

Cooper and Ricardo, a man and a woman, present a cross-fire comedy in straight and "wop" characters.

Lillie Jewell and her manikins return to please the children, big and little. This time there is a baseball stunt that puts them in the big league of fun-makers.

The American Newsboys, who have also appeared at Pantages in days gone by, return with new songs and dances.

"La Danse Duello," a spectacular "revue" of popular dances, given by Meryl and Rita, will complete the bill.

Empress.

The Empress' offering for next week has as its headliner Jake Malvern's Acrobatic Comedians in "A Roughhouse Village."

The popular star of "The Candy Shop" and "The Pink Lady," Tom Waters, has been drawn to vaudeville by the fat pay envelope, and will present a programme of patter and piano performing.

La Jolie Deodima, famous French beauty and one-time model, will give a series of living pictures.

Pearl and Irene Sams are two pretty girls, real simon-pure girls not out of their teens, who will sing and dance.

William Lampe and company, including Edith Reeves and James [illegible] Galligher, will give a stirring tabloid melodrama, "One Flight Up."

Hippodrome.

"The New Chief of Police" is billed by the management as "the best-liked sketch team that ever occupied the Hippodrome stage." The fact that the purity squad of Los Angeles is investigating may add attraction to the piece for a lot of people. Will Abrams and Agnes Johns head the cast.

"The Little Blonde Lady" is another playlet, contributed by Boothe and company. It is a newspaper story said to be full of heart throbs and "atmosphere."

Present!

ALL ANSWER THE ROLL CALL.

TANDLER TELLS OF EUROPEAN SYMPHONY HALLS.

Nobody Missing from the Roster that Behymer Has Prepared. Craft, Fremstad, Slezak, Lhevinne and the Rest Will Positively Appear.

If the great goddess of good luck had not attended the comings—and especially the goings—of Adolf Tandler on his trip of exploration in Europe, we should have had no symphony concerts through the coming winter, for the popular conductor would be wielding the bayonet instead of the baton.

His series of almost miraculous escapes, all in the very nick of time, and his return on Friday, were duly chronicled in yesterday's Times. Our present concern is with one very important object of his trip, and that was the careful study of the various concert halls of the world, their shape, size, cost and particularly their acoustic properties. He examined all the concert-rooms he could find on the way, beginning with those of Chicago and ending with the Viennese. He was generously given plans, drawings and estimates, all of which have been filed away, to be used when the occasion comes up.

"I studied the halls of Chicago, Boston and New York very briefly," said Mr. Tandler, "and though I found the acoustics of most of them very good, I must admit that I found the concert halls of London even better in this respect—these, indeed, are quite ideal.

"The concert season was over in Vienna, of course, but by rare good luck I blew into town at the very time of the opening of the new Vienna Concert House, built by the various symphony associations, at a cost of 5,000,000 crowns, 1,000,000 of which, as well as the site for the building, were donated by the government. Three big concerts were given on the very eve of my arrival, so to speak, and I attended them all. The Vienna Concert House is the perfect thing in every way, in architectural beauty, in seating capacity and in its acoustics. It took the architect a year and a half to evolve the plan for perfection in acoustics, though. But the result was worth the trouble.

"It pleased me to discover that the hall in Vienna conforms very closely with the concert hall I have had in mind as an ideal for some time—the place for symphonic music."

All Artists Will Arrive.

Already the artists are starting to arrive in New York in anticipation of their American seasons, and to avoid any contingency of having to remain in Europe on account of the war. Impresario Behymer remained longer in New York than scheduled, just to get the final word on the arrival of the various artists he has scheduled for Los Angeles next season. Now he announces that every one is sure to be here.

Marcella Craft, the Riverside soprano, who has been gaining such tremendous success in Europe the past five years, has landed. She left Europe at the first opportunity on the advice of her American manager.

Tina Lerner, the petite Russian pianiste; John MacCormack, the Irish tenor; Maggie Teyte, the English soprano, new to the Coast but a great favorite in the East, with Anna Pavlowa, are all in London. Pavlowa is fortunate in possessing a royal dispensation from the Czar, and further in having all her costumes, scenery and propaganda made in London and New York.

Mme. Olive Fremstad, the famous Swedish-American soprano of the Metropolitan, has been spending her summer vacation on her farm in Maine, and will be in Los Angeles in ample time to formally open the music season, the evening of October 20, at Trinity Auditorium.

Evan Williams, the Welsh tenor, is in Canada fishing and resting. Williams, with Rudolf Ganz, the Swiss pianist, will open the second series of the Philharmonic course, and as his programmes are always in English he will be one of the unique stars of the present season. He will probably open the matinee series in straight recital.

In Switzerland, near the Paderewski summer home, there is the usual colony of musicians, or rather, was. Alma Gluck and Efrem Zimbalist, her talented husband have left for London, and after a month's motoring will leave for America, where each is scheduled for the Worcester Festival in September. George Barrere of the Barrere ensemble has also been visiting in Switzerland, but is now on his way to this country to start rehearsals for the coming year. This ensemble organization is unique, being the only one where reed instruments are combined for an entire programme.

Leo Slezak, the Czech tenor, is immune, being an intimate friend of the Emperor Franz Josef, and also official court singer. He intends coming to America early in the season, even earlier than his engagements might warrant, in order to secure a house and establish a home for his wife and three children, who always accompany him on his continental tours.

Josef Lhevinne, the Russian pianist, scheduled for Los Angeles in February, is free, having long ago forsworn the Russian government.

Julia Culp, the eminent Dutch lieder singer, and her talented accompanist, Coenraad Bos, are in Holland, and so far out of it entirely.

Thus all the artists scheduled for the Philharmonic series in this city and Southern California are accounted for, but "The Miracle," the sensation of the London season, is almost sure to be detained, as the scenery, costumes and electrical settings for the American tour were being constructed in Berlin, whence also many of the people were to come, all of them of the younger school and all reservists.

Manager Behymer writes with much regret that all the splendid productions of light opera which Andreas Dippel had planned for his transcontinental tour next year are in Vienna, and there is no chance whatever of getting them out. Dippel himself is in Carlsbad, but is well enough connected to get out. Schumann-Heink will eventually get out of Bayreuth, although in spite of her citizenship papers for this country she is experiencing much difficulty. The Aborns are both back. The Century Opera-house will open on schedule time, September 14.

Demarest Resigns.

Charles H. Demarest, who opened the big organ in Tally's Broadway Theater last January, and who for the past six months has been organist and musical director there, has resigned his position to devote himself entirely to teaching.

THE SEVEN VIALS AND THE WARS.

BY AGNES THURNAU.

"AND there shall be wars, and rumors of wars."

Scarcely a person in the civilized world today who is familiar with the western Scriptures recalls those words of Holy Writ without unconsciously connecting the ancient prophecy with the present time.

There are many Christians of various religious denominations who believe we are in the last fulfillment of the signs given in the Scriptures to mark the ushering in of the millennium.

And this belief is well founded, if one accepts the prophecies of St. John the Divine, and believes in his wonderful, abstruse epic, the Book of Revelation.

The Christians are not alone in this belief. It prevails in many parts of the world remote from each other. Many of the world scriptures parallel St. John's prophecies in signs supposed to relate to this time. The Puranas are perhaps the most notable instance.

Throughout the Orient—particularly in Persia, Burmah, Afghanistan, Thibet, Egypt and Siam—for a quarter of a century there have been those who have watched the fulfilment of certain signs prophesied in oriental scriptures which relate to the ushering in of another cycle and the coming of another world-teacher, or Bhuddha, who is to be the Kalki Avatar of the Eastern Scriptures, the Comforter spoken of in Western scriptures.

A well-known religious sect in America, numbering among its followers many eminent and admirable men and women, has long been expecting the second coming of the Lord Christ. The Theosophists divided ranks on the question of belief in a world-teacher to come very soon, in accordance with ancient prophecies in oriental sacred books. It is my personal opinion that the great contempt which many of the Katherine Tingley Theosophists feel for the Annie Besant faction is because Mrs. Besant has fostered this belief among the Theosophists who claim Adyar, India, as their headquarters.

Mrs. Besant's followers are in every civilized country in the world today, while the Tingley contingency is hardly known outside its colony at Point Loma, Cal.

In Persia the most enlightened and tolerant religious sect believes in the near approach of a great world-teacher. In Afghanistan an old monk has long been preaching the same thing. These are interesting facts when we consider that the followers of the Persian sect and the Afghanistan monk have no communication with the Theosophists or western Christians, who believe the same thing. Simultaneously in many parts of the world there has been an awakened interest in the subject of the coming of a world-teacher, and a close watch set by religious devotees on the signs given in sacred books to portend his coming.

In a quiet little retreat in Edendale there is a woman, an absolute recluse, who is preaching to her followers as earnestly as the Afghanistan monk is preaching to his, that this is the time of the Kalki Avatar. She is a graduate of a great university, a member of the Company of the Most Ancient Brotherhood of India, whose retreats are hidden from the world, deep in the wildest Himalayas. She lived as Bhikkhuni among the Sanyasin and pilgrims for seven years in the Himalayas. That she is a remarkable teacher and a wonderful woman many prominent men and women of this city testify. While I am not prominent, I am sure that I can testify to this, for I had her teaching, and am very glad that I did.

I was discussing the war crisis with a Bhuddhist priest the other day. He is "a man who holds the mysteries in the palm of his hand," as they say in India, closely in touch with Lhassa, a Hermetic true to Hermes Trismegistus, and as I wanted very badly to hear the news in eternity I induced him to give me his views on a world war, and the situation in Europe.

He was educated at Oxford, and is a close personal friend of the King of Siam, but his views are from the heart of Thibet. And they are not so very different from those held by many western Christians today.

Among other things he said: "We are entering a new cycle. The Hermetic principle 'As above so below; as below, so above' holds throughout the universe. The unrest and disturbance which we see in the physical world is but a reflection of the breaking up of forces operating on higher planes. To use a literal but hardly adequate expression, there is war in heaven, so there is war on earth. This cycle now ending is the Kali-Yuga, or cycle of Kali; we are entering the Sattva-Yuga, or Sattva cycle, and there is a terrific clashing of forces. The war which will be on the earth, and which we of the Orient have been expecting for a quarter of a century, will be the greatest war this humanity has yet known. It will mark the end of violence. It is but the reflection of cosmic activity. The Kali-Yuga can be best understood by an occidental, when described as the Nature-cycle or cycle of physical evolution; the Sattva-Yuga as the Spiritual-cycle, or cycle of spiritual evolution. The Kali Yuga is ending; the Sattva-Yuga is just beginning. Man's physical evolution is finished. His future evolution lies along spiritual lines. We shall have a great, great war, and then universal peace. Kali will give way to Sattva, but not without a terrific struggle. Sense always wars with soul."

Good old John Burroughs said practically the same thing a short time ago in an article in the Independent.

"And do you believe that another world-teacher will arise in this generation?" I asked.

"We know that always when this world has needed a spiritual touch, another world-teacher, one has come. Hermes, the thrice-great in his time; Buddha, the enlightened one in his time; the Lord Christ, Sri Krishna, in his time; I believe we shall have another great world-teacher in this century, but this one will be first a great warrior. The Puranas, and your own western Scriptures so prophesy," he replied.

I thought of the vision of that great Slav, Tolstoi, in which he saw all Europe at war, and it was a great, great war. And out of the chaos and turbulence and grief there arose one who was an invincible warrior and he sat on a great white horse. And I thought of St. John's words, "I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, and they were gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and his army." And I thought of the words of the Puranas which in substance are: "And all the hosts of violence were arrayed against the great white warrior who sat on the horse."

But I questioned: "Do you think then that the Slavic race will be victorious?"

"I think the Teutons will be defeated, They have been allying themselves with the wrong kind of thing," he answered with a keen, queer little gleam of humor in his eyes that made me wonder just how much of what he was saying was priestly lore, how much guesswork, and how much ardent hope that the prophecy would be fulfilled.

At any rate, if earthly indications count for anything, there surely is war higher up. For the triple alliance and the triple entente are hard at it, regardless of Yugas and visions recorded in sacred books.

And it is a remarkable fact that there are seven primarily belligerent nations, Austria, Germany, Italy, France, Great Britain, Russia, Servia. Seven is used as a symbol in all sacred books. St. John refers to "seven kings," "seven vials," "seven heads" and "seven thunders." Seven is also used in oriental scriptures in connection with visions and prophesies.

Is it possible that at the same time St. John the Divine on the wild and lonely Isle of Patmos was dreaming his weird world-dreams, and beholding his strange cosmic visions, which have made the Apocalypse the despair of Christian theologians, that there were others in the wild retreats of the Himalayas who were dreaming weird dreams and beholding strange visions which have been recorded in the Puranas?

It is a curious fact that the Book of Revelations and the Puranas both refer to a warrior on a horse in connection with the forecasts which are supposed to pertain to this time.

And indeed, 1914 is not without its prophet of considerable power. Who remembers Mme. Thebes's predictions for the year which were printed in many American newspapers? In a quiet little house in a quiet little street in Paris this quiet little old Frenchwoman lives and dreams her dreams and beholds her visions. She predicted in January, 1914, that during the year the German Emperor would come to Paris—but not as a King. In fact, her words, as quoted by the Associated Press dispatches, were: "There will be conflict among the nations of Europe. France will be drawn into war. The waves will be tinted with blood. Fire and water must combat in subterranean forces. The German Emperor will come to Paris, but not as a King."

Mme. Thebes predicted the assassination of President Faure of France, the assassination of several European monarchs, including the Empress Elizabeth of Austria, the San Francisco earthquake, the recent volcanic disaster in Japan, the great Paris bazaar fire, the death of King George of Greece, the Balkan War and the Titanic disaster. She also predicted that the United States would not be drawn into the European conflict during the year 1914 and that war in Mexico would continue despite efforts at mediation.

Sacred literature is full of prophecies which many take to relate to this time. Sybils, soothsayers, saints sages have all foretold great social, racial, political and industrial crises which a great many people believe are due now.

Anyway, when the historians come to write about 1914 the most conservative and phlegmatic of them will have to admit that it was a year full of strange happenings and definite thrills.

WON BY SYMPATHY.

The Attorney for the Defendant Understood How to Reach the Jurymen's Sentimental Side.

[London Tit-Bits:] The great advocate—let us call him Mr. McSweeney—was defending a man in a murder case. The case looked hopeless, and McSweeney submitted no evidence for the defense. So the public prosecutor, believing that conviction was assured, ended with just a few perfunctory remarks.

Then, in a quiet, conversational tone, the famous McSweeney began to talk to the jury. He made no mention of the murder. He just described in vivid colors a pretty country cottage hung with honeysuckles, a young wife preparing supper, and the rosy youngsters waiting at the gate to greet his father on his return home for the evening meal. Suddenly McSweeney stopped. He drew himself up to his full height. Then, striking the table with his fist, he cried, in a voice that thrilled every bosom:

"Gentlemen, you must send him back home to them."

A red-faced juror choked, and blurted out:

"By George, sir, we'll do it!"

McSweeney, without another word, sat down, and ten minutes later the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal.

The prisoner wept as he shook his counsel's hand. "No other man on earth could have saved me as you have done, Mr. McSweeney," he sobbed. "I ain't got no wife or family, sir."

Make Boots Moisture Proof.

[Indianapolis News:] Members of Arctic expeditions have found that gum boots are not proof against the entrance of moisture, for snow water seems to penetrate the rubber where the boots are in more or less constant use for a long period of time. This is prevented by an occasional application of shellac, which effectually keeps the moisture out, even when subjected to the hardest wear. Shellac can also be made use of to advantage in coating the thongs of snowshoes for the purpose of resisting the moisture when moving over the wet snow. The shoes thus treated enables the men to make much better headway over the snow with less effort. The thongs which have been treated with shellac are also said to dry out more quickly after use than others.

An attractive and well-arranged and varied programme of plays, one of which is by George Ade, will be seen during the week at this house. The programme is changed every second day.

OVER THE SEA.

Vice-Admiral Jellicoe, who has been appointed supreme commander of the British fleet, with the acting rank of admiral, started his auspicious career when he saw active service in the Egyptian War as a lieutenant in the Agincourt. The next year he received the £80 prize of the Royal Naval College. Three years later he received, while lieutenant of the Monarch, the Board of Trade silver medal for gallantry in saving life at sea. In February, 1907, he attained flag rank, and became in rapid succession rear-admiral of the Atlantic fleet, a sea lord of the admiralty and controller of the navy, vice-admiral commanding the Atlantic fleet, vice-admiral commanding second division of the home fleet, and finally second sea lord of the admiralty.

Paul Charmier, a manufacturer of flags in Paris, has offered a reward of $1000 to the Frenchman who captures the first German flag in the present war.

Sir Joseph Beecham, who has just purchased the Duke of Bedford's Covent Garden estate in London for $17,500,000, began life as a farm boy. He is one of the biggest advertisers in the world, spending annually about $500,000 in that way.

Prince Roland Bonaparte, who has desired to join the French army as a soldier, is prevented by the terms of the law, which forbid a member of a former French ruling house to serve in the French army.

John Burns, president of the London government board, has resigned because of his disagreement with the war policy of the British government.

In a thirty-word statement, John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, settled the position of Ireland in the present war. Mr. Redmond said in the House of Commons: "Every soldier in Ireland may be withdrawn tomorrow. The coasts of Ireland will be defended by her armed sons, the Catholics of the south and the Protestants of Ulster!"

Emperor William's oldest sister, Princess Charlotte, the new Duchess of Saxe-Meiningen, who was a patroness of a prize fight two years ago, is understood to be planning to set up racing stables, her greatest sporting interest being in horses.

Right Hon. Sir Edward Clarke has been fifty years in public life, and says he was attracted to the bar because he believed it would be a way to a career of political usefulness.

BRAINS IN THE FEET.

Many a Contest Has Been Lost Because the Person Did Not Think Quickly Enough.

[London Tid-Bits:] The necessity for combining intelligence with muscles and nerves in athletics is emphasized by E. W. Hjertberg, coach of the Swedish Olympic team, in "Athletics in Theory and Practice." All those who train with the idea of winning prizes on the athletic track, he says, should always remember that the brain plays an important part in training as well as in contests. He points out that in the old days it was usually held to be enough to train the body, and the more drastic the training the more likely success was thought to be.

Nowadays it is necessary, if a man has to win success on the track, that he should have "brains in his feet," as the saying goes. Mr. Hjertberg points out that many contests have been lost by good athletes just because they did not think quickly or accurately enough.

Today, in training, brain and nerves are given even more attention than the body. Furthermore, an athlete is allowed to think for himself and is allowed to eat practically anything he likes. Many athletes are advised not to smoke, to drink but very little alcohol and to go to bed every night at 10:30.

When training, writes Mr. Hjertberg, you must learn to obtain complete control of your nerves, as it is just the nerves and your strength of will that win for you in the final struggle. When you are about to take part in some athletic competition you will be, to some extent, nervous. That is to say, you will be in an abnormal state of mind, but at the same time you must have full control over your will power and energy. There are many men with great nervous energy who do not know how to make use of it.

Warnack's Gossip.

have as the salutary result of their daughters' undisguised efforts in their proper bringing up.

My conclusion then is that the reason for Shaw's play is no reason, and that it is unreasonable for him to expect the public to accept is at one.

This leaves nothing to "Missalliance" except the problem of the woman, which Shaw completely misses, in spite of the fact that he has himself made the woman.

Hypatia Tarlton is a ripping English girl of about 25, who always wants something to happen, and who is constantly told by her mother that when she is a little older theone concern will be to see that nothing does happen.

This festive young person, who is without a festival, has a fiance named Bentley, who is hardly human, although he may be English. In America we would call him a brawling brat, and as for spanking him, we would set him down hard on the place that would hurt the worst, and forget his existence.

Bentley was the son of Lord Summerhays, who is a widower and also wishes to marry Hypatia. Or, as the girl puts it, he has offered to make her his widow.

Hypatia has a brother who does not wish to marry her. I regret the necessity of mentioning this, yet I think it necessary, because Cleopatra did marry her brother, and Shaw wrote a play called "Caesar and Cleopatra." It is true that the lady's brother-husband did not last long, and that Shaw bluntly waited until he had been put out of misery before writing a play about his red-haired sister-wife. At the same time, you never can tell where people will marry in a play when a man like Shaw is their arbiter. Therefore I put it to you frankly that Miss Tarlton's brother did not desire to marry her any more than he desired to see her married to the whimpering little English sniveler to whom she was betrothed.

Impossible little Bentley hah had an interesting schoolmate at Oxford by the name of Joey Percival. This young man was interesting, as he had enjoyed the society of three fathers, who do not appear in the play, but who are talked about in its lines. One was the regulation chap who had married Joey's mother, the other was an old philosopher he always kept about the premises, and the third was a little Italian priest who took care of Joey's mother's conscience when she was not busy taking care of his.

Naturally, I do not think such statements as this last should be published, but we have the pay's word for it that such was the case.

Now Percival, in order to break into this play, drops from the skies in an aeroplane, which crashes into the Tarlton summer-house, while Joey and his interesting rope-walking woman companion roll gracefully upon the lawn. Hypatia proceeds to appropriate him on the grounds that she is looking for something unusual and Joey has happened in a most unusual fashion.

Let me pause here to remark that no man needs take too closely to his heart or conscience a woman who adopts him merely because he happens at a psychological moment. She is not looking for him, but for an experience and any other man in the least aggressively interesting would answer her purpose quite as well as himself. Perhaps such a man is not wronging such a woman when he delicately admits to himself that she may like him, nor is he saving her soul if he runs away. The lady will assuredly live to love another day and his consideration has merely cost him what might have been a very pleasant affair.

In this case it results in a marriage, because the lady has the drop on her victim and is willing to go that far.

She could have done nothing else in the hands of a writer so utterly conventional as Bernard Shaw. No author of today is so hopelessly committed to morals of the strictest old school, nor to forms of social government so entirely lacking in plasticity.

Shaw goes clear to the original ten commandments with all of their "Thou shalt nots" and leaves us repeating in chorus first and last, "Thou shalt not be happy nor make thy marriage in love."

Young Percival seems to know who is writing him, for he tells us naively enough that it was the opinion of the priest in his home that if all of the thousands of married couples he had known had been married in alphabetical order without previous acquaintance or preparation, or if the names had been jumbled together and they had all been married by drawing lots, the result could not have been any worse.

It is cruel in Mr. Shaw to wish that they could be any worse, and he has no way of proving to us that they would have been any better. In fact, I must insist that the entire play does not prove anything, except that a wholesome sort of girl, who was eager for experience, formally married the first likeable man who dropped from the sky at her feet. It also inspires the regret that more likeable men do not drop from the skies at the feet of more healthy young women who are eager for experience and who are willing to pay the price of matrimony to get it.

Since I am writing about so conventional an author as Mr. Shaw, it would perhaps be the conventional thing to admit that he has shown considerable understanding of the working principle of marriage in his play called "Candida," in which that lovely person discards her frail poet lover and sticks to her apparently strong husband, because this big public bluff of a preacher is really the weaker of the two men and therefore needs her the most.

The marriage that proves any good inevitably results in the mutual support of two persons and in a very large amount of discipline for both.

Where Shaw is mistaken is in not recognizing that this very need of discipline and assistance inspires choice and that people must first marry out of choice before marriage can become the right punishment, which the two lives require.

Without Disturbance.

[Chicago News:] For a week after Mrs. Wakefield gave her colored cook an alarm clock the family was awakened each day at 6 a.m. by the clang of its resounding bell. At the end of this time it was heard no more in the early watches of the morning, but Mrs. Wakefield fancied several times that she detected the muffled sound of its alarm toward evening. When questioned on the subject Dinah said with a shake of her dusky head:

"Well, Miss Wakefield, mah nerves ain' bery strong, as yo know, an' dat alarm clock jes' riled em up. I kin stan' it in de ebenin' first rate, but ter be woke up sudden upsets me; sa I jes' sets it fo' de ebenin' 'stead ob de mawnin', an' it goes off an' doan' disturb nobody."

BITS OF VERSE.

An Overture to Morn.

I unclosed sleepy eyes to find the Dawn,
Demure in Quaker garb of softest
gray
Awaiting that bold cavalier, the Day—
Attendant on her royal progress, through
A world all hushed, that hailed her queen thereto,
A band of court musicians led the way.
I caught the throb and thrill of myriad throats
Testing their pitch, upon the opening notes
Of a diviner minstrelsy than ever
Resulted from mankind's utmost endeavor!
First, a low trill like to a single flute
In a cast orchestra, which else is mute;
Then a sweet, plaintive call, resembling most
The shepherd's piping on that Bretagne coast
The while brave Tristan lay
Defying death and mourning Isolde,
And, after these, a swiftly running scale
Of mingled melodies that wove a tale—
Thus the sound swelled increasingly in power,
Rising and falling in a rippling shower
Of brilliant arias and magic tones,
Like clear-tongued bells, high in some ancient tower,
Each answering each perfect full accord,
As master instruments, the maestro's word.
So rang the chorus of the feathered realm,
A wordless glory, that must overwhelm,
Each morning's audience, who wait
enrapt
Until—the overture's last note is done.
The curtain rises on the pageant Sun.
—[Edna Mead in New York Times.

A Prayer.

Teach me, Father, how to go
Softly as the grasses grow;
Hush my soul to meet the shock
Of the wild world as a rock;
But my spirit, propped with power
Make as simple as a flower.
Let the dry heart fill its cup,
Like a poppy looking up;
Let life lightly wear her crown,
Like a poppy looking down,
When its heart is filled with dew
And its life begins anew.

Teach me, Father, how to be Kind and patient as a tree,
Joyfully the crickets croon
Under the shady oak at noon;
Beetle, on his mission bent,
Tarries in that cooling tent,
Let me, also, cheer a spot,
Hidden field or garden grot—
Place where passing souls can rest
On the way and be their best.
—[Edwin Markham in St. Louis Globe Democrat.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Dr. Samuel B. Woodward, after a service extending over fifteen years, has sent his resignation to the Governor of Massachusetts as trustee of the Worcester State Hospital for the Insane. He states that his hands have been tied to such an extent by recent legislation that he will be unable to serve longer.

John C. Porte, British navy lieutenant, having been called home, it is stated that Glenn H. Curtiss will pilot the America on the across-the-ocean flight when it may be attempted.

"Ort" Wells of Chicago, former partner of John W. Gates, was at Carlsbad when the Austrian heir apparent was killed, but did not see any evidences of excitement as a result of the succeeding events until the day before he left London on his return.

Judge John C. Loucks, who presides over a justice court in Chicago, believes that the installment plan may be used advantageously in the payment of fines as in the buying of household furnishings. He has placed the installment system in operation and requires offenders to pay at the rate of from 50 cents to $2 a week.

One of the greatest feats in the history of athletics was performed in New York last Sunday, when George R. Meehan of Boston swam from the Battery to Sandy Hook, a distance of twenty-two miles, in seven hours and eighteen minutes, winning the New York Tribune's Marathon swim against thirty other competitors. This record is one hour and six minutes better than that of Sam Richards, who won the race in 1913.

Senator Hamilton Lewis of Illinois has promised not to shave his whiskers off if the newspapers will stop printing articles about his clothes.

From his inflamed right arm James L. Mengel, a retired farmer of Hamburg, Pa., removed a sharp edge of glass with a penknife, the other day, after it had been there fifty-two years, the result of a fall when he went to school.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Prof. Henry C. Cowles of the University of Chicago has decided that a specific cypress tree in Arkansas is 700 years old. Others he believed were 1200 years old. Upon this and similar testimony the government hopes to prove that 125,000 acres of Arkansas land which was listed as a lake in original Federal surveys never was covered by a permanent body of water. The proof is expected to give the government title to the land, said to be the richest in the State.

Dr. James M. Greenwood, who built up the schools of Kansas City from small beginnings until they ranked with the best of the country, is dead at the age of 76. Dr. Greenwood preserved his interest in educational subjects and general affairs until the end and published during the last year some notable articles on current topics.

Word has come from London of the death there of Prof. Robert Francis Harper, the brother of the late William R. Harper, one time president of the University of Chicago. Prof. Harper's death was sudden. He was 50 years old and a bachelor. Prof. Harper was an eminent Assyriologist. He was professor of Semitic languages in the University of Chicago and had taught at Yale. He was a member of the party sent out by the Babylonian Exploration Fund of the University of Pennsylvania in 1888 and of the party sent out by the British Museum several years later.

Dr. Percy W. Long, professor of English at Harvard and Wellesley, has returned from Europe. Dr. Long has been spending his vacation in Alsace-Lorraine, but when the war seemed near he fortunately anticipated the actual outbreak of hostilities and came away with far less difficulty than most Americans.

President Nichols of Dartmouth College is in San Francisco, where he had planned to take passage for New Zealand to deliver a series of lectures before the British Association. As a result of the war, however, he has been forced to abandon the idea.

Can't Put Poetry Over.

[Chicago Herald:] H. M.—Yes! yes! yes! The proper reading of the second line in each verse should have been:

"Said Bath-House on parade."

We wrote it that way and to make certain we drew a balloon around it with a line to the margin wherein was neatly inscribed this chaste legend: "Follow copy."

As was to be expected, the line appeared:

"Bath-House said on parade."

The next time we will write it as follows:

"ParBath onade said House."

It will then appear in its natural form:

"Said Bath-House on parade."

Or perhaps to insure the line's appearing in its correct form it would be best to write it like this:

Dibas "thusehoa pondarae."

Then, of course, it would come out right.

There are some things that make one think fondly of murder. What inspires you most with the desire to kill and slay and maim and wound?

Dresses to dance in, to flirt in, and and talk in;
Dresses in which to do nothing at all."

If this was an age of plainness in women's clothes, home furnishings and the like, not half the sins laid to the door of women would be committed. Our dear, old grandmas counted themselves lucky if they had one bonnet and the makings of a dress a year.

Of course, there were fashions set then, as now, by the women of wealth and position. But that didn't ruffle the quiet minds of girls of that period. They spun the linen for their gowns; embellished them with needlework done by their own fair fingers, and made their gowns simply. A girl was considered wildly extravagant if such a dress did not last her at least five years.

Maidens were content to do the housework. They vied with each other in seeing which one could make the best bread, cake, pies and put up the best preserves. They never looked for presents on birthdays. A rose picked fresh from the garden was considered ornament enough, twined in a girl's hair or tucked in her belt. Only the very fat, elderly ladies possessed a string of gold beads, for they were expected to ward off a triple chin.

Young men could afford to marry in those days. It didn't cost very much to set up a home. Nor were they out much in entertaining their friends. The young folks got up surprise parties, and brought with them enough substantial food, not only to feast on, but to last over a week.

Girls of 1914 live in a different era. They seem to breath extravagance with the first breath they draw. The little girl of 10 insists upon having her white shoes, her hair ribbons, and beads, no matter how hard a time her parents have to get along. At 18 her tastes have grown apace. It takes all that her parents can rake and scrape to buy fashionable clothes for her—dresses to walk in, flirt in and talk in. She wants jeweled combs and pins for her hair, even though they are paste, bracelets and brooches, beads, chains and ear-rings galore. She would as soon be out of the world as out of the fashion. She must, she will have luxuries to keep up with other girls in fashion's swim. Her hats are loaded down with feathers, the price of any one of which would have made her grandmother gasp. It takes almost a lifetime for her to learn that luxury, where one cannot afford it, is a sin; that the extravagance is a boomerang, which ruins the hand that hurls it forth.

The girl who saves money will be enabled after a while to get what she needs, and more, in the way of luxuries. A girl meets temptation halfway when she constantly covets costly gew-gaws, recklessly purchasing them, letting the consequences be what they may. The simpler and plainer the girl the more they are admired by men who will marry.

MISS LIBBEY'S REPLIES TO YOUR LETTERS.

[Correct name and address must be given to insure attention, not to print. Address your letters to Miss Libbey, No. 916 President street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Loved at First—Now Fickle.

Dear Miss Libbey: I am a girl of 18, been going with a man of 22 for most a year. He tells me he loves me. First I thought I loved him; told him so. I am very fickle. Sometimes I think I love him; again I do not, as I have told him. I allowed him to make love to me. But do not want to do wrong in encouraging him. He says if I could love him, he would like to marry me in about two years. He respects me in every way, shows me a good time. Do you think it wise for me to quit him? Do you really think I love him? MISS J.

You surely know best if your heart has any depth of love in it for him, which I am inclined to doubt. The reason as to why you will do better if you give him up you already are wise enough to know. Better be fickle in this judgment, than sorry afterward.

A Young Lady's Questions.

My dear Miss Libbey: Please kindly inform me should a young lady take a gentleman's arm? Should a gentleman walk on the inside or outside of the walk? Should a girl speak first to a young man when they meet? Is 16 years old too young for a girl to keep company? Is 12 o'clock too late for a girl not 16 quite to come home from a dance? Is it right to flirt—to kiss a fellow good-by after visiting? GLADYS.

It is not considered quite ladylike to take his arm unless it is necessary by hurrying; bad sidewalks, etc. A gentleman walks on the outside of the walk most always. A girl may bow slightly first to a nice gentleman she is acquainted with when they meet. Sixteen is too young for a girl to keep company. Twelve o'clock is too late for a girl not 16 to come home from a dance. It is decidedly wrong to flirt, and unpardonable to kiss a fellow.

Girl Who Will Be Sorry.

Dear Friend Miss Libbey: Am a girl of 14. A boy in town, my age, loves me dearly. We correspond. Am not allowed to go with boys; decided to run away from home. I've two sisters; they are more than unkind to me. Please advise. PEARL.

There's no excuse you can offer for silly, wickedly, giving a thought to run away. You would regret this to the last day of your life. Fourteen is too young for love and folly. Make up with your sisters and they will guide you aright.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPER'S HINT: Flowers on the [illegible] like music in the home; they raise the tone of the [illegible] a poetic art and are apt to give an uplift to the conversation [illegible] to the thoughts. If you have not a garden from which to draw, you [illegible] find in waste places the material for a pleasing bouquet, which [illegible] arranged with taste will cause wonder as well as praise. I heard a [illegible] comment with admiration, amounting almost to amazement, upon [illegible] bouquet which his daughter had placed upon the dinner table. "I [illegible] really beautiful," said he, "and what do you suppose it was? The [illegible] some of the alfalfa, which she had found growing upon a [illegible]

If people would only take as much pains to search out a pleasant meaning in "what some one has said" as to find something disagreeable, what a different world this would be!

"She said thus-and-so, this-and-that!" Well, possibly she did. No doubt she did, if you so aver; but what did she mean by it? Did she give it the exact emphasis which you have given, in repeating it? Sometimes the entire meaning of a remark may be transformed by the way in which the tongue dwells upon a single syllable. It is possible that the remark was intended as complimentary when originally made, but upon repetition it became anathema. If we could but train ourselves to take for granted the kindly thought until forced to accept the less kindly one, we would be more contented with life and so would our associates. If, upon hearing that "she said" (or he!), we would forthwith go to her and ask just how the remark was intended, it is likely that it would all be explained away; or even if there was a suspicion of bitterness in the remark, when made, it is likely that, when it is learned that you are willing, nay hopeful, that no sting was meant, the sting will be extracted and you will have made a friend. No whit of your dignity or your strength of character will have suffered by the proceeding. It is a mistake to believe that hauteur or carelessness as to the regard of others is testimony of greatness. False pride leads to many a false position and much misunderstanding.

To Renew Your Frock or Suit.

At this between-seasons, when Dame Fashion is coyly suggesting first one mode and then another and yet coquettishly refusing to say what shall really prevail, one hesitates to provide oneself with new suits or frocks and it is a question just how to conduct one's wardrobe. In this emergency, comes a genuine boon in the way of the ready-accordioned material for skirt or tunic. You buy it by the yard in the wool dress goods department of one of the big stores on middle Broadway, and all that is necessary to "make" a garment for either under frock or upper frock wear is to run a seam at the proper place. Thus you may give the touch, at present deemed la mode, with small trouble and little cost.

Preserve Economy.

For the small family it is genuine economy to place your jams, preserves and jellies in small receptacles, rather than large ones, as thus there is little waste. Many times a large jar when opened is allowed to spoil, whereas a small one would be used at once.

New Twist Combs.

The newest comb designed for use with the French twist, which is the prevailing mode in hair dressing, has an overturned top similar to that on the comb found in grandmother's collection of combs modish in her day.

To Slick It.

As a means of attaining the licked down effect now prevalent in hair, the Chinese palfaw is most convenient. This is a bark which comes in packages or by the few cents worth, and is found at a local Chinese store. Soaked in water, a sticky liquid results, which, when applied to the hair gives it gloss and keeps it easily in place. This cleanly liquid takes the place of the usual means of "spitting" curls. "Curls," by the way, these appurtenances are far from being. "Sticks" would more accurately describe them.

Uncivilized.

Demonstrators have their troubles. Coming in contact as they do with all sorts and conditions of men —and women!—they have experiences not always pleasant. I saw an incident which was enlightening and amusing as well. In a large department store where a gelatine was being demonstrated, a rainbow-hued row of products was invitingly ranged upon the table of the lady who expounded the merits of the goods. These things did look tempting, and the invitation to partake was as a rule accepted with alacrity. Each small dish of jelly was accompanied with a piece of excellent cake, from a loaf which stood upon the table. A woman who had, to my knowledge partaken of her full quota of the exemplary lunch, asked the demonstrator if she could buy a part of the cake. "No," replied the demonstrator, "but I will give you a piece," suiting the action to the word. After the cake was eaten, together with the jelly which was her portion, the "customer" took her spoon and began eating from the big mold of jelly nearest her. The demonstrator remonstrated very civilly and went on with her public talk. Forthwith the "customer" reached for a second mold of jelly—one as yet untouched, and began eating from that. I did not blame the demonstrator when she added emphasis to her next appeal, and I really admired the patience with which she explained that it was not sanitary to eat with a spoon from the mold of which others were to partake. However, the "customer"—who did not buy, by-the-bye—went away in high dudgeon.

Self-Training for Motherhood.

"If there is sufficient cheerfulness to keep the corners up, even the mouth of old age will form a Cupid's bow. Try it!" This salient sentence might perhaps be termed the key note of a most interesting little book written by a Los Angeles woman, upon the subject of practical training in the home, to meet the ever-increasing duties and responsibilities of motherhood. Mrs. Lovejoy, the author, holds that the spiritual and the mental qualification of mothers is more important than the mere drudgery of housework, and that an all-around training of the body, mind and soul should form the objective of those who have in hand the training of all who go forth into the world to wage the battle of right against wrong. The book is one which cannot fail to benefit all who are striving to fulfill the mission which (whatever else she may accomplish in the broad sphere opening to women) is [illegible] out dispute distinctively [illegible] motherhood.

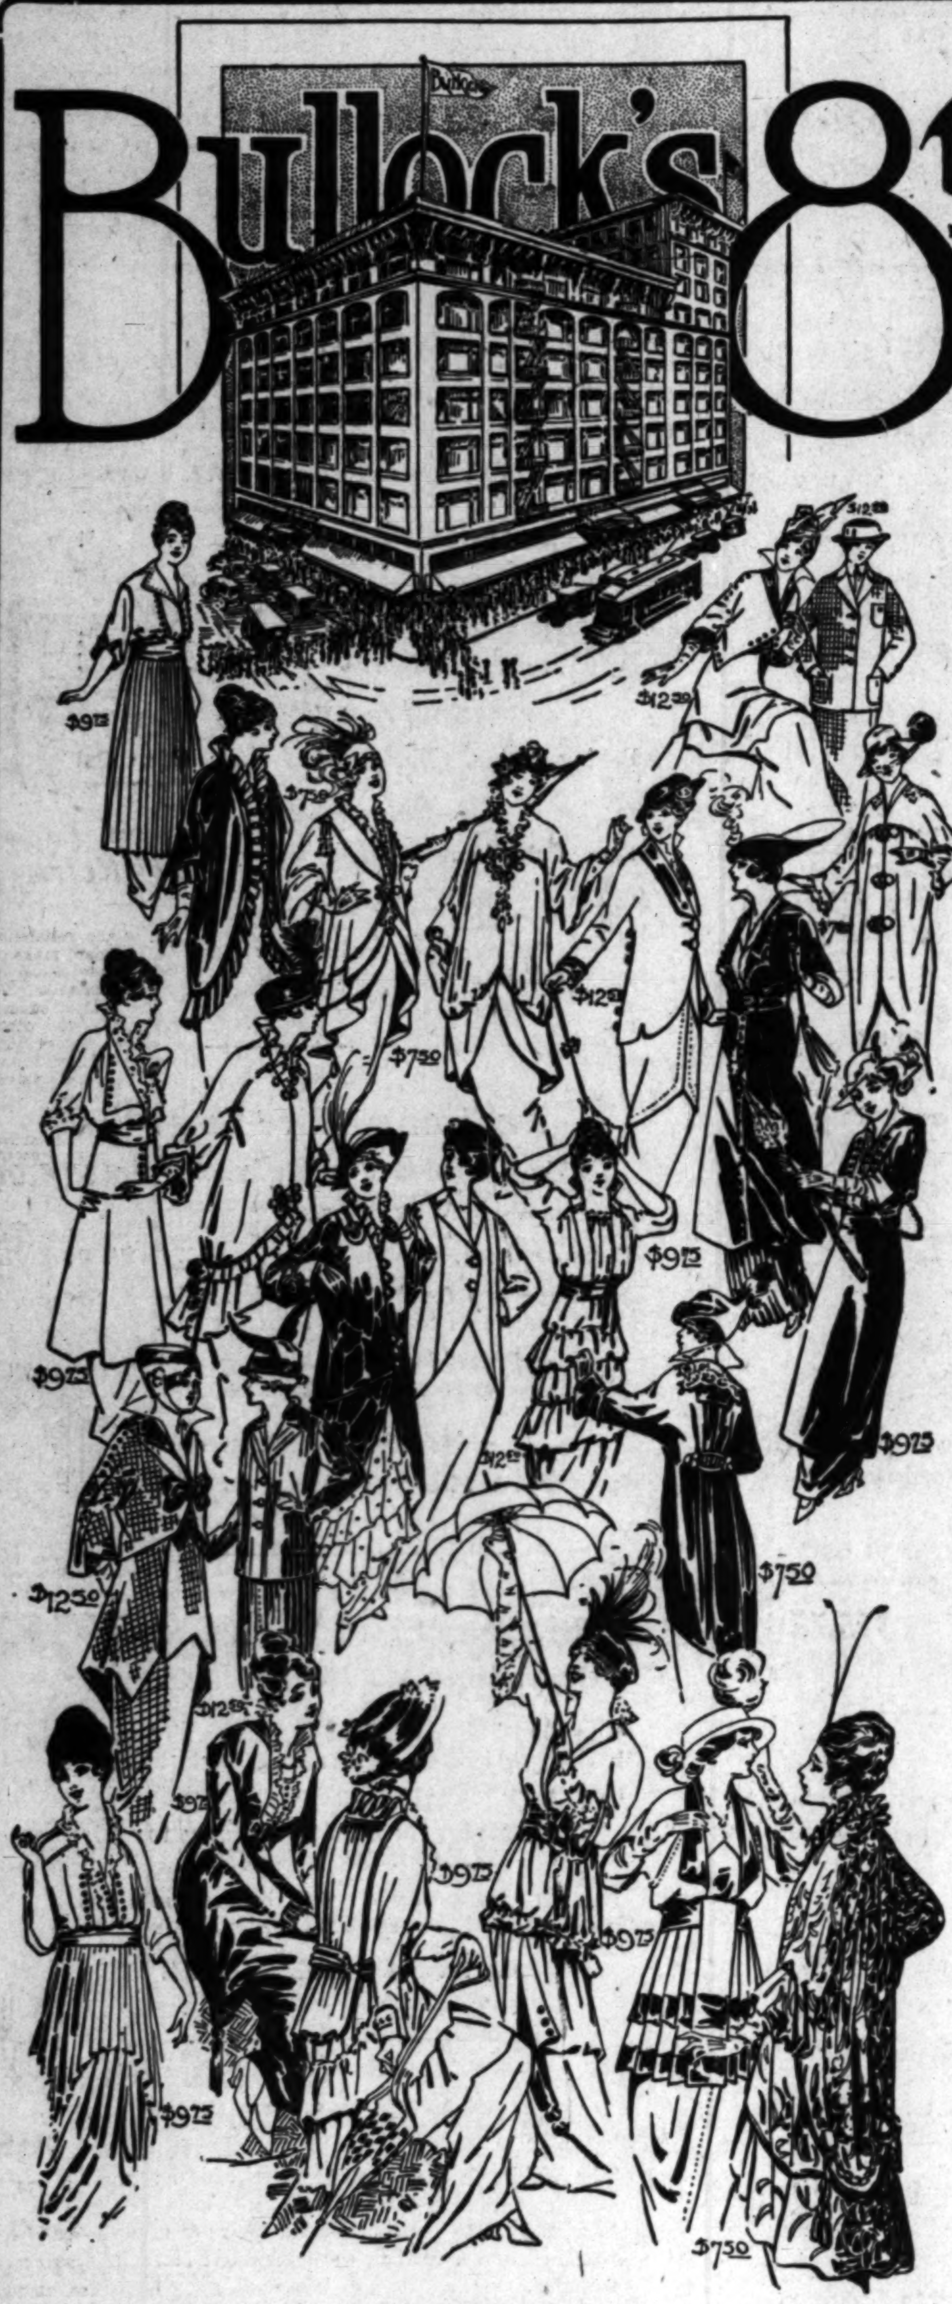
Bullock's 8th Clearance



Wonder of Wonders!

Coats — $7.50
Dresses - $9.75
Suits — $12.50

"Now for a Record

—"It's almost too much to expect to beat the sales of the first Monday in Clearance—but it isn't impossible—and the values are here that ought to do it—If you will give them the advertisement they deserve—

—"Just look at these Dresses—these Suits—these Coats—why the majority of them are

"Less Than Half Price

—"And these are merely a few of those we are going to put forward on Monday."—

—The writer wishes you could have seen them—the splendid Coats that are to be $7.50; the Dresses that will be $9.75; the Suits to be $12.50—He wishes you could have seen the high character of materials, style and workmanship, and shared the enthusiasm of the Fashion chief—

—Monday should be a great day—The possibilities are here that should make it the greatest day of all Clearance in the Fashion Salons—if women generally will but appreciate the importance of this announcement.

—Note the pictures—drawn directly from garments concerned—the first time they have been printed. See the windows fronting on Broadway. Plan to come to Bullock's to share these values early, Monday

Silk Dresses will be $9.75

—That were earlier $19.75 and $22.50

—Smart effects of crepe de chine, pussy willow taffeta, and tiny striped silk, in black, white, navy, French blue, green, and light gray tones.

—Most of them Russian tunic models, pleated, flared and fitted with plain, close drop skirts. Some have accordion pleated drop skirts and long tunics.

—The waists are trimmed with embroidered mull or chiffon—around neck and down front.

—Some have vests, cuffs and upstanding collars of chiffon. Some have frills. Others have collars and cuffs of organdy, tucked or hemstitched. Now $9.75.

The Coats that will be $7.50

—Include splendid values from $15 to $25

—Coats of silk moire, poplin or taffeta. Even black moire with figures in Persian tones.

—Semi-dress models for late summer and autumn wear. New flaring effects, longer in front than back.

—The prettiest styles we have seen—in navy, French blue, Copenhagen, wistaria, green, tan, mahogany, paprika, taupe and black. Values among values at $7.50.

The Suits that $12.50 will buy

—Include some that were earlier $35

—Suits of hard-finished serge, hairline stripes, indistinct stripes and mixtures, as well as novelty and shepherd checks, Bedford cords, novelty granite suitings.

—Many of them smart sport models with straight, loose coats, patch pockets, etc. Others with coats longer in back than front; smart novelty Eton effects.

—A wide range of remarkable values—$12.50.

—Don't miss this opportunity. Third floor, Monday.

New! New! New! Semi-Made Accordion Plaited Black Skirts $3.45

—(Paris Fashion Notes say accordion plaited Skirts are much in vogue—The demand proves the trend of style)—

—Buy Semi-made Accordion plaited Black Panama Skirts—at Bullock's, Monday—$3.45.

—Adapted for dancing—athletic and street wear—Complete with waist band attached

—The opportunities offered in Bullock's little, if not remarkable—

—Think of the famous Acme "Kumpackt"

—And the Acme "1914" 4 section, $4.95. Do you wonder the Dress Form ning for another day of wonderful

—Such offerings as these are too great

—The "KUMPACKT" Acme Dress Form is an ingenious patented arrangement which enables the user to fold up the skirt, thus reducing the figure to one-half its size, making it fit nicely in a box 32 inches high and 14 inches square. When not in use it can be put away in any corner.

—The "KUMPACKT" is so simple and yet so practical that you will wonder why it was not conceived before.

—The figure is the newest model, graceful in appearance and most substantial in construction. The bust part is made out of superior papier mache and covered with jersey cloth; the skirt is made of the best flexible steel, highly finished, and with ordinary care, will last a lifetime.

—It will save its cost many times a year.

—Sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42.

—The sensationally low price at which these "KUMPACKT" forms are to be sold at Bullock's—$2.95.

ACTIVITIES ARE EDUCATIONAL.

Mrs. West Is Wife of Newly-Appointed Senator.

Keenly Interested in Work that Helps World.

Comes from Georgia; Expert in Its Agriculture.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The successor of the lamented Augustus Octavius Bacon is as typical of the striding forward new South as the late statesman was of the old regime. Senator West and his wife are dominant factors in their community and both are impressed with the destiny of a country producing cotton which ranks with the most perfect specimens of the world. The new Senator studied law, but he now gives his attention primarily to lumber and cotton, and he owns one of the largest and most repaying plantations of Southeast Georgia. His home, Valdosta, claims two distinctions, first it is the only city of the name in the entire world and second, it is the most extensive sea island cotton market of the continent.

Mrs. William Stanley West,
Wife of newly-appointed Georgian Senator.

"We claim many other features allied to fame," remarked Mrs. West, "the recital of which might not arouse the enthusiasm in outsiders which it does in us. One relates to our location on the map. We are right on the highway between the States of Florida and Georgia, and our city has long been a halting place for the traveler not in the sense of the pleasure seeker of the winter resident of the two States, but those who for many reasons shift about, sometimes it is the hope of regaining health, other times to obtain more repaying compensation for labor, often just the spirit of adventure which leads men and women to seek new fields. The result was that our streets at one time were filled with unfortunates. Not alone tramps going from North to South or South to North as the exigencies of the weather suggested, but unhappy creatures down and out. Many had sought the South for the benefit of their health, had spent their all and were cast adrift on the world. We were compelled to take up the matter in the civic way and I am glad to say our women took the problem in hand and have solved it creditably. We have among our civic philanthropies, an organization of United Charities, which grew out of individual efforts to remedy various conditions. From this we have an Emergency Home and a Charity Hospital. We have in this way taken indigents from the street and cared for the unfortunate until they were able to care for themselves.

INTERESTED IN CLUB WORK.

"We have the Wymodausis Club, which is departmental and has its civic, philanthropic, literary and artistic divisions. I am at present second vice-president of this club and have been from its inception an enthusiastic and active member. Our city has but 14,000 inhabitants, and to keep up all that we hope required diligent efforts on the part of all. I am president of the Emergency Home and this work makes a more earnest appeal I believe more than any thing outside of my home duties.

"Now to remark after all this confession that I am not in any sense a club woman seems inconsistent. I believe in clubs which do things, even those which by recreation and mental stimulus assist in the performance of more serious duties are worth while in the smaller community especially. I am not in the ranks of restless women nor do I find so much that seems crying for reform. We have few grievances in Georgia against the laws as they are written or as they are executed. Like other communities of the South, we are proud of the moral influence we wield in a silent unobtrusive way on public affairs and few would like to have things changed. It does not appear that woman's mission has changed at all, despite the way the world has gone forward, and if she still clings to the old way of loving her home and attending to the needs in the home and in her community, she cannot get so far out of joint with the times. I have always taken the same natural attitude towards card clubs and other pleasures which consume so much time. I do not disapprove and I have no doubt that many women find a needful recreation and necessary diversion, but I have never found opportunity to give so much time and then I find my enjoyment in other channels."

BELIEVES IN HOME LIFE.

Mrs. West possesses a strong personality and indomitable energy in all she attempts. This impresses her visitor at first glance. Bright and alert, she conveys at once her ruling passion, that is to use her time in things worth while. Thus when years passed without children coming to brighten the home, Mrs. West saw her duty to supply the place of mother and to give a home to nieces and nephews of her husband and herself who had been deprived of these blessings. She has reared several nieces, giving them all that death had taken, educating them carefully both in the intellectual sense and with the idea of their becoming home keepers in the best sense. It is now her great joy that these dear companions have married well and gone forth well equipped to make the very best of their lives. This duty occupied the first decade of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. West and filled it with necessary cares so that social clubs and mere pleasure seeking could find no place. After thirteen years the only child, William Stanley West, came to fill the vacant places left by the cousins, who had built their own nests. He is a manly chap just past 12 and at present more interested in baseball and meeting the heroes of the diamond than in the more serious aspect of affairs in Washington. William, junior, is a student of the Normal College in Valdosta and will probably follow his father's footsteps into law and then into the larger affairs of his State.

"Living in the center of a great cotton-growing State," said Mrs. West, "our interests are bound up in the future of that beautiful plant. We have buyers of cotton residing right in our city and frequently we sell at home. Savannah, however, is our market, and enormous shipments are made to that lovely seaport. Cotton as a fabric is receiving such an impetus that we who love the South see the queen of the continent with her factories and vast industrial plants furnishing prosperity and progress for a great population attracted thither as well as for the older residents who have clung through good days and evil. Paris now sends

The New Basque Blouses

—There is an unexpected variation in these new, quaintly pretty blouses.

—They're of soft satin that lends itself gracefully to the slightly shirred or gathered front which you see in so many of them. Black, white, emerald green and the black-and-white combinations are most favored—strikingly smart, indeed, with the novelty or plain-color skirts for which they are designed to be worn—$6.75 to $12.75.

Two of the charming new models

Roman Stripe BLOUSES $5.95

COATINGS $2.95 yd.
Only 500 Yards—Boucle and Chinchillas—$3.75 to $5.00 All-Wool Qualities ......

—Loom ends—pieces of one to three coat lengths—from a leading manufacturer's advance-style coat materials for fall and winter. Later, from full bolts the same will sell for $3.75 to $5.00 a yard. Why wait—to pay a higher price?

—You can almost see the ultra smart coats which these materials will make—big, comfy affairs for motoring, or saucy sport coats for the links and other outings.

—Colors lead—a wild riot; reds, tango, old rose, mahogany, gold, tan, green, maize and black. No pure white, but the pastel shades among them.

Silk and Wool Poplins at 95c yd

—The 40-inch width—soft, lustrous and clinging; just 700 yards.

—Poplin is one of the leading fabrics this season and the assortment of colors in this particular lot is quite delightful. Navy, Royal purple, Copenhagen, Balkan, Alice and gendarme blues, Burgundy, plum, gold, taupe, sage green and old rose.

Roman Stripes and Plaids at $1.50 yard

—All-wool and 54 inches wide—think of it!—$1.50 only. Very rich for accordeon plaited skirts suits and capes. We have a plaited skirt pattern on display. See how very modish they are.

Silk CHANTILLY LACES 69c
$1.00 to $2.00 Flouncings. Demi-Flouncings and Bands

—You'd expect to pay full price for them—especially now, when there are heavy odds against other importations until European war conditions change.

—These we bought direct—from a manufacturer of Lyons just before the trouble began; 1500 yards in one lot—at a price concession which means much to you, for we've marked them proportionately low.

—There are 24-inch flouncings, exquisite 12-inch edges, slightly wider demi-flouncings, and bands in 5½-inch and similar widths. And certainly you'll never find more exquisite examples of the "blonde lace" than among these. The richness of the mesh, the variety and wonderful beauty of the patterns bewilder you. Such laces are not picked "just anywhere"—you might search for days and then be compelled to take something less beautiful, and at a very much higher price. Monday, these are only 69c the yard, remember!

to this country exquisite soft fine cotton dress goods, of color dainty as the tints of spring flowers and so desirable and rich that some sells for $3 and more by the yard.

"All the satins and velvets of the world cannot make a garment as charming as the very fine cotton, and this is now being recognized in the world of fashion. Of course for many seasons of the year silk fabrics are impossible, and the substitute of cotton even for winter wear with foundations of silk is fast attaining popularity. At present we make only the coarser cotton fabrics, but I believe the time is not far distant when the South will produce dress goods as soft and beautiful as those which are praised in Holy Writ as coming from Tyre and Sidon. It is an inspiring picture to see the South sending forth this wonderful cotton made into cloth instead of selling the bales for the benefit of other countries. Once on a time Egyptian cotton was rated the finest and most perfect in the world, but now the islands above the coast of South Carolina send forth as perfect cotton as the ancient lands about the Nile. We are fast climbing into front rank as producers of perfect cotton and now we only wait the time when we shall manufacture right in our own State that for which we now pay so many extra dollars in freight, duty and commissions.

REGARDING TEA RAISING.

"Tea has been attempted in our State and may in time make a profitable crop. The tea plant is very attractive and we have some in our community which having been allowed to grow make bushy looking shrubs almost twenty feet high. The foliage is pretty, resembling in shape the willow or pin oak leaf though of upright habit and a lighter green. The tea plants intended for commercial purposes are kept low, and the tiny green buds are plucked off while they are quite small and then dried. The native tea has a good flavor though the industry is in its infancy. We reside in Valdosta though we make frequent visits to the plantation. Plantation life of the antebellum days is almost as obsolete as the institution of slavery and the planters usually reside in adjacent towns, while the managers look after affairs on the farms.

"Only a vestige of the old regime is discernible in our location. Some parts of the farm land is tilled by hired hands to whom the manager furnishes every thing, food, clothing and shelter, besides an annual wage either in crops or cash. Other parts are let on shares. The quarters somewhat resemble the historical residential sections of slave times, though modern progress has touched this feature and the cabins are comfortable and always hygienic. One thing which our proximity to the pleasure ground of Southern Georgia and its situation on the road to Florida has brought are our perfect roads. We are but fifty miles from Thomasville and this is mere play for the touring cars with their winter residents to cover in the long days of leisure. We make journeys to and from the plantations and get all the good things for our table which owning a farm can give."

Mrs. West is engrossed in all that means progress of church work. She is a member of the Christian church and has been attending the Garfield Memorial Church in Vermont avenue since coming to Washington. The story of her conversion to this branch is most interesting and throws an illuminating aspect on her character. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Cranford, were divided in faith, one following the Methodist and the other the Baptist and so not liking to hurt the feelings of either as a child she attended the Sunday-school of one denomination and the regular services of the other alternately. During her school term in a college in Murfreesboro, Tenn., she accepted the invitation of a classmate to come to her church, the Christian, while the Baptist edifice was being repaired. Liking the services, she continued to attend the Christian church and later affiliated with it and is now a fervent and an untiring member.

THE STORY OF "ORA LEE."

Mrs. West's name, "Ora Lee," attracts immediate attention and she is often asked for whom is she named. Ora is a favorite name in Latin countries but Mr. and Mrs. Cranford had no Latin affiliations and they have no connection with the numerous Lee family. It came about in this way and is quite a little story. Her mother wished to call her Sophronia but her father, to Mrs. West's lasting gratitude, did not like the name and refused to have her thus known. So until she was quite a large girl she went by the name of 'Cissie.' Then she tried first one and then another name which appealed to her fancy. For a long time she would answer nothing but Mamie and other appelations enjoyed a brief term of popularity. Then somewhere, she cannot recall when, she heard the name of "Ora Lee" and coming home announced that this was to be her name, her genuine, all-her-life name. She clung to this and when she had joined the Christian church she was entered into its communion under the name of Ora Lee Cranford and so she remained. The Christian church does not teach infant baptism and so Mrs. West is just as entitled to the name of her own selection as if she had been so called when a tiny infant. She still admires the name as much as she did in her girlhood when it was selected, though she is always amused when asked to explain how she came to possess it.

There are many distinguished Georgians attending the Christian church, notably Justice and Mrs. Joseph Rucker Lamar, formerly of Augusta, Ga., now resident here. Justice Lamar is on the Supreme bench and though his family has always been Episcopalian in faith, his father was a minister of the branch of Christianity founded by Alexander Campbell. Mrs. West finds pleasure in reading and this is one of her diversions. About her beautiful colonial home in Valdosta is a garden of roses which claims much of her time and furnishes all the diversion she needs from the care of home and the executing of her many duties connected with her club and the Home for Strangers, of which she is president.

An Automobile Requisite.

[Indianapolis News:] As an indication of the tremendous size of the automobile industry, it is interesting to note that in one year approximately 1,000,000 hides are used for upholstery purposes. The ordinary roadster body requires little more than two complete hides, and the touring body about three hides. The average a car therefore is two and one-half hides. From the time the hide is stripped from the animal, it requires from ten weeks to six months completely to prepare it for use, the time varying with the quality of the leather. Each hide is split into four grades, which are known as hand buffs, machine buffs, deep buffs and splits. The hand buffs are the best and are the part nearest the hair. It is the quality that is most used in the best motor car factories.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Gypsey, a 20-year-old mare, owned by Frank D. Parsons, a real estate dealer of Kansas City, Mo., is so faithful and so well thought of by her master that she is given a vacation once every year, just like railroad presidents, doctors and other folk of the city, except that her period of rest and pleasure is much longer. Four months out of every year are play months for her.

For fifteen years Gypsey has virtually been a member of the Parsons family. She stands without hitching, is always ready for work and, despite her age, is in rugged health and shows no signs of being an old horse.

December 1, every year, Parsons has Gypsey's shoes removed, and she is permitted to rest four months. She is given a diet of rolled oats and alfalfa, a box stall to sleep in, and a big lot for romping and rolling when she feels like it.

In the summer time the horse is sprayed twice a day with a preparation that keeps off the flies, and she will stand all day without tossing her head or stamping.

President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University announces an additional $60,000 for dormitories at the university had been given by the same man whose gift of $100,000 was announced some time ago by George C. Boldt, chairman of the Trustees' Committee on Buildings. The name of the donor is withheld at his request, but it is announced that he lives in New York City, is not a graduate of Cornell and up to this time has taken no unusual interest in the university.

Maxwell Ward, telephone lineman of Columbia Cross Roads, Bradford county, Pennsylvania, has fallen heir to $40,000, which was left him by Oscar Wanderleau of Montana. Ten years ago Mr. Ward befriended Mr. Wanderleau in Sioux City when the latter was sick and penniless. He paid his board, amounting to $14.72, and a physician's bill of $9.

Mr. Wanderleau gave him a receipt for the payment, and this receipt has been the means of identifying the lineman as the man remembered in the will. Mr. Ward is to get $7500 in cash and $3000 yearly for ten years.

As the steamer Orient was leaving the Battery landing, New York City, Arthur Embley, the mate, fell overboard, but was rescued from drowning by Peter McNeil, who dived in and after a courageous struggle got him ashore, where he was revived.

This is the tenth rescue that McNeil has made. He was congratulated for his bravery by Capt. Bowman of the Orient. McNeil probably inherits some of his bravery from his grandfather, Lawrence F. Fay, who is the only living survivor of the Monitor of Civil War fame.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor has turned from the social life of Bar Harbor, where she is spending the summer, to solicit funds from door to door to aid the Young Women's Christian Association. The widow of Col. Astor, who lost his life on the Titanic, has demonstrated that as a solicitor of funds she has ability of high order. She has given up golf and tennis for the time being to aid the money-getting campaign.

The districts were drawn by lot, and Mrs. Astor found her work was in the section of the town where few of the residents are well-to-do. Most of the subscriptions she obtained were small, ranging from a few cents to $2, but the total amount obtained added a large sum to the fund.

Because of the sudden death of J. Gardner Muir of Pottsville, Pa., the Pottsville Hospital will immediately receive a bequest of $50,000, and the Pottsville Children's Home $25,000. He was the son of James Muir, who left an estate of $500,000, and provided that on the death of his son the two local institutions should receive the above sums. The son was but 34 years of age.

Joseph Remington, engine driver, was killed, and Rimeyn Witson, fireman, and Frank Cowell, flagman, were badly hurt when a Central New England locomotive, running light, leaped the track near West Pawling, N. Y., and plunged down a twenty-foot embankment.

Though terribly scalded, Witson dragged himself to the West Pawling station, nearly a mile away, to give the alarm, and have stopped a train soon due. After giving the alarm the fireman collapsed. He is in a hospital, not expected to live. The flagman's right leg was broken.

Andrew Carnegie puts the responsibility for the European war on the Kaiser. He says: "Germany having declined Britain's proposed peace conference and then having asked Britain to agree to her march through Belgium, Britain was bound to decline and declare that she would protect Belgium by land and sea."

Col. John S. Mosby and Capt. Fontaine Beattie slept together on the plains of Manassas on the eve of the first battle of Bull Run, which was fought July 21, 1861. In the fifty-third anniversary of that day they both visited the battlefield for the first time since the war, and were able to identify the spot where they slept.

Gov. Ralston of Indiana has declined to serve on a "world-wide committee to be organized to assist in stopping the European war." He nevertheless says he believes the war is useless and barbarous.

ANTONY ANDERSON.

From "The Deserted Garden."

Adventurous joy it was for me!
I crept beneath the boughs, and found
A circle smooth of mossy ground
  Beneath a poplar tree.

Old garden rose-trees hedged it in,
Bedropt with roses waxen-white;
Well satisfied with dew and light,
  And careless to be seen.

Long years ago, it might befall,
When all the garden flowers were trim,
The grave old gardener prided him
  On these the most of all.

Some lady, stately overmuch,
Here moving with a silken noise,
Has blushed beside them at the voice
  That likened her to such.

Or these, to make a diadem,
She often may have plucked and twined;
Half-smiling as it came to mind
  That few would look at them.

Oh, little thought that lady proud
A child would watch her fair white rose,
When buried lay her whiter brows,
  And silk was changed for shroud!

Exhibition of Illustrations.

An exhibition of illustrations by William V. Cahill and John H. Rich will open tomorrow at the new School of Illustration and Painting, No. 342 North Main street. It will continue for a week, including Sunday, and will be open every day from 12 to 5.

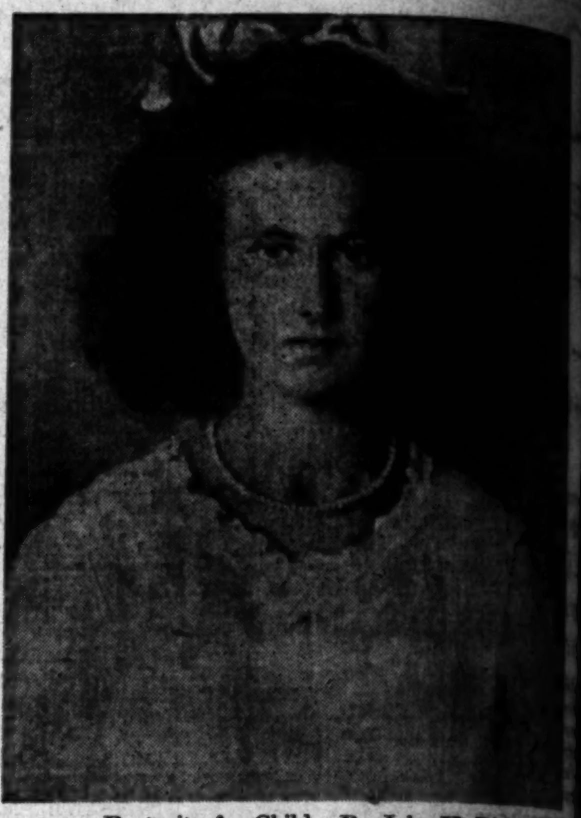
Rich and Cahill, who came recently from Boston, and who will remain permanently in Los Angeles, started the new school a few weeks ago, and even the warm weather has not kept pupils away, for they are coming in increasing numbers, thus assuring success to the venture—which is certainly well worthy of success, for both its sponsors are men of marked ability and experience.

The artists have been waiting for some time for pictures shipped from Boston, that they might give us an exhibition, and thus prove to us their worth as painters and illustrators. After vexatious and unaccountable delays, these have at last arrived, and two exhibitions have forthwith been planned. The first, opening tomorrow, will be of illustrations only, and will not be granted the dignity of a formal gallery. The other will consist of paintings—portraits, genres, landscapes—and will receive orientation as soon as the proper gallery is found.

Strictly speaking, John Rich's pictures are not illustrations, for he is not now and never has been an illustrator. But some of them have the intention and quality of genres, tell a story in a simple and unforced way, and may therefore not be out of place in a show like this. Cahill's excellent illustrations, in black and white and in color, are of a recent past period, for he has graduated into painting, and a painter he hopes to remain all his days.

The fifteen illustrations, more or less, by Cahill, are the originals of drawings made for books and magazines, and demonstrate not only his power in draughtsmanship and composition, but also his ability as an interpreter of his author's thought. Howard Pyle was his instructor—and Pyle brooked no superficial renderings. Solid, accurate and painstaking himself, he always demanded these qualities in his pupils.

A few magazine covers in color, with several designs for calendars, are also shown by Cahill. As a colorist the artist is clean and brilliant, direct and forceful. His effects are never got haphazard, but are the result of knowledge intelligently used. He paints largely out of doors, under direct sunlight. Excellent examples are the study of a child with a brass pan full of ripe apples, a girl carrying an apron full of bloomy goldenrod; a chic young miss with a yellow hat trimmed with pink roses and green ribbons, a red mask just removed from her roguish face. This last, intended for a magazine cover, is almost severely accurate in drawing, though it escapes the charge of tightness. You may call it commercially lithographic, if you like, without fear of contradiction from the artist himself, who has the painter's instinct and knew perfectly well what he was about when he made that cover. Cahill's still-life study of a brass jar and a blue bowl is broad and direct, assuredly the work of a painter.



Portrait of a Child. By John H. Rich.

John Rich has no calendars and no magazine covers to his credit, but instead he shows some beautifully painted interiors, with a number of thumb-box studies of young women doing nothing in particular, but looking very sweet and charming and picture-like. Rich doesn't need a big subject for a picture of his refined sense for beauty finds his picture for him anywhere and everywhere, and his instinct never plays him false.

Two particularly attractive interiors come from the artistic old home of a decorative artist in West Newbury, Mass. The first has three figures, all little girls, the other only one. The cool gray walls of the rooms, with their old-fashioned furnishings, are delightfully rendered, the little maids have found he most sympathetic of friends in the artist. Very attractive, too is the picture of a young girl reading some letters she has just unearthed from an old trunk, yellow letters of a past generation. The flesh is beautifully rendered, the light in the room is subdued to harmonies of warm grays and lavenders.

Unassuming as this little exhibition is, it should not be missed by lovers of art, for there are treasures in it.

Thumb-box Sketches.

The popularity of the exhibition of thumb-box sketches given some months ago in the Merick Reynolds gallery proved to be so great that another has been planned. In this instance, however, the works shown will be from the brushes of artists of Southern California, not New York City.

The coming exhibition will open on Thursday in the new and well-lighted Royar gallery, No. 744 South Hill street, and will continue for a month, closing on September 20. Eighty sketches will be shown, the work of about thirty painters. They will be in oil and water color, and will conform to no particular rule, except that all must be of small size, not too large to be carried in an artist's thumb-box.

Painters of Los Angeles and Pasadena need not fear comparison, in the sketches they have submitted, with the sketches of the eastern painters, for most of the work to be shown has strength and virility, and that candid directness which is the chief charm of the sketch. This is not saying that more finished studies are omitted, for they will be found here, as they always are in the so-called thumb-box exhibitions.

Royar planned the exhibition, beginning operations about a month ago, and the response of the painters of Southern California has been most hearty and gratifying. Practically every active member of the fornia Art Club will be by two or more sketches, many painters not in the club.

American Water Colors.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

BALBOA, Aug. 14.

Susie dear: Your letter was forwarded to us down here where we are all having a frivolous back-to-nature time of it and living best part of the day in our very becoming new bathing suits—the latest kind, you know dear, that are so like the men's that you wouldn't know the difference except that they are chosen with a more discreet eye as to color and worn with the trickiest little caps you ever heard of.

But to your letter. Of course Mabel and I will be absolutely delighted to act as your bridesmaids in the fall. It will be Mabel's third affair of the kind and she feels a little timid about it. Those old superstitions about three times a bridesmaid never a bride are difficult to ignore when one's whole future hope of romance may be blasted thereby. However, she says if you will have plenty of pink in the designs for the dresses and choose Charlie for one of the groom's men, she thinks she can overcome her scruples.

Which is all very well for Mabel; but pink never did suit me and I think blue, with dashes of pale, pale yellow, would be infinitely more attractive. However, we can talk that over when we come up next week—and we'll talk Mabel over, too, because her complexion will stand any color and mine won't.

In the meantime the mater wants you to come down for the week end and bring Joe. We are the jolliest party down here, swimming, dancing, flirting, quarreling all the time, and nicely sorted out so that every lassie has a laddie ne'er a one that aye.

So far Catherine Phelps has been holding the center of the stage. Behold that engaging young person in a vivid green bathing suit of the silkiest wool, clinging close to her youthful, graceful young figure. Green silk stockings meet it at the exact point of diplomacy, and a green turban of the chic mode swathes her small head. For strolling through the town purposes she wears a white sweater of the correct clingy kind, just the right length, and white shoes with tango laces up the green stockings. She swims like a mermaid and all the boys are loud and long in their praises—indeed, our particular crowd has a disconcerting way of talking little else at breakfast every morning—Ormonde and Collins Butler, Douglas McKinnon, Ben White, George Booth, some of the nicest boys in town, cherie, and all carrying snapshots of Cathy in their pocket cases!

And she also dances—oh, how she can dance! Every new step and all the prettiest old ones. But Helen Abbott runs her close in popularity, one observes—in black and green bathing suit, very piquant.

Everyone down here has a house full of boys and girls—and the dance parties, nightly occurrences, of course, include that trim little Dolly Twist, that athletic young Marie Bullock, captivating Ida Burns, the ever winsome Mabel Derby, Margaret Snowden, Ruth Visel, Consuela Henley, Connie Stearns, Dorothy Davies and so on, besides such eminently desirable young men as Billie Collins, Edwin Ware, John Gavin, John Derby, Jack Rennett and Homer Church.

The Bulla girls have regular week-end parties of the Friday to Tuesday kind—their house is quite fascinating. Vivian and Lois keep open house when they are down here and we all go in there to finish up the evening dancing when the hall closes—that means till next morning and it's horrible getting up for the early swim which is, of course, imperative.

The Engstrums' house down here is a palatial affair, quite finished now, and adorns the bayside. In fact we are a very stylish little colony, cherie, and rather feel as if we own all Balboa.

So Louis Cass and Virginia will be married in the fall, too. That makes five smart weddings already booked. Lucy Lantz and Harry McKinley have bagged the first week in September, so you better make yours a week later. We must positively come home soon enough to get our complexions right—and not a one amongst us that dares wear decollete evening dress for weeks and weeks. My nose shines brilliantly on every spot that isn't peeling and Elsie's arms are so dreadfully sunburned that the boys have fixed up little notices to hang on her in the dance room "Touch me not."

And legs! The few girls who have braved decorum and gone in for the bravado. Oh, my dear, there is tragedy in a sun-burned leg. They blaze a fiery red through our white silk stockings when we are dressed—which isn't until just before dinner at night—and those of us who were weak enough to cold cream them heavily always show the grease spots all up the shin!

From what you say, Marguerite Rimpau's wedding must have been a happy affair. Joe is a nice boy and they ought to be very serene. If they are going to live on St. Andrews place does that mean they have bought near Mrs. Rimpau's or will they stay with her for a time?

June weddings seem to have lapped over into August, don't they? Four this week, Carlotta Thompson and Harry Bastian, Mary Dixon and Brace Carter (what a young bridegroom Brace must have seemed!) and that sweet serious Elise Taggart and Walter Casey.

Well, with so much war in the air and such a crying need of men, it behooves every young mother to do her duty by the country, doesn't it?

Yes, I remember, Helen Crennan quite well. She was in New York when we were and we saw her several times. Am so glad she is visiting California; we must go and see her directly we get back.

Mrs. Childs and Emmy are still up at Santa Barbara; so are a great many of that set. But most of the girls with golfing papas will have to wait until September and go to Del Monte then—the big championship tournament is on the fifth, you know, and so many of our country club people seem to be going up—war or no war!

The Montagues have decided not to go back to England far a time at all events, so we shall probably have them all the winter. Which will certainly prove a social asset—their small but distinguished little entertainments would be sadly missed.

There were three widows at the Colwell's party the other night and the caustic Col. Viljoen took occasion to remark that "Some are born widows, some achieve widowhood and some have widows thrust upon them." Mrs. Colwell looked at him with that vacant smile of hers and had evidently missed the point, but she overheard that amusing Miss Kerns murmur, "And some people are born Boers, some become bores and others have boredom thrust upon them."

So she hastened to chide her kindly. "You mustn't confess you're bored, dear," she said. "Ennui is quite out of fashion. Nowadays our motto is 'the dance, the dance, on with the dance,' and I will see that you have the first hesitation with Col. Viljoen if you will promise to be a little enthusiastic."

Everyone, including the Colonel, laughed, of course—and the last we saw of them there wasn't any hesitation about the Colonel.

Well, so long, dear, pack up and come down right away—half my bed awaits you.

Your affectionate,
DOLLY.

of this city and of Pittsburgh, Pa., a brief outing at has been a decided success at Coronado this season, if one may judge from the attendance and the entertaining which follows each match. Mrs. Walter Hamlin Dupee entertained at tea a party of twenty at the Country Club on Tuesday following the game.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Groenendyke of Pasadena entertained twenty members of the younger set with a launch party Monday, going to Point Loma and stopping at North Island on the return. Mr. Heberhart entertained a number of hotel guests by taking them in the "Glorietta" to the U. S. Army Aviation Camp to see the flying. There they were the guests of Capt. Arthur S. Cowan and his brother officers. Glenn Martin, the famous aviator, entertained twenty-one of his friends by taking them for a fly in his new flying-boat and hydroplane.

More than 200 people gathered at the hotel last night for the second soire dansante on the ocean terrace.

Before the dance Mr. Heberhart gave a dinner at which were Miss Frances Lunkenheimer of Pasadena, Miss Marjorie Ullman, Miss Edith Rucker, Miss Grace Gibson, Miss Marguerite Sullivan, Miss Beatrice Neal of Los Angeles, Miss Persis Williams, Miss Irene Gross of Pasadena, Miss Barbara Blankenhorn of Pasadena, Miss LaBelle Boise of Pasadena, Lieuts. Schumann, the chaperone.

Miss Louise Burke also entertained at a dinner at which were Mrs. Harry Holbrook, Miss Constance O'Connor, Mrs. Wakefield Baker, Miss Garland, John D. Spreckels and Carleton Burke. The decorations were of pink amaryllis.

Among the many others seen in the big dining-room were the Walter Hamlin Dupees, Capt. and Mrs. Arthur S. Cowan, Mrs. Claus Spreckels, the Percival Thompsons, Raymond V. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Foulois, Mrs. Stephen Fuqua and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Smart.

Good Time Anticipated.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Olcovich of No. 548 Kingsley Drive have just returned from an extended trip through the New England States. Much of the distance was covered by automobile, particularly through the picturesque Berkshires and from Boston to New York.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Olcovich, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Tracey of Kingsley Drive, left on a four weeks' camping trip in the mountains back of San Bernardino. A fortnight of their stay in the mountains will be spent in the vicinity of Litle Bear Lake. The trip was made in automobiles and during their absence from their Los Angeles homes the quartette will experience the delights of true country life in all of its simplicity and ruggedness.

Mexico City Guests Honored.

Mrs. Dan D. Nichols and Mrs. Mark Katze of Mexico City, shared honors at a smart bridge luncheon given by Mrs. William T. Barnette recently at her home, No. 1018 Elden avenue. American Beauty roses nodding from long stems in crystal vases enlivened the dining-room, while the balance of the home was gay with crimson roses and carnations, combined with feathery ferns. Those asked to meet the honor guests included Mrs. Fred Stephenson, Mrs. Irving Bancroft, Mrs. Alfred Jobson, Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. Lyman Craig, Mrs. John McAlester, Mrs. Ben Jacobs of Monrovia, Mrs. Virginia Katze, Mrs. Rose Maxwell of Pasadena, Mrs. Lulu Page, Miss Mabel Smith and Miss Camilla Bley of San Francisco.

Dinner and Theater Party.

Mr. and Mrs. John Catron of Playa del Rey entertained with a dinner party at the Van Nuys Hotel Thursday evening, followed by a theater party at the Orpheum, complimenting Dr. and Mrs. A. Townsend of New York City, who made a transcontinental trip in their automobile from New York City, and left Friday on their return trip. Others included were Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGinn of Omaha, Neb.; Mr. and Mrs. Creighton Largey of Butte, Mont., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gortner of South Pasadena.

For Bride and Groom-elect.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Fisher, No. 3043 Wilshire boulevard, entertained Thursday evening honoring their daughter, Miss Ruth Fisher, and her fiance, Garfield Bromley Oxnam, who will be married next Wednesday evening in the Fisher home.

Creamy Shasta daisies and potted plants embellished the home, and guests included embraced the Baraca, Philathea classes and the Young People's Epworth League of the First Methodist Church. Each class provided a stunt, and progressive games and music were enjoyed, followed by dainty refreshments. Seventy-five guests were present.

Another enjoyable affair for Miss Fisher, a few days ago, was the tea given by Mrs. William A. Ravenscroft at her home, No. 1457 Griffith avenue. Masses of enchantress carnations, dainty pink rosebuds and ferns were effectively arranged throughout the rooms. A feature of the afternoon was a collection of old relics showed by the hostess, one of especial interest being a quaint old table cloth, in the center of which was woven the Lord's Prayer. Guests included Mrs. Clyde Scott Yerge, Mrs. Alvin Ravenscroft, Miss Ruth Lockwood, Miss Margaret Lockwood, Miss Flora Cronemiller, Miss Lois Oxman and Miss Aileen Ravenscroft.

Trip to Virginia.

Mrs. Clarence Penn of Serrano avenue has gone to Virginia, where she will be the guest of her mother for six months.

Will Return Home.

Mrs. L. C. Boyle and her three charming daughters, the Misses Katherine, Clara Louise and Gertrude, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Simpson at the Bryson apartments for the past two months, to the regret of their many friends are planning to return to their home in Kansas City. Next Tuesday they will leave for a short trip to San Francisco, Del Monte and Santa Cruz, and upon their return will stop here only a day or so.

Thursday evening Mrs. Boyle entertained informally with a supper dance at the Bryson, returning a few of the many compliments she has received while a guest in the city. The beautiful ballroom was enhanced with old-fashioned blossoms, among which were amaryllis and marigolds. Mrs. Simpson assisted the hostess, and a colored orchestra furnished delightful music for the many new dances.

Yesterday afternoon and evening Misses Katherine and Clara Louise Boyle entertained with a party at Venice and a picnic supper on the beach. The guests were taken down in automobiles and the pleasures of the shore town were greatly enjoyed. Twenty-six of the younger set were included.

A dainty luncheon was given for Mrs. Boyle Wednesday at the Alexandria, when covers were laid for six. Candelabra of silver, surmounted with pink shades, shed a soft glow over the table and the base was surrounded with a mound of Cecile Brunner roses, interspersed with maiden hair fern.

To Mountain Cabin.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harrison and small daughter of Kingsley drive and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Newerf and daughter, Miss Gladys, and son, Kenneth, will spend the week-end in a mountain cabin in the Arroyo Seco.

Bridge Afternoon.

Mrs. Cora Kinnie of the Rex Arms entertained Friday with an afternoon of bridge, decorating her apartments with yellow coreopsis and ferns. The affair was informal, guests to make three tables. Dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. Harry B. Hibbs held high score for the afternoon.

Smart Bridge Luncheon.

A congenial coterie of friends who meet to play cards during the summer were entertained for luncheon Thursday by Mrs. George McIntyre at her home, No. 330 South Alvarado street. All the appointments for the luncheon were carried out in pink, the table being bright with Fair Maid carnations, placed in a large brown basket, the handle tied with fluffy bows of tulle. At each end were tall, pink-shaded candelabra, lending their grace. Assisting the hostess was her sister, Mrs. H. F. Oesting, who is her house guest.

Tables were arranged for games of auction following luncheon and those included were Mrs. Theodore Simpson, Mrs. John Boyle of Kansas City, Mrs. Robert A. Smith, Mrs. Johnson of Kansas City; Mrs. John W. Thayer, Mrs. Sol Davis, Mrs. David Unruh, Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. George Steckel, Mrs. T. A. Warren, Mrs. Thomas Wright and Mrs. A. McFarland.

Wee Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bradley Wheeler are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a little baby daughter. This is the second daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, the first baby being 21 months old the day her little sister arrived. Mrs. Wheeler will be remembered as Miss Helen Stoughton of Pasadena, and Mr. Wheeler is the son of Mrs. Robert Jones Burdette.

For Bride-Elect.

Complimentary to Miss Birdie Beaudry, who is to become the bride of Floyd L. Jones of Mexico in September, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Charles Walker of Hollywood entertained a number of friends with a dancing party Friday night. Those present were Miss Zyl McKain, Miss Sophia Ketcher, Miss Celo Nevell, Miss Ella Nevell, Miss Celo Potter, Miss Barbara Lambkin, Miss Irnie Bateman, Miss Hazel Potter, Mrs. Ed McKain, Mrs. Frank Walker, Mrs. James Nevell, Mrs. Robert N. Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Ryus, Mr. and Mrs. Will Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Riese, Mr. and Mrs. William Cline, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. C. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. John Maurer, Miss Wilser, Mr. Roger Sturges, Mr. J. Nellis and Paul Maurer.

In New York.

Miss J. McCulloch of Los Angeles is a guest of the Wolcott, New York.

Personal Mention.

Among the guests at the Bryson are Mr. and Mrs. Peter McClelland, who have closed their Wilshire boulevard home permanently. They are accompanied by their daughter, Miss Willie McClelland, for whom Mrs. McClelland is planning a number of smart social events.

W. Secor and T. Mankowski of New York City have come to Los Angeles for an extended stay, and are making their home at the Bryson.

Dr. and Mrs. L. P. Kaull, who have just returned from a trip through the East, have taken permanent apartments at the Bryson.

In Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Beggs and Miss Terrill arrived safely in Paris last week. They plan to remain a month or more.

Bride-elect Honored.

Complimenting Miss Leah Brewer, who will wed this summer, members of the Tau Sigma Gamma Sorority recently entertained at the home of Miss Grace Sherbrooke of No. 3550 Arlington street, with a bride's shower. Green and gold, the club colors, prevailed in the decorating and these were carried out in yellow daisies and ferns. A little messenger boy called in the afternoon with a basket filled with gifts for the young honoree. Refreshments were enjoyed at the flower-laden tables placed in the garden. There were plates for Mrs. E. E. W. Rixon, Mrs. W. Ray Barranger, Miss Marion Demmon, Miss Gladys Wadsworth, Miss Madeline Wadsworth, Miss Lucia Railsback, Miss Lne Bender, Miss Ardis Barranger, Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Miss Hope Nash, Miss Mary Parkinson, Miss Josephine Chambers, Miss Florence Adams, Miss Irma Hagerman, Miss Grace Howeth, Miss Edith Wilkerson, Miss Elizabeth Wehrkamp, Miss Myrtle Sherbrooke, Miss Tegner and Miss Aurelia Huttenlocker.

From Denver.

Mrs. William Oakes of Denver and her charming daughter, Miss Leana, have returned to Colorado, where Mr. Oakes is president of a large coal mining company.

Pleasant Tour.

F. L. Ewing and Carl Ewing of Yuma, Ariz., as well as Mr. and Mrs. J. Iaeger of Tucson, Ariz., have left for an extensive tour around the southern hemisphere. After visiting Bahia, Santos and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, they will continue to Montevideo, Buenos Ayres and through the Argentine Republic; thence to Valparaiso and Chile, returning along the western coast of South America, visiting all the principal ports en route to Panama; returning via Jamaica, Cuba, and New Orleans.

Returns from Arizona.

Mrs. Frank Elmer Rich, who has been spending five months in Arizona, is now the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling M. Pierce, of No. 1151 Overton street. Little Claire Pierce, who accompanied her grandmother, has also returned.

Interesting Itinerary.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Lloyd, accompanied by their two children, Florence and Alice, sailed recently from San Francisco for Tahiti, Raratonga, North and South Islands of New Zealand and for extensive travel through Australia.

Two Months' Outing.

Miss Charlotte Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wickliffe Matthews of No. 6242 Marmion Way, left last week for Portland, Or., where she will spend two months. Upon her return she will make stops at San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose.

Seaside Outing.

Mrs. Virginia Hunter, Miss Virginia Hunter, the Claude Guittards, the George Mangums and the Edwin Harrises have taken three cottages on the Ocean Front at Santa Monica, where they will spend the remaining summer months.

Recent Wedding.

At the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. E. Jenkins of No. 1468 Arden avenue, Glendale, Miss M. V. French and C. L. Jenkins were united in marriage August 11, Rev. William Sloan presiding. The bride was attired in a lingerie gown and carried bride roses and ferns. Pink roses and ferns were used to perfume the rooms and in this pretty setting a buffet supper was served. After a brief trip Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will make their home in this city.

Pleasant Outing.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling M. Pierce are enjoying a two-weeks' sojourn at Bonita Park.

Friends Honored.

Prof. and Mrs. Le Roy Payne entertained about fifty friends with a box party Friday at the Ocean Park pavilion. Dancing was enjoyed.

In the East.

Friends of Miss Florence Miriam Johnson will be pleased to know that she sailed from London just before war was declared and is now safe in the East. She will arrive in this city about September 1, having spent the past ten months in travel.

Home Again.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar M. Bryn of South Hope street have returned from a pleasant outing at Coronado.

Safe in Geneva.

A cable has just been received from Miss Sallie B. Pritchartt of Beverly Hills and Miss Alice Crowell of this city, who have been traveling in Europe, of their safe arrival in Geneva.

Season-End Sale

Monday we will present some of the most remarkable garment values ever offered in Los Angeles. The exclusive character of The Unique demands that we close out every garment in its season—now. Price is not the object, but absolute clearance is imperative. Not one solitary garment will be carried over. They can not last long at these prices.

$25.00 to $50.00 Suits, Gowns, Afternoon and Street Dresses, Summer Frocks, and Coats—both women's and misses' sizes, one of a kind $15.00

$52.50 to $95.00 Suits, Gowns, Afternoon and Street Dresses, Summer Frocks, and Coats—all exclusive models—good assortment of sizes $25.00

Important Notice

The disturbed conditions abroad have definitely postponed the usual Paris Fashion Openings. This shop, however, has acquired from the leading Paris Modistes a number of new models, and in spite of present complications in the way of direct importations The Unique has already received a limited number of model gowns, frocks, suits, wraps and blouses.

On Monday will be featured the greatest waist sale of the season—blouses of lace, chiffon, voile, batiste, crepe, handkerchief linen, crepe de chine, and every fashionable fabric—in daintiest, most becoming styles—at Season-End Prices.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

NOW that August marks the passing of summer vacation time, every one who is anticipating outings to mountains or sea is leaving Pasadena or has already departed, and yet but few pleasure seekers have returned, but in spite of the fact that society has but a bare representation here at the present moment, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, who has recently returned from Coronado, succeeded in giving a charming informal dance Wednesday evening at her home on Buena Vista street for fifty members of the junior set in honor of Lieut. Doig of San Diego. The affair was marked by simplicity befitting an informal affair for guests, most of them scarcely debutantes, and young college youths. Another pretty debutante party was an informal bridge gathering at the Valley Hunt Club Monday afternoon, when Miss Margaret Hibbard entertained a few frnends complimentary to Miss Helen Moody, who is the guest of Mrs. Stephen Cutter Clark, and whose engagement to Stephen Cutter Clark, Jr., was recently announced. Miss Hibbard's guests were Misses Elizabeth and Katherine Wotkyns, Louise UpdeGraff, Dorothy McClintock, Gladys and Cornelia Parker and Averic Allen.

One of the prety ante-nuptial affairs of last week was that arranged by Miss Fern Harper Tuesday afternoon at her home on North Hollister avenue, in honor of Miss Irene Severy, who is to marry Dr. Jackson before the Christmas holidays. Five Hundred entertained the guests, and a shower of garden plants, seeds and bulbs for the bride-elect was the most interesting feature of the afternoon. Among those present were Mmes. Wallace Davis, F. C. M. Stone, John Twyman, Warner Hollister, Marie Brick, Arthur Heineman, Roy Kellogg, Misses Marie Miller, Marilla Bragdon, Natalie Brokaw, Clara Baker, Wilma Sill, Helen O'Connell, Kathleen Chatfield, Elizabeth Dodge, Clara Weiss, Phillips, Florence Neer, Marjorie Williams, May Sherwood, Ruth Bugbee, Phillips, Lois McCoy, Ada Forman, Dorothy Traphagen, Helen Sutliff, Sarah Latimore, Waterhouse and others.

A pleasant party, including Mr. and Mrs. Richmond M. Graff, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Blick, Miss Gladys Gardner, Brainerd Dewey and others have gone to Mt. Whitney for a three weeks' hunting and fishing trip. Among other Pasadenans who are now there is William H. Nevin.

Mrs. C. Vincent Smith, sister of Alexander Duer, who is occupying a bungalow in Altadena this summer, entertained at the Altadena Country Club Wednesday afternoon with a small auction bridge party complimentary to her house guest, Mrs. H. C. Bolton, of New York. After the game refreshments were served in the glass-inclosed porch and the table was beautifully decorated with garden roses. Those who enjoyed this hospitality were Mmes. Alexander Duer, Jerome Trask, A. L. Winter, F. C. Melton, J. J. Mansar, A. T. Welles, A. R. Shephard, Albert C. Calkins, John Bustin, Misses Mabel Whitman, Stella Nobles and others.

Mrs. Ralph W. Reynolds entertained a group of friends who are interested in bazaar work at her home on East Colorado street Wednesday afternoon with a thimble party, those present being Mmes. S. M. Hamilton, Thomas Gaines, R. R. Marsh, H. M. Bolber, Misses Crawford, Whittimore, Jane Petit, Virginia Hill and others.

Mrs. Austin Munger of South Marengo avenue entertained a few friends Monday evening at dinner at the Tea Cup Inn, the affair being arranged in celebration of Mr. Munger's birthday anniversary, and a surprise to him. Red carnations were used in decorating the table, and favors of red ribbon-tied bonbon baskets added to the pretty effect of ornamentation. After dinner the guests were entertained at the Maryland court gardens. Those for whom covers were laid were Mr. and Mrs. Renest Munger, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Woodbury.

Miss Pearl Shields, who is soon to be married in Indianapolis to Prof. I. R. McKeal, was the guest of honor last Saturday at a prettily-appointed dinner given by Miss Marguerite Foster of North Madison avenue. Pink and white blossoms were used in house decorations and pink hearts were strung about on swaying blossoms of asparagus plumosus. After dinner games and music entertained the guests, who were Misses Shields, Edna Miller, Lina Ware, Ethel Foster, Clara and Pearl Mittleholtz, Messrs. William Miller, David Pinkham, Arthur Miller, Chester Ambler, Lloyd Hanson, George Starr, Douglas McKenzie, Ferdinand Foster and Laurence Beers.

Miss Rachel Coolidge of Rosemont avenue left last week for Oakland to make an extended visit.

Dr. Charles Cushing Bragdon, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bragdon and party, who were in Switzerland when the European war was declared, have made their way to London and are expecting to return to America the first opportunity they have to do so. They expected to have traveled abroad until October.

Mrs. Harriet Dyer Norton of West California street left Friday for an extended eastern trip and will visit in Wisconsin, New York City and Syracuse before returning in December.

Mrs. Arthur L. Winter and family of Altadena left last week for Carmel-by-the-Sea for several weeks stay.

Mrs. Harry Pyle and sons of South Grand avenue left Thursday for Oregon, where they will visit Mrs. Pyle's parents. Mr. Pyle, with Dr. B. M. Page and Benjamin E. Page, is making a camping trip in the High Sierras.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Azarian of South Pasadena avenue, Miss Marjorie Sinclair and Arthur Sinclair of Waverly drive are among Pasadenans who are enjoying life at Catalina.

Miss Fanny Shoemaker of San Pasqual street spent the week-end at Squirrel Inn.

Miss Alice Gage of Prescott street entertained Tuesday evening with a small Five Hundred party, which was especially jolly, as the guests came in juvenile costume. Those present were Misses Ruth and Irene McConnell, Priscilla Putnam, Marian Fox, Isabel Sturdevant, Evelyn Fox and Elsie Alger.

Miss Gemma Virginia Hollinger and Merton S. Doak were married Thursday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hollinger, Pine avenue, by Rev. D. H. Gillan. The wedding was characterized by extreme simplicity and there were only a few close friends and relatives present. Jewel Hollinger, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony and later Mr. and Mrs. Doak, who will make their home in Pasadena, left for a brief wedding journey.

Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Williams celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day Saturday evening by entertaining a number of friends at their home on North Los Robles avenue. Music and readings afforded entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Carter of North Marengo avenue entertained Wednesday afternoon with a luncheon followed by cards, the guests being for the most part old friends from Grinnell, Iowa. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Belden, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Belden, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Hartman, Mmes. Sarah Douglas, Nell Walker, L. H. Baker, W. J. Whtson, Halsey, H. J. McMurray, Messrs. John Flock, G. G. Carr, J. K. Baker, Miss Nellie Green Carr and others.

Mrs. William Asmussen of Lincoln avenue entertained Wednesday afternoon with a party for her daughter, Miss Barbara, which was arranged in celebration of her birthday anniversary. The young people present were Misses Myra Barnes, Mildred Vestal, Orbetta Kelley, Olive Hambrook, Jewella Tyler, Helen Gregory, Idora Cruse, Myrtle Clyde, Ada Graham, Dorothy Bradley, Carrie Frusia and others. Mrs. S. N. Tyler and Mrs. G. R. Moon were among those chaperoning the affair.

Casa Verdugo.

MISS ALPHA CLEMENT, with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elsaida Clement, of Lindsay, who has been spending some time at the Clement home on Pacific avenue, left for a month's sojourn at Jordan Hot Springs in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, in camp, where hunting and fishing will be enjoyed to the fullest in this wild but charming retreat.

Mrs. S. C. Bierbower of No. 922 Fairview avenue, entertained with a most charmingly-appointed luncheon in honor of three Los Angeles guests, Mmes. Minnie Martin, Hester Dorsey and Harry Meyers.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll of No. 1463 Kenneth road entertained a merry party of boys at an al fresco dinner in honor of her three sons, Gerald, Hulbert and Maynard Toll. The guests were met at the car line and conveyed to this beautiful country home in automobiles, where everything was done for their comfort and pleasure. Games of various kinds and guessing feats were enjoyed till 1 o'clock, when dinner followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Toll and there three sons left on Friday by auto for a month's outing at Lake Tahoe.

Mrs. F. W. Pigg of No. 912 Randolph street entertained with an artistically-appointed "yellow" luncheon, at her charming foothill home. The floral decorations were in ferns and yellow cannas, and the refreshments carried out the chosen color. The guests included Mrs. Lucian Phillips and Miss Anna Elwell Phillips, Mrs. M. B. Jones and daughter, Miss Winnifred Jones, Mrs. W. E. Evans, Mrs. R. M. Jackson and Mrs. J. H. Jackson.

Mrs. C. H. Cunningham of No. 1013 Fairview avenue entertained with a delightfully-appointed dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Pounds and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pounds of Inglewood, but formerly of Portland, Or. Mrs. Cunningham is a daughter of Mrs. N. C. Eddings of No. 1025 Fairview avenue, and with her family has recently moved here from Portland, Or.

The annual picnic of the Ladies' Missionary Societies of the First Baptist Church was held at La Ramada Thursday afternoon. A 6 o'clock dinner was served, to which the gentlemen of the church were invited, and who, it is needless to add, did ample justice to the collation set before them.

South Pasadena.

MISS MAE COFFMAN of Covina, a bride-elect, was the honoree at a miscellaneous shower given by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Washburn at their home, No. 1509 Oxley street, Wednesday evening. Baskets and vases of Shasta daisies embellished the home, as well as the small tables in the garden, where refreshments were served. Myriads of bright-colored Japanese lanterns illuminated the lawn.

Music and games employed the evening, and guests included were Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kellogg, Mrs. Bettie Harris, Mrs. Elizabeth Shoaff, Mrs. Jessie Gillman, Mrs. J. Wilbur Cate, Mrs. L. B. Davison, Miss Mabel Davison, Miss Stella Daniels, Messrs. Nelson Crandall, Le Roy Cate, Charles S. Wilson, V. V. Ross, Thomas Costenbader, all of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Coffman, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Coffman, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Feist, Miss Anna Sproutte, Miss Leota Coffman, Miss Mattie Breakey, Messrs. Carl Dalin and Will Sproutte of Covina; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Copeland and Miss Ione Copeland of Santa Monica, Miss Anna Sommers of Pomona, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Merwin, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Goss, Mrs. J. E. Washburn, Miss Aloah Washburn, Miss Ramona Washburn and B. B. Washburn of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Gortner, No. 1963 La France avenue, left Friday for Venice, where they have taken a flat in Woodrow Court, No. 236 Westminster avenue, until the first of October.

Honoring her neice, Miss Dorothy Foster, who recently announced her engagement to Howard Scott Dudley of Los Angeles, Mrs. David A. Vail entertained with a garden dinner party at her home, No. 1830 Spruce street, Friday evening. The table was aglow with a huge basket of pink Maman Cochet roses, and covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Vail, Miss Foster, Mr. Dudley, Mrs. Fannie Westlake and the Misses Marjorie and Francis Vail.

Miss Foster, who is enjoying the summer at Pacific Grove with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clarendon Foster of Bank street, has been spending a few days in Los Angeles shopping, prior to her marriage, which will be held in the picturesque little chapel, St. Mary's-by-the-Sea, at Pacific Grove, Tuesday, August 25.

Honoring the eighth birthday anniversary of her daughter, Marion, Mrs. Norman Foote Marsh, No. 911 Fair Oaks avenue, entertained with a matinee party at Clune's exclusive women's and children's theater in Los Angeles, followed by a pleasant hour at the Wistaria. Guests included were Mrs. Albert Kingsbury, and daughter, Helen, of Ocean Park; Mrs. Katherine Love and her nieces, Edna and Betty Moyer; Elsa Linne and Mrs. Mary Stringfellow of Los Angeles, Mrs. Rebecca Cairns, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Antoinette Bush and Le Roy Marsh of this city.

Mrs. Mary Stringfellow, No. 1707 Oak street, has taken apartments at the New Maryton Hotel, No. 314 South Olive street, Los Angeles, where she will be at home to her many friends.

A veranda party was the pleasure planned by Mrs. Charles Ingram, at her home, No. 1112 Glendon way, Tuesday afternoon. Indian rugs and Indian baskets filled with ferns fitted the veranda into a cosy nook, and the afternoon was passed informally with dainty needlework. Miss Helen Reehl sang several songs during the afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served. Those enjoying the hospitality of the afternoon were Mrs. B. F. Boone, Mrs. Margaret Reehl, Mrs. F. C. de Lano, Mrs. Charles Ewing, Mrs. Edna Harter, Mrs. Nicholas Messer, Mrs. Margaret Jones, Mrs. George Binder, Mrs. William Hazlett, Miss Jewell Boone, Miss Genevieve Boone, Miss Helen Reehl and Miss Grace de Lano.

Mrs. Margaret Reehl and her daughter, Miss Helen, No. 1207 Monterey road, and Mrs. Edna Harter, No. 1014 Brent avenue, left Thursday for La Jolla for a stay of ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Griffith entertained informally Thursday evening at their home, No. 1023 Milan avenue. Red canna enlivened the living-room and den, while creamy Shasta daisies were utilized in the dining-room, where a delicious collation was served. Progressive games were enjoyed and those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. de Lano, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, Mrs. Margaret McKee, Mrs. Edna Harter, Miss Grace de Lano, Miss Ruth de Lano, Miss Blanche Griffith and Mr. and Mrs. Benson of Los Angeles.

Miss Lucille Spencer, No. 1852 Monterey road, is spending a week at Santa Barbara as the house guest of Miss Mildred Cowdery.

Miss Eliza Kaign and Mrs. E. Monroe of Providence, R. I., who are passing the summer at Long Beach, shared honors at a luncheon given by Miss Jennie Kennedy Friday at her home, No. 515 El Centro street. Hydrangeas and ferns ornamented the home and table, and California viands were served as much as possible. Guests, all of whom were former Providence residents, included the honor guests, the hostess, Mrs. Leah Durfee of Pasadena, Mrs. George W. Penfield and Mrs. D. Z. Gardner.

TO ANNOUNCE the approaching marriage of their only daughter, Gertrude to Lee Douglas, only son of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Perry gave a delightful affair on Wednesday evening at their beautiful East Collins-avenue home. Pink and white asters developed a color scheme of beauty throughout the house, and in the dining-room especially attractive pink baskets in miniature held the assorted nuts, and place cards were tied with pink ribbons that reached a jardiniere centering the table. After the first course, the guests were told to pull the dainty ribbons, and lo! heart shaped cards of pink bearing the pictures of the bride and groom-

Important to Visiting Buyers

When you have purchased your goods from the first merchant, ask him to enter the sale on a transportation check. He will do so and give you the check, on which you will have recorded any subsequent purchases you may make in other FREE FARE STORES.

When your shopping is finished, present this check at the refunding office, The Los Angeles Times (First and Broadway) and they will cash it without red tape; delay, or formalities. They will refund the full amount of your round trip fare if your purchases are sufficient; and if not, the percentage to which you are entitled.

The Los Angeles market offers an assortment of merchandise at all times equal in extent and variety to all possible demands of all classes of buyers. Los Angeles merchandise is suited to the special requirements of the people living in Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. It is sold at prices, quality for quality, at least as low, and in many cases lower, than the same class of goods can be obtained from any other available source of supply. The visiting buyer in Los Angeles will be treated in such a way that he will come again. He will see and examine the merchandise before parting with his money, and a responsible local dealer will be answerable for its quality. The visitor will be considered as under the protection of the merchants whose names appear in this advertisement, and each one of them will see that his visit is made both pleasant and profitable. Moreover, each merchant will be as much interested in protecting the interests of the visiting buyer while he or she is in Los Angeles as the visitor himself could possibly be.

Comforters at $1

Great big full size comforters—covered with silkoline in attractive chrysanthemum patterns — and King Cotton has had them filled full of the snowiest white cotton.

Second Floor—Jacoby's.

King Cotton's Sale

his sixteenth—and his best—

A third week?—yes, indeed. King Cotton says that this great 16th semi-annual sale of his is just getting under headway and that the third week is going to be the banner week of all.
King Cotton was in a happy mood as he went from one department to another yesterday and clipped prices 'way, 'way down. And he didn't stop in the cotton goods departments either—many of his sharpest reductions were taken in departments when King Cotton never dares step a foot except at sale times like this.

And Monday is going to be a great day—this page and our advertisements in the two other papers today tell of scores of savings that will be of intense interest to you. The store opens at 9 o'clock.

Jacoby Bros.
331-335 So. Broadway

Union suits 59c

The well known [illegible] ribbed lisle union suits [illegible] necks, no sleeves and [illegible] or cuff knee. Some are a [illegible] derworth—others are about half price.

Main Floor—Jacoby's.

King Cotton has ordered a quick and absolute clearance of summer garments —Coats, suits, dresses and skirts—all are to go—and go they surely will at the prices King Cotton and the garment chief have attached to them.

—There are very few of them but are half price or 'way—'way less. All of them are ridiculously underpriced.

—It's almost an impossibility to convey the real importance of this sale to you with black and white type. Only the garments themselves, with their new prices can tell you their unusualness.

—Just figure for yourself what it means to buy Jacoby Coats, suits and dresses at half—close to half and 'way less than half—

Here are some of the garments that are included:

—Wash dresses at $3.75, $4.50, $6.50, $9.50

—Wash skirts of pique, ratine and crepe will be half and close to half at $1.50 and $3.50

—Coats will be half and 'way less than half at $7.95 and $10.00

61 white crepe de chine dresses will be marked $19.50. 24 light colored suits are half and less at $12.50. 94 street suits are about half at $15.00—

Cream serge skirts are less than half at $5.00—Other skirts to go at $5.7

Plan to come buying as early as you can Monday—3rd floor

54x58 in. table cloths at 48c

"Are you joking?" asked the writer when King Cotton showed him this cloth and told him the price. But King Cotton wan't joking and when you see these cloths Monday you'll be wonderfully glad that he wasn't. They're not linen but they look as though they were and they'll wear as though they were, for they're good and heavy and are absolutely free from dressing. They're bleached white as snow and are all hemmed ready for use. Imagine buying them for 48c.

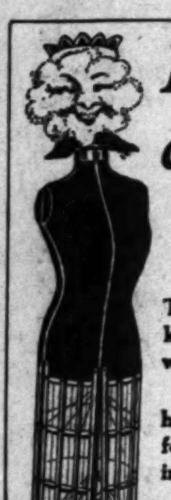
14 in. napkins 50c doz.

Mercerized napkins all hemmed, and ready for use. Wonders at 50c a dozen.

20 in. napkins 95c

Just 50 dozen fully bleached, linen weft, napkins to go Monday, at 95c a dozen.

Main Floor Balcony—Jacoby's.



Now for a rousing sale adjustable dress forms for Monday $4.85 about half

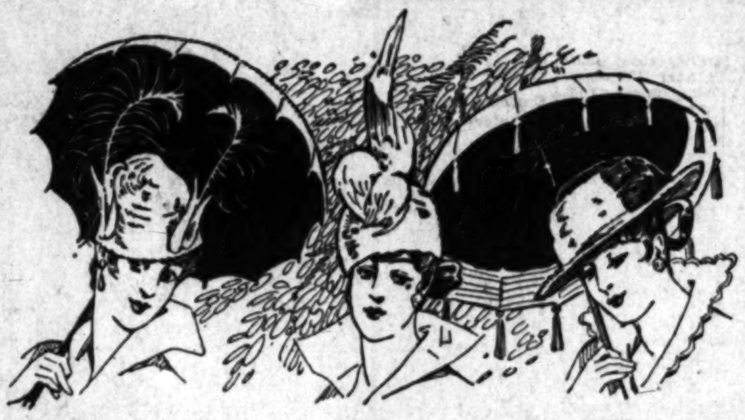
There's hardly a woman in all Southern California but knows about these splendid adjustable dress forms which we have been selling at a good deal more than $4.85.

There's hardly a woman who does any sewing at home but can make splendid use of one of these dress forms—many women say they are as invaluable as a sewing machine.

These that go into this sale at $4.85 come in two sizes—one adjusting from 32 to 42, the other from 36 to 46—both adjust to any height— Center Aisle—Jacoby's.



Feather hats that are different have just come for Fall and you

Hats that are all feathers—if you just took a quick glance at them you might think they were a beautiful snow white bird. They're made from the tiny soft hackle feathers—some are just plain without any trimmings at all—others have a saucy wing perched on one side or the other and still others carry mock birds.

Just three of the many styles are pictured above. There are ever and ever so many others—most of them in snowy white—a few though in rich blues.

You'll think them very modestly priced at $12.50.

Other new hats, $7.50

These follow fashion's newest ideas very closely—hence they're very petite—some of them dressy little toques—others are sailor models with striking trimmings that are conspicuous by their richness and their simplicity.

Untrimmed shapes, $1.95

New velvet, plush and felt shapes—sailors, toques and turbans in black. They need just a wing to make them a wonderfully pretty street hat. Then there are others at $2.95 that you will enthuse over and think unusually low priced.

Second Floor—Jacoby's.

81x90 in. seamless sheets, 69

Now for the third week! King Cotton says that with values like these [illegible] inch sheets at 69c it is going to cast even the wonderful records of the [illegible] two weeks way into the background.

These are not sale sheets by any means, but splendid evenly woven, [illegible] thread sheets that weigh more than the well-known Pequot Sheet. [illegible] they are so much under their real worth that we reserve the right to [illegible] quantities.

Pillow cases 16 2-3c

42x36-inch pillow cases made of the same splendid material as the wonderful sheets are to sell at 59c. These are 'way, 'way under their worth at 16⅔c or $2.00 a dozen.

Pillow cases 19c

45x36-inch cases of the same [illegible] terial as the sheets at 59c. [illegible] of these again and then figure [illegible] how unusual they are at 19c or [illegible]

63x90 in. Dallas sheets at 39c

Just a limited quantity of these well-known seamless sheets to go [illegible] 39c. They're unbleached, but just a washing or two will bring them [illegible] white as white can be.

Pillow casing 12½c

45-inch bleached Dallas casing that is absolutely free from dressing—12½c yard.

Pillow casing 11

42-inch unbleached Dallas casing [illegible] a little less than regular.

Bleached Lonsdale sheeting at 9c

This is full 36 inches wide and is absolutely free from all dressing. [illegible] we will limit the sales to 15 yards to a customer.

Fruit-of-the-loom muslin at 9c yd.

No need to add any word of explanation to this item—every [illegible] Fruit-of-the-loom and how unusual it is at 9c. Limit of 15 yards to a [illegible] tomer.

Main Floor Balcony—Jacoby's.

King Cotton has clipt the prices on 1159 lingerie waists for Monday's sale

—The smallest of the reductions is one-quarter.

—The most of the savings range from one-third to one-half.

—A great many of the sale prices, however, are but one-third of what the original prices were.

—1159 waists—that gives you some idea of the wonderful range of styles that will be ready for you to chose from. Practically every lingerie waist in our stock which has not previously had its price lowered is included in this extraordinary event.

—Our waist buyer who is now in New York has wired for us to clear stocks absolutely—and King Cotton says that they'll be cleared in no time at all with these ridiculously low prices which he has attached to them for Monday.

—We've divided these 1159 waists into six lots and will have them out on six tables where they'll be easy for you to see and choose Monday.

Lot No. 1—Waists 95c

Voile and marquisette waists in both high and low neck styles and with long or short sleeves. Many hand embroidered or with Irish crocheted trimmings.

Lot No. 2—Waists $1.15

Some are of voile set with shadow lace and prettily embroidered on the front, others are of marquisette with organdie collars and button trimmings.

Lot No. 3—Waists $1.95

Voile, marquisette and lace waists in high and low neck styles with long or short sleeves. A great many of them with rich applique trimmings.

Lot No. 4—Waists $2.19

Voile, marquisette and silk waists in high and low neck styles with long and short sleeves. Many are embroidered—some are exquisitely lace trimmed.

Lot No. 5—Waists $2.95

These are all low neck models—some of marquisette, others of organdie richly embroidered. They're the very waists that are being worn right now.

Lot No. 6—Waists

Richly beautiful [illegible] both high and low [illegible] three-quarter length [illegible] hand embroidered—all [illegible]

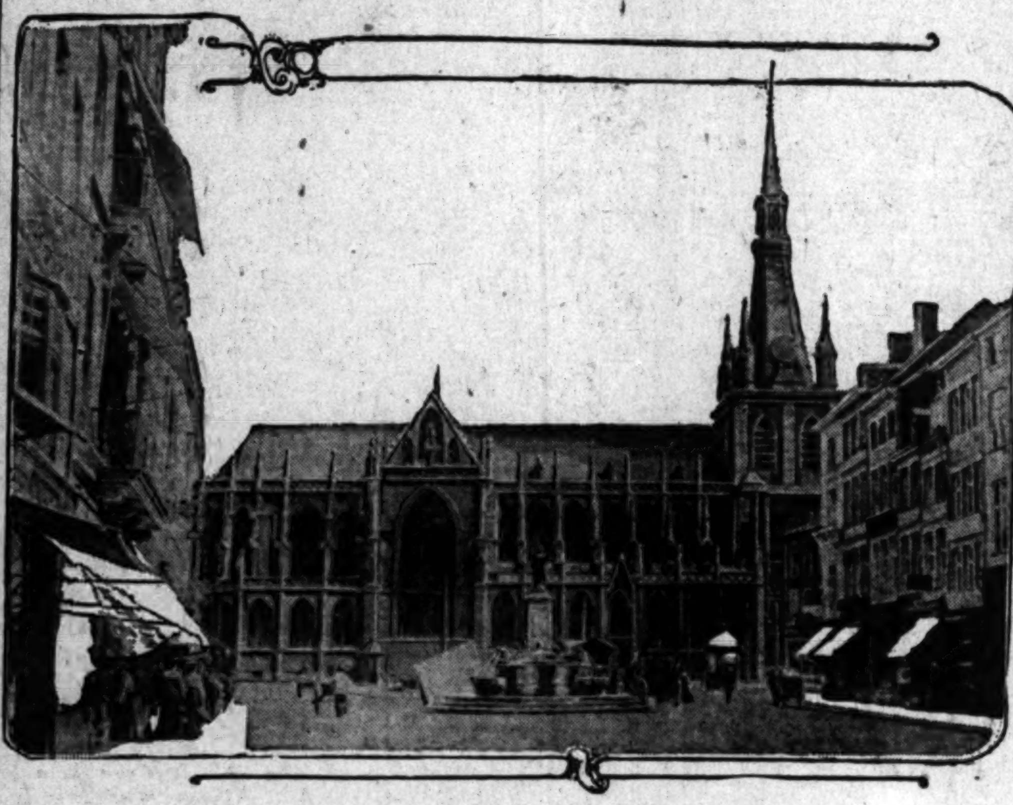
The Cathedral Hit By German Shells.



The cathedral at Liege.

Dispatches Saturday brought the intelligence that the spire of the fine cathedral in Liege was struck several times by German shells and destroyed.

IN RUSSIA.

Movements in Finland.

The Swedish steamer Runeberg, which arrived at Stockholm from Raumo, Finland, reported that she had not sighted a single warship in the Aland archipelago or anywhere else. Her captain was told that the Russian fleet had not met the German fleet at all, but was waiting in the inner part of the Gulf of Finland for a suitable opportunity to start an action. The Russians are concentrating their troops at all important points along the Gulf of Finland, especially at Ekenas, on the norts side of the entrance to the gulf, and Sveaborg, and keeping in reserve a considerable force, reported to number 100,000 men.

A pier a half mile in length in the harbor of Hango was blown up by a mistake. The commander, who had been ordered to prepare for the possible destruction of the pier, hanged himself upon discovering that he had acted prematurely.

IN IRELAND.

Band Leader Drowned.

While bathing near the Gillameen Cove, Tramore, W. Hodge, a plumber, of Manor street, Waterford, was drowned. He was a capable swimmer. He was the leader of the Erin's Hope Prize Flute Band.

Sudden Death of ex-Lady Mayoress.

Mrs. Farrell, wife of Alderman Farrell, ex-Lord Mayor of Dublin, died with startling suddenness. The deceased lady was in her usual health on retiring at night, but in the morning she was found dead in bed.

Solicitor's Dive to Rescue.

While taking part in a race at the New Ross Regatta one of the boats was upset, and a man, who was unable to swim, sank. Mr. T. A. Colfer, solicitor, dived to the rescue, without divesting himself of his clothing, and brought him ashore.

A Woman's Alleged Threat to Kill.

A respectably-dressed woman named Mary Jane McMilvey was charged at Dublin Police Court with threatening to kill Sir William Smyly, the well-known Dublin medical practitioner. The threats were said to be contained in letters sent to Sir Malachi Kelly, the chief crown solicitor.

A detective-sergeant gave evidence that when arrested the woman said she wrote to Sir Malachi Kelly as she expected to get justice from him. She added that Sir William Smyly had prevented her from earning her living by telling people that she was insane. Sir William Smyly denied in court that he ever told anyone she was insane.

The woman was remanded for a week, the magistrate declining to allow her out on bail.

Oldest Belfast Car Driver.

James Hindman, the oldest licensed carman in Belfast, has died, in his 86th year, at his residence, Disraeli street. Born at Antrim, he remembered, as a boy, watching the old stage coach from Belfast drawing up and changing horses before galloping on its way to Derry.

Young Farmer's Shocking Death.

Timothy O'Brien, 30, a young farmer, of Pallasgreen, met with a shocking death on the railway line near Pallas station. It is supposed that he was proceeding home by the line when he was killed about midnight by an engine from Pallas to Limerick. The head was almost severed from the body.

Relative of Sir Thomas Lipton.

The death has occurred at Killeevan, county Monaghan, of William Leslie, a near relative of Sir Thomas Lipton, who is a native of Clones district. The late Mr. Leslie, who was highly respected by his neighbors, was 85 and unmarried.

IN WALES.

Fatal Trap Accident.

A butcher named Arthur Thomas was driving home at Little Newcastle, near Fishguard, accompanied by Police Constable David Davies, when the trap overturned, and both men were pinned beneath it and killed. Davies had been twenty-four years in the Pembrokeshire force.

Bishop's Daughter in Motor Smash.

Mrs. Fuller, the Bishop of St. Asaph's daughter, and Mrs. Lewis met with an accident near St. Asaph, when the motor in which they were traveling was run into by another motor and overturned, and practically wrecked. The two ladies were thrown out, Mrs. Fuller receiving severe contusions, but Mrs. Lewis was less severely injured.

"Last Load" Tragedy.

A hay harvest fatality took place at Llwyntnottia farm, near Wrexham. The last load was being carted from the field and as the wagon was turning into the stack yard Thomas Parry fell off the load. He struck his head and died in twenty minutes. Parry, who was aged about 60, was a Wrexham man. He was a maltster by trade, but usually worked on a farm during the hay harvest.

IN DENMARK.

Icelandic Patriots.

A band of Icelandic patriots have designed a national flag which they propose to fly not only over Iceland but on all vessels registered in that country. If they had been content to make their flag a strictly local affair, for which permission had been granted by the Danish King, all would have been well. But the Danish Parliament has now taken up the question of the marine flag on account of the activities of the Icelandic "Independence" party.

The people of Denmark are of a divided opinion as to Iceland. Some feel that the Icelanders are acting in a very ungrateful way in view of past favors, and others that to give Iceland its freedom would rid the country of a source of useless expense.

It was not until after the State Council approved the Icelandic home flag, following negotiations between the Icelandic Minister and the Danish Prime Minister, that the agitation was taken up by the patriots for its use as a commercial and marine emblem. The Icelanders cannot have their new colors recognized by foreign powers as a national flag without the consent of the Danish Parliament.

Crown Prince as a Sailor.

In his ambition to become a sailor, the fifteen-year-old Crown Prince has at last won his way and obtained his father's consent. He is now a cadet on the Absalon, and gets precisely the same treatment as any other cadets. The King had wanted the Prince to continue his studies until he had passed the entrance examinations to the University.

The Crown Prince is a very democratic youth. He has been a member of the Boy Scouts for three years, and has often entertained his fellow scouts at the castle without any social restrictions. Whatever fell to the lot of the ordinary scout, he experiences.

He speaks English fluently and makes a hobby of American authors. For that reason he is very eager to visit America, which he now hopes to do soon as a sailor.

The Most Dangerous Critter.

On the billboards of Copenhagen appears the sign, "The most dangerous of all animals is not the lion, the tiger or the reptile, but—the fly." This is the means Herr Falck uses in waging a campaign against flies.

Herr Falck is the bitterest enemy the fly has in Scandinavia, and his one ambition is to see a flyless Denmark. To preach his new crusade, he has organized in Copenhagen the first complete fly exhibition in the world. It contains every kind of weapon yet invented for trapping, poisoning or smashing flies. Most of these contrivances come from the United States.

An old superstition that Herr Falck s to rid the people is that a Christmas fly brings good luck. A Christmas fly, according to Herr Falck, is the potential mother of 195,312,500,000 descendants in the course of the summer season.

IN ENGLAND.

Steeplejack's Wages.

In the case of a firm of steeplejacks, Messrs. Tinker of Huddersfield, against the Woodstock Mill Spinning Company, Ltd., of Oldham, £700 was claimed for repairing and rebuilding part of a chimney 185 feet high in the defendants' mills. The plaintiffs charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. per hour for all the men. After expert evidence that 2s. per hour for climbers doing the work at the bottom was a fair and reasonable sum, the official referee declared that the plaintiffs were only entitled to £250 in respect of their claim, and there would be judgment for the defendants, with costs, the £50 paid into court with the denial of liability to be paid out to the defendants.

Enviable Ratepayers.

A clever piece of financial strategy has just been achieved by the Grimsby Corporation, who, alive to the fact that municipalities often pay far in excess of private individuals, arranged with a Mr. Bury of Manchester, to attend a land sale and purchase certain lots as the agent of the corporation. It will be wanted fifteen years hence for a new cemetery of ninety acres. The Mayor, Town Clerk, and a councillor also attended the sale, and the Mayor made a bid, but the secret agent outbid him, and his worship retired "crestfallen." Mr. Bury finally became the purchaser for £2400, or £26 the acre. As the corporation have recently had to pay £500 an acre for the extension of the present cemetery, the difference means a big saving to the rate-payers. For the next fifteen years it will be let at £3 an acre per annum, thus yielding £4500.

Shark on Pin Line.

The Liverpool Post prints the statement that a young shark was caught on Wednesday in the Mersey on an ordinary "pin line" used for catching "flukes."

Girl's Hair Cut Off.

For cutting off his sweetheart's hair with a pair of scissors, Percy Chambers, 20, a gardener, was fined £10 at Hampshire Quarter Sessions and bound over to keep the peace for twelve months.

£700,000 Water Supply.

Birmingham City Council decided to authorize the construction of a third pipe from Elan Valley in connection with the Welsh water scheme. The cost would be £700,000, and the work would occupy four years.

Labor's Protest.

Labor's power was shown in the opposition by eleven votes to nine, at Portsmouth Town Council, when the labor amendment was carried, refusing to place official guide books to Pretoria in the public library unless the nine deportees were allowed to return to South Africa.

Drowned Sailor's Tattoo Marks.

Some lads, while bathing on the eastward side of Southend, discovered the body of a young sailor. The police found nothing to assist identification beyond extensive tattooing of the body. The name of a woman was on the left forearm, and on the chest was a large heart with the letters "N. C." in the center.

Fall From an Express.

A Coroner's jury at Nottingham returned a verdict of "accidental death in the case of Otto Taylerson, son of a former Norwegian Consul in London, who fell from a Great Central express. Technical witnesses were called to demonstrate that the carriage locks were perfectly sound.

Air Fights at Liege.

The London Times correspondent in Brussels, describing the fighting at Liege, says aerial fleets were used by both Belgians and Germans. The fighting in mid-air was desultory but deadly. A huge Zeppelin sailed over Liege during the early fighting, but was pursued by a Belgian aeroplanist, who risked and lost his life in destroying it.

After the destruction of this Zeppelin the Germans confined their aerial activity to the use of scouting aeroplanes, several of which were destroyed by shells from the forts. Attempts to reach the aeroplanes with shells were often unsuccessful, however, owing to the inability to shoot high enough.

Two Belgian aeroplanists, who were attacked by the German field artillery at a moderate height, were rendered unconscious by a shell which burst just beneath them. They reached the ground safely, however, and as they alighted remarked coolly. that "these Germans shoot badly."

Big Mill Blaze.

Twenty thousand pounds' damage and 300 people thrown idle were the results of a serious fire at Blackburn, when a three-story mill building occupying an extensive area, hemmed in by house and shop property, was destroyed. Thousands of people collected, and saw within an hour the roof fall in, and heard the alarming crash of heavy machinery.

Post Card Queen Divorced.

"What will be the next chapter in the story of pretty Gabrielle Ray?" is the question that is being asked on all sides in England. Will she return to the musical comedy stage, where she reigned as a queen prior to her marriage with rich young Eric Loder? Or will she make another matrimonial venture, now that the courts have given her a decree absolute against the good-looking young scion of a famous horse-racing and breeding family whom she married with so much eclat less than three years ago?

Truly, it would be hard to exaggerate the popularity, not only with the gilded youths of the metropolis, but with the general public, of pretty, sprightly "Gaby" Ray. Her post cards sold literally by the million; in fact, she held the record in this respect—no easy feat in this country where collecting likenesses of stage favorites is a positive mania—up to the time of her marriage and retirement, since when even her "sales" have been surpassed by lovely Gladys Cooper, who, by the way, has just denied the persistent rumors that she, too, would seek a divorce from her husband, another young man of independent means.

It was in "The Little Cherub," a lively musical piece by the late "Owen Hall" and Ivan Caryll, that Gabrielle Ray first came prominently before the public. Dressed as a cupid and dancing as gracefully as one, she sang a little song, in the chorus of which she shot arrows at a number of miniature "Johnnies" suspended on a string, and thereafter had every lover of musical comedy at her charming feet. This piece was notable, by the way, as having practically introduced, besides Gabrielle Ray, two other maidens who were fated to be famous—one Zena Dare, who is now the Hon. Mrs. Maurice Brett, and the other Lily Elsie, the "Merry Widow" and "Dollar Princess" of later days.

After this initial hit of hers at the Prince of Wales, Gabrielle Ray went, first to the Gaiety and then to Daly's Theater, with the latter of which George Edwardes's houses she became associated thereafter. A joy to the eye and as graceful as an elf, she shares the fate of the peacock so far as her singing voice is concerned. Her marriage to Eric Loder, described as a true love match, was a severe blow to her thousands of masculine admirers, whose dressing tables were crowded with her photographs. Some months ago she applied to the courts for a decree of restitution of conjugal rights, and, owing to her husband's failure to comply therewith, has now been given an absolute divorce.

IN SCOTLAND.

Domestic Servants Drowned.

Two domestic servants, named Ina Shields and Jennie Johnstone, employed by a family of visitors at Ballantrae, Ayrshire, were drowned while bathing at the mouth of the River Stinchar. Shields belonged to Glasgow, and Johnstone was a native of Turriff.

Boy Drowned in the Dee.

A lad, 11 years old, named Morgan, son of the late G. W. Morgan, photographer, Aberdeen, was drowned while bathing in the Dee at Aberdeen. The boy was bathing along with a brother when both got into difficulties, the latter being rescued in an exhausted condition.

Royal Prize Cattle.

At the Highland Agricultural Society's annual show at Hawick, the King took first prize for the two-year old shorthorn bull class with Royal Gold, which was second at Shrewsbury. His Majesty was also first in the one-year-old heifer class.

Father's Strange Conduct.

At Glasgow Police Court a man named James Rafferty was charged with having committed an assault on his son, aged 4. In Richmond Park the man took off the boy's clothing and dipped him in the pond. The incident attracted a crowd. Accused was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment.

Boy Scouts at Farm Fire.

A fire broke out in the stackyard of Portencullie farm, Wigtownshire, tenanted by Robert Cochrane, and word was at once conveyed to the Stranraer Troop of Boy Scouts, at present in camp at Lady Bay, on the same farm. They hastened to the scene of the fire, and by forming a bucket line from the stack prevented the fire from spreading to the adjoining buildings, which were in danger.

Bank Clerk Divorced.

At Edinburgh, Lord Dewar heard an action for divorce by Violet Watson, 9, Gairbraid street, Maryhill, Glasgow, against Alexander Watson, bank clerk, sometime in Glasgow, and later at the Home Bank of Canada, Toronto. The petitioner (twenty-seven) said that before the marriage, in 1905, the defendant boarded with her mother. He was a clerk in the National Bank of Scotland in Glasgow. There was one child. In 1906 defendant went to London, and in the following year to Canada. He was to send money to take her out, but sent none. Decree was granted on the ground of desertion.

Lad's Plucky Rescue.

A boy named Robert Buchanan, 14, residing at Giles street, Leith, rescued a girl from the water at Seafield, Leith. The girl, Mary Auchland, had been playing on the slipway, near the level crossing, when she fell into the sea, and was being carried away when the boy jumped in and succeeded in getting her ashore.

DARWIN THEORY CONTRADICTED.

Prof. Bateson Addresses British Scientists.

Says Evolution May Be from Complex to Simple.

Speaker Admits Reluctance to Destroy Beliefs.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

MELBOURNE, Aug. 15.—Prof. William Bateson, president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, declared today in an address before that organization at its first meeting in Australia, that the old view of variations in forms of life proceeding from the simple to the complex might be completely turned about. The true process of evolution might be from the complex to the simple.

It will be remembered that at last year's meeting of this famous organization in Birmingham, Sir Oliver Lodge startled the scientific world with the bold introduction of a proposal for closer investigation into the "life-after-death" theory. Today, Prof. Bateson, with perhaps less pronounced opinions, urged his fellow scientists to open their minds to the possibility that evolution came largely "by loss" rather than by addition.

From a lay standpoint his observations might be summarized as follows: In contradiction of Darwin and of most scientists who have accepted the belief that contemporary variations in the forms of life have come about wholly by crossing, and thus by the additions of new factors of life, it is probable that the variations are due to the loss or suppression of factors present in the original species.

A pointed sentence was this remark: "I have confidence that the artistic gifts of mankind will prove to be due not to something added to the makeup of the ordinary man, but to the absence of factors which in the normal person inhibited the development of these gifts."

Prof. Bateson's subject was heredity. Of this he has made a particular study for many years. He will be remembered by some in the United States as Silliman lecturer at Yale University seven years ago. The stand he took in his address today was not that of a propounder of a theory. The time for the development of theories of the origin of life had not yet come, he said: "the students of genetics would rather stick to the seed-pan and the incubator."

NATURAL SELECTION.

But in the face of what had been learned since the time of Mendel, who was the first to apply the process of real analysis to the offspring of plants and animals, the scope claimed for natural selection, as a determining factor in the fixity of the species, as propounded by Darwin, "must be greatly reduced."

"The doctrine of the survival of the fittest," he said, "is undeniable so long as it is applied to the organism as a whole, but to attempt by this principle to find values in all definiteness of parts and functions, and in the name of science to see fitness everywhere is mere eighteenth-century optimism. Yet it was in application to the parts, to the details of specific differences, to the spots on the peacock's tail, to the coloring of the orchid flower, and hosts of such examples, that the potency of natural selection was urged with strongest emphasis. Shorn of these pretensions the doctrine of the survival of favored races is a truism, helping scarcely at all to account for the diversity of species.

"The appearance of contemporary variability proves to be an illusion. Variation from step to step in the series must occur either by the addition or by the loss of a factor. Now, of the origin of new forms by loss there seems to me to be fairly clear evidence, but of the contemporary acquisition of any new factor I see no satisfactory proof, though I admit there are rare examples which may be so interpreted. We are left with a picture of variation utterly different from that which we saw at first. Variation now stands out as a definite physiological event. We have done with the notion that Darwin came latterly to favor, that large differences can arise by accumulation of small differences. Such small differences are often mere ephemeral effects of conditions of life, and as such are not transmissible."

SOURCE OF VARIATION.

The speaker referred to the contention by Losty that the sole source of variation was by crossing, but declared this was unsafe ground. "In spite of repeated trials, no one has yet succeeded in crossing the sweet pea with any other leguminous species," he argued. The Pitcottee sweet pea, with its purple edges, can surely be nothing but a condition which ordinarily makes the fully purple flower, quantitatively diminished. The pied animal, such as the Dutch rabbit, must similarly be regarded as the result of partial defect of the chromogen from which the pigment is formed, or conceivably the factor which effects its oxidation. On such lines I think we may with great confidence interpret all those intergrading forms which bred true and are not produced by factorial interference.

"Having in view these and other considerations which might be developed, I feel no reasonble doubt that, though we may have to forge a claim to variations by addition of factors, yet variation both by loss of factors and by fractionation of factors is a genuine phenomenon of contemporary nature. If then we have to dispense, as seems likely, with any addition from without, we must begin seriously to consider whether the course of evolution can at all reasonably be represented as an unpacking of an original complex which contained within itself the whole range of diversity which living things present. I do not suggest that we should come to a judgment as to what is or is not probable in these respects.

"As I have said already, this is no time for devising theories of evolution and I propound none. But as we have got to recognize that there has been an evolution, that somehow or other the forms of life have arisen from fewer forms, we may as well see whether we are limited to the old view that evolutionary progress is from the simple to the complex, and whether, after all, it is conceivable that the process was the other way about. I ask you simply to open your minds to this possibility. It involves a certain effort. We have to reverse our habitual modes of thought. At first it may seem rank absurdity to suppose that the primordial form or forms of protoplasm could have contained complexity enough to produce the diverse types of life. But is it easier to imagine that these powers could have been conveyed by extrinsic additions? Of what nature could these additions be? Additions of material cannot surely be in question.

"That primordial life may have been of small dimensions need not disturb us. Quantity is of no account in these considerations. Shakespeare once existed as a speck of protoplasm not so big as a small pin's head. To this nothing was added that would not equally well have served to build up a baboon or a rat.

FLOWERS AND FRUITS.

"Let us consider how far we can get by the process of removal of what we call 'epistatic' factors, in other words, those that control, mask or suppress underlying powers and faculties. I have spoken of the vast range of colors exhibited by the modern sweet peas. There is no question that these have been derived from the one wild bicolor form by a process of successive removals. When the vast range of form, size and flavor found among the cultivated apples is considered it seems difficult to suppose that all this variety is hidden in the wild crabapple. I cannot positively assert that this is so, but I think all familiar with the Mendelian analysis would agree with me that it is probable, and that the wild crab contains presumably inhibiting elements which the cultivated kinds have lost.

"I have confidence that the artistic gifts of mankind will prove to be due, not to something added to the makeup of an ordinary man, but to the absence of factors which, in the normal persons, inhibit the development of these gifts. They are almost beyond doubt to be looked upon as releases of power normally suppressed. The instrument is there, but it is 'stopped down.'

"Somewhat reluctantly, and rather from a sense of duty, I have devoted most of this address to the evolutionary aspects of genetic research. We cannot keep these things out of our heads, though sometimes we wish we could. The outcome, as you will have seen, is negative, destroying much that till lately passed for gospel. Destruction may be useful, but it is a low kind of work. We are just about where Boyle was in the seventeenth century. We can dispose of alchemy, but we cannot make more than a quasi-chemistry. We are awaiting our Priestly and our Mendeleff. In truth, it is not these wider aspects of genetics that are at present our chief concern. They will come out in their time. The great advances of science are made, like those of evolution, not by imperceptible mass movement, but by the sporadic birth of penetrative genius. The journeymen follow after him, widening and clearing up, as we are doing along the track that Mendel found."

Prof. Bateson will continue his address next Thursday at Sydney, to which city the association adjourns after its initial meeting here.

LITTLE BIT HARD TO SAY.

Phrase Picked for Tongue-Twister Good Test for Foreigners.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, July 26.—While the phrase "a little bit" is so easy for native English-speaking persons to pronounce that it would seem to make a weak test for sobriety, it has been picked out from all other tongue twisters by Prof. Walter Rippman of the University of London for foreigners to practice on. Anyone who can say "a little bit" correctly has nothing else to fear in pronouncing English, Prof. Rippman has told the students from some eighteen foreign countries who are here to take the special summer course of lectures arranged for their benefit. The beginner in English usually gets no closer to "a little bit" than "a leel beet" or "a leet bid." But when he does master it, the classic "prunes, prisms, and persimmons" and "picked a peck of pickled peppers" come comparatively easy.

JOFFRE INSPIRES CONFIDENCE.

General in Supreme Command of French Army Is Popular With the Soldiers and Nation.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The French great army has been placed under supreme command of Gen. Joseph Joffre, who enjoys great popularity with the men, as he does with the French nation generally. He is known as a man of strong will. French military men express full confidence in his skill.

Gen. Joffre is 62 years old. He has been married ten years, but is childless. He is of medium height, and stout, with a massive head, very fair thick hair and thick drooping mustache. He is noted for his excellent horsemanship. He was trained as an engineer and while on duty in Madagascar constructed the harbor of Diego Suarez, the principal one in the island.

The mobilization plans for the French army were drawn up by Gen. Joffre last April, and the result of their execution has exceeded all expectation.

WORK IN MINES ENDS IN SCOTLAND.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

DUNFERMLINE (Scotland) Aug. 4.—Work in the coal mines in the counties of Fife, Kincross and Clackmannan, the output of which ordinarily is shipped to the continent, has virtually stopped. The supply of flax, cotton and linen in the factories has been almost exhausted and before the end of the week thousands of operatives will be out of work. Food prices are steadily rising.

Peking.

GOODNOW QUITS JOB AT PEKING.

Chinese President's Advisor Will Come to America.

W. W. Rockhill to Represent Yuan in United States.

Outside Counsel Is Seldom Heeded by Orientals.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PEKING, July 27.—Although Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, the American, whose authority on constitutional law was sought by President Yuan Shi-kai in framing the new Chinese constitution, leaves Peking in August to become president of Johns Hopkins University, he has agreed to favor the Chinese president with further advice whenever he may ask for it. He intends to return to China during the summer vacation of 1915, but in the meantime he has urged Yuan to engage a substitute for him in this $15,000 post.

Dr. Goodnow's departure, together with that of W. W. Rockhill, who has already left for the United States, and H. C. Adams, who is to leave as soon as he has finished some special work in railway accounting, will rob President Yuan of the immediate counsel of three Americans. It appears that all three have been anxious to return to the United States. Dr. Goodnow has obtained his release after little over a year's stay in Peking, while his contract was for a period of three years. Mr. Rockhill was urged to remain in Peking, but he accepted his recent appointment to Yuan's service only upon condition that he would not have to take up his residence here. In the United States, at a salary of $15,000, he is expected to act in Yuan's behalf by counteracting the publicity campaign which Sun Yat Sen and his party of rebels is conducting abroad, and he will also be called upon to exercise his diplomatic experience when required in behalf of the President and the people of China.

Prof. Adams, who came out here for one year only, to instruct the Board of Communications in the unification of railway accounts, will have completed his work in August. It is not believed that the Chinese board is yet capable of profiting greatly by his instruction, and it is feared that they will be unable to continue the work successfully without him. But Adams wishes to return to the work from which he withdrew temporarily in the United States.

The departure of these three Americans brings up the question as to what real service foreign advisers have been to Yuan Shi-kai. He has had them from all countries—Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Denmark, Sweden and Japan, on almost every subject connected with his government—on law, foreign affairs, military matters, education, finance, and, whenever a man might be useful but had no particular line to recommend him, he has been made an advisor in general. Most of these advisors are seldom called upon to do any serious work. If a difficulty arises between the Chinese government and the nation to which one belongs, his services are likely to be employed as go-between. But as to advice, though the Chinese often ask it, they seldom follow it. Indeed, it is difficult for them to do so: ideas and conditions are still too different in China from those which prevail abroad. And if the government accepted all the advice which it receives from its numerous advisors, much of it conflicting, the empire might be in worse chaos than it is.

It is understood in Peking that the Chinese, while anxious to have men of foreign reputation nominally in their service, desire it chiefly for what is known as "show pidgin"—show business—in other words, effect.

The case of Sir Richard Dane, an Englishman, is exceptional. He is accomplishing important reforms in the salt gabelle, which, next to the customs, is the most important tax in the country. But he has behind him "the Quintuple Group" of bankers and their legations, the French, British, German, Russian and Japanese. On the salt gabelle the recent so-called reorganization loan of $125,000,000 and other loans are guaranteed, and unless the gabelle is really reorganized there would be serious international difficulties growing out of the failure to repay capital and interest. The increase in the receipts of the salt gabelle have lately been enormous.

POLITICAL MACHINE OF TOKIO SMASHED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, July 12.—The political machine, which for ten years has dominated municipal government in Tokio, was demolished by the reformers at the recent municipal elections. So serious was the reverse that the organization, which was known as the Tokiwakai, and which has been called "Tokio's Tammany," has been dissolved altogether.

The good government party regards the overthrow of the organization as a signal victory, and indicative of the general reform movement which is sweeping over Japan in all branches of political life. For the last ten years they had fought to eliminate the Tokiwakai majority in the municipal assembly, but each successive attempt met with failure, until this year they have not only removed the objectionable majority, but also defeated its leader, S. Morikubo, in whom they saw all of the party's corruption personified. The charges were similar to those which have characterized so many municipal upheavals in America—harmful patronage, corruption in the distribution of contracts for public works and general graft.

The success this year was due largely to the younger element, which was organized into an anti-machine body. Public meetings were held and almost every means of political publicity utilized to arouse the voters of the urgency of good government. The election continued for three days, at the end of which the reformists had captured all but twenty-one of the seventy-five seats in the assembly. Morikubo, the ousted leader, thereupon invited his fellow-victims to a meeting, at which it was voted to dissolve the association.

The new organization now in power is known as the Municipal Government Club. They are not content with reforming municipal politics alone, however, and have already begun a vigorous campaign to establish themselves in the National House of Representatives, where the Seiyukai, or Conservative party, will be the object of its attack. The Seiyukai has a large majority in the Diet, and since it was linked with the now defeated Tokiwakai, it appears to be in danger of losing its power.

The present Okuma Cabinet is backed by groups hostile to the Seiyukai. If unable to carry through his programme in the face of an opposing majority, Count Okuma would be likely to dissolve the Diet and give the people an opportunity to register their will at a new election.

An interesting phase of the suffrage question was seen in the recent municipal elections. The suffrage is very restricted, there being three classes of voters, classified according to the amount of tax they pay.

Taking the city as a whole, about one householder in thirteen has a vote. Each grade of voters elects twenty-five assemblymen. The voters of the first grade number only 1187. The second category has 6136 electors. The great majority of voters, namely, 49,948, out of the total of 57,271, are found in the third grade. To be qualified for this grade the citizen must pay a land tax or else an imperial tax to the amount of 2 yen yearly.

The election of the Assemblymen of the third grade was regarded as most closely expressing the popular will. In every street leading to the voting booth the candidates had established committee rooms where there was a good deal of smoking and talking. Formerly tea and refreshments were at the disposal of the thirsty or hungry voter, but today the government following the ideas of the West permits only moral suasion. The voter aproached the outer office of the election hall, gave his name and address and was supplied with a ballot. Another official checked and stamped the ballot. The voter then passed upstairs to the voting room, where his ballot was again supervised. Finally he wrote the name of his candidate and handed over his ballot to the officials.

One Right Price To Everybody

The Fair Way—the Economical Way—the "California's" Way

THE "California" has always been opposed to the all too-prevalent custom of so-called price-cutting.

We believe that a cut price invariably betokens an inflated value in the first place. It certainly does not seem fair and right to sell to one man today at one price and to his neighbor tomorrow at a lower price.

The man who buys tomorrow at the lower price is led to believe he is saving money—but an intelligent analysis and comparison of values will, we believe, quickly disprove this mistaken theory.

At the "California" everything is marked in plain figures—one price to everybody—and that price so low that further reduction is not only impossible but unnecessary. No baits—no decoys—no inflated prices to permit of fictitious reductions.

We are glad to submit our every-day values to your own comparison with any values offered anywhere, at any time, under any circumstances. And coming here to look will never place you under any obligation to buy.

Whether your home furnishing requirements are limited or extensive—for modest cottage or pretentious mansion, you will find extensive selection at the "California"—always. We invite you to study our windows and to use this store as an index regarding what is new and correct for the home.

Skin Without Wrinkles Now Easy to Have

There's no excuse for any woman having wrinkles now. It has been found that a simple mixture of saxolite and witch hazel has a remarkable action upon the deepest wrinkles, no matter what their nature, whether caused by worry, habitual frowning, a debilitated condition or the ravages of Father Time. This harmless remedy, which anyone can easily make and use at home, acts both as an astringent and a tonic. The combined effect of tightening the skin and heightening its vitality is to immediately affect every line and wrinkle, keeping the cuticle smooth and firm as in youth.

The proportions are one ounce saxolite (powdered) to one-half pint witch hazel, ingredients which are found in every drugstore. The solution should be used as a wash lotion. It is equally effective in disposing of flabbiness of cheek and neck, as well as sagging below the eyes.

Long Beach.

RUFUS MONROE MILLER, of Hotel Del Mar, and Mrs. Nell O. McClure were married Tuesday at the First Christian Church, Rev. F. M. Rogers, officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ammon, who reside at No. 1027 Elm avenue, and the groom, a member of the Municipal Band and a well-known musician, has resided here for several years. His home is in Lordsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for a ten days' wedding trip in the mountain resorts. In the fall they will go to Chandler, Ariz., where the groom has a cotton ranch.

Slipping away to San Bernardino, Robert W. Thompson and Miss Mabel Fields were married in the Episcopal Church in that city Saturday. They were accompanied in their trip from this city by Mr. and Mrs. George LaShell. The wedding party spent Sunday at Riverside, returning here Monday morning, when the wedding was announced. The bride is the chief operator for the Home Telephone Company, here and the groom is connected with the George LaShell Company.

Vivian and Ruth, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. McLendon, of No. 538 Daisy avenue, entertained a party of their young friends at a function Tuesday afternoon from 3 o'clock until 6 p.m. The rooms were decorated in red and white flowers, and the table loaded with goodies was decked with the same colors. Games and an impromptu musicale was the diversion of the afternoon.

Mrs. Irma Harriman was guest of honor at a dinner party of charming appointments given by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Harrison, No. 2529 East Ocean avenue. Because of the Iowa picnic being held in Bixby Park, a short distance away, the Iowa colors, and the cornflower were much in evidence. The table was arranged for twelve guests. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Harrison entertained again for Mrs. Harriman and her twin daughters, Fredericka and Elizabeth, who came from Hampton, Iowa, three weeks ago, and who have taken the Ellsworth Hatch home on Second street for a year.

Members of the Bellevue Club enjoyed a pleasant afternoon Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smithman, Eighth street and Obispo avenue. Scotch bloom was in evidence in the decorations, the yellow bloom contrasting well with the greenery. Needlework engaged the attention of the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. White, of Signal Hill entertained a group of children Monday afternoon, the occasion being the celebration of the fifth birthday anniversary of their little daughter, Charlotte. The little folk romped on the greensward and later, their appetites sharpened by outdoor games, enjoyed a feast of goodies, served in a Japanese pergola. The table centerpiece was a Japanese garden scene.

Mrs. I. G. Stone was hostess at an interesting event at her Atlantic-avenue home Tuesday afternoon, when guests were asked to meet Mrs. O. P. Hanna, and daughter, Miss Merle Hanna, of Sheridan, Wyo., and Mrs. W. C. Satewart and daughter, Miss Kathryn Stewart, of Bellaire, O. Miss Elizabeth Warden and Florence Smith assisted in receiving. Clusters of pink asters were largely used in the elaborate decorations.

A club without a name was entertained at the Yankee home on East Sixth street Monday evening, when five hundred was played with zest. The first trophy was awarded to Mrs. Ernest Wurl, and Percy Ritcha garnered the consolation prize.

Members of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society of the First Christian Church enjoyed a wienie roast on the beach Tuesday evening. Games were played beneath the refulgent rays of the moon.

Mrs. Eva Lower was hostess to members of her Sunday-school class Tuesday on the beach. The women members met early in the afternoon, and enjoyed a dip in the surf, the men arriving in time for an appetizing lunch on the sands, following which a motion-picture show was enjoyed.

Another beach frolic of interest was the entertainment provided by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cutshaw to a group of neighbors Tuesday evening. A hot supper was the feature of the event, after which a visit was made to the Pike attractions.

Ocean Park.

AN all-day sewing session was indulged in Thursday afternoon by the Ocean Park Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, in the Breakers clubrooms. Tuesday afternoon the luncheon was enjoyed by many members. Auction followed, at which Mrs. E. B. Smith made the high score. Mrs. C. G. Shipman was the social chairman, and Mrs. C. W. McLeod was hostess for the month. Wednesday evening of the coming week there will be an informal dance, in short waists, at which many members and their friends will be present.

Miss Helen King entertained the Nullos Club Tuesday afternoon at her Fourth-street home. Auction bridge was the game played, Mrs. Burmeister and Mrs. Mansur winning prizes. During the afternoon a porch luncheon was served. Mrs. A. Stanley White will entertain this club next at her home in Seaside Terrace, on the 25th.

Mrs. O. H. Dupuy and Miss Martha Dupuy, who have for several weeks been the house guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. P. Thomas, have departed for their home in Portland. When the latter toured the North they returned with the visitors, who have enjoyed this beach ever since arriving.

Three large box parties added to the liveliness of the Fraser pier dancing pavilion Tuesday evening. There were twenty-five couples in a party, of which Miss E. Stoll was hostess. Louis Maney entertained ten couples, and J. W. Saturday had fourteen couples as his guests.

On Saturday last the ladies who assisted Mrs. H. A. Perkins in her recent reception to the Sioux City Club were given a complimentary party by her. The ladies were engaged in Five Hundred. Delicious refreshments were served and a generally merry time was enjoyed by all. Those who won the travel prizes were Mrs. Magee, Mrs. Reed and Miss Connors.

Santa Monica.

EIGHTS were combined luckily for Mrs. Leslie L. Thompson at her home, No. 1307 Fourteenth street, on the 8th of the eighth month, when she celebrated the eighth anniversary of her wedding, but the party was a surprise to her. There were many guests present who helped Mrs. Thompson celebrate, and every one had a merry time.

Master Frederick Kennerly celebrated the eighth anniversary of his birthday Saturday afternoon with a party at his home, No. 1546 Fourth street. There were many of his young friends present, who enjoyed a peanut hunt and then a frolic on the beach. Afterwards the merry party of little ones returned to the house, where a feast was ready for them, served by Mrs. Kennerly.

Mrs. Clara Dunston and Miss Cecile Dippe were initiated in the Silverwave Rebekahs Monday evening, after which followed a banquet served by the men, and then a social hour, at which all members had a merry time. The usual order was changed and instead of the ladies acting as hostesses, the men took unto themselves the job and a good one they did.

Mrs. Ida Schweppe and daughters, Misses Emma and Ida, have departed for their home in San Antonio, having been the guests of Mrs. A. Tournat at her Fourth-street home for several weeks. They have gone North, their route taking in Santa Barbara, San Francisco and other cities along the line.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Francis of Second street are enjoying an extended tour of the East, being on their way to Montreal. They stopped at Chicago, and will go on to the North. Returning they will touch Banff, Lake Louise, and come back via the Northwest.

"The Lady of Lyons" was presented in the auditorium of the High School by the summer classes, under the direction of Prof. William Lee Greenleaf, who also played the part of Claude Millnotte. The summer students were quite successful with the play, and now that their session is over, are contemplating the new regular term, which starts next month.

The Santa Monica Tennis Club held its formal opening last night with a social, musical and vaudeville programme in its new clubhouse on the courts of Third street, which is near Washington avenue. There were many members present who enjoyed the formal opening.

Venice.

MRS. E. M. Reed and Mrs. Phelps were the lucky winners at this week's Five Hundred party held in the dancing pavilion loge box on the pier. There were many members present with their friends, and a most pleasant afternoon's playing was enjoyed by all. Each week these parties are becoming more popular, and a large number of new members are being added.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Sabichi entertained with another merry dancing party at their beautiful bungalow on their ranch beside Washington road, east of Venice, Thursday night. There were many guests present from the beach, as well as Los Angeles. Light refreshments were served at a late hour after the evening's dancing. The hospitality of these folks has been heard of near and far, and they always have a jolly gathering when they give such a party. The Misses Veronica and Mary Kilgallon of Butte, Mont., who are visiting at Venice for the summer, were persent.

The Vacation Home League is this week entertaining sixteen women at its home on the Grand Canal. The Women's Club of Santa Monica sent a fine cooked New England dinner to these women, which was greatly appreciated. The next business meeting will be held on the 19th.

On August 20 a big box party will be given by the Sunshine Society in the Venice dance palace, and on the 3rd of September the same society will entertain with a similar party in the Ocean Park dancing pavilion. Many people will be in attendance at the two affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis H. Woolfelt and baby daughter, Martha, of Los Angeles, have come to the beach to live for the summer at the Potter Apartments. They recently returned from a European tour, and are glad to be out of the land which is so wrought up by the wars of today. They will be here for the rest of this season.

Huntington Beach.

MR. AND MRS. H. DALBY, who have been in Pomona for the past four months returned to Huntington Beach Thursday, of last week, and are residing near the sugar factory.

Rev. E. J. Harlow, formerly pastor of the Christian Church was in this city Saturday, and will deliver a sermon next Sunday in the Christian Church in Santa Paula, where he will probably locate in the near future.

Mrs. R. P. Sutton of Los Angeles visited with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Reed, Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Nichols of Santa Ana were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen D. Peters. Mrs. Peters and Mrs. Nichols are sisters.

Mrs. Mary N. Bushard and her house guest, Mrs. Dora L. Mellette, visited in Los Angeles Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. J. Raymond Thorpe of Los Angeles visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Gardner, Tuesday evening and attended the opening of the encampment.

There was a watermelon party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds, Saturday evening, in honor of Miss Imogene Reynolds and Howard Lindsley.

Rev. W. L. Miller, pastor of the First Methodist Church, expects to leave Monday or Tuesday for Upland, for a short vacation. Rev. Miller will exchange pulpits with Rev. S. S. Sampson, pastor of the Methodist Church in Upland, whose family is spending the summer in Huntington Beach.

Mrs. Sam Gisler entertained Wednesday afternoon at her home near Huntington Beach, in honor of the eleventh anniversary of the birth of her daughter Annie. A delightful afternoon was passed at games and music and ice cream, cake and candy were served to the following guests: Kathleen Murphy, Ethel Wells, Helen and Bernice Newland, Gertrude Kerr, Melva Rosenberger, Vera and Rose Bushard, Lora Miller, Agnes, Mable, Elizabeth and Lucile Gisler, Edward Murphy, Hilton Kerr, Allen, Ernest and Anthony Gisler.

The Misses Bertha and Josephine Gisler will leave Sunday for a vacation of two weeks with friends and relatives in Ventura and other northern towns.

Santa Ana.

A DISTINGUISHED woman, Mrs. Daniel B. Baker, better known in the art world and to lovers of art, as Elizabeth Gowdy Baker, is in Santa Ana on a six-weeks' visit to her mother, Mrs. Ellen J. Gowdy of No. 825 French street, and her two sisters, Miss Sally and Miss Joella Gowdy. The great Sorollo of Spain, said after his first visit to America, that the most wonderful thing in America was woman, and that the most remarkable woman in America was the one who was painting portraits in aquarelle, Elizabeth Gowdy Baker. Mrs. Baker in her several visits to Santa Ana in the last few years has at various times brought with her some of her wonderful water color portraits, some of them being of distinguished people in this and other countries. She has not only her New York studio, but sustains one at her lovely country home in Greenwich, Ct. Her friends here are warmly greeting her. A pretty luncheon recently given by her sister, Miss Joella Gowdy, who is a leading educator here, gave Mrs. Baker an opportunity to meet friends of former days, among these being Mrs. Ella Hamilton Burley, Mrs. J. J. Hargenbarger and Mrs. C. Getchel of Los Angeles. Mrs. Baker has a most charming personality, and in spite of her wide vogue in the East as a brilliant artist, is most delightfully cordial and sincere.

Mrs. W. L. Deimling was hostess on Tuesday evening to the members of the executive board of the southern district of the California Federation of Woman's Clubs, the ladies being her guests at the North Broadway home of the Deimlings. Not only was there a social atmosphere that was highly delightful, but matters and plans of importance to the Southern District Federation meeting to be held in Santa Ana November 10-13, were discussed. Among the subjects were the proposed State endowment of $50,000; future legislation; 1915 exposition work, and general plans for the district convention.

Miss Daisy Clara Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lewis of No. 915 East Fourth street, was married on Tuesday evening at the family residence to Chester McLaren Scott, son of Mrs. Christina Young. The bride was most attractive in white crepe de chine with garniture of pink rosebuds and rhinestones, the dainty costume being completed with a bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Marjorie Magee, her cousin, who was charming in pink crepe de chine with roses of the same color in her bouquet. Miss Monoleta Spencer, a niece of the bride, was the ring bearer, and Carleton Scott supported his brother as best man. Miss Spencer sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" before the ceremony and Miss Marie Thomas played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered. After the marriage service had been read by Rev. J. G. Kennedy, Miss Edith Spencer sang "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Fifty guests were served at the wedding supper, the decorations for which were the same as over the house, pink amaryllis and roses. The bride's traveling gown was of tan, and Mr. and Mrs. Scott are honeymooning at an unknown spot.

The ladies of the Around-the-Corner Club were the guests on Thursday of Mrs. A. R. Hervey at her Balboa Beach summer cottage. The ladies took generously filled baskets with them, making the trip from Santa Ana to the seashore by automobile and electric car. All were in gala spirits and a highly delightful day was spent. Luncheon in the cosy beach bungalow proved to be an elaborate repast. Fish, fresh from the blue Pacific, and cooked to a turn; aromatic coffee and tea were added by the hostess to the royal spread evolved from the lunch baskets. A sail on the Newport Bay after luncheon was rendered more attractive by sweet ukelele music by the younger members of the party. Bathing and the usual delights of the beach were enjoyed and the ladies were sorry when the hour for return to the city rolled around. Those in the party besides the hostess were Mrs. Lou P. Hickox and daughters, Jewel and Ruth; Mrs. E. E. Keech, Misses Kara, Madeline and Douglas Keech; Mrs. Jayne and daughter, Isabel; Mrs. Stone, Mrs. A. M. Gardner and Miss Minnie Gardner; Miss Ruth Hillyard, Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. D. Eyman Huff and son, Kelsey; Mrs. E. B. Sprague and son, Clarence, and Miss Gertrude Summers.

The Mortimer-street home of Mrs. J. S. Wasser was the scene of an entertaining luncheon and a Kensington party on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. H. O. Martin, a former schoolmate of the hostess, in Clifton, Iowa, and her niece, Miss Bayton, as the honored guests. Mrs. Martin has but recently come to Santa Ana to reside, and Thursday's afternoon affair introduced her to the ladies of the Impromptu Club, of which Mrs. Wasser is a member. The dainty luncheon was served on small tables centered with Cecile Brunner roses. The prettiest of needlework engaged the ladies throughout the afternoon hours. Mrs. Wasser's guests included Mrs. Martin and Miss Bayton, Mrs. W. L. Grubb, Mrs. H. H. Reeves, Mrs. L. L. Whitson, Mrs. George Balderston, Mrs. Theodore Winbigler, Mrs. Wilbur W. Wasser, Mrs. O. M. Robbins, Mrs. Max Reinhaus, Mrs. Alice Tubbs.

One of the most highly enjoyed social features of the summer season was the semi-annual picnic of the Michigan Association of Orange county held Friday at Birch Park, one of the most delightful sylvan spots in the city. More than 200 persons partook of the picnic dinner served at noon on tables spread beneath the spreading branches of great trees. Flags, bunting and the portraits of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, draped in black; and of Willam Alden Smith, the favorite United States Senator of Michigan, who was to have been the speaker of the day, but who was unavoidably kept at Washington by pressing events, made an attractive setting of the band stand from which a musical programme was rendered by an orchestra of young women. The music was interspersed through a programme of addresses, readings, solo singing and vocal duets. Superior Judge W. H. Thomas made the principal address in place of Judge Conrey of Los Angeles, who was detained at home by illness. An address of welcome was made by C. S. Shaw and other talks were made by President E. E. Cooley, Vice-President L. E. Durler of Orange, and Elmer O. Shaw.

Whittier.

A WEDDING of interest to local society was that of Miss Elda Kenworthy and Ray Coppock at San Diego Thursday, the 6th inst. Whittier friends did not learn of the nuptials till this week. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Kenworthy of North Comstock avenue, and is a popular young lady. The groom is one of this city's well-known young business men. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Coppock will return here and make their home.

Miss Sue Smith of North Washington avenue left for San Diego Thursday to be the guest of a former Columbia (Mo.) University friend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson and Prof. and Mrs. O. C. Albertson returned from an extended motor trip through West Central California Thursday, the trip taking the parties as far as Lake Tahoe.

A merry party left Monday for a two weeks' outing in the San Bernardino Mountains, where the time will be spent in Little Bear and Big Bear valleys. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butman and daughters, Misses Mary and Laura Butman; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mann and Mr. and Mrs. Oval Redmon.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Henry Johnson of East Hadley street, Mrs. L. M. Remley, Miss Metta Remley and Miss Agnes Templeton returned early this week from a three weeks' camping trip at Camp Baldy.

The club membership includes the following well-known and popular young ladies: Elizabeth Fueller, Helen Barkham, Gladys Matteson, Esther Bennett, Eleanor Fay, Frances King, Vera Hood, Mabel Ferry, Helen Rosenbaum, Jeanette Lewis and Gladys Montgomery.

Colton.

AT THE SPACIOUS, comfortable North Eighth-street home of City Clerk and Mrs. N. Davenport a particularly congenial house party of out-of-town friends was entertained over the week-end, in the guest group being Mrs. Florence Dodson Schonemann of San Pedro, Earl Delzell of Los Angeles and Ernest Kaai and Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu, Mr. Kaai being a noted musician of the islands and Mr. Kahanamoku the celebrated Hawaiian swimmer and world's champion. As a welcome attention an informal little dinner party of pretty appointments was given Saturday evening at the Davenport residence, with additional covers laid for Mrs. Martha Hoit Hebberd, Mrs. Grace Garner, H. G. Horton and Dr. J. A. Kentz. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perris of San Bernardino, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Copeland and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Curtis came to greet the visitors and to participate in the music and dancing that followed the dinner hour. Sunday, complimentary to the members of the house party, Mrs. Martha Hoit Hebberd entertained at luncheon at the Glenwood Mission Inn at Riverside.

Causing a ripple of pleasant interest and surprise, especially among the younger set, was the quietly-planned marriage of Miss Katheryn Isbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Isbell, and J. Searles Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Miller of Kansas City, which occurred at 8 o'clock Saturday evening at the Presbyterian parsonage. Only the immediate relatives witnessed the plighting of the troth, at which Rev. R. M. Davis officiated, and immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a short wedding trip. For the wedding the winsome little bride wore her traveling costume, a tailored suit of olive green cloth, made in the latest model. Both young people are very popular and are receiving the utmost good wishes and congratulations.

Chaperoned by Mrs. N. L. Parmer and Miss Mable Brown, a merry crowd of members of the Philathea and Baraca classes of the First Baptist Church sought Blue Mountain Friday evening via hay rack for a wienie roast and watermelon feed. Sharing the fun were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hoak, a bridal couple, whom the event was honoring; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rornes, the Misses Brilla Elgan, Helen Howard, Alice Beall, Esther and Rhoda Ahman, Pearl Newton, Della Peters, Milo Gilbert, Evert Hines, Louis Steck, Kenneth Raynor, Earl Doty and Raymond Foote.

Miss Frances Hays, a school teacher in the High School of Joplin, Mo., is the house guest of an aunt, Mrs. Wilson Hays, and other relatives.

Rialto.

THE marriage of Miss Nina Leona Sedgwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Sedgwick, to Lionel M. Harris, was solemnized Monday afternoon at the pretty new bungalow home of the happy couple. Rev. O. W. Reinius read the impressive ring service of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The house was a bower of white blossoms and ivy. The bride was attired in beautiful white silk poplin with overdrape of silk shadow lace, and she carried an arm shower of white carnations and ferns. Gowned in delicate green silk with chiffon drape and carrying white roses, Miss Ruth Kingman assisted as maid of honor. The bride's brother, Ralph Sedgwick, served as best man, and little Martha Tolle carried the golden circlet on a snowy pillow. Following the little ring-bearer the bride and her maid approached the improvised altar in the bay window, where they were met by the groom and attendant, and the ceremony was performed. The wedding marches were rendered by Miss Maude McManis of Los Angeles, and "The Mountain Stream" was played softly during the ceremony, while Mrs. William Needham sang, "Oh Promise Me" preceding the ceremony, Misses Lois and Gladys Livingston, Fern Welsh, Bell Bernard, Margaret Bohanon and Mrs. E. P. Barnard assisted at the buffet luncheon, which was served after the service. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Harris will

LEADERS IN FASHION THE VALUE-GIVING STORE

—Swelldom's extraordinary Monday offering

—187 strikingly handsome

Fall Suits

—$30, $35 and $40 values

—$18.75

The reason for this magnificent offering? Simply to keep SWELLDOM reputation for extraordinary value-giving before the women of Los Angeles.

Here we show for Monday's selling—or as long as they last—a collection of 187 indescribably beautiful Fall suits.

The models are exquisite, stunning and authentic. Such wanted materials as Broadcloth, Poplins, Gaberdines, Serges, together with fancy weaves are found in fancy tailored, semi-fancy and plain tailored styles. Altogether, there are 22 different models with plain and pleated, long Tunic skirts.

Fortunate, indeed, will be the women who will possess these suits at such remarkable savings—it is an event that will greatly enhance SWELLDOM reputation for wonderful value-giving.

The above sketch was made at our store from one of the garments that will be on sale Monday at $18.75. In charm of style and grace of line, it is typical of every other model.

return to Rialto, where they will occupy their cozy new home.

The wedding of Miss Maude Luella Easton and Herbert E. Mead occurred at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Dan Trundell in Highland Park Monday evening. The bride was gowned in white, beautiful in its simplicity. The couple were unattended. After a fortnight spent at Catalina the bride and groom will return to Claremont, where they will make their home. The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Easton, a graduate of San Bernardino High School, class of 1908, and Pomona College, class of 1912, of which class the groom is also a graduate. Mr. Mead is assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Claremont.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Welborn were the host and hostess at a pretty family dinner which they gave at their home Tuesday evening. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. McHargue, and daughters, Lois and Margaret, of Colton, Attorney and Mrs. Robert McHargue and daughter, of San Bernardino, and Mr. and Mrs. Phelps of Carruthers.

Mrs. Bessie Chase and Mrs. Franklin Ross were the hostesses to the ladies' Bible class of the M. E. Sunday-school, which held its regular meeting at the church parlors Monday afternoon. Mrs. B. E. Sibley gave an interesting reading, and several songs were sung, Mrs. Ross acting as organist. Following the programme a social hour and melon feast were enjoyed in the banquet-room.

Buena Park.

MISS ALMA COUGHRAN, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coughran, extensive property owners in this vicinity, and J. Owen Gallagher of Whittier were united in marriage at the summer home of the former at Santa Monica on Sunday afternoon, Rev. J. L. Havener, pastor of the Ocean Park Christian Church, officiating. Only relatives and close friends were in attendance at the service, which was beautifully impressive throughout, the lines having been read beneath a bower of pink and white cut blossoms intermingled with greenery.

The bride was attired in a girlish gown of ivory satin trimmed with shadow lace, the filmy folds of her veil being arranged in a Normandy-cap effect. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and maidenhair. Miss Mary Gallagher, the groom's sister, assisted as maid of honor and her gown was a dainty creation of pale pink. A pillow muff of Cecile Brunners was carried. A wedding supper followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher left for San Diego. After September 1 they will be at home to their many friends in Whittier, where the groom is engaged in business.

San Jacinto.

MRS. ALICE FRANCE returned Monday from a four days' visit with friends in Riverside.

Among San Jacinto people who attended the joint concert given in Riverside Sunday by the Riverside and Redlands bands, were: Austin McCleish and family, F. B. Record and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Fowler, Mrs. Mary Morse, Mrs. E. F. Kerr, C. W. Young and family, H. L. Gandy and family, G. B. Edingfield, E. H. Record and Mrs. W. H. Sanders and family.

L. J. Bentley has returned from a week's visit to Huntington Beach with relatives.

C. L. Emerson and family left this week for an outing at Long Beach, to be absent ten days.

J. B. Hurt, C. D. Pool and A. C. Coffeen left Friday for a few days' deer hunt in the mountains near Cahuilla.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kimmel of Glendale have been visiting for the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Malone, Mrs. Kimmel's parents.

Attorney Miguel Estudillo of Riverside was in San Jacinto on professional business Thursday. Senator Estudillo is a native of San Jacinto and attended the San Jacinto grammar school, and has many warm friends of his boyhood days in San Jacinto.

Fullerton.

WITNESSED by admiring friends of the bride, who has been a popular teacher in the Fullerton grammar school, the ceremony uniting in holy matrimony Miss Elsinore Mary Giddings of Los Angeles and William H. Satterthwaite of Doylestown, Pa., took place at noon Thursday in the Baptist Church at Fullerton, Rev. Russell B. Whiteside being the officiating minister.

Decorations in the church were tasteful and appropriate. Miss Edna Welton played the wedding march. Adolph Koch, in a violin solo, was accompanied by George Hampton at the piano. The ushers were Albert Sitton, Alvin Ford, Hubert Jolly and Carl Jolly.

Mr. and Mrs. Satterthwaite departed after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip, their destination being unannounced. Later they will go to the home which awaits their coming at Doylestown, Pa., where the groom is a successful attorney.

Since closing her school work here Miss Giddings has resided in Los Angeles with her mother, Mrs. Anna L. Giddings. Guests at the wedding included a number of friends from Los Angeles.

Owensmouth.

MRS. W. R. MAYER and daughter, Miss Jessie, of Corcoran; Mrs. H. E. McLaughlin, Mrs. Marion Crandall and Miss Louise Runkle of Los Angeles, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Mitchell at dinner on Tuesday.

Dr. A. J. McAllister, chief surgeon on the steamer Corea, plying between San Francisco and Hongkong, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. E. G. Harbold and family, the first of the week.

E. R. Padget of Denver is the guest of his brother, R. S. Padget, and family.

The Misses Addie and Edith Haas have as house guests the Misses Viola Bruin and Willabelle Dumont of Exeter, and Miss Bernice Hull of Van Nuys.

Miss Geraldine Porter of Los Angeles is spending the week with Mrs. A. C. Brubaker at her ranch home.

Claire Warner of Denver visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Padget this week.

Covina.

ELLEN BEACH YAW'S unique garden fete, held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ben F. Thorpe, on Cypress avenue last Saturday evening, was the most enjoyable mid-summer event of the valley. The famous prima donna, who makes her home in Covina, surrounded herself with unusually good talent for this affair, which was arranged as a benefit for the Lark Ellen Home for Boys, an institution of which the noted singer is chief patron.

The sunken garden at the Thorpe villa was utilized as a seating place for more than a thousand guests. The programme was given on the promenade walk, surrounded by the orange trees

A Quick Merchandise Move To Protect Your Interests and Ours

—The very moment that war conditions in Europe took a serious turn—that very moment saw my organization in action to thoroughly protect your interests that we might serve you with those certain lines of merchandise affected by import.

—Every available buyer as well as the merchandise manager was rushed to the markets with practically unlimited buying power to protect all our lines subject to import.

—I can, therefore, assure you that this merchandise has been secured with the intention of protecting your interests—serving you with the lines you have been accustomed to buy—at prices within the market, until such time as American manufactures can adjust themselves to conditions.

—I would urge, however, that you take advantage of prevailing prices; for there is no assurance how long present qantities will last.

SOCIETY.

of the orchards, and the foliage was rendered brilliant with electrical effects. Mme. Yaw sang several dramatic numbers, including her own composition of "Cuckoo and Firefly," "Skylark" and the mad scene from "Hamlet." She appeared at glorious advantage in the open air, and one feature which brought delight to the audience was the discovery of an echo to the prima donna's voice, which came from the Lark Ellen school building, 200 yards away. The entertainment was a distinct success, both from the financial and artistic standpoint. Among the distinguished guests present was Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times.

Those appearing on the programme were: Eva Ellsworth Duncan, pianist; Regina Albasini, mezzo-soprano; Inez Pediar, soprano; Ernest Crawford and Sarah Bennet in balcony scene of "Romeo and Juliet;" The Duncan Sisters in character sketches; Oscar Seiling and Celeste Nellie Ryus, violin and piano; Golden State Ladies' Quartette, composed of Edith St. Clair, Dorothy Dukes, Ruth Patton and Genevra Ryerson; Josephine Williams and Myrtle Gonzales in sketch, "A Fond Delusion;" Edith Noble, character song; Irene Wadey in scene from "Lucia," for soprano, with B. Olshausen, flute obligato; Ethel Holly, soprano; Alma Cloud, scene from "Mignon;" Maude Breden, character song; Marian C. Beuzeville, soprano; Karl Brandenburg, newsboy tenor; Marie Webster, soprano; Ruth Miller, artistic dancing; Rosetta Duncan, Dutch comedy; "Tennyson's Dream of Fair Women," by Eva Ellsworth Duncan, Misses Albasini, Alma Cloud, Myrtle Gonzales, Marie Webster, Wilma Webster; accompanists, Mary Keeler Newman, Inez Jackson Jacobson.

Anaheim.

HONORING Mr. and Mrs. John Hartung, who returned during the week after having circled the globe, an elaborately-appointed dinner was given by their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Hartung, at their charming home on North Los Angeles street. During their prolonged absence from this city Mr. and Mrs. Hartung have visited the capitals of Europe and have invaded the intermost recesses of the Old World. Possessing personalities of rare charm, they were the recipients of many social honors while on their tour that will make it a memorable one to them. Many delightful affairs have been arranged for them by their numerous friends in and about Anaheim, all of whom rejoice to have this splendid couple in their midst again.

Among the notable functions of the week may be numbered the dancing party given under the auspices of the Jolly Good Fellows' Club on Tuesday evening. Over 100 couples were in attendance and the affair was so successful that this coterie of clubmen are planning on giving another in the near future.

Miss Margaret McKee, a talented whistling soloist, assisted by Miss Hilda Butler, piano concert soloist, and Miss Leah McKee, a reader and impersonator, entertained with a recital on Thursday evening at the Fremont school auditorium. A large and appreciative audience enjoyed the rendition of a delightfully-arranged programme.

Mrs. Harry Dyer proved herself a delightful hostess on Tuesday evening, when her charming home was the scene of a card party. Cleverly-etched score cards marked the places for the guests as they assembled. Later a dainty collation was served.

Members of the East Side Thimble Club were entertained at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Samuel Tucker on Wednesday afternoon. At the conclusion of a happy afternoon a delicious luncheon was served in attractive courses by the hostess. A delightful feature of the event was the display of the many exquisite bits of needlework the club members have made during the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eygabroad, accompanied by the latter's mother, Mrs. Stearns, left during the week for their former home in South Dakota. A portion of the trip will be made by automobile, both Mr. and Mrs. Eygabroad being enthusiastic motorists.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cassou are spending the month in the Bear Valley. They anticipate a happy vacation with the gun and rod as their only companions.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sheridan left on Tuesday for an extended tour through the Eastern States. They will spend several weeks in St. Paul, having resided there formerly.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Leslie Swope are spending the fortnight at the popular mountain resorts in Ventura county. Mr. Swope is an enthusiastic huntsman and will join a party of friends in pursuit of deer.

MRS. JOHN STEWART INGALLS was hostess this week at two charmingly-appointed afternoon affairs at her new bungalow home, No. 211 North Fern avenue. Thursday, a bridge tournament was the order of the afternoon and the prizes were captured by Miss Cora Withington and Miss Ala Ballou. The games were followed by a tempting collation and the guests included Mrs. W. Starbuck Fenton, Mrs. Ralph Gage Spencer, Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor, Mrs. Crombie Allen, Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, Mrs. Peter Thatcher, Paul Wright Nichols, Mrs. Theodore Jr., Mrs. Curtis M. Lindsay, Mrs. Brooks, Miss Ala Ballou, Miss Cora Withington, Miss Eloise Watson, Miss Grace Elliot, Miss Katharine Salter, Miss Grace Smyth, Miss Torrey Pike and Miss Gertrude Hobby.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Ingalls entertained another group of friends. Progressive Five Hundred was played and the prize went to Mrs. Christopher Sheppard. The guests on this occasion included Mrs. Harvey C. Chapman, Mrs. Josiah S. Huntoon, Mrs. Richard H. Gushee, Mrs. Paul Wright Nichols, Mrs. Charles Benjamin Ford, Mrs. John Norman Huehn, Mrs. Christopher Sheppard, Mrs. Lana M. C. Conger, Mrs. Earl B. Williams, Miss Laurel Mayhew, Miss Opal Robertson and Miss Pike.

The first of a series of entertainments to be given by May Queen Rebekah Lodge for the benefit of the new orphans' home, to be erected at Gilroy, was held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. B. Bradford, No. 557 West D street, and proved a decided success. The affair was attended by nearly seventy and was held on the spacious lawn, which was artistically lighted with numerous Japanese lanterns. The evening was spent at progressive Five Hundred and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Alfred Fellows, assisted by the members of the Woman's Guild of Christ Episcopal Church, entertained with a garden party Wednesday afternoon in the grounds of beautiful Belldon Hall, the home of her sister, Mrs. Orrin Ziegler Hubbell, who is now in Europe. The affair was largely attended.

Mrs. Etta Johnson very pleasantly entertained the members of the Kensington Club Friday afternoon at her home in North San Antonio avenue. The affair was in the shape of a musicale and a dainty collation was served.

San Bernardino.

TWO of San Bernardino's most popular young women were principals Wednesday in a double wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Bentien, when the sisters, the Misses Buerte and Clara, became the brides, respectively, of Frank H. Capps of Los Angeles, and Orio B. Hull of this city. An interesting feature of the arrangements by which the two were wedded on the same day was the election of the pretty brides to take their honeymoons in common, and following the beautiful ceremony at the East Ninth street home the two young couples left for a blissful sojourn at Catalina.

A company of relatives and close friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony, which was presided over by the Rev. Alvah Grant Fessenden, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The brides wore their smart traveling costumes. Simplicity marked the decorations and other appointments. The two couples entered the altar room to music from the opera "Aida," played by Miss Freda Oehl.

Miss Clara Bentien, now Mrs. Hull, is a graduate of the 1909 class of the local high school, and for the past two years has been a teacher in the grammar schools of the city. Mrs. Capps has been holding a responsible government position in Los Angeles. Her husband is a former San Bernardino resident, but for several years has been connected with the Los Angeles Milling Company. Mr. Hull has been a member of the faculty of the San Bernardino Technical School, but next year will be located at Long Beach.

Dr. John R. Craig of this city has returned from an interesting trip to Upland, and is now the recipient of showers of congratulations from his friends, all because he brought to the city a bride, formerly Miss Nellie Shingler. The wedding occurred at Upland, at the home of the bride's parents. The young couple will make their home here, Dr. Craig being one of the physicians at the County Hospital. He is a graduate of the University of Southern California, and well known in Los Angeles. The romance culminating in the wedding started in Upland, where both resided for years, the groom being a son of Dr. Craig of that city.

Mrs. J. A. Cullen, who is preparing to leave San Bernardino for her new home in Los Angeles, was complimented Wednesday evening with a beautiful lawn party and whist event given in her honor by the members of the West End Social Club at the home of Mrs. Frank Zink, at 246 Carter avenue. The lawn was lighted with Japanese lanterns mingled with the overhanging pepper boughs, and presented a most artistic and pleasing effect. A pleasing sentiment was expressed by Mrs. G. A. Falkenstein, president of the club, who on behalf of the members presented Mrs. Cullen with a beautiful cut-glass nappy. After the whist games refreshments were served, the following participating in the evening: Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cullen, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Falkenstein, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pantley, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dalldorf, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Magee, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bucher, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight O. Falkenstein, Mmes. R. W. Pattee, H. R. Macbeth, William Kelly, Dr. F. M. Gardner, James Bagley, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zink.

A pleasant affair of the week was an afternoon at which Mrs. J. C. Lambert was hostess Wednesday, when the ladies of an embroidery club to which she belongs began work on gifts destined to gladden the hearts of family and friends during the Christmas season. Fingers were busy over exquisite needlework and the fairy articles under way for the eagerly anticipated days when only "good will" prevails progressed with marvelous rapidity. One of the alluring features of needlework is that it is no bar to conversation, so cheerful chat accompanied the flashing of the embroidery needles in and out of the dainty fabrics. The several gifted musicians who belong to the club responded charmingly to the demands on their musical powers. So diversified were the pleasures of the afternoon, to which a daintily-served collation of ices and cakes was the hospitable closing, that the hour for adieus arrived all too soon. The ladies meeting together were Mrs. Ann Schwartz, Mrs. Edward Smith, Mrs. Ida King, Mrs. Charles Arts, Mrs. John King, Mrs. Fenlon, Mrs. William Collar, Matthews Mrs. J. H. Stearns, Mrs. H. E. Matthews, Mrs. Elizabeth Hart, Miss Avis Smith.

A BELATED STORY.

BY GORDON RAY YOUNG.

[illegible] after reading this book—"Oscar Wilde and Myself," by Lord Alfred Douglas (Duffield & Co.)—which may be called [illegible] defense, since the author [illegible] not spare himself, and which, also, is [illegible] and merciless onset at erstwhile friends and acquaintances, it is not easy [illegible] a confident opinion on all of the [illegible] and affairs uniting the name of Lord Douglas with the stigma of Oscar Wilde.

The whole unpleasant case is scarcely conducive. Were it not that Lord Douglas [illegible] entitled to a hearing even at this [illegible], there would be cause, as there [illegible], to ignore the subject now [illegible] for all time.

[illegible] it, he addresses a biased and concealed audience. Popular opinion condemned him almost a generation ago; and [illegible] opinion greedily accepts charges [illegible], but stubbornly refuses to examine the records. Having endured with a [illegible] of indifference the unutterable [illegible] of the world that has not only condemned but has almost canonized in a literary way Oscar Wilde, Lord Douglas has broken his silence to speak. And he has [illegible] in a manner that carries conviction.

[illegible] has long been given extreme [illegible] for that magnificent wail known as "De Profundis." For some years we were deluded into believing it more or less a sort of epic of repentance. Question of its utter sincerity was much like [illegible] a tocsin for combat.

[illegible] than two years ago Lord Douglas [illegible] in a libel suit to suppress [illegible] passages in a book by Arthur [illegible], and the entire manuscript of "De Profundis" was brought into court to [illegible] that Lord Douglas had been a financial and intellectual incubus on Wilde.

[illegible] for the first time even a small [illegible] of the public learned that the remorseful and repentant "De Profundis" was composed wholly of passages carefully, we [illegible] say artfully, selected by Robert Ross, so-called "Literary Executor of Oscar Wilde," from a vituperative manuscript of some 50,000 words—a manuscript [illegible] by Wilde while in prison as a [illegible] not to Mr. Ross, as he has allowed [illegible] to believe, but to Lord Douglas. [illegible] disclosures of the contents of "De Profundis" are what have caused him to [illegible] that which he would have us believe [illegible] the truth concerning a man whom [illegible] defended with such sustained generosity as to intensify the popular opinion [illegible] was associated with Wilde's guilt. [illegible] what seems to us a very unjust decision, Lord Douglas has been enjoined [illegible] publishing or paraphrasing any parts [illegible] letter written to him by Wilde and [illegible] to Mr. Ross for delivery. Mr. [illegible] did not deliver the letter. Instead, [illegible] published in book form those parts of [illegible] appealed to his literary judgment [illegible] it to the public under a misrepresentation that does not reflect credit to [illegible]

[illegible] that, it is easier to understand [illegible] Ross has not scrupled to present [illegible] "De Profundis" letter, which was not, [illegible] ethically, his property, to the British Museum with the understanding [illegible] may not be given to the world [illegible] 1960. There is good reason to believe, and some reason to hope, that all [illegible] implicated will be dead by that [illegible]

[illegible] was by what amounted almost to [illegible] that Lord Douglas learned of [illegible] defamation that is to be [illegible] publicly against him in the years to [illegible]

[illegible] this letter, so denunciatory and [illegible], does not charge him with complicity in Wilde's abominations. Yet it is [illegible] a nature that Lord Douglas says [illegible] it due himself and his family to [illegible] the curtains of silence.

[illegible] read much of the so-called "unpublished" parts of "De Profundis." It is [illegible] and petulant and vituperative, [illegible] from the seraphic passages [illegible] so considerately culled.

[illegible] wrote it, not in an hour of anguished repentance for sins and shortcomings, but in an hour of anger because [illegible] saw himself in a part which the [illegible] "manner" thoughtfully concealed [illegible] himself deserted by Lord Douglas [illegible] there were neither visits nor letters [illegible]

[illegible] that he was ruined through his [illegible] for Lord Douglas. He was. It [illegible] of his son, Alfred Douglas, that [illegible] of Queensberry instigated the [illegible] which resulted in Wilde's imprisonment. And it does not seem difficult to [illegible] why he, whose mind was never [illegible] writhing in the mental and physical [illegible] of prison life, might pour out abuse [illegible] who had inadvertently brought [illegible] such straits and then, seemingly, [illegible]

[illegible] Douglas states that this seeming [illegible] on his part was because he was [illegible] and that Mr. Ross, who was [illegible] communication with Wilde, reported [illegible], as correspondence and visitors [illegible] limited, Wilde desired Lord [illegible] neither write nor visit him at [illegible]

[illegible] himself did not consider the [illegible] made in "De Profundis" very [illegible] is evinced by his willingness to [illegible] after his release from prison, the [illegible] quarters of Lord Douglas. [illegible] Douglas says that had he not discovered the true contents of "De Profundis" [illegible] never have sought to expose the [illegible] of one whose friendship had long [illegible] his, but whose memory he [illegible] bound outwardly to respect.

[illegible] almost forty when he first met [illegible] Douglas just coming of age. [illegible] admits that he was fascinated [illegible] witty, whimsical man, and says [illegible] with him almost constantly for [illegible] before ever hearing Wilde use [illegible] word.

[illegible] example may be of interest to [illegible] Wilde appears to the once [illegible] in the now broken crystal [illegible]: "Wilde was a doughty [illegible] trencherman. His capacity [illegible] knew no bounds. The [illegible] was that he was never really [illegible] from 4 o'clock in the afternoon [illegible] in the morning he was [illegible]" . . . "I soon discovered [illegible] was one of those conversationalists [illegible] were conscious of the value, [illegible] of their own mots, but of those of [illegible], and that his own or my jokes [illegible] on Monday, were bound to figure in the bit of dialogue or the portion of an essay which he would endite on Tuesday with the help of stiff whisky-and-soda and illimitable cigarettes." After Wilde came out of prison "he composed and completed the final version of the 'Ballad of Reading Gaol' while staying in my villa at Naples. . . . There are passages in this poem which he lifted holus-bolus from a poem of my own." Of Wilde in Paris shortly before his death it is said: "Though he could have lived quite comfortably on what I gave him, and though he had a weekly allowance which should at least have kept him from starvation, there can be no doubt that toward the end of his life, Wilde underwent a certain amount of privation. . . . He got his dinners on credit and borrowed money from waiters." At this time disease and alcoholism manifested themselves and he openly returned to the abominations of which he was convicted. Lord Douglas says simply: "All through my acquaintance with him after his release from prison it had required a good deal of pluck to be seen about with him."

As a book this is well written. As a controversial volume it is masterful. He is handicapped in his defense because he may not quote from the unpublished "De Profundis"—though "unpublished" portions of it have been scattered broadcast in the newspapers and magazines, but he presents a convincing case. Point by point he explains the incidents and situations of which the reader may be curious. He has furnished a holiday for the morbid. He has set up a pillory for his enemies, and in my opinion he has put them into it. He represents himself largely as a thoroughly chastened fool who has acquired a huge lump of useless knowledge from the rough hands of experience. Parts of his story may seem a little improbable at times, and yet there is something between the lines which says: This man tells the truth.

Regarding the famous case which opened when the Marquis of Queensberry left his card at Wilde's club on which he had written an accusation against Wilde as "posing" as a vicious person, there seems to have been much misrepresentation. The Marquis did not accuse him of practicing those vices, but alleged that Wilde sympathized with them and offered as evidence that erotic book, "Dorian Gray." Wilde brought suit for libel. The case broke down. He was arrested on evidence that came to light, but convinced Lord Douglas that he was innocent until just before the trial.

Lord Douglas declares that all he has suffered since was because of the irrational loyalty which would not permit him to desert his friend. Lord Douglas's mode of conduct at this period suggests a lack of judgment rather than the allegiance of an accomplice.

Several chapters of this book are devoted to a critical study of Wilde's works, and, though by no means a poor critic as well as a poet of some standing, in spite of obvious difficulties, he does not propose to leave Wilde credit for much genius or ability.

We do not need a Lord Douglas to point out that Wilde was a poser in literature, mentally foppish, and usually pitifully eager to attract attention, as his studied oddity of garb and studiously inverted platitudes show.

But he was undeniably clever. He could amuse and entertain, but he never instructed. He seldom tried to. As long as he was impishly insincere he came near to accomplishing that which he attempted, namely, to be unique. He had no definite aim, no foundation principle, unless it be one to seek interminable applause and to sacrifice any truth to any quip. His essays are lively, not deep. His comedies are sparkling, often with far-fetched witticisms, nevertheless striking.

So far as I know, Oscar Wilde never wrote for publication but one piece of prose (possibly excepting his book reviews) that was intentionally instructive and made a pretense at deep thought. That is his essay on "The Soul of Man," which is an excellent example of a flowing style washing incoherent ideas about like so many detached corks in an eddy. He had given Socialism only superficial thought and failed in the attempt to present its principles in a passionate

If Wilde had not had the grotesque advantage of an unspeakable accusation, if he had not been thrown into prison, and if he had not written that one remarkable poem, "The Ballad of Reading Goal," (directly due to his prison experience.) It is to be doubted if he now would be widely remembered. But because of those things, all the books and sketches and dialogues he ever signed are held up by breathless admirers as representing the wit and widsom of a great man.

Greater men and those more witty have passed rapidly from the memory of the general public; and, when he is taken off the pedestal of his crime, Oscar Wilde is by no means a conspicuous figure in the world of letters.

James Whitcomb Riley and Otis Skinner.

Since the illness he suffered some three years ago, James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet, has been reported, in erroneous dispatches, as being in a grave state of health, when, as a matter of fact, the poet's health has been improving constantly. After spending the last winter and spring in Florida, where he went upon the completion of the arduous task of assisting in the compilation of his complete works, he returned to his home in Indianapolis, Ind., feeling, as he expressed it, better than when he was a boy. The friendship which has existed between James Whitcomb Riley and Otis Skinner may be said, in part, at least, to have resulted from their mutual interest in dramatic work. If Mr. Riley never achieved a place among the professional theatrical celebrities, it was because he did not have the inclination. The story is told of a visit he once made to London when he was the guest of honor at a banquet given by Sir Henry Irving, the great English "star," and Couquelin, the famous French tragedian. After the dinner, Mr. Riley was called upon to recite some of his compositions, and after he had completed Irving is said to have turned to Couquelin and remarked, "When this man refused to take the boards in earnest, the American stage lost its greatest actor."

SLAVONIAN HUMOR.

STORIES OF RUSSIAN LIFE. By Anton Tchekoff. (Translated by Marian Fell.) Scribner's Sons, New York.

IT IS RATHER unusual to find humor in a Russian—almost as much so as to find a Yankee who will admit it possible in an Englishman. Anton Tchekoff may well be called a Russian humorist, although his work differs a little from those which are enjoyed from our "funny" writers.

"Overseasoned" describes how a traveler, becoming suspicious of the honesty of his driver, begins to relate tales of his own courage, to tell how well he is armed and how dangerous it will be for any one to try to rob him. The driver becomes so alarmed that he deserts his passenger in a thick woods, and it is only after hours of coaxing that he consents to return and continue the journey.

"The Death of an Official" is the farcical tale of a punctilious official who sneezed on his chief at the theater. The official insists on apologizing, but the chief declares it is nothing and not to be mentioned again. Still the official persists in apologizing, and, failing to get satisfaction out of his attempts, returns to his home and dies.

"Murder Will Out" is one of the best written stories in the book. An official, traveling incognito, questions the driver about himself, and learns that no matter how much the official may attempt to keep people from knowing when he starts on an inspection tour, they always find out and prepare for him. In disgust the official orders the driver to turn around and take him home.

There are some two dozen stories in the volume, and most of them have little, we may say simple peculiarities, rather than involved plots, that sustain interest. Although comparisons to O. Henry have been greatly overworked, nevertheless Tchekoff may be appropriately designated as a sort of a Russian O. Henry. We understand that he is very popular with the peasant classes, and can realize how that may be, since his stories are not deep and are humorous.

BOYISH ESCAPADES.

THE MISADVENTURES OF THREE GOOD BOYS. Henry A. Shute. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

MOST of our good citizens have been bad boys. The "angel child" may be comfortable to have around the house, keeps his blouses clean, never scatters things over the floor or plays havoc with the neighbors' friendship, but it is usually more from a lack of vitality than from a lack of inclination.

Misadventures seem to be a malady of youth, along with the whooping cough and measles, and the "three good boys" of whom Judge Shute writes go ker-plunk from one juvenile mishap into another, raising the neighborhood to indignation or merriment en route. The troubles they have, to a large extent, resemble those of every healthy youth, only it does seem that they suffer unduly from the misfortune of being caught and punished. Perhaps Judge Shute includes the retributive paddle as a sort of an anti-climax to point a salutary moral.

When Plupy, Pewt and Beany enter the newspaper field with "The Lambaster," dreaming of journalistic fortune and fame, they are just inexperienced enough to tell the truth about some of their fellow-townsmen.

Such items as this may make interesting reading but poor dividends: "Question. Had enny man aught to go riding with a nother man's wife at nite in a top bugy. If he hazn't then Bill Archibald has dun rong last Sat nite."

There were several similar items, and the commotion may be imagined. "The Lambaster" suspended publication forthwith.

Shortly afterward the boys formed a bill-posting company and secured employment from the advance agent of a circus, who promised $1 to each of them if, the morning the circus arrived they would have some of the more gaudy posters placed in unusual and conspicuous places. Faithful to their charge, the boys carried out instructions. The church, the town hall, the dwellings uplifted flamboyant testimonials to the excellence of the collection of pachyderms and behemoths. Indignant and outraged parents put the youngsters to bed, from which they were later rescued by the grateful circus manager and carried off to a special box by the ringside.

And so the misadventures ran: If they became navigators by some freak of fate they left their passengers stranded and hungry; when they declared a "strike" as paper carriers they came off without honor, though with some success.

It is a joyful, entertaining book, with a laugh in every chapter.

CURING CRIMINALS.

THE CRIME DOCTOR. By E. W. Hornung. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

WE CANNOT help but feel that Mr. Hornung is doing penance for those charming stories of rascality which link his name to "Raffles"; and, as is usually the case with the penitent, he is a bit disappointing in the effort at restitution.

Of course, we may be misjudging him. It may be that he merely executed an "about-face" to get a new viewpoint and new plots. Whatever may be the cause, "The Crime Doctor" is not at any point the equal of those stories of successful crime which came some years ago as a welcome relief to the interminable success of one Sherlock Holmes, who hounded criminals to earth with a skill so unerring as to exclude excitement over the outcome of the adventure.

Dr. Dollar, having been wounded on the head, finds himself unable to oppose criminal proclivities until a successful operation restores him to normal mental health. Taking his cue from his own experience, he determines to devote his medical skill to the curing of criminals and turns his home into a hospital for rascals who are not always amenable to treatment.

In order that he may enlist the assistance of the Home Secretary of England, the doctor, in disguise, picks the pocket of the official and later restores the valuables, taking that opportunity to explain certain theories and work regarding criminals.

It soon becomes necessary for him to "pull" official wires in order to save a notorious criminal from the death penalty, since this particular fellow has been convicted of killing a policeman who really met death at the hands of Lady Vera Moyle, suffragist and fashionable militant.

Croucher, the criminal, is accurately termed "a hopeless case," and later the timely intervention of Dr. Dollar keeps him from causing Lady Vera much annoyance.

Just why the lady should go scathless, except that she is beautiful and unwittingly stabbed the policeman whom she only intended to knock unconscious, is hardly made clear considering that this book is on the side of the law.

Several stories, sometimes slightly interwoven, but all linked to Dr. Dollar, make up the volume. As is to be expected from the author's reputation, the plots are rather unique. But Mr. Hornung has strolled into a field that does not seem to offer the advantages that fit his established skill. He is much abler in creating rascals whom we may admire than in portraying reformers whose motives and accomplishments may be commendable, but whose personalities are not particularly attractive.

DOMESTIC ROMANCE.

MISS BILLY MARRIED. By Eleanor H. Porter. Page Company, Boston.

JOYOUS books are never without a welcome. Eleanor H. Porter writes them, and few books have ever attained the success of "Pollyanna," or are more pleasing than "The Miss Billy" series, of which "Miss Billy Married" is the latest. We do not venture to say that Mrs. Porter writes classics, but we do venture to say that she fills to a large extent for the present generation a place similar to that held formerly by Louisa Alcott.

Miss Billy is lovable. We can understand perfectly why Bertram wanted to marry her and did. Miss Billy as a bride—or rather Mrs. Billy is human and natural, and just how human and natural every woman who has been a bride can testify, in her hope to keep married life one perpetual honeymoon. Perhaps it is possible to do such a thing.

Billy learning to cook, and feeding Bertram and Uncle William on exactly the proper number of calories is also adorable, though it is easy to sympathize with Uncle William's astonished protest upon learning that by dietetic standards he is not entitled to the two eggs which he has enjoyed for breakfast all the many years of his life.

As a mother, restlessly solicitous over her baby, passionately seeking information on baby-raising, even neglecting her husband, still Billy remains charming.

But the story is not all humor. Bertram, an artist specializing in painting the faces of beautiful women, breaks his arm and is incapacitated for work at about the same time he finds himself transplanted in the attentions of his wife by the baby. He reattaches himself to old acquaintances, doesn't come home regularly for meals, spends a little more time in drinking than he should, and gradually becomes more and more indifferent to the home influence.

Well—when the wise and resourceful Billy wakes up and sees how matters are going, she immediately gets busy and sets her cap to win her husband back. She gets out her prettiest, fluffiest dresses, puts powder on her nose, sets her eyes at a flirtatious angle, and the first thing Bertram's chums know, their friend has fallen in love with his wife.

Billy persuades Bertram to try painting with his left hand, and the baby is the subject. In time he wins back his old skill and the chronicle of this domestic romance comes to a glowing and heart-warming end.

It is a pleasure to read this book.

SUPERIOR LOVE STORY.

MY LOVE AND I. By Alice Brown. The Macmillan Company, New York.

SOME time ago "My Love and I" appeared under the nom de plume of "Martin Redfield," but now that Alice Brown has won popular attention in being awarded a $10,000 prize for a drama the book is reissued under her own name.

It is an unusual story; it is unusually well written. It has an idyllic quality that sustains that which might easily be sordid. The plot is not new, the treatment is.

Martin Redfield—since this purported to be almost an autobiography the supposed author appeared as the leading character—is a man with ideals in literature who marries a beautiful, delicately but tenaciously avaricious woman, Mildred. She is not concerned over the quality of her husband's work; she only asks that he make money and it takes large amounts to supply her wants.

One who stands in the relation of a distant cousin to Mildred, a man of wealth, openly but not repulsively in love with her, insists upon making expensive presents and in placing large sums to her credit. Mildred feels offended that her husband—though he supports her in a style not far from, if not luxurious—forbids these gifts.

The relation between the three of them is strained, and becomes the more so when Martin finds and loves a woman who sympathizes with his efforts and his hopes. But she is a woman of ethical judgment, as well as expansive and deep sympathies, and turns him back to his wife to do the best that can be done in reconstructing a home around the boy that has been born to Mildred and Martin.

Throughout the story the character of Blake, a poet, whose head is in the clouds and whose feet scarcely touch the earth, appears. He is perhaps symbolic of unfettered ideals, a living rebuke to Martin for transgression into mercenary paths.

"My Love and I" is a superior, splendid story; it is filled with strong sentiment without being sentimental; some of the situations are not pleasant, but the treatment of them is never disagreeable.

WITH THE MAGAZINES.

Announcement is made that Pall Mall has combined with Nash's Magazine, and these two English publications will appear as one in September. The August number of Pall Mall is largely devoted to fiction, though among the special articles are "Has Modern Progress Benefited Mankind?" by Guglielmo Ferrero, and "K. of K.," being a study of the personality of Earl Kitchener, by T. H. Manners Howe. Among those contributing fiction are G. K. Chesterton, Rafael Sabatini, Cynthia Stockley and C. H. Bovill.

Poetry undertakes to forestall its critics by a quotation from Walt Whitman, thus: "To have great poets there must be great audiences too." Nevertheless, it is difficult to see how poetry makes any appeal to "great audiences" by devoting itself so exclusively to those who have neither thought nor music to particularly recommend their verse. Ezra Pound holds forth in the place of honor in the August number with several short items. "The Coal Picker," by Amy Lowell, is as good as Mr. Pound's, but not a whit better. "The Dance Before the Arch," by Allan Updegraff, is perhaps the best contribution in the number, which includes several other "poems."

The August number of Harper's makes a special feature of fiction, and begins a novel—"The Turmoil"—by Booth Tarkington. Among the articles are "A Bird of Passage," by John Burroughs; "At the Kaiser's Court," by Mme. de Hergermann-Lindencrone; "Visions of Old Waterways," by Edward Hungerford and "Along the Uncharted Pampaconas," by Hiram Bingham. The better known short-story contributors are Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, Wilbur Daniel Steele and Alice Brown.

The North American Review for August presents its customarily varied and timely table of contents. The leader by the editor—"Politics and Business, The President's Change of Mind"—although an explanatory title, will well repay the reader's careful attention, as will also the other editorials, which deal with the following subjects: "How Lives Are Lost at Sea," "From Journalism to Politics," and a humorous collection of diplomatic notes. David Jayne Hill, a possible candidate for the New York Governorship, has a scholarly paper on "The State and the Citizen," and the English publicist, Sydney Brooks, considers the many perplexities of "The Future of Austria-Hungary."

A careful assembled analysis of existing conditions in the Senate prior to the inauguration of the direct election of Senators will be found in "The Changing Senate," by George H. Haynes, and a paper of equal political importance is that of "The Nominating Primary," by William Thomas Laprade. "Some Old-Time, Old-World Librarians" is the title of Theodore W. Koch's scholarly article, and the third paper in the series of "A Constructive Department of Justice" maintains the interest and importance of its predecessor.

Among the features in the Bookman for August are "The Budget of the Movies," by Graham Berry, which describes the operations of a Santa Monica moving-picture company; the first part of "Joseph Conrad—A Study," by Ricard Curle, and "Some Government Bookplates," by Marcus Benjamin appear. Frederic Taber Cooper discusses a number of novels in a critical and entertaining manner; Norman Bryce, under "Random Gleanings from Current Novels," shows, perhaps unintentionally, how little information one needs to be able to write a long article. "Chronicle and Comment," as usual, illuminates many literary topics of interest.

The feature of the Forum for August is unquestionably the "Sonnets of a Portrait Painter." It is perhaps the largest collection of sonnets—and they are sonnets of quality, too—that has ever appeared at one time in any American publication. "The Woman's Movement" is a new essay by Walter Lippman, which is largely a rehash of things Ellen Key has said. An article of real value is Alfred Bishop Mason's "The Abolition of Poverty," and "Pan-Slavism in America," by C. Townley-Fullam, presents much information on some of the racial hatreds now prominent in the European war. Short stories and several articles other than those mentioned are included.

The Book News Monthly for August makes a feature of Cynthia Stockley and discusses her books. By far the most interesting article is "Two Mornings With George Brandes," by Albert Mordell. "A Visit to Hall Caine," by George F. Kearney, for once, puts the famous novelist in a pleasing light. "A New Man and His Message" allows Mary Adams Stearns to appear sentimental over the books of Will Levington Comfort. A quantity of book reviews are included.

BOOKS AND PUBLISHERS.

Eleanor Hallowell Abbott's new romance, "Little Eva Edgarton," which was published serially some months ago, will be brought out in September by the Century Company. It is a whimsical story and we are not disappointed to note that it lacks the customary number of invalids, nurses and doctors, whom Mrs. Abbott has a penchant for describing.

A new edition, the fourth, of Robert Underwood Johnson's collected poems, including the contents of his earlier volumes and editions, all of which are out of print, besides a number of poems hitherto uncollected, has just been brought out by Bobbs-Merrill Company.

A volume of California fiction is soon to make its appearance from the press of Paul Elder, under the auspices of the California Writers' Club. It will be edited by Herman Whitaker, and will, of course, include stories by Jack London, as well as by Charles F. Lummis, J. Torrey Connor and other California writers.

The Rev. Charles Sheldon, who stumbled into prominence with "In His Steps," and recently put in another bid for attention with "Jesus Is Here," is now lecturing in Australia under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

Oliver Onions is hailed as one of the "coming" writers of England. He is more than a "comer"—he has "arrived," and Onions is no nom de plume. He is best known through the trilogy embodying "The Story of Louie." His latest book, "Gray Youth," is a satire of some size on the "isms" of the day and will be reviewed on this page soon.

Ralph Connor, rather prominent a few years ago as a word painter of dubious merit but indubitable generosity in colored adjectives, will have a new novel this fall, published by George H. Doran Company, entitled "The Patrol of the Sun Dance Trail." It deals with the wilds of Canada.

The little but significant word "no" got out of the outline beneath the picture of Amelie Rives and made it appear that "Princess Troubetzkoy" was a nom de plume." It should have read, "Princess Troubetzkoy is no nom de plume." She acquired her title by a matrimonial ceremony.

"The Salamander" was the nation's best seller last month. We have called it a good many unpleasant things, but never thought to brand it as a best-seller.

Miss F. Tennyson Jesse, the grand-niece of the "well-known" poet, Alfred Tennyson, is young and fair. That may account for the reason why all of the reporters insist upon inquiring into her views on love. Though her latest book ("The Milky Way"—a good book, too,) is a love story, she is noncommittal on the subject, at least for publication.

Mitchell Kennerley published "The Lay Anthony" this month, and in an advance notice tells why he did so. He says: "Chiefly because I believe 'The Lay Anthony' is a fine piece of work. To me it has in some measure the great qualities of Meredith's 'Richard Feverel.'"

Rand, McNally & Co. announce for publication this fall "Dons of the Old Pueblo," by P. J. Cooney. The story deals with the annexation of California and it is said that many people are still living in Southern California who remember the characters that appear. All of the scenes are located in and around Los Angeles and Pasadena.

Harper & Bros. announce the publication of "The Auction Block," by Rex Beach, for September. Mr. Beach has come out of the wilderness and proposes to show some of the cruelty of city life. He tells the story of a young woman whose parents exploit her in whatever reputable and remunerative way possible.

"The Younger Generation" is another new book by Ellen Key, which will be brought out soon by Putnam's Sons. Also this company will publish next month "Between the Old World and the New," by Guglielmo Ferrero.

GENESIS THE ROCK FOUNDATION. By Albert L. Gridley. Richard G. Badger, Boston.

A little book which endeavors to set forth clear reasons why there is no inharmony between the statements of Genesis and facts as revealed by modern science. It would establish Genesis as "the rock foundation of science and religion."

coast defence system is an Nowhere on the Euro- the littoral land itself attack from nearby supporting bases, and nowhere is the navigation more hazardous than on the German coast line.

The shores of Germany on the North Sea end in low, marshy land, and the shallow offshore waters are studded with sunken rocks.

The tide rises about ten feet in the Elbe and from five to seven feet on the coast of Friesland. Generally speaking, the waters in the North Sea vary from twelve to sixteen fathoms in depth. During certain seasons there are rises in tide of as much as twenty feet.

The water close in shore generally freezes in winter. This is largely due to the low salient property, this being 1-90 as a rule, as compared with 1-26 for deep sea water.

On the German Baltic there are many good harbors, though but little water; while on the North Sea side the harbors are limited to the Weser, Elbe and Jolide Bay.

The entire German coast defence system is intrusted to the navy. There are two districts, the North Sea and the Baltic, each presided over by a vice admiral, assisted by a rear admiral and inspector, and both land and sea defence is subordinated to the navy.

A strategical railway runs along the entire coast line, connecting up with every port and defence station. This railway extends from Emden on the west to Memel on the east. Altona, on the Elbe, is the centre of the entire coast defence system.

Naval Arsenals in Coast Defence.

The naval arsenals of Kiel, on the Baltic, and Wilhelmshaven, on the North Sea, are comprised in this coast defence.

The submarine defence includes a large depot at Friedrichsort, with substations at Wilhelmshaven, Kiel, Stralsund and Danzig, and sixteen minor stations. At the island of Heligoland there is a large depot for torpedoes and submarine boats, all of which comes under control of the coast defence commanders.

The entire system of fortification is uniform, and the guns in service represent the heaviest armament turned out by Krupp. The calibres included comprise 17.7, 15.7, 14.3, 13.9, 11, 10.2, 9.4, 8.2, 5.9 and 4.7 inch. While all these calibres are in service, the main dependence is on guns of 10 and 11 inch calibres.

The greater number of the forts possess Gruson turrets and cupolas. This form of protection is absolute as against fire from naval guns. Gruson turrets, so far as known, have not been penetrated by modern high powered guns, and it was Lord Charles Beresford who declared on the floor of the House of Commons that no naval commander would think of laying his ship up against the fire of a Gruson battery.

The Gruson cupolas in the German coast batteries contain mostly 8.2 inch guns. The turret guns are heavier.

The principal fortifications in the North Sea guard the Elbe and the Weser. On the former stream is Hamburg, and on the latter Bremen. Jahde Bay is also wonderfully fortified, for it is there one might expect a landing from a hostile force. No less than thirteen heavy detached forts and batteries guard the approach to Jahde Bay.

But the German coast defence is essentially an offensive defence, and this offensive defence is effected through the medium of submarines and torpedo boats, which utilize the protection of the coast fortifications for a base.

When Germany secured Heligoland in 1890 from England steps were immediately commenced to finish the fortifications undertaken by the British, and today Heligoland, lying off the Elbe, is well nigh impregnable. As a port of refuge for a fleet the island is of little value, but its position is of the highest importance as a coaling station and mining depot for torpedo boats.

FIRST CAUSE OF WAR ALMOST FORGOTTEN

The reverberating clash of the great arms of Europe seems altogether to have clouded the fact that some time—at now seems aeons ago in the bewildering rush of epoch making events—war was declared by Austria-Hungary against a tiny State of the Balkans. As a matter of fact, it was a very short time ago that the dual monarchy began to measure her immense military strength against Servia's gallant little army, "in numbers few but apt in the field."

It was the same when American marines and bluejackets took and held the Mexican port of Vera Cruz in the face of a determined defence by men practised in the art of fighting from the roofs of houses. In the subsequent excitement of the next few days the so-called Tampico incident was forgotten. In the light of the fact that American lives had been lost and American sailors and marines had been maimed by Mexican bullets, the fact that Huerta had refused to salute the flag was lost sight of by nearly every one.

Servia has by no means forgotten that her hereditary oppressor is pounding at her gates, and from all accounts of the fighting she is by no means permitting Austria to remain unmindful of the fact that she will have to pound considerably before any lasting impression can be effected.

Heligoland Expected to Prove a Tower of Strength

Its Powerful Guns Will Keep British Vessels at a Distanc and Prevent a Close In Blockade of the Mouth of the Elbe.

Heligoland is only one mile long and has a width of about 650 yards. It rises abruptly out of the sea, its red cliffs towering above the waves for fully one hundred feet on the average, and at the highest point, where the lighthouse stands, the height above sea level is 245 feet.

Surrounded by Dangerous Reefs.

On the northeast side the island is surrounded by dangerous reefs, but torpedo craft manage to obtain a shelter behind the reefs against the seas.

This shelter is very much that of an open roadstead. Nordhaven, as one of the roadsteads is called, has a depth of twenty-three feet and Sudhaven thirteen feet.

The island is defended by two direct fire batteries and one mortar battery One of the former contains 100-ton gun level. A second battery containing 88-to are at a height of 175 feet above se level. A third battery containing 39-to guns is on the western side. The morta battery contains 11-inch mortars. Th battery is situated in the centre of th island.

Owing to the great height of these bat teries the guns are able to fire practicall on all sides, and because of their rang a close in blockade of the mouth of th Elbe is practically out of the question The influence of Heligoland may be sai to extend to any attempt to blockad either the Weser or the Kiel Canal.

It would be a very difficult matter t carry Heligoland by assault owing to th steepness of the cliffs; in fact, the sout side may be regarded as safe from approach. Access to the summit is by means of a 700-foot length sloping tunne extending up from the shore line.

The Germans have attached th greatest importance to Heligoland be cause of its strategical importance as

NEW WAYS OF WAR IN OLD WORLD

FRENCH INFANTRYMEN LYING IN AMBUSH, WAITING FOR SKY SPY TO COME WITHIN RANGE OF THEIR RIFLES

AIRMEN DO NOT FEAR MISSILES FROM THE EARTH

"I AM flying too fast to be hit by any bullet," is the aviator's idea. He possesses confidence, too, in the knowledge that he makes a very small target for any enemy. The soldier afoot, on the other hand, is encouraged in the view that the aviator is too busy balancing himself to make a good marksman, that his guns, too, are light and of little effectiveness, and that the speed of the aeroplane makes it a poor gun platform.

In the Tripolitan war the Italians found that the Arabs were able to watch the comparatively slow descent of a bomb from a three thousand foot altitude, and to scatter in time to avoid the resulting explosion. They depend on the accuracy of infantry fire to repel any attack by aircraft descending lower than the height mentioned.

station for torpedo boats, and believe that submarines and torpedo boats using Heligoland as a base will make it next to impossible for a hostile force to blockade the seacoast from Borkum to Sylt. The blockading fleet would have not only to expect attack from the front and on its flanks, but, further than all this, Heligoland is regarded as the base for torpedo boat and submarine attack against the estuaries of the east coast of England.

Control of the North Sea.

The control of the North Sea is of paramount importance alike to England as to Germany in the event of actual conflict. England long ago assigned to the British fleet the task of securing command of the North Sea in the event of war. It was for this reason that British war ships have been drawn in from distant parts of the world, until to-day only a stray cruiser or so is found in foreign ports. The whole strength of the British navy has been concentrated for North Sea operations, and when the English fleet sailed under sealed orders on war threatening it was generally conceded that the fleet had made a rendezvous in the North Sea.

The old English policy of making the enemy's coast the first line of defence is held to be hazardous in the case of the German North Sea shore line. In this war the English long ago planned an off-shore blockade—one that would effectually seal up the North Sea while laying her blockading vessels less liable to attack from torpedo boat and submarine.

This off-shore blockade, as generally understood, comprises a line from the north of Scotland to the Norwegian coast. This is the north line. The southern or western entrance to the North Sea is stopped at the entrance to the Straits of Dover.

The east coast of England forms the base of operations of the British fleet against the German coast. It comprises the whole of the western border of the North Sea from Dover to Duncansby Head, a distance of about five hundred miles, prolonged some sixty miles to the Orkney Islands on the north.

The mouth of the Thames, with the first class ports of Chatham and Sheerness and the advance torpedo boat and submarine bases at Dover and Harwich have command of the North Sea routes from and to the Straits of Dover. The German North Sea base lies a little to the northward of Dover, and for this reason has led to the construction by the British of a second base, first class in character, more to the northward. This new base is at Rosyth, situated on the Firth of Forth, about three hundred and fifty miles north of Dover.

From Rosyth the distance to Heligoland, Dover and to the Skagerak are almost equi-distant. This central position, however, is not regarded as favorable for a German blockade, since it would mean a four hundred mile run from a close-in blockading line to Rosyth. Compare this with the ninety mile run only from the American blockading line at Havana to Key West.

Among naval experts it is held that a run from a blockading line to a base should not exceed 150 to 200 miles. Because of the distance from Rosyth additional bases had to be formed further north among the islands.

The North Sea is essentially the threshold to Northern and Central Europe. Possession or command of the North Sea means dominance of much of the commerce of Central Europe. Because of its enormous importance commercially the North Sea may be regarded as the key to the situation. To keep this sea open and free is of vital necessity to the country lying economically behind it.

Because of the danger of an inshore blockade, assuming always that the German fleet is not in possession of the sea, has arisen the idea of the extended blockade. This extended blockade assumes a blockading line from the Scapa Flow. The Orkneys are the base.

Importance of Firth of Forth.

The Firth of Forth gains fresh importance when this northern blockading line is undertaken, since it becomes more central, and because of its central location English leaders have seriously considered, it is understood, a project for connecting the Firth of Forth with the Clyde, thereby giving a fleet quick access to the Irish Sea.

If the British are considering an off-shore blockade from the Orkneys to Norway, it will mean a miserable stretch of weather for many a cruiser crew. During the summer months it is daylight from sixteen to eighteen hours, and during the winter months daylight is limited to from six to eight hours. In the northern limits of the North Sea the midnight sun is in evidence.

Fogs are most prevalent in the period from late autumn to January. Fog or hazy weather is prevalent about one day out of three during this period. The sole exception is in the extreme northern part, where, on the other hand, the summer months are hazy. As might be expected, the winds are strongest in winter time. The direction is from southwest to northwest almost wholly. The strongest winds come from the southwest, and the southwest winds constitute about thirty per cent of all the wind that blows. The southwest winds surpass in velocity by thirty to fifty per cent the average winds from the northeast and south. One-third of the month fog, half of the month fresh southwest winds, with much rain and snow, that is North Sea weather in the winter, and it is the weather a British blockading line may expect in an offshore blockade.

German Batteries.

The strength of the German batteries, their great range and the treacherous nature of the inshore waters of the south side of the North Sea all contribute to the hazard of an inshore blockade.

As an illustration of the ineffective results obtained in firing at guns mounted high up in shore batteries from ships we have the lessons of the extended French experiments, when ships fired over a period of three days at batteries placed in varying positions on bluffs, and it was found that under the most favorable conditions which obtained that not more than fifty per cent of the personnel would have been injured and that not more than one-third of the guns were put out of action.

In experiments against Gruson turrets it has been found that the Gruson turrets were impregnable to gun fire. As an instance of what a Gruson turret will stand we have the valuable data recorded in the official trials of a plate for the great turrets built by Krupp for the Italian government and now mounted in the naval defence systems of the harbors at Spezzia and Taranto.

The plate subjected to trial weighed 193,895 pounds, and the conditions of the test required that it withstand at point blank range three shots from an Armstrong 100-ton gun using Krupp steel shells. The shells weighed 2,205 pounds each, while the powder charges consisted of 827 pounds of one-hole brown prismatic powder. The actual energy developed on impact amounted on an average for three shots to 47,460 foot-tons.

The plate stood the test faultlessly.

The only effect produced by the three shots was the appearance on the surface of the cupola of several long abrasions of 5, 10 and 4 centimetres depth, and a number of cracks besides, five of which showed themselves on the rear side.

The result of the trial altered in no respect a conclusion to be formed as to when the plate would be breached in the case of a long continued fire. All the steel shots employed were shivered into countless splinters. These splinters were so hot that at the last fire they set fire to the woodwork around the plate, which woodwork was entirely burnt down.

If a 100-ton Armstrong gun firing three shots point blank at a Gruson turret was unable to make any impression, it is hardly within the realm of possibility that a ship firing at a long distance and unable to exert even as much energy on the plate would do more. And it must be borne in mind that Gruson turrets cover the approach to the Elbe and Weser and to Wilhelmshaven, and cover Heligoland as well.

Danger in Night Attacks.

If the blockading fleet did keep just out of the range of the German coast guns there would be the ever present danger of attack at night from submarine or torpedo boat. So long as the North Sea can be blockaded effectually—from the deeper waters of the north, yet in rough tumbling water, as it were, at a long distance from the bases of the enemy's submarines, it will be safer work. There will be less chance for a submarine to approach undetected. It will be seen through the daylight hours by the scouts, and the bad weather which may be counted upon two-thirds of the time will be the best protection the blockading fleet can hope for. Only the British navy, with its many cruisers and battle ships, could undertake to bottle up the entire North Sea by stretching a line across from the Orkneys to the coast of Norway, and in addition there must be a sufficient number of ships to take care of the mouth of the Dover Straits and of the east coast of England.

German defence is always offensive and German torpedo boats may be expected to make a dash for English seaports and naval stations. The hazard is great, but the results if successful would be worth probably the undertaking.

German Guns.

The German fleet is equipped solely with Krupp guns. Such a thing as a burst Krupp gun has never been known.

This result is ascribed to the crucible nickel steel which Krupp invariably uses in ordnance. The German powder is excellent, and in comparison with British powder is regarded generally as superior. There is little doubt imported Krupp guns can be expected to stand up under a longer fire than Woolwich guns. The British powder is very hard on gun rifling. This has long been known, but it is perhaps cheaper to continue the guns as designed, make them in more plentiful quantities, perhaps, than resort to a change in powder plants. This is the view that many leading British officers have long held.

There is no question that British powder is one of the safest and best keeping powders in the world, and for this reason more than any other the British have held on to it. It is at the same time one of the hardest powder on guns that is known. It may not matter much where a preponderance of numbers assures a short action. In a long sustained action powder characteristics may have a most appreciable bearing on the result, for guns are of little value which have lost their accuracy by reason of powder abrasions.

FOUGHT GERMANS BEFORE.

German troops are no new antagonists of Earl Kitchener, war lord of Great Britain. While it is not universally known, it has often been asserted by men who are acquainted with the stern conqueror of the Mahdist hosts at Khartoum that he was a volunteer officer in the French army of 1870 while he was yet a cadet of the Royal Military Academy in England.

It was after the Franco-Prussian War that Horatio Herbert Kitchener, a young Irishman from Bally Longford, in County Kerry, was commissioned second lieutenant in the Royal Engineers. From the rank of subaltern to that of field marshal of the British Empire "Kitchener of Khartoum" received every promotion for meritorious service.

Germany Casts Envious Eye on Belgium and Luxemburg, Both Neutral Countries

Their Integrity Guaranteed by Treaties, Former Is Being Colonized by Teutons and Little Duchy Is Buffer Between France and Her Old Enemy—Switzerland Free from European War Entanglements, and Holland's Independence Guaranteed by England.

Belgium—the Battle Ground of Nations! So it has been through a long vista of history. Its battle grounds have played mighty parts in the affairs of Europe. The names of some of the great generals who have marched their serried columns through its areas include Maurice of Nassau, the Duke of Marlborough, Marshal Saxe, Blucher, whose timely arrival saved the forces of Wellington, "the Iron Duke," from defeat at Waterloo, where the hero of the Napoleonic wars fought his last great fight.

Occupying a strategic place on the map of Europe, Belgium has long been a buffer state between German and Briton. Since the country seceded from the Netherlands, in 1830, and set up a separate state the country has for the most part enjoyed peace and prosperity, with the exception of internal troubles caused by political and social turmoil.

Belgium is a neutral Power, her neutrality being guaranteed with the treaties of London of 1831 and 1839. The Powers which signed these treaties are Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia and Russia. For many years Germany had had her eyes on the port of Antwerp, one of the best in Europe.

German Colonization Scheme.

Reports have it that in recent years the Germans have carried out a consistent scheme of colonization in that city, the German population there being estimated at sixty thousand. The sympathies of the great majority of the Belgians, however, are with France, French being the principal language of the country.

Besides Belgium, the only other countries of Europe which are guaranteed as neutral territory by treaties of European countries are Switzerland and the independent Duchy of Luxemburg, which adjoins Belgium on the southeast. The neutrality of Switzerland was guaranteed by the treaty of Vienna in 1815 as indispensable to the peace of Europe. The Duchy of Luxemburg was guaranteed as neutral territory by the treaty of London in 1867. In each of these cases the terms of the various treaties have been violated by the German armies.

Occupying a position next in strategic importance to Belgium is the Kingdom of Holland, toward which the eyes of the German Empire have been directed longingly for many years. The neutrality of Holland is not guaranteed by treaty. Her importance as a buffer country between Germany and England is such, however, that it is a foregone conclusion that England would resent by force of arms any attempt by Germany to encroach upon the territorial integrity of Holland.

That the people of Holland themselves realize the ambitions of the Germans concerning the ultimate future of the country is best illustrated by the panicky feelings with which they viewed the announcement of the betrothal of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland to Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Germany. The marriage took place on February 17, 1901. Because of his German ancestry the Duke has never been popular with the people of the Netherlands.

The severance of the political ties between the northern and southern Netherlands dates back to 1579, when the people of the southern section of the country, now known as Belgium, broke away from the northern section and announced their intention of supporting the cause of Catholicism and their loyalty to the Spanish King. The northern provinces, on the contrary, by the Union of Utrecht, January 29, 1579, announced their intention of defending their rights and liberties, political as well as religious, against any foreign Power which should challenge them. Then followed a long series of internal dissensions and foreign wars in which Belgium was regarded as the prize of nations. Commerce and industry were practically paralyzed for years by the battles which took place on its boundaries and the sieges to which its cities were subjected.

Building of Belgium as Nation.

This state of affairs continued until after the fall of Napoleon and the first treaty of Paris, on May 30, 1814. By the terms of this treaty Belgium and Holland were united into one State under the rule of the Prince of Orange, who assumed the title of William I. The Belgians, however, were dissatisfied with conditions under this régime and in 1830 raised the standard of revolt which resulted in a secession from Holland.

The secession was finally recognized by other nations, and Leopold of Saxe-Coburg, the widower of Princess Charlotte of England, mounted the throne of Belgium as King Leopold. Soon after this Holland declared war and sent an invading army into Belgium. The Belgians were quickly routed, but their enemies retired to the north after the advance of a French army. After fighting between the French and the Dutch invaders the Dutch were forced to capitulate, with the result that Belgium retained a large portion of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, which had been subdivided.

King Leopold I. died on December 10, 1865, and was succeeded by his son, Leopold II. On his death, in 1909, King Leopold II. was succeeded by his nephew, King Albert, who succeeded to the throne on December 17, 1909. The area of the country is 11,373 square miles, with a population in 1911 of 7,423,784. The country's revenue for 1913 was $151,500,000. The debt of the nation amounts to about $750,000,000. The annual imports of Belgium are about $900,000,000, while the exports are $75,000,000. Belgium can put an army of 180,000 troops in the field on short notice.

Switzerland, also neutral, is a confederation consisting of nineteen whole and six half cantons or states. It has a republican form of government. The area of the country is 15,976 square miles, with a population of 3,738,000. Of the cantons, eighteen of them speak German, five speak French, one Roumanach and one Italian. It is known the world over as the country of the Alps.

Historians naturally place Swiss history in five divisions:—(1) The origin of the confederation, up to 1291; (2) the radial from dependence on the family of Hapsburgs, up to 1394; (3) the shaking off of dependence of the empire, up to 1499; (4) the period of religious divisions and French influence, and (5) the construction of an independent state, as evidenced by the constitutions of 1848 and 1874.

On account of the mountainous nature of most of the country the Swiss naturally became a self-reliant body of people. They looked with disdain upon the pretensions of those who asserted their "divine right to rule," and the character of their country made it easy for them to dispute such pretensions by force of arms. In all the wars which disturbed the peace of Europe during the Middle Ages the Swiss, first on one side and then on the other, usually gained through each war a further step in the direction of absolute independence of entangling alliances with neighboring Powers. In the latter contests, however, the Swiss confederation seemed bound to France by closer ties than to any other nation.

Swiss Neutrality Guaranteed.

As a result of the French Revolution the Swiss Confederation was broken up, part of it being annexed to France and other parts becoming separate republics, of which the Helvetian Republic was the largest. On October 4, 1802, Napoleon Bonaparte, then ruling the destinies of France, summoned the leading French statesmen to Paris and discussed with them the need of a Swiss constitution and a neutral position which was to be guaranteed by France.

By the act of mediation drawn up by Napoleon and accepted by the Swiss delegates on February 19, 1803, the territory was referred to for the first time as "Switzerland." By the terms of this constitution the thirteen members of the old confederation, which existed before 1798, were again created, together with six additional members created out of territory conquered at different times. By conquest and gift during the next several years three more members were added to the confederation.

After the waning of Napoleon's power the allied forces of Europe forced the Swiss to repeal the constitution of 1803 and to adopt another constitution more to their liking. On November 20, 1815, the great Powers signed a treaty forever guaranteeing the neutrality of Switzerland, thereby freeing her from a subservience to France which had lasted three hundred years.

From that date until the present time the troubles of Switzerland have been of an internal nature, the political and social condition of the people growing gradually better. The Constitution of 1848 and later the Constitution of 1874 were evidences of the changing conditions. The initiative and referendum on legislative matters has long been a feature of the Swiss Constitution.

AUGUST 5 THE ANNIVERSARY OF TWO GREAT BATTLES

Both Saint-Privat and Mobile Bay Were Decisive Struggles.

HISTORY REPEATED IN PRESENT CONFLICT

August 5 was the anniversary of [illegible] great battles—one the battle of Saint-Privat, in the Franco-Prussian war, in which the Germans decisively defeated the French on August 5, 1870, and the other the naval battle of Mobile Bay, in which Admiral Farragut's fleet defeated and destroyed the remains of the Confederate Navy on August 5, 1864.

Each of these battles was of the [illegible] importance in the war during which [illegible] occurred. In the case of Saint-Privat [illegible] showed the superiority of the German army from every standpoint and [illegible] the swift victory which was to come [illegible] so short a time. In the case of the Mobile Bay battle it struck a deadly blow [illegible] the fast dying hopes of the Confederacy.

In the present conflict history is [illegible] peating itself in the strange way [illegible] only history can. But will the [illegible]

[illegible] are at war in the air. The [illegible] flying forces of the two [illegible] rivals for aerial supremacy have [illegible] clashed and the long predicted [illegible] of "aerial navies grappling in [illegible] central blue" and plunging to earth [illegible] is actually here.

[illegible] struggle in the sky is only at [illegible] beginning. The full fury of the [illegible] death engines upon which Eu[illegible] has spent the staggering sum of [illegible] in the six years up to now [illegible] not yet been unleashed. When they [illegible] warfare may be filled with horrors [illegible] and war forever.

[illegible] of waging war may be entirely [illegible] into a mockery of armies that [illegible] and navies that crawl over land [illegible]. Only the other day Admiral [illegible] Percy Scott, the inventor of the most [illegible] of British artillery, confessed [illegible] he had exhausted his engineering [illegible] in devising resistance for dreadnaughts that were now rendered obsolete by the forces in the air and under [illegible], the airship and the submarine.

I place herewith for the first time [illegible] accurate and exhaustive [illegible] of the great aerial armaments [illegible] mobilized by France and Germany, with those of Russia, England, [illegible] Austria. A fair estimate of the [illegible] for the mastery of the air [illegible] until the sums spent by [illegible] on dirigibles and aeroplanes [illegible]

[illegible] estimate is probably far below the [illegible] figures, but is taken from government reports, to which are added the latest [illegible] from authoritative technical [illegible]. In round figures Germany has [illegible] spent [illegible] on her aircraft. [illegible] follows closely with $22,000,000, [illegible] with $12,000,000. Even Italy has [illegible]; Austria, $5,000,000, and [illegible] $2,000,000. The clamor for [illegible] has been so great for six [illegible] in Germany public subscriptions for aircraft have amounted to $3,-[illegible]. The French public has enthusiastically contributed $2,500,000 in [illegible] to the appropriations by the government.

[illegible] appropriations of European nations [illegible] reached the amazing sum of $24,-[illegible], with France in the lead. France [illegible] $7,000,000; Germany, $5,-[illegible]; Russia, $5,000,000; England, [illegible]; Italy, $2,100,000 and Japan, [illegible]. Now that war in the air is [illegible], it is probable that the appropriation of $27,000,000 made by the [illegible] to cover a period of [illegible] may be drawn into the great [illegible]

[illegible] German air fleet, the most powerful [illegible] world, has eighteen of the [illegible], each a veritable aerial battle[illegible] with quick-firing and machine guns and launching tubes for discharging aerial torpedoes. Three of the [illegible] fleet are passenger dirigibles, [illegible] into air cruisers.

[illegible] German air squadron also in[illegible] Parseval non-rigid dirigibles, [illegible] with machine guns at the bows [illegible] launching tube in the floors of the [illegible]. To these twenty-eight formidable [illegible] be added two of the largest [illegible] of the Schuette-Lanz type, [illegible] guns, as do the Zeppelins, [illegible] of the hull, but also go the Zep[illegible] better by having machine guns [illegible] in sponsons projecting from [illegible] of the hull and reached by [illegible]. Six smaller non-rigid ships [illegible] type complete the great German fleet.

[illegible] Smaller Fleet.

[illegible] this imposing array France [illegible] serviceable dirigibles [illegible] and slower than the Ger[illegible]. Their energies are of less [illegible]. French expert opinion has stated [illegible] the Zeppelins the French air [illegible] will not exist. But France has [illegible] splendid array of aeroplanes [illegible] the deadly work the German [illegible] wreak on her supply depots.

[illegible] end of 1913 France had ag[illegible] war aeroplanes, manned by [illegible] officers and 620 military [illegible] her more than 1,000 air[illegible]. This force has probably been [illegible] aeroplanes and 1,200 air-[illegible]

[illegible] interference with [illegible] dirigibles by hurling 700 [illegible] is fixed as those of [illegible] superior numbers. These [illegible] fully manned, in most in[illegible]. Some French and [illegible] are known to carry [illegible] guns, the efficiency of [illegible] by actual war con[illegible]. All of them can drop bombs of [illegible] to seven pounds. The only [illegible] about the size of [illegible] by the German dirigibles [illegible] of its 22-pound bombs will [illegible] a railway station or [illegible]

[illegible] will not play any [illegible] in the conflict with their dir[illegible] possesses eight built by [illegible], all of relatively small [illegible] dirigibles are not con[illegible] has until only recently concentrated her efforts on sea planes, armed with a shell firing gun, with which she trusts to destroy the dreaded Zeppelins. Russia has about 800 aeroplanes, but had only trained eighty pilots at the end of 1913. England's Royal Flying Corps musters 350 aeroplanes and as many pilots. Austria has six dirigibles of inferior power and 150 aeroplanes, and an insufficiency of pilots.

The aerial forces of both Germany and France are disposed with studied effectiveness along the frontiers. Eight Zeppelins and six Parsevals are stationed in the latest type of revolving airship sheds at Friedrichshafen, Strassburg, Metz and Cologne, on the French border. These sheds are operated by electricity and permit a rigid airship to enter or leave always with the wind, thus avoiding the former risks of breaking the vessel if a sudden wind blows athwart the entrance. Eight more Zeppelins could occupy the same sheds by relays while the others are away on a mission.

The exact location of other units of the German fleet gazetted not later than two weeks ago places Zeppelins in other stations at Frankfort, Gotha, Thorn, Hamburg, Cuxhaven, on the North Sea; Berlin, and others at Koenigsberg, Posen, Breslau near the Russian frontier, and at the Island of Heligoland, in the North Sea. Three passenger Zeppelins, the Hansa, Victoria Luise and Sachsen, used as training ships, are now converted into cruisers.

France Relies on "Fifth Arm."

France relies on her "fifth arm," as her aeroplanes are designated, to repel aerial invasion. Practically her entire aeroplane "fleet" is assembled at her great flying camps—Rheims, Verdun, Toul, Epinal and Belfort, the great fortresses which stretch along the German frontier. But the aeroplane is a bird of the day, while the dirigible navigates equally as well at night, and on this great advantage Germany depends to escape the sharp eyes of the French airmen. Attempts have been made recently to operate aeroplanes by the aid of small searchlights, but they do not illuminate very much of the darkness.

The vulnerability of Great Britain to aerial invasion is emphasized by the fact that the government recently prohibited foreign aircraft from flying over seventy-six restricted districts, representing military or naval garrisons, fortified islands, piers, wireless stations, dockyards, lighthouses, railway stations, supply depots and towers.

The naval wing of her flying corps is situated at Eastchurch and the army wing at Salisbury Plain and Farnborough. But England's only possible resistance to Zeppelins flying overhead at night are her sea-planes, which carry two men and wireless to warn the British Isles. These planes have a flying time of six hours over sea, and much of their work will be to detect the approach of Zeppelins toward the British coasts.

In the death grapple in the air hundreds of fighting machines and men must inevitably go down to death. The losses will without doubt be enormous, and it is interesting to study the preparedness of each nation to replenish its shattered air hosts.

France has twenty aircraft factories, all grinding away for dear life. Germany's twelve plants are working night and day. The two great Zeppelin works—the one at Friedrichshafen, the other at Berlin, employing 2,000 skilled artisans—are capable of turning out six Zeppelins a month. Five new Zeppelins were nearing completion at the outbreak of the war, and these will bring the Zeppelin fleet up to twenty-three ships, if some have not been destroyed in the meantime.

In England six factories are engaged not only in producing aeroplanes, but at Farnborough the British navy is constructing a great rigid dirigible of the Zeppelin type. Russian and Austrian factories are inadequate to keep them supplied.

The organisation and work of the respective air fleets of Germany and France are wonderfully perfect. The German air dreadnought fleet is strictly homogeneous and forms one collective striking force. The airship fleet consists of four squadrons of four airships each, with two in reserve. The army and the navy dirigibles are operated on a separate basis. The Prussian army possesses six airship battalions of twenty companies, Bavaria three companies and Saxony and Würtemberg two companies each.

Each airship is commanded by a military or naval officer, assisted by two lieutenants. Four helmsmen work in relays; two helmsmen attend to naught but rudders for horizontal steering. An assistant engineer and four engineers handle the motors, of which on latest Zeppelins there are five of 1,000-horse power. Two wireless operators furnish relief. Three machinists and three to six gunners complete the crew, according to the size and armament of the ship.

The latest marine Zeppelins, of which there are three, the L.3, recently reinforced by the L.4 and L.5, new ships that were finished two weeks ago, are the giants of the entire Zeppelin fleet. They scale 30,000 cubic meters and, judging by the voyage of the L.3 in May, when it covered a journey of 2,000 miles around Germany and made it in thirty-four hours, running at the rate of sixty miles an hour, these great ships should have no trouble about remaining continuously in the air for two days and nights with their full war complement and guns, which are probably of greater range than any preceding ship of this type.

These ships are intended by the German Admiralty for attacking the British fleet, possibly at night, since the manoeuvring of Zeppelin airships in conjunction with the sea fleet over the North Sea and the Baltic during both day and night the last two years should have given much experience. It is well known to United States army officers that these big marine monsters have the most powerful searchlights.

The French organization is equally effective. Each aviation section is divided into flotillas. The entire nation is divided into aviation centres. Observation from the French aeroplanes has proved very successful and the airmen have returned with accurate estimates of the number, kind and disposition of troops and artillery. The French count upon the aeroplane to increase the power of their artillery a hundredfold, and their aviators have been able practically to find the target and direct the fire of artillery; but this has never been attempted under real war conditions. Each artillery command has a section of aeroplanes attached to it for this purpose.

They are carried along with the artillery, mounted on wheeled transports, and all of the impedimenta necessary to maintain the aeroplanes in the field, such as automobile trucks and traction engines for wheeled transports, have proven to be a cumbersome escort, which may be subjected to the deadly work of the Zeppelins.

It has been developed by actual military experience in France that the observer becomes seasick and nervous, so that the greatest accuracy has not yet been obtained in machines directed by a pilot. In gusts the observer's distress is far worse than that of the pilot. The pilot does not fear gusts. Thanks to his piloting he holds in his hands the means for preventing pitching and rolling, which gives him a sense of security that is a moral advantage.

It has been found that the observer who is not sure of his pilot will not only do incomplete work but sometimes work entirely without value to the commander on the ground. Single pilots have been found to do much better and more dependable work.

They have made excellent sketches while driving. So it has been found that the single seater has an advantage over the two seater. The single seat monoplanes for the French army are the machines which are the fastest.

The biplanes have been found to be the most serviceable machines for the dropping of bombs, since they carry an engineer officer who does the aiming with a bomb ejector. The dropping of bombs in the present war will test the much argued question of the effect of bombs on troops.

Hudson Maxim, the powder expert, has insisted that bombs dropped from aircraft will do little damage, and the experience of the Italians in Tripoli tends to show that the moral and material effect on troops is very small. In many cases the bombs did not explode. Projectiles have been experimented with by France, but the results have been kept secret. Projectiles for use against aeroplanes and airships have been devised. They release peculiar bullets, which fly out in all directions. The bullets themselves release knives and hooks which tear and rend. Aerial torpedoes have been fired from a gun and maintain as flat a trajectory as any other discharged missile, but there is no reliable information about the result of the experiments.

Bomb dropping by the Zeppelins is counted upon by the Germans to produce havoc. The dirigible has the advantage of well regulated speed which allows taking sharp photograps, an adequate working crew and long range wireless, which permits its commander to give instant information. It has the ability to slacken its speed and hover at night over a supply depot. The bombs which have been dropped from Zeppelins in experimental work have fairly struck circles of fifteen feet in diameter, even when the bombs were sent from five thousand feet. Each of the great German air dreadnoughts carries at least four to five tons of explosives, and the marine Zeppelins transport as much as eight tons.

Aeroplanes make a small target and may be able to keep out of the range of the airships' guns. The armor plated bodies of the latest offensive aeroplanes provide comparative safety for the pilot; and it has been proven that bullet holes through the wings do not have any great damaging effect. During the Balkan war the gasolene tanks were frequently hit without disastrous result.

The modern French and German aeroplanes carry about three hundred pounds of explosives. Thirty-five of these would, therefore, carry five tones of explosives, as formidable a load as a Zeppelin. Attacking a dirigible by rising vertically over it, such a fleet of aeroplanes may stand a fair chance of destroying the air ship if the guns on top of the Zeppelin do not get the aeroplane.

But the Zeppelins are not intended to encounter aeroplanes. The German scheme is to avoid French aeroplanes by travelling at night to the point that it is proposed to attack. These ships travel very high and their strategy is to arrive at early dawn over supply camps and wreck them by the dropping of bombs, depending on this new form of warfare to cripple the enemy and thus render him an easy prey for the army.

The Zeppelins are designed to change their armament to suit the kind of attack and the distances they must travel to meet the enemy and the general condition of the weather. If a Zeppelin were ordered to attack London it would, to conserve its endurance, be equipped with one quick firing gun and carry 250 rounds of artillery ammunition, besides two machine guns and their ammunition and several light machine rifles for emergency. A Zeppelin loaded in this way would not carry bombs.

Krupp's Successful Guns.

German builders of guns ever since March, 1908, have been working to make German airship weapons certain to hit the mark, pierce protective covers and explode magazines. As far back as 1908 the Krupps turned out a light rapid firing gun capable of throwing sixty two-inch shells a minute. The first trials of this gun were entirely successful, operating from the deck of the Zeppelin I.

Following up this success, Erhardt, of Düsseldorf, turned out a light, quick firing cannon which was mounted on top of the rigid hull of the Zeppelin type of ship. The description of the shooting of both the Krupp and the Erhardt guns, mounted on Zeppelins, was published in German army journals intended only for the eyes of its army officers, but one of these journals accidentally fell into the hands of the writer. It proved that the degree of accuracy, even at that early date, promised appalling results after refinement of aim had been attained by practice.

The more recent results with improved airship guns have been fully published in the artillery and technical journals of Germany. No concealment was attempted by the government after practice had shown what a Zeppelin could accomplish with its weapons. The airship has shot at kites in the air and perforated them at long range.

The problem of getting perfect range to maintain a constant distance between a detached object like a moving airship in space and some object on the ground was solved. Target practice developed a way to maintain a positive distance. The airship kept at a constant height above the ground and its statoscope indicated the least change in height above sea level. The ship was then steered in a circle at a constant elevation around the target, the helmsman using the target itself as a pivotal bearing in his steering.

Target practice began in 1910 over the artillery grounds at Jeuterburg. It has been later carried on at the airship stations at Metz, Doberitz and Hanau. It was found that manoeuvring in winds did not prevent the airships getting perfect range.

The Germans were the first to realise that the machine gun was an ideal aerial weapon because it slays with an absurdly small and light bullet. Thousands of rounds of such ammunition can be carried on a big airship. Shooting point blank at 1,500 yards its stream of 500 bullets a minute can even batter through a brick wall as effectively as a cannon ball. After travelling three miles the bullets scatter like birdshot.

Story Sounds Foolish.

The report that an aeroplane destroyed a Zeppelin airship by plunging headlong into the side of the big dirigible does not have the true ring. Experts who understand the provisions that have been made for defending the dirigible against the attack of aeroplanes fail to understand why the guns which all army officers know are carried by modern airships were not used against the attacking aeroplane. The story that the aeroplane rose from the ground under the dirigible, unmolested, climbed at comparatively slow speed until it reached the dirigible's height or ascended above it, without apparently a single effort being made to resist it, seems foolish.

During its climb, which must have occupied from twenty to thirty minutes, there was every opportunity to hit the aeroplane at point blank range with a solid stream of machine gun bullets. The dirigible, according to the story, must have laid to in the air, calmly awaiting its enemy to climb to its height and send it to its doom.

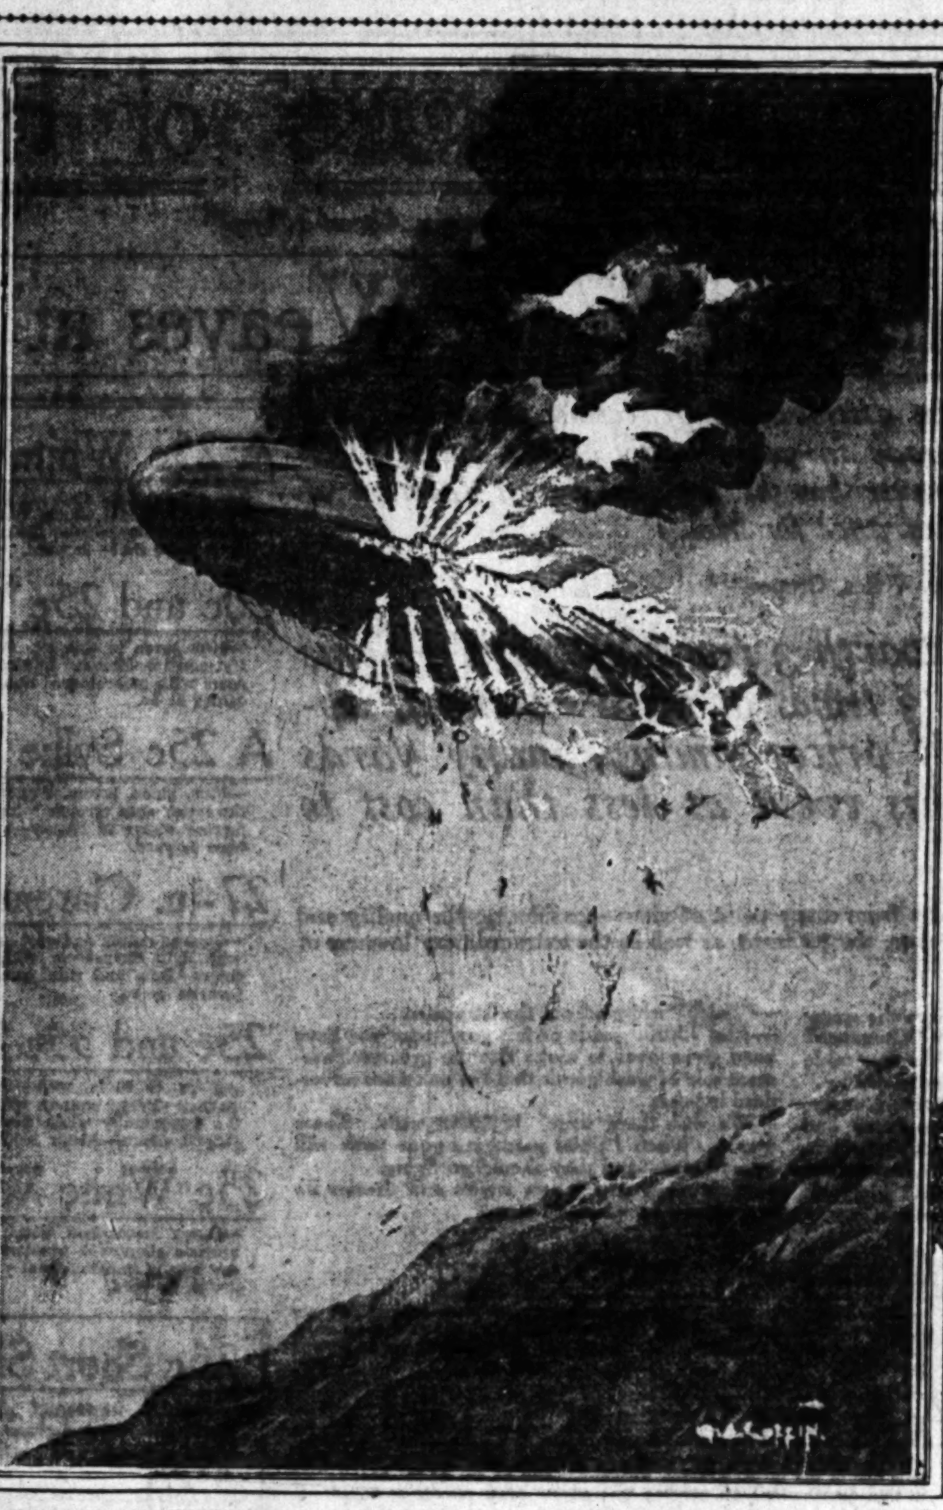
Another story that the aeroplane dived nose down and plunged through the top of the dirigible might mean that the gun on top of the dirigible hit the aeroplane, which fell on the back of the airship. This is most improbable, since no airship would be standing still in space, but under such conditions would be moving at top speed to escape its enemy. The falling aeroplane would hardly have found the dirigible under it.

The news that aeroplanes and dirigibles have been dropping on defenceless towns is only another evidence of the tremendously conflicting reports that will attend war in the air. The vast theatre of action afforded by the air is conducive to just such misconceptions of what aircraft are really doing. Their appearance on the scene is so sudden and their attack so swift that there can be no clear realization of what has occurred until investigation follows. Bombs which have already been dropped on towns in France seem to have been directed against places defended by soldiers, and such an attack does not violate the agreement reached at The Hague by the nations.

The conference of the Powers decided that there was no precedent governing the use of aircraft in advancing the cause of a belligerent. The launching of projectiles from dirigibles was placed in the same class as the subjection of coast cities to ransom at the demand of a powerful fleet. There is no prohibition against firing upon aircraft. This would make them subject to attack, but would deprive them of their proper defence. Great Britain was naturally interested in having the dropping of bombs prohibited. It was a menace to her military isolation and because her strongest naval vessel might not be proof against destruction thrown from above.

Germany naturally refused to vote for the prohibiting of bomb throwing because of her progress in the use of dirigibles and the great expenditures of money she was making to achieve supremacy in the air. Russia joined Great Britain in the effort to render unfortified places immune from attack by aircraft. Under The Hague prohibition undefended towns, villages and dwellings cannot be bombarded from the air.

Crews of captured aircraft under The Hague rules will not be treated as spies, but will be taken as prisoners of war. At the last Hague conference it was agreed that the use of aircraft in war would ultimately make for the maintenance of peace. It was suggested that dirigibles being able to pass over protecting armies on expeditions aimed at the capital of a nation itself, where the particular individuals most responsible for the war reside, would tend for the first time to subject the responsible individuals to personal danger after the declaration of war. And so the development of aerial navigation would make for peace.



RAMMING AERIAL CRAFT A WAR DEVELOPMENT

A recent accident near Vienna proved the effectiveness of the aeroplane in destroying a large dirigible airship, and a London Standard despatch from Paris a few days ago stated that the feat had been repeated on the Franco-German border.

A French aviator was then reported sacrificing his life in a headlong dive from above a dirigible, his monoplane crashing through the big airship, causing its collapse and fall with a crew of more than a score, who were killed. The picture by G. A. Coffin shows the effect of the crash.

An explosion resulted in the Austrian accident, which cost nine lives. All aboard the dirigible and the two army officers in the biplane that struck it were killed either in the flame or fall with the wreckage of the two machines. Question is raised, however, whether a like combination of circumstances could be brought about with any degree of certainty under war conditions.

Big Shift in Colonial Possessions Expected to Follow in War's Wake

Most of the Powers Engaged Have Many Dependencies Abroad and After Peace Has Been Restored There Will Be a General Rearrangement of Boundaries and Frontiers.

When the war clouds of Europe are dispelled and the last shot in the conflict now raging has been fired the rearrangement of boundaries and frontier lines will not be confined to the continent of Europe. With the exception of Austria-Hungary and the Russian Empire, all of the principal nations involved in the great struggle have colonial possessions, protectorates and dependencies, which are scattered all over both hemispheres.

The redistribution of many of these possessions consequent upon the success of the arms of either the Triple Alliance Powers or those of the Triple Entente will entail great changes in the map of the world. The most radical changes will probably be made in Africa, whose map presents a remarkable picture of the juxtaposition of protectorates and colonies belonging to Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Germany.

Great Britain's colonies and protectorates encircle the globe. France has possessions in Africa, India, China, South America, the West Indies, the North Atlantic, the Pacific and the Indian oceans. Germany has colonies in Africa, China and the Pacific Ocean.

While several of the foreign holdings of the Powers engaged in war are without adequate military strength, few of the principal possessions of Great Britain and France are unprotected.

In Africa British interests are paramount in Egypt by agreement with France at the beginning of the entente. France has a protectorate over Morocco by agreement with England. Her Algerian possessions facing the Mediterranean are bounded on the east by Tripoli, an Italian dependency. On the Red Sea and contiguous to Egypt is the Italian dependency of Eritrea. On the African east coast are British Somaliland, Italian Somaliland, British East Africa, German East Africa, Portuguese East Africa and the eastern portion of British South Africa.

The entire southern part of the African continent comprises the British South African union, which embraces Rhodesia, the Transvaal, the Orange River Colony, Natal and Cape Colony. On the west coast from British South Africa there are German Southwest Africa, Portuguese West Africa, the Belgian Congo State, French Congo, German Kamerun, the Niger Territories, British protectorate; French West Africa, German Togoland, British Gold Coast and the Ivory Coast, a French possession.

It is in Africa that the most radical boundary changes are likely to be made after the war.

Concerning the armed strength of the colonial possessions of Great Britain, in the union of South Africa there are about ten thousand regular troops and 75,000 auxiliary troops, including the burghers of the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony. In the Empire of India there are about eighty thousand English and 165,000 native troops. The Commonwealth of Australia has a military force of 175,000 men.

The French army in northern Africa is about 95,000 strong, of which force 18,000 are natives. In Algeria she has about 25,000 men, and 17,500 in Tunis.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 822 S. SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry. WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

PERSONAL—PRIVATE DETECTIVE DOES SHADowing and expert investigating. Twelve years' experience throughout United States. L. B., 934 West 6th st.

WANTED—SALESMAN.

We can use a few hustling salesmen who wish to make $1000 per month. Experience not necessary if you have the backbone to undergo our three days' training. Fastest selling proposition on the market, where the buyer makes 40 per cent. on his investment. Ask any of the men with us. Men with cars preferred. Call between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Mr. Darvilla, HARRY H. CULVER COMPANY, 2nd floor Hollingsworth Bldg.

WANTED—

ARE YOU THE MAN I WANT?

If you are, I can make you a success. I will spend patience and time with you to teach you the real estate business. You can make a good deal of money while you are learning if you will do just as I tell you to do. A man alone is often just like a ship without a helm. If you have a little better than average personality, appearance and good manners; if you know what the full value of sticking to the truth means, I will steer you on the road where many men are making from $5000 to $20,000 a year. It all depends on you. This may be the definite change you have been waiting for. To shape your FUTURE TO SUCCESS I want to talk to you any morning after 10 a.m.

MR. HAMILTON,
General Sales Manager,
THE JAMES R. H. WAGNER CO.,

STUDEBAKER

USED CARS.

The best way to buy a used car.

Just reason this out for yourself.

We have an unusually complete stock of used cars. 20 h.p. roadsters to 6-cylinder 40 h.p. 7-passenger touring cars, $250 and upwards.

Find the car where body lines and equipment suit your taste, you'll find the price is exceedingly low, quality considered.

Now here's the point, we guarantee these cars; we want you to know just what they are and how good they are for the money—have an expert mechanic examine the car for you, you'll find that it is exactly as we represent it to be; after examination take a ride in the car; if it appeals to you BUY IT and feel assured that you couldn't have bought the same quality car at a less price, any place in Los Angeles.

We don't want a profit on used cars; we'll sell them for just what they cost us.

Isn't that the way you want to do business?

See them Monday.

TIRES! TIRES!! TIRES!!!
TUBES! TUBES!! TUBES!!!
We sold over 100 tires and 200 tubes last week on our sale at the same close prices that we got before the war raise, so have decided to extend it one more week.
We have 500 tires left!!!
So don't think the best ones are all gone. We still have about all sizes and oversizes, small ones, $3 to $8.50, large ones, $6 to $15.
Some are nearly new!!!
And we give your choice at one price and let you pick them out. We have your favorite make.
Another raise threatened!!!
Tire houses say that they expect another raise at any minute and then we will have to raise our prices also, so you better take advantage of this chance and buy a couple of extras this week.
Vulcanizing.
We do very fine retreading and section work and will make a special schedule of prices this week to give you a sample of our work. So if you contemplate having a tire fixed soon, send it in this week and save money.

The war, of course, by practically nullifying the workings of tariffs and the acts of the tariff tinkers, and by keeping foreign products out of the land, will help the market for such Southland products as have been com peting in any way with those of Eu rope on the other side of the Rockies. FACT AND COMMENT.

The impression is growing among leaders in business and finance in Los Angeles, that the European war will have little or no hurtful effect upon this part of the United States. That this section must in the long run share with the rest of the country the commercial and industrial opportunities that will be thrust upon the United States by the devastating European warfare, goes without saying. There is reason, too, for believing that Southern California will probably be benefited as will no other region by the European struggle.

As to the early effect or lack of effect of the war hereabouts, it may be pointed out that Southern California is almost self-sustaining. We are not importing any food products either from the rest of the United States or from abroad that we couldn't get along without if we had to. If our lands, in fact, were utilized to anywhere near their limit of productiveness, the rest of the world might fight on indefinitely and we could go on living from our own soil.

As things are now, Southern California is barely able to supply its own market with many products, so rapidly are our market demands growing. If the United States were miraculously to come into possession of its own merchant marine at this moment, it would be precious little that we could afford, with our present population and our incompletely developed soil resources, to be sending to other parts of the world. When some decisive naval engagement shall finally have released the German merchant ships now marooned in neutral ports of two continents, or when by purchase or some other arrangement these ships may come under the neutral flag of America, it will be the East and Middle West and not Southern California that will be packing their products to Europe. It will be the farmers of those sections, too, who will be reaping the harvest of war-inflated prices and, incidentally, it will be the consumers of the same sections upon whom will fall the increased cost of living due to the resulting scarcity of products for home consumption. Southern California will keep on going its own way, using most of what it produces right here at home, and shipping the rest in the United States. In a way, of course, by practically nullifying the workings of tariffs and the efforts of the tariff tinkers, and by keeping foreign products out of the country, the war will help the market for such California products as have been competing in any way with those of Europe and the other side of the Rockies. The opening of the Panama Canal will be to all our shipping interests a boon that must inevitably come with the competition of the cheaper water carriage with the transcontinental railway systems.

to Prosperity.

There are certain other good reasons why Los Angeles and Southern California cannot be detrimentally affected by the terrible destruction across the Atlantic, even though business conditions in other parts of the country may be suffering to some extent. Because students of international economics are practically agreed that the benefits accruing to this country from the war during the next decade are bound temporarily to be somewhat offset by the present disturbance of financial conditions, these reasons are worth considering. It is true that our financial pulse beats more or less in rhythm with that of the nation, but to counterbalance any possible wavering or uncertainty in that beat (and the Fact and Comment man personally believes the dominating interests in American finance are amply able to bring about an orderly adjustment of business affairs to any conditions that may be created by the war) there are at work in this section of the country forces for real constructive progress and prosperity that cannot but be effective.

Every man and woman in the East and Middle West who can raise the price of a ticket to this Coast next year is coming out to the two expositions to help us celebrate the opening of the Panama Canal. Ninety-nine out of every hundred of them will visit Los Angeles as well as San Francisco and San Diego. The railroads are attending to that part of it by making rates for the whole comprehensive California tour that cannot be ignored.

The record-breaking crops beyond the Rockies, the certainty of good prices at home and of unprecedented prices abroad insure a high degree of prosperity for the farmers in that part of the country. Nearly every one of these farmers, it is safe to say, has thought at one time or another of eventually coming to California. By the hundreds of trainloads they will be taking advantage of the exposition-year rates to get out here and look over the land of their dreams. With the money jingling in their pockets, they are one and all potential settlers. It seems almost a superfluity of words to observe that 1915 is absolutely bound to be the greatest year in the history of real estate and development activity in the Southland, and that the influence of the tremendous influx of Coast visitors will be felt in the land market for a decade to come.

They'll Spend Millions.

The mind is baffled in trying to estimate either the number of 1915 visitors to Southern California or the amount of money they will spend here. The great national conventions to be held in Los Angeles next year alone would make this the liveliest, busiest city in the country. Hotels, apartment and flat proprietors are rushing preparations to care for the thronging hosts. The merchants will prosper as never before. Throughout the year the visitors will be pouring in. Tens of thousands of them will become investors in Los Angeles real estate or Southern California acreage.

California, and especially Southern California, will be the Mecca this winter of thousands of wealthy Americans who have annually been going to the Riviera or some other favored resort point in Europe. This we will owe directly to the war, which for months to come will make European travel impossible. It has been estimated that these American tourists have been leaving abroad every year some $500,000,000 of good American money. A considerable portion of this huge sum will undoubtedly be spent in our American Riviera.

Europeans, Too.

European families of wealth who can get out of the war zones will be taking refuge in this country as soon as passenger ships are available for them. California, on account of the extra inducements in the way of entertainment offered by the two expositions, will get most of them, and the climate and scenic charm of Southern California will draw them to this section. These Europeans, like the Americans who have formed the habit of seeking their recreation abroad, will speedily awaken to the fact that our magnificent automobile highways are not to be surpassed even in Europe and that this is the logical playground for the world. In years to come, the villas of thousands of these Americans and Europeans of leisure will look upon the blue Pacific or into the smiling valleys of the Southland. Here, also, they will find a rich field for investment that will serve to anchor them in Southern California.

The immigration of European agriculturists through the canal, it is true, will be halted by the war, both on account of the presence in the various armies of most of the able-bodied men of the continent, and of the lack of carrying vessels. This condition, in the natural order of things, cannot long prevail. As soon as they can possibly do so, thousands of the more prosperous peasants of the warring nations will be starting for a land where they may pursue their peaceful callings without the interruption of international strife and where they may begin life anew without the staggering burden of a war tax to bear them down. Southern California will get its full share of this highly desirable immigration.

Pages mounting into countless volumes have been written about the advantages that are bound to come to Los Angeles and Southern California with the opening of the Panama Canal, and it is scarcely necessary to dwell upon them here. The Fact and Comment man commented a week ago upon the wonderful chance which the war gives the United States, and with the rest of the country, Southern California, to build up a merchant marine and a permanent commercial prestige. Attention was also called to the opportunity existing in this section for the tremendous enlargement of the local industrial field, due not only to the limitless home market, but to suddenly-created foreign markets automatically developed as the result of the absolute destruction of the industries of Europe. After all, what Los Angeles and Southern California realize in the larger sense above and beyond the inevitable benefits from the Panama Canal depends pretty much upon Los Angeles and Southern California.

The Deduction.

In the light of facts and conditions so evident and so indisputable as those just commented upon, it must be plain to the thoughtful man that the European war excuse has not made the illogical attitude of the man who has been withholding his money from investment on account of the dull times of the past year a bit more reasonable. Things are going to awaken with a bang one of these days and when they do, desirable real estate is going up and up until many a timid investor's present chance to acquire a foothold and pave the way to success will have gone glimmering. That's a good thing to remember.

Forget the "dull times" and forget the war. There isn't and never was any real excuse for the business lull in this section, and as for the war, it isn't our fight, anyhow, and can't hurt us. The man who spends any time worrying about either, when opportunity as big as all out of doors is beckoning him to action, is either too deeply confirmed in pessimism to be capable of seeing the bright side of things or is mentally asleep.

If there ever was a time to be optimistic, to buy real estate in Los Angeles or to buy acreage in Southern California and become a producer, it is now.

MERRITT BLOCK PERMIT ISSUED.

WORK TO BE BEGUN AT ONCE ON TEN-STORY BROADWAY BUILDING.

The Spring-street Investment Company, of which Hulett C. Merritt of Pasadena, is president, has taken out a permit for the erection of the ten-story Merritt building, for which excavations were recently completed at the northwest corner of Eighth street and Broadway. The cost of the improvement is named at $200,000. Reid Bros., of San Francisco, are the architects.

The building, a perspective of which recently appeared exclusively in The Times, will cover a ground area of 110x60 feet. It will contain stores on the first floor and offices and lofts on the nine upper stories. Steel and reinforced concrete will be used in the construction.

TO HOLDERS OF

UNION OIL STOCK

¶ We are authorized to offer an immediate income property in exchange for UNION OIL STOCK. This elegant income property is a forty-acre orange and lemon grove worth $85,000, located at Cucamonga, and paying 15% on the investment.

¶ It is one of the most highly improved groves in the State. Has a fine modern nine-room house, barn, and water in abundance. This is certainly a grand opportunity to turn your stock into a gilt-edged income; which is not only good at this time, but which, with the increase in lemons will pay much more.

MODERN HOSTELRY FOR EAST FIFTH.

WORK BEGUN ON SEVEN-STORY FIREPROOF BUILDING.

Structure to Be of Reinforced Concrete Construction and to Be Finished in Hardwood, Tile and Marble—To Contain More Than Hundred Rooms.

Work was begun during the past week upon a seven-story reinforced concrete hotel building to be erected by C. Welington Howard on the north side of East Fifth street just west of Ruth avenue. Excavations for the structure were completed several days ago.

The improvement is the direct result of the impetus to East Fifth-street development given by the starting of the new Southern Pacific depot. The hotel will be only a short block from the big passenger station and the owner hopes to have it ready for opening by January 1, in order to be able to profit from the immense influx of 1915 travelers arriving here over the Southern Pacific lines.

The hotel will contain 125 guest rooms, with about 40 per cent. private baths, and it is to be finished in hard woods. The lobby will be in tile, marble and mahogany. Stores will flank the lobby entrance on either side. The building will be absolutely fireproof. The cost, complete, is estimated at approximately $100,000.

Plans for the hotel were drawn by the Leonard L. Jones Company. W. W. Paden will be the builder. W. H. Tarver is acting as Mr. Howard's representative in the enterprise and will have the leasing agency for the property.

PLANS COMPLETED.

Bids to Be Taken for Costly Brick House in Windsor Square—Other Residence Projects Taking Shape.

The architectural firm of Morgan, Walls & Morgan, reports the completion of working plans for a large brick house to be built by J. B. Van Nuys in Windsor Square. Bids are to be taken this week. The dwelling will follow the style of the French Renaissance and will contain sixteen rooms, with five baths. It will cover a ground area of 75x100 feet. The exterior walls will be plastered and the roof will be of slate. A two-story garage of the same type of construction will stand at the rear of the grounds.

Mary A. Davies has let the contract for a twelve-room house she will build at No. 2531 Tenth avenue. Grace L. Trisler expects to start an eleven-room house at No. 345 South Hoover street this week. Plans have been completed for a ten-room house to be erected by Mrs. Grace L. Harter at No. 1528 Winona boulevard. Frances L. Nith has let the contract for a nine-room house at No. 1012 North Berendo street. Work is to be begun at once upon a nine-room house for Antonio Angono on Portia street near Scott. John H. Kuhl has had plans drawn for a nine-room house he will build at No. 140 South Van Ness avenue.

Construction is to be started within a few days upon a two-story double house projected by Leo A. White at No. 4027 Halldale avenue. A. Jamieson is about to begin an eight-room house in Wilshire Heights. Bids are being taken for an eight-room residence to be built by John McMillan on Arlington avenue near Sixteenth street. George Bennett will begin work this week on an eight-room house on Bronson avenue near Ninth.

BUYS FINE HOME.

A handsome residence at No. 4724 South Figueroa street has been purchased by C. E. Cooper, general sales manager for Robert Marsh & Co. The house contains eleven rooms. A garage in architectural keeping stands at the rear. The lot has a frontage of sixty feet on Figueroa, by a depth of 150 feet along Forty-seventh street.

Busy Thoroughfare.

GREAT ACTIVITY ON WEST TEMPLE.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS UNDER WAY IN NORTHWEST.

Stores, Flats, Apartments and Houses Rising Along and Near Lively Street—Bungalows by Wholesale Projected in Silver Lake Parkway District.

There has been a pronounced awakening upon the part of the property owners of West Temple street and its immediate vicinity during the past few months, and this northwest thoroughfare is today one of the busiest in the city in point of construction activity. The buildings just completed, under construction and projected, include stores, flats, apartments, bungalow courts and numerous homes.

At the southeast corner of Temple and Boylston, Mrs. Sarah J. Shields is just finishing two large four-flat buildings at a cost of $10,000. On the adjoining site on Temple street, W. L. McIntosh is building an attractive sixteen-room flat structure. On Boylston, between Temple street and Bellevue avenue, up-to-date flats have been erected by T. F. Darling and Mrs. Annie Wartnick. Each building contains sixteen rooms.

On Fireman street near Temple, a flat building of colonial design has just been finished by W. A. Blank. The site of the structure extends through to Metcalf street and it is the owner's intention to erect another flat costing about $7000 fronting on that street. On Metcalf, also, H. R. Jones has just built an eight-room double bungalow and adjoining this improvement he expects to erect an apartment-house. Several bungalows, some of them private homes and others arranged in courts, have recently been completed in the vicinity of Echo Park. A number of flats were built in the same district earlier in the year.

Farther west, beyond Rosemont avenue, extensive improvements are being made on both sides of Temple street, notably on Coronado and Carondelet streets and Rampart boulevard. West of Reno street, the development from Sixth street north has swept past Temple, scores of houses having been completed in the district served by the Temple-street car line during the present year. In the Silver Lake Terrace tract, lying between Temple street and the site of Silver Lake parkway, Sidney B. Brown and L. M. Passmore have just completed seven sightly bungalows and are preparing to build twenty more.

SAID TO BE SUCCESS.

Director of Building Materials Exhibit Says Value of Project Has Been Demonstrated.

After an existence of less than a week, the Metropolitan Exhibit of Building Materials, which was formally opened on the sixth floor of the Metropolitan building at Fifth and Broadway last Tuesday, is said to have amply justified the expectations of those who are backing it. Less than ten of the 110 units of floor space provided for the various displays remained unleased yesterday and some of these, it was stated by Miss M. L. Schmidt, who is in charge of the exhibit, have been spoken for.

"Hundreds of persons have visited the exhibit during the past few days," said Miss Schmidt yesterday. "Many of these came with architects and contractors to pick out building materials or household furnishings from the displays maintained by the various firms who have taken space. The practical value of the exhibit is seen in the encouragingly large amount of business transacted on the spot. I believe it will be shown that there is a real demand for such a clearing-house for products used in building in this city, and that the exhibit will prove the success similar exhibits have been in other cities."

A Beginning.

FIRST LINK IN CANYON ROUTE.

Beverly Hills-Van Nuys Road Nearing Reality.

Former Place Now Doing Its Share of Work.

County Has Surveyors Along Right of Way.

The actual beginning of the project to link Van Nuys with Beverly Hills by the construction of a highway through Benedict Canyon is to be seen in the activity of the latter city in the improvement of the streets that will constitute the southern approach to the proposed new outlet for the San Fernando Valley.

Beverly Hills is now engaged in building that part of the projected highway lying within its own city limits, which extends for half a mile into the mouth of the canyon. At the same time the foothill suburb is resurfacing Beverly drive from Wilshire boulevard to the Beverly Hills Hotel and is pushing ahead with the extension of Canyon drive to a connection with the Benedict Canyon road.

The county now has a corps of surveyors in the field making the final survey from the north line of Beverly Hills through Benedict Canyon to the San Fernando Valley, where it is intended that the canyon highway shall connect with South Sherman Way, leading directly into Van Nuys. All rights of way have been secured.

The new highway will have a maximum grade of 6 per cent., which is 1½ per cent. less than that of Cahuenga Pass and much less than that of Laurel Canyon, which routes comprise the two only connecting roadways through the hills between the San Fernando Valley and Los Angeles. The Benedict Canyon route will give the lower San Fernando Valley direct access to Wilshire boulevard at Beverly Hills and will cut off the distance between Van Nuys and Santa Monica by approximately twelve miles. The upper part of the San Fernando Valley will soon be connected with the beaches by the new Topango Canyon route.

Plans are being formulated to form a lighting district as soon as the county completes the Beverly-Van Nuys boulevard and to light the road from its intersection with South Sherman way and the State highway, through Benedict Canyon and Beverly, to Wilshire boulevard and into Los Angeles. This will give a continuous lighted way from Chatsworth Park to Los Angeles.

IN WINDSOR SQUARE.

Buyer of Valuable West Side Residence Site to Build Handsome Home of Spanish Type.

Paul Harwood, an oil man with extensive interests in Mexico, has purchased a site in Windsor Square, in the Wilshire-boulevard district, and will immediately erect a handsome home. Harwood, whose father is vice-president of the Mexican Petroleum Company, recently returned from Mexico and will make his home in Los Angeles from now on.

The house which Mr. Harwood is to build, according to R. A. Rowan & Co., subdividers and developers of Windsor Square, will be of the Spanish type of architecture, with white plaster exterior and red clay tile roof. Extensive landscaping features are planned for the grounds.

The Harwood site adjoins that of Benton Van Nuys, who is now taking bids through his architects for the erection of a home to cost approximately $50,000. In the same tract, the home of Miss Mary Crimmins will be ready for occupancy within a week. Houses for Thomas O'Neill, John R. Powers and Phillip Riedele are now being completed.

In addition to the plans for the Harwood home, plans are also being drafted for the mansions of L. H. Stratton of Pasadena, and Oliver Morosco, theatrical magnate, in the same subdivision.

TO START AT ONCE.

Contract Awarded for Seventy-Room Hotel on South Olive—Flats for All Parts of City.

A contract was awarded to W. L. Miller during the past week for the construction of a four-story-and-basement brick hotel for Susan Eckley on Olive street, south of Pico. The structure, which was planned by F. B. Rust, will be 50x108 feet in size and will contain a lobby and seventy guest rooms, with forty-five baths. The street front will be faced with pressed brick.

Preliminary plans are being drawn by August Wackerbarth for a four-story brick store and apartment building projected by Philip Eicholz for the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Temple street. The site is 50x70 feet in size.

The L. F. S. Syndicate has drawn plans for a two-story frame flat building, which it will erect at No. 1451 West Vernon avenue for D. B. Hawley. F. M. Tyler has just completed plans for a two-story frame flat to be built on Kern street, near First, by W. P. Burnett. Plans have been drawn by A. L. Acker for a flat building to be erected by W. F. McClanahan on Santa Barbara avenue, between Moneta and Main. W. A. Geller of Pasadena has had plans prepared by Harry Gray for a flat to be built at No. 1808 North Van Ness avenue, this city.

OFF ON TOUR.

H. H. Braly, vice-president of the Janss Investment Company, accompanied by Dr. Peter Janss, president of the company, left Los Angeles yesterday on a six months' automobile tour. The trip will include visits to the Yosemite Valley, Lake Tahoe and Yellowstone National Park, and the route to be followed will lead through many of the western and northern States. The two started northward through the San Fernando Valley, expecting to follow the line of the aqueduct into the Owens Valley.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Hermosa Beach and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

Our REFERENCES are PEOPLE for whom we HAVE BUILT, who FREELY indorse us.

We make liberal building loans.

7 DELIGHTFUL ROOMS.

COSY DEN AND BREAKFAST-ROOM.

EXCLUSIVE SOUTHWEST TRACT.

This beautiful bungalow is built on a large north-front lot in one of the prettiest restricted bungalow districts in the city, having every convenience, such as gas, electricity, sewer, phones, etc. Painted light gray, large cobblestone and cement porch, front and side; large garage, and a lot of cement work.

The most expensive electric light fixtures, plumbing fixtures and hardware are installed; also, the wall paper is very artistic and dainty, and the floors are hardwood throughout.

The den, living-room and dining-room open up together, with built-in desk, bookcases and disappearing bed in the den; Gruby tile fireplace in the living-room and an exceptionally pretty built-in buffet with bevel plate glass in the dining-room. There are two large and airy bedrooms with the bath between, all opening on the hall.

The kitchen has a large hood for the stove, woodstone drainboard across one end, a world of cabinet space. On the back screen porch there are two nice laundry trays.

The bungalow is worth several hundred dollars more than the price quoted, and the terms are very low; only $1000 down and the balance to suit.

Telephone today for an appointment to see this beautiful home.

SWISS CHALET.

AFTER YOU SEE THE HOUSE

YOU WILL NOT BELIEVE

THAT WE CAN DELIVER IT AT THE PRICE.

$7000. $7000. $7000.

BUT WE CAN.

And we would like to prove it to you. Another thing we want understood before we proceed further, is, that this is NOT a barn, BUT a house, built like a house should be built.

This lovely, new eight-room Wilshire home, of the Swiss chalet type, is built upon a high sightly lot just north of Wilshire boulevard.

Now read this description slowly: The den and main living room are finished in mahogany; the dining room in Southern gum; breakfast room and kitchen in white enamel, and what's more, it has hardwood floors throughout; likewise a large screen porch and two tile baths. And we almost forgot to mention a nice cement basement, automatic hot water heater, furnace and garage.

In the whole Wilshire district there is not a house that compares with this at the price. And we can arrange satisfactory terms too. Now what do you think of that?

CONTRACTORS— And Builders.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO BUILD—

WHY NOT SEE US?

We build strictly from A-1 material at the right price.

Our work is all done by day labor, thereby insuring complete satisfaction to all concerned.

We carry liability insurance on all our workmen, which fully protects you against any claim for damages.

You wonder why we get the work we do, simply because we give a dollar's worth for every dollar spent.

Ask our customers.
Look over these prices:

Three rooms, plastered, $400 up.
Four rooms, plastered, $500 up.
Five rooms, plastered, $600 up.
Six rooms plastered, $760 up.
Seven rooms, strictly modern, $1700.
Twelve-room, four flats, $2000 up.

They try to duplicate our prices—but—they can't.

FOR SALE—
$1100 LOT FOR ONLY $800.
IN ONEONTA PARK DISTRICT.
I only ask an opportunity to prove this ad is truthful; I recently took in eight beautiful lots for an old debt; a few days ago I began to advertise them, and have sold all but one; this speaks for itself; it's in a fine district, with good homes all around, 50x144; best of street work done, every convenience, only twenty minutes out, with seven car lines, the best service in Southern California; only one block from tourist hotel; elevation nearly 700 feet, which means health and comfort; lots in same block are held for $1400; recent sales in next block brought $1250, and $1350. Seven beautiful new homes being built in stone's throw. This lot is absolute bargain at $800, only $50 down, balance easy monthly. Phone for appointment to see it.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—
Income Property.

FOR EXCHANGE—NET INCOME ABOUT $4500 PER year, gross $8000. This fine apartment-house of 84 rooms has been placed in my hands for immediate sale. I am not a real estate agent, but corporation desires me to reduce its holdings, even though they get rid of splendid income properties —they are going out of business. This house is completely furnished, always full, close in, brings in about $8000 a year. I have a manager, allowing for all expenses it nets the company over $4300; if you run it yourself I believe you can make it pay close to $6000 per year. Corporation has placed the low price of $55,000 on the property; mortgage $13,500. I can sell it or take in about $25,000 exchange. If your property is clear might take in a little more.

Want to talk direct to owners and we can get down to business quickly. I disposed of holdings amounting to $50,000 last week. MINER P. GOODRICH, 503 Citizens' Bank Bldg. Main 2043; Home 60654.

FOR SALE—A FINE
BUSINESS CORNER.

Reader—If you are on the market for a fine business corner and a sure winner for the future at a sacrifice, go see the southeast corner of East 7th st. and Crocker, 47½x110 to alley; improved with four flats and a cottage there; a good building and can be moved; but the corner is ripe for a new business block, stores, hotel or apartments; and as I have not the ready cash to build will sell at a bargain to one more fortunate than I who can improve it; no trade, please; a sale on a cash basis will only be considered; the present income is $130 a month.

J. FRANK BOWEN, owner,
420 Stimson Bldg.

FOR EXCHANGE—I AM GOING TO SELL OR EXchange a fine income property the coming week. The gross income per year is about $8000. My price is $55,000. This place doesn't have to be worked up, the business is there. Will pay you from 15 to 20 per cent. net on your investment. I will take about $25,000 clear trade, and that amount of property and assume the mortgage if any. I have special reasons for closing out this splendid proposition. It's close in, near Figueroa st. and has a great future. For further information see MR. CALNAN, 503 Citizens' Bank Bldg. Main 2043; 60654.

FOR SALE—
SAN FERNANDO VALLEY.
We want the immediate attention of those real estate buyers who are generally classed as being "shrewd"—those who really know what they want and who know soil and climatic conditions in this vicinity. We have several properties at bargain prices for immediate action; absolutely unbeatable soil, a perfect climate and unlimited cheap water for all time; with a location close to this city and within the finest part of the San Fernando Valley. Newcomers fail to realize that two or three dry years would practically mean ruination to a greater part of the land offered for sale in this market. And, we repeat, we have for sale at very low prices several pieces of the finest soil to be found close to this city. One ten-acre piece, fine for anything from alfalfa to citrus fruit. One piece of twenty acres close to postoffice. We have just sold about five acres of this latter property; owner going to build. Several beautiful oak trees. Especially suitable for a home property or for cutting up into smaller pieces at a handsome profit. If you are looking for an absolute bargain, see us.

WHERE NATURE HELPS THE MOST.
NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS.
ORANGE, LEMON, WALNUT AND AVOCADO LAND SUBDIVISIONS, ON THE "FROST PROTECTED" SLOPES OF THE WHITTIER HILLS, BUT FAVORED BY THE BROKEN OCEAN TRADE WINDS.

This property has absolutely the best soil, water and climatic conditions of any subdivision now on the market in the State, and it is both an ideal investment and a scenic location for a suburban home.
Experienced citrus growers are investing in this property because they are confident that it has all of the essential conditions for "growing citrus groves that pay," and because the price at which the property is being sold is reasonable when the quality is considered.
The property is being sold in unplanted tracts of 5 to 50 acres, or in tracts of 5 to 20 acres planted to orange, lemon and walnut groves, and on exceptionally easy terms if desired.
If you are looking for a choice piece of citrus land, a young planted orange, lemon or walnut grove, or a desirable location for a suburban home, we shall be pleased to take you out by automobile to see our North Whittier Heights property. We know that if you once see the property you will desire a portion for yourself.

Mexico.

FOR SALE—
MEXICO.
The greatest war of the age now raging in Europe throws many an opportunity for profit in the way of the investor, and here is one of them.
Take advantage of the rapid rise in sugar and buy cheap lands that will produce this product that is constantly rising, and the end not in sight.
Can sell 4500 acres sugar cane land in Mexico on the Tehuantepec National Railroad, well improved, ready to be put into cane, a few hours from large ports on the Pacific and Gulf of Mexico coasts, thus giving access to all the markets of the world. This land is not a thousand miles from nowhere. When on this land you are 1700 miles nearer New York City than you are when in Los Angeles.
When I tell you that this land can be bought at a nominal price, the best of transportation facilities, with access to all the markets, you can figure for yourself the immense profits that can be realized, if put into this staple, where is bound to go to almost [illegible] prices.

AN ACRE OF ALFALFA
AT SOMERSET.
Right now, while the boulevard is being built, while the trenches are open to receive the water mains—now is the time to get your acre when you can pick the best. But they all look alike to me. Rich loamy acres, covered with a fine stand of alfalfa, 130x306 feet. Near electric line, 30 minutes to 6th and Main streets. The war prices are on! Get you a flock of chickens and a cow, move the children out where it's healthy and fight down the high cost of city life, yet stay by your work, paying me $10 down and $10 a month for your pick of these acres. The price is only $800.

ROAD MEN COMING.

Chamber of Commerce Asked to Help Entertain Delegates With Automobile Ride.

The Chamber of Commerce has asked to help entertain the 375 delegates to the convention of the American Association of Traveling Passenger Agents of the United States that will open here October. An automobile trip about the city vicinity will be arranged.

The chamber entertained this delegation twelve years ago, and the effects are still noticeable in the references made to this city by the men composed the party.

Members of the chamber who have automobiles will be asked to furnish and also turn out to explain the attractions of the city to the visitors. The chamber has also been asked to its good offices to improve Pass between Ventura and Barbara. The Committee on Parks and Roads of the Barbara Chamber of Commerce, its chairman, E. T. Day, informed the chamber yesterday, that members interested the roads between here and Barbara use their influence with people of Ventura to improve the so they will be passable during construction of the Rincon road, is now closed. The matter will taken up at the next meeting of board.

ATE OPENING.

Large Number of Persons Inspect Dormitory in Trinity Auditorium Building.

A large number of people yesterday attended the housewarming of the dormitory of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church South in the Auditorium building. B. B. general manager of the was in charge of the opening and the rooms were open during afternoon and evening to the inspection of the public. There are 325 rooms on the fourth ninth floors, inclusive, and the special features which are provided for the guests are a club rooms, library, bowling, roof garden and music hall. The entire building will completed by September 20. Among those who acted as a sort informal reception committee at opening were: Rev. C. C. Selecman, pastor of the church; R. C. president of the board of; R. P. Howell, presiding and financial agent of the building; W. H. Savage. Trinity Auditorium building completed by September 20.

Steam From the Earth.

Companion:] In Larderello, Tuscany, there is a power that gets the heat to generate steam for its 180-kilowatt steam from the bowels of the earth. neighborhood there are several where steam under considerable pressure rises from the The steam, however, is so with boracic acid that it used to run a turbine engine the indirect method of so it round the tubes of a kind of boiler as to heat the water within them. The first use the steam from the earth has proved so successful of much greater horse will be established. It is an fact that condensing the steam into water, and then the water for its borax, for many years a local in-

Politics.

BIG RECEPTION TO FREDERICKS.

Thousands of Voters in Autos to Greet Candidate.

Fake "Federation" Disbands After Expose.

Lawyers Protest "Bar" Choice for Judges.

Returning from a triumphant campaign over the State, Capt. Fredericks, Republican candidate for Governor, whose nomination at the coming primary is a foregone conclusion, will be greeted next Saturday afternoon by a thousand automobiles loaded with enthusiastic Republicans, who will escort him to his home city from a point in the San Fernando Valley.

Next Saturday will be a big political day in Los Angeles, when the return of the candidate will be a big public feature. Following the afternoon affair a great mass meeting will be held Saturday evening, probably at the Shrine Auditorium, where Capt. Fredericks will make the principal speech.

Capt. Fredericks and party will arrive in Los Angeles county about noon of next Saturday. He is scheduled to address the Pennsylvania State Society at its reunion in Hollenbeck Park. When this affair is concluded, Capt. Fredericks will be the central figure on a street automobile parade that will wind up at the place for the night meeting.

WILL HANDLE PARADE.

Chairman Fred C. Fairbanks, Fredericks campaign manager in Southern California, and those who are working with him to make a tremendous demonstration next Saturday have not yet completed the details. However, Sterling S. Boothe has been chosen as grand marshal of the parade and will direct the formation of the autos and the line of march.

Several bands have been engaged, truckloads of fireworks will intersperse the long line of autos, Fredericks banners will fly everywhere, and a demonstration eclipsing anything ever attempted in the past along political lines will be the candidate's welcome home.

In a sense, the meeting will be a ratification of his candidacy, for it is conceded in every quarter of the State that Capt. Fredericks will be the nominee.

IT DISBANDS.

"FEDERATION" BREAKS UP.

Following an expose in The Times yesterday, the "California Republican Federation" yesterday folded up its brief-case, abandoned the luxuriant quarters at the Hotel Alexandria, and adjourned sine die. Frank A. McDonald, candidate for the Assembly in the Sixty-first District, who was at the head of the "movement," and Frank H. Tate, a discredited politician, gathered up the few remaining cigars, a check book and a list of "indorsed" candidates and returned to other fields of political activity.

Two or three candidates who had paid the first instalment of their assessment for an "indorsement" by the federation, called yesterday to get their money back or to at least cancel their contracts. Through the corridors of the Alexandria came the strains of an orchestra in the main dining salon, playing "It's music to the gambler's ear to hear the suckers squeal."

The "federation" was to have met at 2 o'clock and laid plans for further and more extensive operations, but the only members of the committee present were McDonald, Tate, F. Finklestein and a couple of bellboys.

ROAST TRUSTEES.

"BAR" TICKET IS FLAYED.

Eighteen prominent attorneys yesterday joined in a report criticising the action of the trustees of the Los Angeles Bar Association in indorsing candidates for the judiciary. Five counts are arrayed in an indictment of the trustees. They are summed up as follows:

That members of the bar have no right to select judges.

That the experience of the bar association in the past in reference to indorsement of candidates does not warrant the conclusion that the recommendation will be of extraordinary value.

The earnestness of the efforts put forth by an advocate render him incompetent to pass upon who shall be judges.

The bar association makes a serious mistake in attempting to be too influential.

The protest is signed by G. D. Hazen, John T. Curtin, John L. McGonigle, A. L. Baldin, J. D. Hunter, W. R. Law, Robert J. Adcock, Guy S. Garney, E. L. Huntington, Kemper B. Campbell, James S. Roach, A. W. Thompson, R. C. Pollard, John Morris, L. B. Randall, Arthur Jones, Edward H. Allen, and Frank M. Porter.

Ford Regarded a Winner.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Ford, candidate for District Attorney, is generally regarded by those who have followed the non-partisan political situation in this county as a sure winner at the primary. That he will be high man is generally conceded. He will make a whirlwind campaign over the county beginning Monday. As he is unable to comply with all the requests for his appearance at public meetings, he has enlisted the aid of a number of prominent attorneys who will talk for him.

Stockwell Home.

James Edward Stockwell, Republican candidate for State Controller, returned yesterday from a trip through San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties. He is the only Republican running for the office of Controller, and has had good receptions all along the line of his travels. He has found a strong sentiment in all but the "Progressive" party, and some in that, against the candidates whose names appear on more than one party ticket.

Politics and "Movies."

The Republican League is taking advantage of the popularity of the "movies" by sending speakers to various motion-picture houses in every Assembly District in the county. At a big theater on Sunset boulevard Friday night the experiment was found to be a success. The details are being handled by George Boswell. Fred J. Spring, president of the league, is directing the programme of meetings and speakers. Tuesday night a political gathering will be held at the Idlewild Theater, Ninth and Santa Fe, when pictures of candidates will be flashed on the screen and candidates themselves will speak briefly. Other meetings will be held during the week as follows:

Wednesday night—No. 115 East Jefferson street; open-air rally at Gardena.

Thursday night—Open-air rally at San Pedro.

Friday night—Soldiers' Home Memorial Hall; Westlake Park picture show, Seventh and Alvarado; Republican League, Eagles' Hall.

Saturday, the league will join in the Fredericks rally.

Form Scherer Clubs.

Four more precinct clubs yesterday organized and indorsed O. F. Scherer for Supervisor in the Third District. This makes an aggregate of more than forty clubs, composed of both men and women, who are behind Scherer. The new organizations, with their leaders, are: Sixty-first Precinct, Alfred A. Behnke, president; Gustave Heinze, secretary. Seventy-fourth Precinct, Charles W. Benjamin, president; George W. Bailey, secretary. Seventy-fifth Precinct, W. A. Brand, president; R. D. Minnig, secretary. Seventy-ninth Precinct, William M. F. Wrege, president.

Political Field Gleanings.

John S. Chambers, standing like a political tripod on three party tickets, has opened headquarters in the Union Oil building to further his candidacy for State Controller. The offices, by the way, are those of John W. Carrigan, State inheritance tax attorney, who is connected with the office of State Controller. Chambers is asking the people to "re-elect" him when, as a matter of fact, he was not elected Controller and cannot rightfully ask for a "re-election."

S. F. Ellison, Republican candidate for State Treasurer, is making a strenuous hand-to-hand campaign in Los Angeles, and will remain several days before going to San Francisco.

Women who serve on election boards will not violate the eight-hour law, it is said, even if it does require more than eight hours to make the primary election count. It is held that the duties thus performed are special.

E. I. Troan will preside at a meeting next Tuesday evening of the Seventy-second Assembly District Republicans at the Manual Arts High School. Speakers for Capt. Fredericks, Republican candidate for Governor, will be present.

Judge Willis, a veteran on the bench, who is a candidate for reelection to the Superior Court, starts on his vacation tomorrow and will motor through the county in the interest of his candidacy.

Democrats of the Seventy-fourth Assembly District, will meet Monday evening in the Security building. Important matters will be discussed, particularly as regards the "Progressive" interlopers, who are running on the Democratic ticket.

Fred H. Hall, Democratic candidate for Governor, is out with a statement claiming that he will be nominated easily. He says he will get 75 per cent. of the Democratic vote in Southern California.

Newton M. Allen, Republican candidate for the Assembly in the Sixty-fourth District, has been in the East since June 18, leaving his candidacy to friends. He will return next Friday and will make a whirlwind campaign for the nomination.

Frank W. Blair, candidate for Superior Judge, will return to his duties as deputy District Attorney tomorrow, following a two weeks' vacation. He will campaign from then to the primaries only at night.

Postmaster Charles Fay of San Francisco, who has been campaigning with James D. Phelan, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, has returned to San Francisco. With him went J. S. Waldorf, one of the Phelan managers.

The Ladies' Duggan Club will hold an open meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. M. L. Yager in Hollywood in the interest of the candidacy of Frank A. Duggan for justice of the Peace.

Ed L. Head, Republican candidate for State Treasurer, was indorsed by Venice Republicans last night. He spoke at a Moose Lodge reunion at Long Beach in the afternoon and tomorrow will campaign in San Bernardino, Riverside and Redlands.

The Ladies' Wilshire Tyrrell Club has been organized to aid Frank G. Tyrrell in his campaign for nomination as Superior judge. Mrs. H. E. Eckler is president and Mrs. Jessie Flick secretary and treasurer.

Edmund R. Cammert, Republican candidate for the Assembly in the Sixty-fifth District, was indorsed last night by the old Taft Republican Club of that district. Fred Russell is president of the club.

James D. Phelan, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, campaigned yesterday in the southern part of the county. Monday he will campaign in Orange county.

A luncheon, attended by many prominent members of the bar, and many business men, was given yesterday at the Hotel Clark in honor of ex-Judge Walter Bordwell, candidate for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Beginning tomorrow, meetings will be held each afternoon and evening in the Third Supervisoral District by Sidney L. Briggs clubs. Mr. Briggs's candidacy for Supervisor will be carried to every voter in the district.

While Judge Conrey, presiding judge of the Second District Appellate Court, is in San Diego, his campaign managers have adopted a system of telephoning to thousands of persons in Los Angeles, asking them to vote for Judge Conrey August 25.

Elmer R. McDowell will address a meeting of the Professional and Business Women's Republican Club at the Hotel Stowell Monday evening. He is a candidate for Superior judge.

Dr. R. W. Hill, chairman of the Edward White Campaign Committee, has called the committee to hold a luncheon at the Hollenbeck next Tuesday, in the interest of the candidacy of Mr. White for Governor.

The German-American League, of which J. W. Block is president, has indorsed Capt. John D. Fredericks for Governor and Samuel M. Stortridge for United States Senator.

The Women's Phelan Club was formed at the Alexandria yesterday with Mrs. Force Parker at the head. The club has arranged for a "politicale" to be held at the Alexandria next Thursday evening.

Samuel M. Stortridge, Republican candidate for United States Senator, is being received by larger audiences on his return trip north than he had on his way south, owing to the fact that when he came down the European war had just developed. At Hanford, Bakersfield and other places along the line the popular candidate is addressing large and enthusiastic gatherings of Republicans.

A committee of over 100 men and women yesterday signed a letter indorsing the candidacy of Justice Sidney N. Reeve for Judge of the Superior Court.

INTERPRET MAETERLINCK.

Five capable young amateur actresses of this city did ample justice to Maeterlinck's tragedy, "Agalavaine and Selysette," at Cumnock Hall on Friday night. The players were all pupils of Miss Willamene Wilkes, studying drama in the Cumnock summer school, and the performance was staged under Miss Wilkes's direction.

DIES ON STREET.

An unidentified man was found dead in front of No. 138 South Main street last night. Death apparently came from heart failure. He was about 60 years of age and looked like a teamster. No papers, coin or anything else was found on his person. The body was taken to the Bresee morgue.

She's Buying Votes With Kisses.

Sarah Mildred Kriebel,

Probably the very youngest campaigner.

Vote-buying is going on! The grand jury is not getting excited about it, however, and there have been no investigations or arrests, the price being a kiss from a dainty little 3½-year-old campaigner in return for promises to "help Uncle Arthur."

Little Sarah Mildred Kriebel of West Thirty-first street, is the tiny person who is probably the youngest worker of any political campaign. Listening wide-eyed to her father's plans for furthering the campaign of Arthur D. Moore, who is a non-partisan candidate for the Superior branch, the bright little child formulated a plan of action all of her own, and proceeded forthwith to carry it out. With Mr. Moore's cards she sallied forth when her mother's back was turned, on her campaign to elect "Uncle Arthur."

"What do I get if I give you my vote?" amusedly inquired her first big "prospect" out on the busy street. "A tiss," was the ready response, and immediately the bargain was struck. A kiss, found Sarah Mildred, was ready currency in the neighborhood. The butcher, the iceman, numerous pedestrians, all fell victims to the winning plea, "A tiss for a vote for my Uncle Arthur."

When found by a distracted mother some time later, Sarah Mildred was still doing a rushing business in votes and kisses.

Arizona.

FEAR TROUBLE AT CANANEA.

Guards Hired to Watch Mine and Smelter Plant.

Cochise County's Tax Rate Materially Reduced.

Agricultural Outlook Now More Encouraging.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Aug. 14.—Now that the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company has closed down entirely, owing to the European war reducing the price of copper, it is feared that trouble will not be long in breaking out at that camp.

The company has hired a number of guards to watch the mine and smelter. Numerous threats have been made by the discharged laborers, who face absolute want because of the shut-down. Some 1900 men were laid off, but no less than 10,000 persons are affected. A few hundred have left Cananea for Douglas, Naco and other points on the American side of the international line.

In order that the people of the city shall have the conveniences as well as the necessities of life, the company is operating the water and electric light plants and its big store is kept open.

Adding to the difficulty of the situation is the fact that the troops of Col. Calles, which heretofore have been sternly preserving order, are likely to be engaged shortly with the Yaqui troops under Gov. Maytorena. This will leave the camp unprotected except by a small garrison. It is said that many of the Calles soldiers sympathize with Maytorena and are ready to desert.

Several strikes have taken place at Cananea within the last few months. The last was some six weeks ago, when the workers demanded higher pay and many other things. This strike was ended when some twenty of the agitating leaders were deported. Immediately thereafter fires, undoubtedly of incendiary origin, broke out at the Oversight and Veta Grande mines. After weeks of labor the fires were extinguished, but the company suffered to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Cananea Consolidated has always been a high-cost producer and it is impossible for it to operate at a profit with the copper market in its present condition.

COCHISE TAX RATE.

Cochise county's tax rate for the year has been fixed at 95 cents on each $100 valuation by the Board of Supervisors, a reduction of 10 cents from last year's rate. The total valuation, as equalized by the State Board of Equalization, is $93,744,872. As the State tax rate is 44½ cents, Cochise county property owners will pay a total of $1.39½.

CROPS LOOKING WELL.

Arrivals from Cumpas, Sonora, say that crops are looking fine throughout the Moctezuma district. Soaking rains have fallen and the yield of corn promises to be the heaviest for years. Politically, the district is quiet. In spite of these favorable circumstances, business is dull. Only Constitutionalist money is to be had and several merchants have closed their stores because of the inability to purchase supplies with Carranza currency.

This side of the international line the agricultural outlook is also encouraging. Farmers in the Sulphur Springs Valley expect to cut an unusually heavy crop of prairie hay. The rains of the last few weeks have given the grass a good start and it is standing knee high in some places.

FOR STREET PAVING.

Arrangements for the paving of the principal streets of Douglas and the installation of an ornamental lighting system are being pushed with vigor. Employment will be given several hundred men and a large amount of money will be spent here when it is needed to buoy business conditions.

According to Mayor C. O. Ellis, the plan is to issue ten-year bonds, payable 10 per cent. yearly with interest. He believes that some responsible paving company will accept bonds for the amount of its bid. In fact, several companies have announced their willingness to submit bids on that basis.

BOGUS MONEY AFLOAT.

Mexicans are complaining that a large amount of bogus Constitutionalist money is afloat in Douglas. Five Mexicans complained that they had secured from a local merchant a handful of alleged Carranza bills, which caused their arrest when they tried to pass them across the line. As Constitutionalist money has no recognized value in this county, no arrests have been made. The County Attorney has ruled that there is no law under which one can be arrested for making or passing counterfeit Constitutionalist currency.

BOYS' NARROW ESCAPE.

During a thunderstorm at Courtland two boys had narrow escapes from death. Gayle Nichols, 18 years old, was struck by lightning while standing in a house and severely burned about the head. He was unconscious for several minutes. While Casper Gibson, 15 years old, was riding on the back of a burro, the animal was struck and killed instantly. The boy was hurled to one side, one of his shoes and a portion of a trouser leg were torn off and a hole was burned in his shirt over the heart.

ARIZONA NOTES.

While playing about an open reservoir, Lloyd Rhodes, the 2-year-old grandson of Thomas McKinney, a well-known Benson cattleman, fell into the water and was drowned.

The Douglas City Council has enacted an ordinance requiring that before any chauffeur appears on the streets as a driver of a rent car he must pass an examination and receive a certificate from a board composed of the Chief of Police, one other member of the police department and the Fire Chief.

Among the Arizonans detained in Europe because of the war are Mr. and Mrs. S. W. French, who were at Carlsbad when hostilities broke out. Mr. French is general manager of the Copper Queen Mining Company.

European Conflict Vividly Real Here.

Watching the situation from Los Angeles.

Above, a group of Serbs studying a war map, following, as best they can from the cable dispatches, the movement day by day of the contending armies along the line that divides Austria-Hungary from the Balkans; below, a Montenegrin, and former soldier in the army of Prince Nicholas, explaining some of the fine points of a high-power rifle. The fezzes shown have been worn by Servian soldiers for 700 years.

Mars Speaks.

EAGER EYES WATCHING EVERY MOVE OF ARMIES.

Plea to Not Discuss Conflict Is Denying Human Nature—History in the Making Commands Attention of Both High and Low—Subjects of the Warring Nations Eagerly Follow Course of Their Armies.

COUNSELING the public to not discuss the European war is like trying to sweep back the sea with a broom. It is on a parity with the many attempts to change human nature by means of laws. At the present moment history is being made across the waters. The making of this history is the one live subject of conversation on our streets and in our clubs and homes.

Wherever you see a knot of men gathered on a street corner, one is sure to hear the war discussed. It is the same in the homes and in the clubs. The husband talks to the wife about the war; the young swain and his sweetheart find it a fruitful source of conversation.

War, red war, compels attention, for somewhere in the hearts of all of us there is a martial strain. The moving picture film that is built up around a problem of life or death is the one that draws the crowds. Dumas and other romancers find their most effective plots where the dramatis personae are skating along the thin edge of destruction.

But for many here the war is a real, an awful, thing. There are mothers here whose sons are in one of the contending armies. There are men on this side who have aged parents "over there." Here we have tens of thousands of persons whose birthplace was "across the waters" in one of the countries now at war. Many of them have taken out their citizenship papers here, but it is too much to presume that their hearts will not go out in sympathy to the nation that gave them birth, that they will not be concerned with each movement in the great conflict. Being concerned, they talk about it.

Also, there are many Angelenos marooned in Europe. The telegraph wires have been kept hot lately trying to communicate with them. All this adds to the all-compelling interest in the course of affairs on the military checkerboard of Europe.

VIVIDLY REAL.

But the places where the war is vividly real is in our foreign settlements. North of Sunset boulevard on North Broadway is the Servian war office. Following the outbreak of hostility more than 200 Serbs were recruited by Counsel Nicksie of Servia and Montenegro. They are soldiers held in leash, for at the present moment there now appears to be no way by which these men can be transported home. In fact, Mr. Nicksie is now in possession of instructions from the Servian representative in New York to make no attempt to secure further recruits.

But these men, though denied the opportunity to serve their countries, are not to be denied the chance to follow the course of arms. This they do by means of a wall map and the war news printed in the reliable papers.

"It didn't take us long to find out the papers that manufacture news for circulation's sake," said Mr. Nicksie yesterday. "These papers were all right at first to stir up enthusiasm, but now we want the authentic news."

In all, more than 5000 men were recruited in Southern California by the warring nations. Of this number a bare 100 moved from here. Among them were Austrians and Germans and French, also a scattering of Hollanders and Belgians. Some few reached New York, where they are now stranded. More returned here when they found out that there was no opportunity to get home. A special train that carried 200 Austrians from San Francisco was turned back before it got out of the State on advice from Vienna, through Washington, that there was no chance to transport these men across the Atlantic.

AGAINST RECRUITING.

The firm stand of the Federal government against recruiting in this country also put a damper on enthusiasm. In fact, the steamship companies all have instructions to not permit the booking of any persons by the representative, either Concular or otherwise, of any warring nation.

All this has not prevented the martial fires from burning high in many hearts. There are thousands of men in Southern California who would be ready at an instant's notice to board trains for the front, provided they had means of getting outside of the country. But the means are not at hand. At one time there was hope that events would so shape themselves that these men could be moved through our own port on specially-chartered vessels, but with England mixed up in the affair and the known presence of both English and German men-of-war on this Coast this plan had to be given up.

Denied the privilege of serving their countries, the Servians and Germans and others are doing work which is perhaps even more effective. They are collecting funds for the use of their nations and most of it is for Red Cross work. Thousands of dollars will be collected for this latter purpose. Among the Servians, for instance, the women have already gotten together several hundreds of dollars which will be sent to New York and transmitted by their representative there to the old country for the use of the Red Cross and in ameliorating the distress of the wives and childrens of soldiers now at the front.

WISCONSIN PICNIC.

Thousand Persons Gathered at Sycamore Grove for Happy Time of Reunion and Reminiscence.

A thousand persons who have resided in Wisconsin gathered at Sycamore Grove yesterday to enjoy the summer picnic of the Wisconsin State Society.

The Iowa plan of maintaining county headquarters and of registration was adopted. This, with the general informal nature of the affair, made it unusually enjoyable.

A brief programme included talks by Col. Frank H. True, Judge Myers and Frank E. Doty, all natives of Wisconsin, and by Deputy District Attorney Blair, who, as president of the Illinois Association of Southern California, conveyed greetings. Popular and patriotic songs were sung under the direction of Prof. S. W. Mountz.

Besides the usual basket dinner, coffee was served to all wearers of the State badge.

The committee in charge was Dr. William Wenzlick, president of the society; Paul Swain and Mmes. Wilson, Walters, O'Brien and Hanschette.

GETS CONTRACT FOR BIG PLANT.

LOS ANGELES CONCERN TO BUILD NINE BUILDINGS OF VERNON FACTORY GROUP.

The Broadway Construction Company has been awarded the general contract for the construction of nine concrete and steel factory buildings to be erected by the Pinney & Boyle Manufacturing Company on Santa Fe avenue in Vernon. Work is to be begun at once.

The contract includes everything but the structural steel work, which is to be done by the Union Iron Works of Vernon. The group was planned by George W. Harding, a local engineer. The total cost of the plant is estimated at about $55,000.

Our Port a Big Factor.

READY-MADE TRADE FOR A LOS ANGELES FLEET.

Path of Opportunity Opens Wide Through Maritime Lanes of the World and Local Business Men Might Take Advantage of It to Build Up an Enormous Sea Traffic in Many Directions.

LOS ANGELES could rapidly become one of the greatest shipping ports in the world. The opportunity is open. The ships are needed.

The earth's maritime commerce has been seriously disturbed by the European war. The nations involved have largely controlled the ocean commerce. While the war lasts they are practically helpless as commercial agencies, and will be incapacitated for a long time after the war has ended.

The Congress of the United States, realizing the needs of and the opportunities for this country, has passed the Emergency Bill for Shipping, which opens up the way for the purchase of foreign-built ships and sailing them under the American flag. Under this law foreign vessels may also be leased and operated as United States ships.

It was a desperate situation which caused that liberal law to be passed. The nation was practically dependent on foreign ships. It is a boundless opportunity that is opened, but in no place is the opportunity so enticing as in Los Angeles.

The United States Merchant Marine Association, in a communication sent to Los Angeles and other important seaports of the United States, declares that the time has come when it is imperative and obligatory upon the government to redeem the nation's merchant marine and recover lost prestige.

Asserting that "trade follows the flag," the association gives the following figures on the relative tonnage of ocean-going merchant vessels among nations: England, 18,388,389 tons; Germany, 4,573,855 tons; Norway, 2,212,101 tons; France, 1,981,048 tons; Italy, 1,369,748 tons; Japan, 1,350,013 tons; United States, 1,027,776 tons.

In 1858 American vessels carried 73.1 per cent. of our foreign commerce. In 1913 the percentage had shrunk to 8.9.

MOVEMENT TO GET SHIPS.

Already the proposal to form a syndicate for the purpose of promoting and financing a steamship company with its home port and principal place of business at Los Angeles, has been broached. Numbers of prominent business men have been interviewed and are heartily and emphatically of the opinion that now is the time and that Los Angeles is the place for the organization of a steamship company that will take advantage of the vast opportunities that are open for such operations.

Government engineers have recently made an exhaustive official study of our harbor and have approved it as adequate in every way for providing the necessary facilities for heavy shipping.

PERMANENT OPPORTUNITIES.

A steamship line operating from Los Angeles would sail right into a ready-made business. Ninety per cent. of the exports and imports of South America and the tropical countries of this hemisphere are carried by foreign vessels, chiefly German and English.

At present these vessels are virtually eliminated from the seas. There is no reason, other than that the United States has not the ships, why they should not be permanently eliminated, and why the United States may not secure and continue to receive the shipping benefits of its own imports and exports.

Right now the shipping conditions are so congested that four ships are being sent from Brazil to the United States to relieve the congestion of cargoes that are awaiting shipment to South American countries.

Los Angeles, Imperial Valley, other valleys and contiguous territory already furnish an enormous quantity of products that only need steamship facilities to be profitably disposed of in foreign markets, and especially the markets of South America and the Orient.

VIA PANAMA CANAL.

The Panama Canal now permits that Los Angeles ships and other Coast vessels may operate on both sides of Central and South America, and facilitates commerce with the eastern ports of the United States. If the ships are secured soon they will have no competition in getting into the business.

For years Los Angeles people have realized and talked about and planned to take advantage of the stupendous resources that would be thrown open with the Panama Canal for shipping. To a gratifying extent preparation has been made to profit by what amounts to an alteration of the world's map.

But not even the most farsighted could reasonably expect that just at the opportune moment the commercial fleets of the great foreign nations would be taken from the seas and leave the paths of commerce free for vessels under the United States flag. But just that has come to pass. And Los Angeles—the city that has for over a decade been far ahead in the race for development—is again presented with an unparalleled chance to win new commercial honors and prosperity.

DEVELOPMENTS FOLLOWING.

The normal increase of traffic and population that will come into Southern California during the next few years will originate phenomenal new and enlarged manufacturing and other business industries. Instead of importing goods, they will be made here. The increased business will increase the opportunity for employment, and more employees means a greater consumption of goods.

But with Los Angeles-owned-and-operated ships, there is no reason why our manufacturing and other business industries should be limited to merely supplying the increased population of the Pacific Coast. Local industries may enter foreign fields much more heavily than they ever anticipated. The profits of transportation, instead of going to foreign companies, will remain in Los Angeles—be spent and reinvested in Los Angeles enterprises.

It will mean a tremendous increase agriculturally. Not only will the fruits of Southern California be carried to eastern ports in Southern California vessels; not only will our canned products be shipped to the Orient in our own vessels, but our vegetables and fruit, our meat and wine, our cotton and machinery, clothing and grain may be carried to all of those ports and to South and Central American ports, as well, in our own vessels.

OPPORTUNITY IN TROPICS.

Comparatively few people in the United States realize the untouched commercial opportunities in South and Central America. As Frederick Upham Adams points out in his book on the "Conquest of the Tropics," "the United States is and always will be the chief market for the agricultural products of these tropical nations. The United States should supply to them in return the innumerable, much-needed products of its factories and mills, but even the share of this trade which we now hold will be lost unless we meet this situation with intelligence and sympathy."

While, as Mr. Adams says in effect, the people of this country have paid little attention to the opportunities in the tropics at their very doors, and have allowed a feeling of resentment to be engendered against us in most of the Latin-American countries, the nations of Europe have been making the most of our negligence. "Germany has reached out into the tropics in recent years and has accomplished commercial miracles. Her merchants, farmers, miners and engineers are in Africa, South America, Central America, Mexico, and are scattered over the tropical lands of the Pacific.

"France is engaged in this work on a smaller scale. Within the memory of men who deny that they are old, the miracle has been accomplished of linking commercially the temperate and the tropical zones."

On a much larger scale, England has also taken advantage of the rich fields and markets on this hemisphere. The Englishman has been repaid over and over again for financing the ships that carry English products throughout the world.

MARKETS NEAR HOME.

The Panama Canal practically doubles the shipping advantages that were offered a Southern California steamship company. The countries, exclusively of the Orient and the distantly foreign markets, that offer places for profitable commerce for Los Angeles goods and Southern California products reach to Cape Horn on both the Atlantic and Pacific sides. There are markets along both sides of the Mexican coast, the Central American coasts, and in the West Indies.

The tropical countries are being developed and made inhabitable, so the demand for goods is increasing and will continue to increase, while the maritime services of those nations that have so long controlled the shipping is now, at least temporarily, ended.

Concerning the opportunities in these tropical lands, Mr. Adams says: "There has been inculcated in the public mind the impression that the American who ventures into the tropics is either a fool or a knave. It has been openly affirmed by public men of influence that American citizens have no right which tropical nations are bound to respect or our government obligated to protect. If an individual attains in the tropics a measure of success after great risks and hardships, and despite absolute lack of sympathy or support from the government or his home people, he is likely to be rewarded with the insinuation that he has 'exploited' the tropics and its natives.

"It is high time that the sober, thoughtful and just majority of the American people call a halt on this discrimination against the pioneers in the development of the tropics bisected by the Panama Canal. The day has arrived when we have the choice of accepting and profiting by a legitimate opportunity, or of neglecting it and reaping thereby a harvest of misfortune and a loss of national prestige."

TELLING FIGURES.

South America alone buys imported goods annually to the extent of $821,787,000, but only about $112,000,000 of that amount is furnished by the United States. The better shipping facilities of the other nations have allowed their manufacturers to get into the market more rapidly.

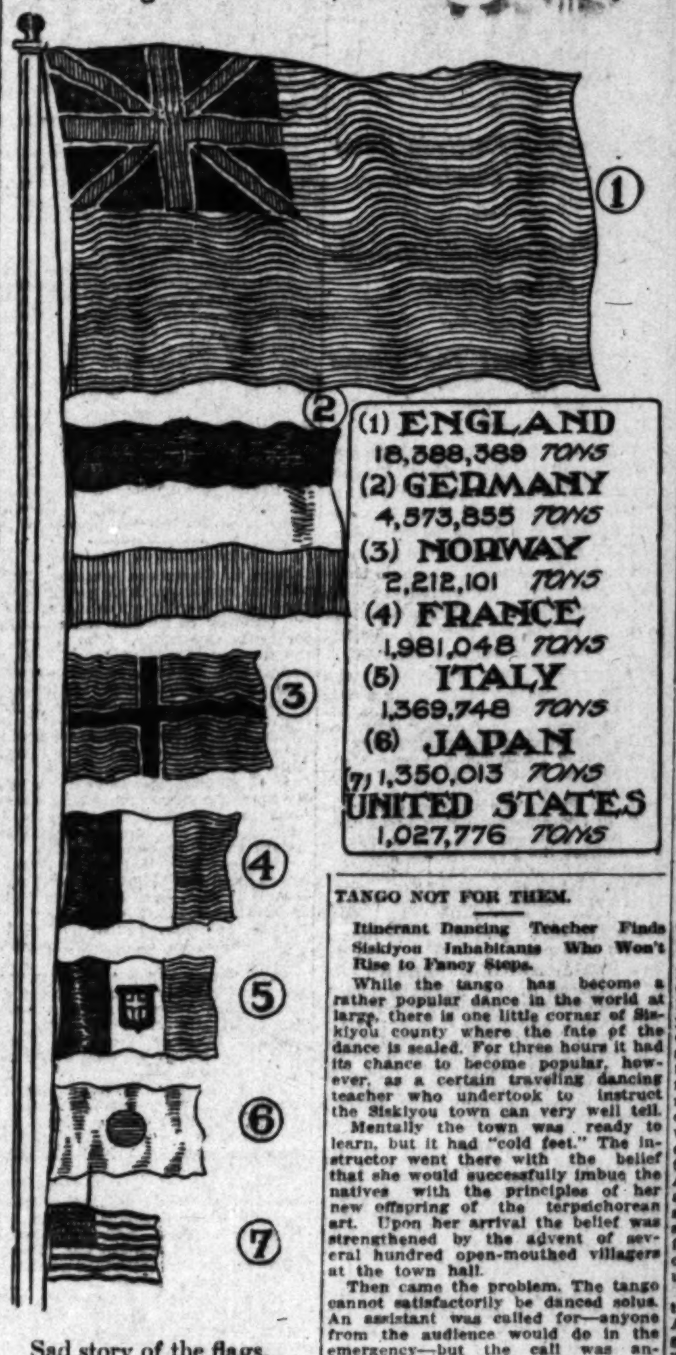
The Orient imports annually amount to $360,275,000, out of which the United States furnishes but $26,849,000. Again, it is chiefly due to the fact that the manufacturers and producers of other countries have better shipping facilities.

No nation in the world produces so much as the United States. The one reason that our exports have not been larger has been that the foreign ship owners were naturally more interested in carrying the goods of their own countrymen to market.

NOW THE TIME FOR WORK.

No one district in the United States, no district in the world has the same commercial resources as Southern California. Here practically everything that is in great demand in foreign ports may be produced in abundance—is produced in abundance—but not to such an extent as would be if offered an increase in the market demands.

Showing the Need for American Ships.



Sad story of the flags.

The above contrast in size and position indicates the relative prestige and earning power of maritime nations in ocean-going vessels, the figures being for 1913. We stand at the foot of the class. In 1913 only 8.9 per cent. of our foreign commerce was carried by American ships.

With the Kids.

CHAMPIONS OF AVALON AND "TIMES" CAMP.

AVALON, Aug. 15.—The champion Dyas-Cline team of The Times Camp continued to maltreat all comers when they slaughtered the Reach nine of the camp yesterday to the tune of 7 to 1. It was one of the tamest games of the season and the Reach bunch would have been handed a goose egg had not "Pivy" Gillett, the heavy hitter of the team, slugged the pill for a home run in the eighth inning, which saved a complete shut-out for the would-be champs.

With a straight run of seven games the Dyas-Cline team has cinched the pennant and the Dyas-Cline trophy. There are only two more games to be played this season and if the Reach boys are successful enough to cop onto both games it will only enable them to pull down second place.

The Beverly Hills boys still hold second place and if the present champs win one of the next two games it will leave Beverly second.

With the arrival of the thirteenth trip today there are only two more trips to be made to the camp, so if you are anticipating going on this last trip, boys, make your reservations now, as there will be a rush for places.

The camp this year has been a huge success with the many boys of Southern California, who have enjoyed a vacation outing as guests of The Times and the camp has had one of its most successful seasons.

The management thoughly appreciates this and has half-way promised that the 1915 camp will be bigger and better than ever.

You have eight more days, boys, to secure six new subscribers to The Times for one month or longer and be awarded one of these exceptional vacation outings of four days at The Times Catalina Camp for Boys. Don't miss it, boys, as you will regret it as long as you live.

CLOSE TO MILLION.

Building permits to the number of 329, representing new structures to cost $810,883, were issued by the City Building Department from August 1 to August 14, inclusively. Of the valuation total, $200,000 was accounted for by the permit for the new ten-story Merritt block to be erected at the northwest corner of Eighth street and Broadway. Permits for new homes to cost more than $250,000 in the aggregate have been granted thus far during the month.

FOR BRENTWOOD PARK.

Plans have been completed by Needham & Cline for a large frame house to be built by C. F. Calm on Terrace drive in Brentwood Park. G. B. Schuler has the construction contract. The house will have extreme dimensions of 80x55 feet. The exterior will be plastered over metal lath, and the roof will be of tile. There will be seven rooms on the first story and five rooms and three baths on the second. The main rooms will be in hardwoods and the bedrooms in white enamel. The plans call for five tile fire places.

SOUTH MAIN LEASE.

S. Lewis has leased the store at No. 506 South Main and the rear of the store at No. 504 South Main street from I. H. and M. M. Norton for a term of years. The store is now occupied by R. W. Saake, florist, who will move to No. 810 South Broadway. Mr. Lewis and his associates will establish a meat market and delicatessen store. H. L. Suydam was the broker in the transaction.

BACK FROM EAST.

Guy M. Rush, president of the Guy M. Rush Company, has just returned from a several weeks' trip through the East, in which he visited New Orleans, Chicago, Indianapolis, New York, Atlantic City and several other important points. Mr. Rush reports that business conditions here are highly satisfactory by comparison with those in many eastern cities.

TANGO NOT FOR THEM.

Itinerant Dancing Teacher Finds Siskiyou Inhabitants Who Won't Rise to Fancy Steps.

While the tango has become a rather popular dance in the world at large, there is one little corner of Siskiyou county where the fate of the dance is sealed. For three hours it had its chance to become popular, however, as a certain traveling dancing teacher who undertook to instruct the Siskiyou town can very well tell.

Mentally the town was ready to learn, but it had "cold feet." The instructor went there with the belief that she would successfully imbue the natives with the principles of her new offspring of the terpsichorean art. Upon her arrival the belief was strengthened by the advent of several hundred open-mouthed villagers at the town hall.

Then came the problem. The tango cannot satisfactorily be danced solus. An assistant was called for—anyone from the audience would do in the emergency—but the call was answered by an empty echo from rude walls. Again the instructor called; again the same reply.

Then she resorted to every form of persuasion to secure a partner, but the best answer that could be secured was a smile or laugh, or a frightened refusal.

Until a late hour the futile effort to give a lesson continued. Then the teacher departed and the prospective pupils also departed, and the hall became silent and dark. And they may dance the waltz, or the two-step, or the hula-hula in the Siskiyou town, but its day to learn the tango is past.

MAY CONVICT THIS TIME.

Another Hearing Granted Certain American Brokerage Company Officials Welcomed by Both Sides.

In spite of the fact that the government spent about two months and nearly $20,000 in an effort to convict certain officers of the American Brokerage Company, and failed, the jury acquitting as to two and disagreeing as to three of the defendants, it is the present intention to set the case at the beginning of the July term of court, the 26th inst., for another hearing.

The acquittal of A. E. Golden and W. A. Gordon leaves only Frank B. Woodruff, Alfred W. Allen and F. L. Courtney yet to try, and the next hearing will be much shorter than the one that has just ended.

All of the old witnesses from other States, and in addition about thirty new ones, will be subpoenaed, and the government expresses the greatest hope that conviction will follow as the result of the second hearing. The defense says it welcomes another trial and is optimistic as to the result.

It is now stated that the final vote as to the guilt of Alfred W. Allen was nine to three, and that on one ballot the vote against Woodruff was eleven to one.

Some Fish Story.

Cost of Living.

IMPORTED FOODS JUMP; CAN'T BE HELD DOWN.

WHILE Federal high price investigators may be able to control some of the prices on products made in this country, they will have little chance of holding down quotations on all imported foodstuffs. All imported fish, and particularly sardines are increasing in value, the actual advance in a week being about $2 a case. Imported dried fruits, such as citron, fancy currants, prunes and nectarines, have advanced about 2 cents a pound, while on the other hand, California dried fruits were yesterday reported down.

This opposite movement is due to the fact that the large crops of dried fruits, still in the hands of the growers and packers, cannot be moved. They are scheduled for shipment to England, Germany and even to France in large quantities, but with all shipping tied up and many fruits classing as contraband of war, there is little chance that the movement will start soon. Higher prices in America are looked for, however, increasing quotations on other foods bringing a heavier consumption of dried fruits and therefore better quotations.

Imported olives and olive oils have been advanced. This will benefit California olive producers, for the reason that the olive production of this State has not as yet taken the principal place in the [illegible] that product in America [illegible] force the fact on American [illegible] sumers that their native [illegible] superior to that of [illegible] Italy.

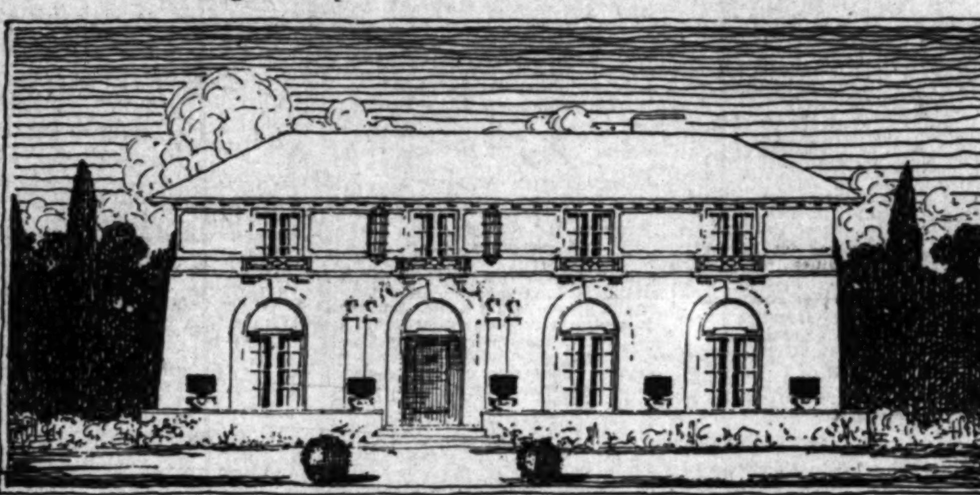
Nearing Completion in North Wilshire District.



House for Ralph Huntsberger, Dennis & Hewitt, architects.

TRADE INVOLVES FINE HOUSES.

HOLLYWOOD MANSION IS EXCHANGED FOR TWO ATTRACTIVE HOLDINGS.

In an exchange involving a reported valuation of $20,000 on each side, Oliver P. Dennis, of the architectural firm of Dennis & Hewitt, transferred to J. B. Roberts during the past week one of the finest of the new residences in Hollywood, receiving in the trade two attractive houses in the Wilshire district. Mr. Roberts will make his permanent home in the suburban place.

The Hollywood property is situated at the northwest corner of Hawthorne avenue and Orange drive, and consists of a twelve-room house on a lot 75x155 feet in size. The dwelling was planned by Mr. Dennis for himself and is of a modified Spanish type. It has a cement plaster exterior, the roof and cornice projections being of red clay tile. The interior finish is in oak, mahogany and white enamel. There are two baths finished in tile. The house is one of a number of handsome places built and sold by Mr. Dennis in the same vicinity.

One of the two holdings secured by Mr. Dennis in the trade is a nine-room house on a lot 60x150 feet in size at the southeast corner of Fourth street and Harvard boulevard. The other is an unusually fine bungalow of eight rooms, occupying a lot 64x153 feet in size at No. 438 South Hobart boulevard. The latter place is of unique design and arrangement, and is beautifully finished in mahogany and white enamel. Its grounds are elaborately laid out in a formal garden effect.

RECENTLY COMPLETED.

The Edward F. Sweet Designing and Building Company reports the recent completion of an eleven-room house for Angelo Bessolo in Eagle Rock; a bungalow for Charles Rapson in Eagle Rock; bungalows for O. R. Moyer, George Kussman, William Stork, John Keohane, Fred Hatch and J. R. McPherson in Hollywood; a bungalow for Henry Vanderwall in Angeles Mesa; a bungalow for F. F. Sweet at No. 1836 West Forty-eighth street; a bungalow for Mary Buck at Ramona Acres; a bungalow for V. Kersey on Elysian Park avenue, and a bungalow for F. F. Sweet in Glendale. The same concern reports the starting of work on a bungalow for Mrs. A. L. King on Manchester avenue and a bungalow for M. A. Lehman at Washington street and Eighth avenue. The company is now drawing plans for an eight-room chalet to be built by Miss A. Hunter on Larchmont street in Hollywood, and for an eight-room house to be built by Allen Steele on Alta avenue in Oxford Square.

CITY INSTALLS LIGHTS.

A complete system of arc lights has just been installed by the city in the Hollenbeck Heights tract in East Los Angeles. Workmen are now completing the laying of gas mains throughout the same subdivision.

PLANTER BUYS GROVE.

The sale of a ten-acre grove of young orange trees at Fontana to L. G. Hurlbutt, a cotton planter of the Yazoo River Valley in Mississippi, is reported by Thomas D. Campbell & Co., agents for the Fontana holdings. Mr. Hurlbutt concluded his purchase on Thursday and departed for Mississippi the same evening. It is announced that he will dispose of his southern holdings and make his future home in Southern California. The grove purchased by Mr. Hurlbutt is on the Pacific Electric Railway about half a mile from the center of the town of Fontana and is planted to Washington navels and Valencias.

READY FOR USE.

L. L. Brown has just completed a three-story brick building on the northeast corner of Flower and Eighteenth streets, containing six storerooms on the first floor and lodgerooms on the upper stories. Mr. Bowen has given a lease on the entire building for a term of ten years to "The Lyrau," a Swedish society, and the building will be known as the Swedish-American Auditorium. A perspective of the structure recently appeared in The Times.

CULVER CITY BUILDING.

Construction has just been begun on six new bungalows at Culver City and plans are said to be shaping for the erection of six more. A house to be built on Delmas terrace in the new seaward town will, it is said, contain twelve rooms. Announcement is also made that the new Culver City Bank will be commenced within two weeks, while plans are now being completed for a new two-story mercantile block for the town.

BUYS UTAH LAND.

Mart Adson, secretary of the Western Securities Company, agent for the Milford Valley irrigated lands in Utah, reports the sale of 440 acres of land to F. J. Austin, an Imperial Valley rancher, hailing from Calipatria. Mr. Austin is said to have placed an order for horses and agricultural implements with a view to the immediate development of his property.

MANY FINE FEATURES.

Attractive New Place on Lucerne Avenue One of Several Handsome Homes for North Wilshire District.

One of the handsomest of the new homes under construction in the North Wilshire district is that being built by Ralph Huntsberger, a local contractor, on the east side of Lucerne avenue just north of Fifth street, about half a block from Windsor Square. The place, which was planned by Architects Oliver P. Dennis and Henry Harwood Hewitt, is one of the number under way on the same tract.

The house is about half completed, the workmen having started the interior finish last week. The exterior walls are plastered with white cement over metal lath. French doors and casement windows will predominate. The trim of the first floor will be in hardwoods and that of the second story in white enamel. There will be three tile baths. A paved terrace will extend across the entire front of the house.

The lot is 75x190 feet in size, and is to be attractively laid out.

ACQUIRES WATER WORKS.

New Calipatria Concern to Establish Ice Plant and Creamery in Addition to Piping City.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIPATRIA, Aug. 14.—The Calipatria Creamery, Ice and Water Compnay, a corporation with F. B. Frank as president, has taken over the water works at Calipatria and intends putting in extensive improvements.

Plans have already been drawn and work will start immediately on a twenty-ton ice plant and a creamery with a capacity for 500 cows. A special train has been put on to handle the milk from the valley.

Mr. Frank states that the company will install a concrete reservoir with a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons of water. This reservoir will be partitioned in the middle with drain pipes two feet below the level of the partition. Water flowing into the first reservoir wil lseep through drain pipes when the level is reached, thus insuring a perfectly settled water.

Attractive Hollywood residence,

QUARTER-MILLION INCREASE SHOWN.

PRESENT TAX VALUATION OF SOUTH PASADENA MUCH GREATER THAN A YEAR AGO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 15.—The City Clerk has received word from the county officials that the tax valuation of South Pasadena has increased nearly $250,000 during the past year. The present valuation is fixed at $5,792,415 on the non-operative roll, as against $5,543,375 for last year. Including operative property, such as railroads and electric lines, the valuation will run over $6,000,000.

Gilbert and Company report the sale for E. B. Drakley of Los Angeles, to James Smith of Michigan of a triangular piece of land, divided into three lots, on Rollins street, between Fremont avenue and Meridian street, the consideration being given at $1000. A. H. Baldwin has sold to J. J. White of Sierra Madre, through the same agency, 200x175 feet on Hope street, between Fremont and Meridian avenues, improved with two houses, the consideration not named. The new owner expects to build four additional houses on the property. Baldwin has purchased a ranch at San Jacinto and will move there with his family next week.

The contract has been awarded for the South Santa Anita school, and work on the foundation is already in progress. The grounds and building complete will cost $20,000. The structure is to be of concrete construction, and will contain an auditorium teachers' rooms, and six class rooms.

C. W. Bowen, No. 524 Orange Grove avenue has traded his property for a tract of land near Carmel; and will move with his family to Berkeley.

W. C. McNeil is erecting a double bungalow on Primrose avenue.

CHAPEL FOR SOUTHWEST.

Presbyterian Congregation to Build House of Worship at Corner of Leighton and Western Avenues.

Architectural plans have just been completed by Joseph Bell de Remer for a chapel to be erected by the congregation of the Southwest Presbyterian Church at the corner of Western and Leighton avenues. The building will be 47x77 feet in size, and of frame construction, the exterior being plastered.

The church will contain an assembly-room and classrooms on the main floor and a social hall in the basement. The pastor's study will be in the second story. It is planned at some future time to add an auditorium and to use the present assembly-room strictly for Sunday-school purposes. The building as now designed

New Industry.

BIG PLANT FOR EL SEGUNDO.

Indiana Concern Will Enter Southland Field.

Engage in Manufacture of Motor Tractors.

Plant to Be First of Kind on Pacific Coast.

As the result of an agreement signed last Tuesday between the El Segundo Land and Improvement Company and the Lambert Manufacturing Company of Anderson, Ind., Southern California is to have another important manufacturing plant. The Hoosier concern has secured a site of nearly six acres in extent in the Standard Oil town and is just about to start a brick factory building 60x200 feet in size, which is intended to be the first unit in an extensive plant.

The Lambert Manufacturing Company is the name adopted for the Pacific Coast plant to be established at El Segundo by Lambert Bros., who own and operate the Buckeye Manufacturing Company of Anderson. The parent concern is engaged in the manufacture of automobile trucks, gas and gasoline engines and a farm, orchard and road tractor. The tractor only will be manufactured at first in the El Segundo plant, although it is the intention of the concern eventually to put out all the products now made in the eastern factory.

Lambert Bros., have been in business for nearly thirty years and have at Anderson a plant covering close to seven acres, and having an output of twenty cars of finished products a day. The firm also retains an interest in another factory in the same city given over to the manufacture of buggy and wagon shafts, poles and gasoline engines, and which it established years ago. Around both plants the Lamberts are said to have built up extensive manufacturing communities.

The entire Pacific Coast territory of the firm will be supplied from the El Segundo plant, S. J. Smith, formerly head of the Smith-Booth-Usher Company of this city, having been named as Coast manager. The negotiations and arrangements for the erection of the plant were largely conducted by Mr. Smith, the final details being consummated by J. W. Lambert of the Buckeye Manufacturing Company and James E. Burke, sales manager for the same concern, both of whom came from Anderson to Los Angeles for the purpose.

ATTORNEY BUYS GROVE.

St. Louis Man Purchaser of Twenty-five-acre Property Near Walnut—Trade Figures in Deal.

The transfer by Samuel M. Bowers to Warren D. Isenberg, a St. Louis attorney, of a twenty-five-acre walnut and orange grove one mile north of the town of Walnut is reported by W. A. Potter, who represented both parties to the transaction. The consideration is announced at $35,000, part of which was represented by a two-acre place at Carpenteria, which was traded in at a valuation of $10,000. The balance is said to have been paid in cash.

The grove property is set to bearing trees and has building improvements of nominal value. Mr. Isenberg, it is announced, will expend a considerable sum in modernizing the place for a country estate. He will make his home in Los Angeles. The Carpenteria holding secured by Mr. Bowers is planted to fruit trees of various kinds and has a good house. The new owner contemplates living on the property and going into the business of bee and honey culture.

LINES EXTENDED.

Car Service in Belvedere Heights and Other East-Side Districts Greatly Improved—New School Projected.

The East First-street and Brooklyn-avenue lines of the Los Angeles Railway are being extended along North Gage street through the Belvedere Heights tract to the site of the company's new east-side car barns. Eventually the line will be extended to Eastlake Park.

The trustees of the Belvedere school district have completed the purchase of four large lots in the Belvedere Heights tract, and are arranging to begin the construction of a $20,000 school building to replace the present temporary structure.

News From the Great California Oil Fields.

McKittrick.

PRELIMINARY WORK ON FOOT.

New Lost Hills Company Soon to Drill.

Oil Operator Will Test Out New Lease.

Two Dividend Payers Show Good Progress.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

M'KITTRICK, Aug. 14.—The Lost Hills Development Company, which recently established a camp in Los Hills, under the management of W. L. McLaine, formerly superintendent of the Universal Oil Company is having large quantities of material hauled from Coalinga to the scene of operations. Two rigs have just been completed, while two others are now being finished. The work of drilling will be commenced shortly, and the officials of the company are very hopeful of success in the discovery of oil in paying quantities.

Preparations are being made for the beginning of operations by Frederick W. Kimble, a well-known oil operator of San Francisco, on land recently obtained by him through a lease made by the Theta Oil and Land Company of San Francisco. Mr. Kimble was here this week to make an inspection of the property and formulate plans as to its development.

Under the terms of the lease, which covers a period of twenty years, drilling must begin within three months after the execution of the contract. The land acquired by Mr. Kimble consists of eighty acres, embracing the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 11, and the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 12, 26-20, which is near the property of the Lost Hills Development Company and Dudley Well.

Mr. Kimble was formerly superintendent of the Belridge operations of the General Petroleum Company, and manager of the Caneros Oil Company.

Among the oil companies having interests in the McKittrick field that have declared a dividend payable during the present month, are the San Francisco and McKittrick and the State Consolidated. The San Francisco and McKittrick, whose holdings are in the north end of the McKittrick district, is one of the oldest, and under the management of D. A. Jackson, has become one of the leading concerns in this field. Within the past year or two the company added materially to the number of good producing wells and increased its storage facilities to mee the requirements of the consequent larger production.

The State Consolidated Oil Company, with leases in both the McKittrick and North Midway fields, has made quite a record in recent months with its wells in the North Midway district, the output for the past month averaging 60,000 to 65,000 barrels. E. J. Miley, president and general manager of the company, with headquarters in Los Angeles, is in active charge of operations, and it is understood that considerable new work in the near future is contemplated.

As a whole the McKittrick field continues quiet. The Reward has just completed its No. 41 derrick, and the drilling of wells Nos. 40 and 41 will begin in a few days. The other companies in the district are running as usual, production being about the average.

Business with the local oil-well supply houses since the first of the month is reported better than for some time past. While the demand has not been extraordinary it has been satisfactory, with prospects for a still better inquiry during the early fall months.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT. LOST HILLS FIELD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASCO, Aug. 14.—W. Rynerson is now superintendent for the General Petroleum Company in the Lost Hills field. Supt. Paul Hill, who took charge of the lease a year ago when it was nothing but a sagebrush patch, and who developed it to a property producing 80,000 barrels a month, resigned that he might give his undivided attention to pressing private interests.

The property of the Lost Hills Development Company has been improved. The cookhouse, bunkhouse, office and other camp buildings have been completed, and a 250-barrel water tank erected on a high tower that sufficient pressure may be developed to run the water all over the lease. Telephone, water and electric lines are being run to the lease so that no modern conveniences may be lacking. Material for the No. 2 derrick is on the ground, and drilling on well No. 1 will start next week.

The Standard Oil Company is building a pipe line from its Devil's Den lease to the section 10 lease in Lost Hills, where tanks are being erected near the No. 1 well.

STARTING NEW WELLS. MIDWAY AND MARICOPA.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, Aug. 14.—The Consolidated Mutual Oil Company is to have two wells drilled under contract by a new concern.

The Dominion Oil Company on section 15, 31-22, has the lumber on the ground for the rig for a well to be started about September 1.

The Mocal Oil Company is preparing to drill well No. 6 on section 26, 31-22. This property is in the Fellows district, where the State Consolidated is operating. This particular section in three months has been transformed from a desert of brush to a forest of derricks.

The Alberta Midway Oil Company in the North Midway will begin drilling a new well about September 1.

The Section Fifteen Oil Company on section 15, 31-22, is finishing up the eighth well on its property, and will then commence to drill the ninth.

LAKE VIEW SUMPS. BREAK AGAIN OCCURS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, Aug. 7.—Bad luck appears to be camping on the trail of the Lake View No. 2 Oil Company, for this week two more of the largest sumps on the property, containing more than 250,000 barrels of oil, developed a big crevice which opened the levees and allowed the oil to run down Maricopa flat in a small river.

As soon as the crevice was discovered a large force of men was sent to the flat and a ditch was opened toward the Midas lease, which is the lowest place thereabouts. The oil was then directed down the ditch and a part of it was caught up there and was pumped to the Cornfield sumps, more than two miles away.

The sumps which were opened were the Nos. 9 and 10, and these are the second groups to be destroyed that way. About three weeks ago the Nos. 3, 4 and 5 sumps were opened in a like manner by a great crack, which allowed more than 300,000 barrels of oil to flow away.

The exact cause for the earth cracking in this manner is not understood. Several theories are advanced by the oil men working on the property. One of the reasons given is that the great weight of so much oil causes the earth to settle. Another theory is that a deep sand thirty feet from the surface has been saturated with oil from the great gusher and has settled, making the surface crack. Many other theories are also advanced.

The loss of oil in this manner in addition to the great amount of labor necessary to repair the breaks has caused the company many thousands of dollars expense and the chance for mending the sumps without great expense is small. The work will require many weeks' time, as a shaft will be sunk at each end of the sumps to the bottom of the crack and will then be filled with earth, forming a plug that cannot be disturbed.

May Levy Assessment.

To make possible the levying of an assessment, stockholders of the Maricopa Northern Oil Company will meet August 20 at Phoenix, Ariz., to vote on the proposition of changing the company into a California corporation. The company was incorporated originally under the laws of Arizona and the stock is not assessable.

The change will have to take the form of a sale of the assets of the present Maricopa Northern to a California corporation. Shares will be issued in the new corporation for stock in the old on a share-for-share basis. The assessment, if levied, will be at the rate of 1 cent a share, but will probably not be necessary should the company bring in the well it is deepening in Maricopa flat district before the proposed reincorporation is effected.

The letter issued to stockholders with the notice of the special meeting states that the directors of the company and some of the larger stockholders have supported the company's treasury in drilling the well to a point where they find it impossible to continue using their personal funds. The belief is set down that the well if completed would make one of the best in the field, and the drill is stated to be close to the oil sand.

Some $10,000 would be raised by an assessment.

Agency Price.

The Independent Oil Producers' Agency will pay 40 cents a barrel for its July production, according to predictions. The price last month was just slightly under that figure, and there has been a steady advance lately. Forty cents is the same price that the Standard Oil Company is now paying for fuel oil in the fields. The big company recently purchased 500,000 barrels at this figure from the Agency.

Now in Midway.

E. A. Robertson, formerly a right of way man for the General Petroleum Company, is now a proprietor in a construction company which operates in the Kern districts. He is well known among oil men, and at one time was connected with the Standard Oil Company.

Largest Crop.

MANY GREAT GUSHERS ARE COMPLETED HERE.

HAD it not been for the wonderful La Corona (Dutch-Shell) gusher in the southern republic, California would have given Mexico a hard race during the first half of this year in the matter of big oil wells, for which the southern republic has gained much fame. La Corona gusher had as great an initial production, however, as thirty-one of the largest wells finished in California during the first six months, whose aggregate was approximately 100,000 barrels, but the remaining twenty-odd big producers in the southern country had an initial output of only about 70,000 barrels.

This year will probably be considered the best for big wells. The greatest thus far has been the Lakeview No. 2 gusher, whose initial output was conservatively figured at 30,000 barrels a day, although on occasions it ran higher; the same was true of the La Corona well, however, in reference to the 100,000-barrel initial output with which it is credited.

The second claimant to fame in California was the Obispo Oil Company's No. 3 at Maricopa, with an initial output conservatively figured at 7500 barrels. The Miocene well had perhaps a larger initial output, but has not been a steady producer.

Among the other famous producers of over 1000 barrels at the start are the following, as given by the Oil City Derrick:

Union Oil Company No. 53, Brea Canyon, 3100; Calokia Oil Company No. 1, La Habra, 1000; Record Oil Company No. 3, Midway, 7000; North American Consolidated No. —, Midway, 2800; Maricopa Star No. 7, Maricopa, 1000; K. SHOWS OIL'S IMPORTANCE.

Declaring It Contraband Is Significant.

Miocene Well Now Among the Largest.

Demand for Fuel Grades Is Still Active.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 14.—The fact that Great Britain has declared fuel oil to be contraband of war shows the tremendous importance which it has assumed in naval warfare. Some time before the outbreak of war Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared in Parliament that "Oil is the life of the navy."

While far more has been printed regarding the adoption of oil by the British navy than of the same action by continental navies, the latter have not neglected its use and Great Britain does not propose that they shall get supplies abroad unhindered.

Another notable fact in connection with war news is the frequent reference, brief and concise, to the movement of oil tankers. Most of these—practically all except those in the American coastwise trade—are under British and German flags. Their movements are of the utmost interest in view of oil having been declared contraband of war.

MIOCENE WELL.

The Miocene Oil Company's well No. 2 is proving one of the largest on the west side. It came in some three weeks ago with a flow of 7000 barrels daily, of 26.5 gravity oil, and this has increased to 10,000.

The daily maximum under the company's contract with the Standard Oil Company is 1000 barrels, and this means that 90 per cent. of the oil must go into storage, unless the well can be capped or the Standard induced to allow an exception to be made to the order.

The Miocene's officers are looking for reservoir sites where oil can be stored without such losses as the Lakeview No. 2 Oil Company has sustained. The last-named company's experience has established that the land in the Maricopa flat in the region where the Lakeview No. 2's gusher and the Miocene are located is entirely unsuitable for the construction of earthen reservoirs for oil.

The earth is at least 15 or 20 per cent. soluble and it absorbs the moisture from the oil, and the ground softened thereby gives way. In this manner the Lakeview No. 2's sumps lost 300,000 barrels of stored oil. The long-continued demand of the Lakeview No. 2 for storage wherever it is to be had has resulted in most of the available sites being occupied and makes the problem for other companies more difficult.

The Miocene leases from the National Pacific Oil Company. Consequently the latter will derive an increased revenue as a result of the Miocene's big well.

TAKES HEAVY OIL.

While it has cut light oil prices and has also issued strict orders to hold all deliveries down to the maximum prescribed in the contracts, the Standard Oil Company is taking all the heavy-grade oil offered. The State Consolidated is the latest to make such a contract. The agreement has just gone into effect and covers the entire output of six wells on section 26, 31-22. A similar contract was made not long since for all the royalty oil of the Mount Diablo Oil Company.

The Standard has also made a contract with the Independent Producers' Agency for 500,000 barrels of 14 gravity oil from the Kern River field for immediate delivery at 40 cents a barrel. This points to a very strong demand on the Standard's part for heavy oil, because the company has a large storage on hand at Kern River. This is the first time that the Standard and the Agency have ever done business together as buyer and seller.

The importance of the contract to the Agency, aside from the immediate financial returns, is found in the fact that it releases that amount of storage capacity for other oil.

AT OLD PRICE.

Like the Universal Oil Company in Lost Hills the Mannell-Miner Oil Company, whose property is located in the region between that field and Belridge, succeeded in closing a contract with the Standard just before the last cut in prices went into effect and is therefore selling its oil on a basis of 10 cents above the rate now offered in the district.

The fact that contracts of this kind had just been made when the order for the cut was promulgated indicates that the Standard's action was intended more to forestall the prospective new production and to discourage development rather than to affect existing production.

MAY DELAY LINE.

The contractors on the Valley pipe line (Royal Dutch-Shell) have established a number of camps between Coalinga and Martinez, but to date no actual construction has been done. As to any construction between Coalinga and Midway, despite all rumors, there has been absolutely nothing done and there is nothing to indicate that anything will be done soon.

The outbreak of war and the resulting monetary difficulties in Europe, where the Royal Dutch-Shell headquarters are located and where the combine gets its money, arouse some speculation as to what effect, if any, this may have upon the building of the pipe line and refinery as projected by the Royal Dutch-Shell people in California, especially as the line between Midway and Coalinga was not included in the original plans.

TANK FARM.

The tank farm north of Fellows is about finished and pipe is being laid to connect it with the General pipe line. This, however, is for the purpose of bringing oil to the tanks, not to take it out. If all the oil contracted from the General Petroleum is to be delivered at North Midway connection with tidewater by pipe line will be necessary very shortly, unless the Royal Dutch-Shell people make some arrangement with the [illegible] pipe line to move the oil to tidewater at Los Angeles so that it may be shipped from there.

Local refineries are receiving substantial quantities of high-grade casing-head gasoline from the Turner Oil Company's big oil and gas wells in the Coalinga light-oil belt. The gasoline is coming in tank cars, the Southern Pacific having been compelled by the State Railroad Commission to rescind its rule against transporting it. The railroad maintained that the product was dangerous.

The action of the commission is interesting in view of the fact that the Standard Oil Company has just abandoned the manufacture of casing-head gasoline at Newhall because, as officially stated by the company, it is too dangerous on account of its volatility to be transported safely.

The Turner company has a compressor working upon the gas output of three wells, from which it gets about 2500 gallons of gasoline daily, testing about 71 gravity. The company has three other wells, equally good gas producers, but another unit will have to be added before more gas can be treated.

Oil Notes.

The news of the large contract for oil which the Union Oil Company has arranged with the Guggenheim interests in South America has been the occasion of a great deal of favorable comment in local oil circles.

The Midway Northern Oil Company is securing about 400 barrels of oil a day from its property, with two wells out of four producing. The others are being repaired.

Nobody has been heard saying lately that the Associated Oil Company is on the verge of being taken over by the Royal Dutch-Shell combine. Things might be worse, however.

ATE HAIRPINS AND DIED.

Woman With Strange Mania Succumbs at the Fifth Operation to Relieve Her Stomach.

[New York World:] Having swallowed hundreds of hairpins within the last two years, Mrs. Alice Bischoff died Sunday night in Bellevue Hospital. Today an autopsy will be performed so doctors may learn how it was possible for her to live so long with hairpins in her stomach.

The woman, who was 43 years old, lived at No. 401 East One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street. She was committed to the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane early in 1912. At once she began to swallow every hairpin she could get. On March 26 that year an operation was performed and many hairpins were removed from her stomach. Sixteen days later it became necessary to perform another operation, and more hairpins were removed. A third operation, performed in April, brought out more of the bits of metal.

The following month she was removed to the Manhattan State Hospital, where she continued to gulp hairpins. Great New Industry Locates at

El Segundo

"The Standard Oil Pay Roll City"

The above architect's drawing gives an idea of the factory of the Lambert Manufacturing Co. at El Segundo, ground for which was broken last Wednesday. The site comprises nearly six acres, and the first building will be 60x100 feet. It is believed the plant will be in operation within three months.

The Lambert Co. will employ $100,000 cash capital in the actual operation of the plant, and 100 to 150 men at the start. This will probably mean the location of 100 or more new families here.

The Lambert Mfg. PROJECT OPERATIONS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Aug. 14.—Operations on a large scale are to be undertaken by Harry Shumate and Edward Shumate of Prescott, on the property they have just acquired from the Rich Hill Placer Company.

The Shumates have bought 6700 acres of the richest placer ground in Arizona—ground from which thousands of dollars' worth of the yellow metal was washed in the early days of Arizona. They believe that with modern methods they can realize riches far beyond the dreams of the prospectors, who discovered the field and took out only the coarsest of the gold.

A Stebbins dry concentrator, with an engine and other equipment, has arrived at Congress Junction, the nearest railroad point. The plant will be placed in operation at once and at least twenty men employed.

The land is to be platted and holes drilled at regular intervals in order that the zones of value may be determined. In case the venture proves successful, a Quinner crusher will be installed to reduce the coarser formation.

The old Thorne mine, on the Santa Maria, is once more coming to the front. It has been taken over by an eastern syndicate and is being operated on an extensive scale. The ore is hauled to Date Creek Station, twenty miles away, and shipped to the old mill at the Big Stick mine. A satisfactory saving of gold is made.

WAR AFFECTS COPPER MINES.

CURTAILMENT OF PRODUCTION IS IN PROGRESS.

European Markets, Which Took Seventy-five Per Cent. of the Output, Now Closed to American Fields—Many Men Thrown Out of Employment.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) Aug. 14.—Because of the war in Europe, the production of practically every copper mine in Arizona has been curtailed to a greater or less extent.

Arizona mine owners estimate that from 65 to 75 per cent. of all American copper is exported to Europe, and the European market is now closed. There will doubtless be an increased demand from American manufacturers, called upon to supply the South American trade that has heretofore been handled almost entirely by Europe, but this will not go far toward restoring normal conditions.

The Phelps-Dodge Company, which controls the Copper Queen at Bisbee, the Detorit at Clifton and Old Dominion at Globe, had announced a reduction of 25 per cent. productioon and 10 per cent. in wages, almost before the war had begun. The Bisbee scale has been $4 a day and is reduced to $3.60. It is pointed out that the scale at Butte, Mont., has been $3.50 for a long time.

Walter Douglas, general manager of Phelps, Dodge & Co., said:

"Copper statistics for the last few months disclose that of all the copper produced in the United States, 75 per cent. was sent to Europe and only 25 per cent. was consumed in this country. These facts furnish a graphic picture of what the closing of the European market means. Consequently the only way the companies can continue to operate at all is by paying operating expenses out of surplus. This policy will be undertaken in the hope that the metal can be sold later at a price above the present cost of production."

No announcement has been made by the Calumet & Arizona, the other big Bisbee company, but it is understood that it will follow the precedent in restricting its mine output.

The Shattuck-Arizona Copper Company will lay off about 150 ment. No decision regarding a reduction in wages has been reached.

The same reductions that have been made at the Copper Queen have gone into effect at the Detroit and Old Dominion mines. The forces in the Copper Queen and Calumet Arizona smelters, at Douglas, have been cut.

At Miami the Miami Copper Company laid off 25 per cent. of its men and reduced the wages of the others 10 per cent. No reduction of any kind has been made by the Inspiration Company. Its mine work is chiefly development and the construction of its concentrator continues the same as before the war. There has been no change at the International Smelting Company's Miami plant, in course of construction.

Only a few men are retained at the Black Warrior mine and they are doing only development work. The shut down is more complete than at any other Arizona mine. For several months the Black Warrior has been shipping twelve to twenty carloads of ore to the Douglas smelters each month.

Information regarding the Ray Consolidated mine, at Ray, is lacking, but it is known that several hundred men have been laid off and the rest are working on half time. Operations have been curtailed at the Hayden concentrator and smelter, and several ore train crews have been laid off.

The United Verde Copper Company at Jerome has reduced its force by some 300 men and curtailed production one-third.

In all the camps the miners are taking a cheerful view of the situation. There has been no complaint regarding the cuts in wages and the discharged men have caused practically no trouble. Here and there some of the more ignorant foreigners have been involved in brawls more or less traceable to the curtailment of work in the mines.

Epidotic Rock.

ORANGE, July 21.—Q.: I am sending you today two samples of ore, one heavy spar and the other a hard rock. Would you kindly tell me whether the hard rock contains tin, tungsten or corundum, or anything of value? And does the heavy spar contain quicksilver? Both samples came from the San Bernardino mountains, about twelve miles from San Bernardino.

O. E.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The heavy spar of the mining boys is baryte (barium sulphate.)

The hard sample is in part epidote, with iron oxides and trace of manganese. The yellowish-brown specimen is a mixture of amphibole, epidote, iron oxides and trace of zinc. Tin, corundum, tungsten or quicksilver, not present in any sample.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Lime and Silica.

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) July 22.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you three samples; the first two taken from the surface, and the other from a hole four feet deep. The dyke is along a fault of Morita limestone in the mountains right south of Bisbee. Once I obtained an assay of 4 per cent. copper from this, and later, nothing but traces of silver. Would you kindly name the rock? Tell me if it carries any traces of mineral in promising quantities. Having limestone contacts, do you believe it could have enriched the ground. Thanking you most heartily for your goodwill toward the miners.

H.

A.: Glad to hear from you. We take but little stock in the "limestone-contact" theory when applied to rock (as ore) represented by the samples before us.

The limestone of Leadville, Colo., near the zone of the "Weber grit," is always encouraging to the miners of that section.

No. 1, "West along the surface." This is chiefly lime carbonate, silica present; bare trace of microscopical cerusite, iron oxides, and traces of feldspathic matter. No. 2, "east along surface." The sample is on the order of No. 1, practically. No. 3, "from hole four feet deep." Calcareous, feldspathic, and silicious rock; trace of lead, and not tested for silver.

Not Kaolinite.

LOS ANGELES, July 23.—Q.: Sample of white mineral from near Lapanza, San Luis Obispo county. The sample is from a small blowout, and it is thought to be kaolinite. You will confer a favor on several prospectors if you will test the sample and inform me what the mineral carries.

D. B. A.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample is a fine grade of diatomaceous earth, and often referred to as infusorial earth. It is of commercial value as wall-packing material; in the manufacture of dynamite; in certain concrete mixtures; in the art of the perfumer, and so forth.

Rather Odd.

SODAVILLE (Nev.) July 24.—Q.: Samples from near Belleville, Nev. No. 1 (the white) makes in pockets. No. 2 from same ledge as No. 1. Please classify. The samples were thrown away by early-day silver miners. Is there any vanadium present?

J. Y. A.

A.: No. 1 is a lime-soda carbonate, with traces of lead, aluminum silicate and zinc. No. 2 deserves especial reference. When you recently submitted a chip of yellowish mineral it was too minute in size to test properly, but scheelite is present in that "chip." The larger sample is probably supposed by you to be of the same composition as the chip referred to, but this No. 2 is a silicate; vanadium absent. We find manganese, iron oxides, quartz in the mass, with tungsten a trace, and bismuth a trace. Zinc sparingly present.

Granite.

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Q.: I leave at the Times Building two samples of rock. Will you please classify them for me? Is No. 1 an eruptive rock or is it metamorphic? What are the differences between No. 1 and No. 2 samples? Both samples obtained from the Yosemite.

N. D.

A.: It would require much space to properly answer your questions.

Sample No. 1 is granite, and it is an eruptive rock.

Exception might be taken to the definition, for there are many scientists who hold to the theory that granite is metamorphic.

Dana shows as follows: Granite "occurs both metamorphic and eruptive. Metamorphic granite may often be seen graduating into gneiss, or lying in beds alternating with gneiss."

The mining boys in the hills very properly refer to gneiss as "soft granite."

Sample No. 2 is like granite, "but with the mica and other ingredients more or less distinctly in layers. Gneiss breaks most readily in the direction of the mica layers, and hence its schistose structure; in consequence of this structure, many kinds may be got out in slabs. It often graduates imperceptibly into granite."

Granite is composed of orthoclase (potash feldspar,) quartz and mica. The mica present, with the named (other) ingredients, does not appear (at sight or otherwise,) in layer forms. "The feldspar is commonly whitish or flesh-colored, and may be distinguished from the quartz by its cleavage surface, which reflects light brilliantly when the specimen is held in the sunlight. The mica is usually in small bright scales, either silvery, brownish-black or black in color, and the point of a knife carefully used will easily split them into thinner scales; the silvery mica is muscovite, but sometimes of the allied hydrous kinds, margarodite or damourite, and the black mica is usually biotite, though occasionally the allied, more iron-bearing species, lepidomelane. Oligoclase or albite is very often present."

Further describing some of the mica above referred to it is well to state that muscovite is also a potash mica; margarodite carries potash and soda; damourite is probably a hydrous muscovite; biotite occurs in black, brown, and dark green colors, and is a potash mica. Lepidomelane, which occurs plentifully in San Diego county, California, is a uniaxial mica; a potash mica, if you please, and it occurs as a mass of microscopical, raven black or leek green scales (crystalline and micaceous) in six-sided tables, "united in granulo-laminar masses." It is easily soluble in hydrochloric acid, with separation of silica in the form of the crystalline scales of the mineral." Leopidomelape is furthermore referred to as a possible source of potash, and worthy of some attention.

Biotite is a potash mica, and can be distinguished from lepidomelane by being decomposed in the presence of strong sulphuric acid.

Biotite is usually disseminated more or less sparingly throughout the matrix, while (practically illustrating,) lepidomelane consists, very frequently, of a mass of scales, as it were. Oligoclase is a lime-soda, potash feldspar, and albite is known as "soda feldspar;" potash often present in traces.

Granite is frequently referred to as the primitive rock, and Dr. Steele, in his concluding published remarks on granite, shows as follows:

There are, however, places where it has been found at great depth, and, by some powerful convulsion, has been ejected to the surface in a melted state, like a true igneous rock. It may even now be in the process of formation in the lower portions of the earth's crust. It is certain that as the crust wears away above, new rocks must be cooling underneath, since the point of fusion is constantly passing downward. Granite has, however, been formed in all ages of the world, and cannot be thought a primitive rock merely, although specially characteristic of the earlier periods. We shall, therefore, consider it, in general, as a metamorphic rock, crystallized by the combined action of heat, water, and other chemical agents, from sedimentary or more ancient rocks.

Tungsten Absent.

MINERAL PARK, July 26.—Q.: Am sending you some samples; please test these and give results in "In the Earth." No. 1 is footwall, and No. 2 hanging. Judging by one and two, is the claim contact or true fissure? I have had considerable trouble in getting returns on No. 3; this is ledge matter, and what kind of ore is it? No. 4 is from an outcrop about two miles higher up in the mountains; what kind of rock is it? Does it carry tungsten? All samples from near Three Rivers, Tulare county.

C. E. B.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Samples Nos. 1 and 2 are granite, and from the samples (walls as stated by you,) the ledge matter is fissure (not "true" fissure; the word true being superfluous,) and is not of "contact" nature.

No. 3 can be referred to as zinc-lead sulphide; mineralogically, we refer to the sample as blende (zinc sulphide,) and chemically, silver, with lead and iron oxides present.

No. 4 is a variety of titaniferous iron ore known as ilmenite. The sample consists of opaque crystals, iron black in color. Of sub-metallic luster; acts slightly on the magnetic needle; of black streak, and conchoidal in fracture. Hardness 5, Sp. gr. 4.88. Composition. Chemically and approximately, the sample carries over 45 per cent. titanic acid; manganese protoxide 3; magnesia trace; iron protoxide say 40, with iron peroxide 10; percentages as given.

Before the blowpipe the sample is infusible; it is soluble in strong hydrochloric acid, but the mineral must be finely pulverized prior to its acid bath.

Lime Carbonate.

PASADENA, July 25.—Q.: Will you oblige a subscriber by referring the enclosed samples to your department of "rare minerals," etc. I will be under many obligations for report, etc., in column of The Times.

M. D.

A.: Glad to get a line from you. Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are lime carbonate and No. 1 is impure limestone. No. 2 is crystallized and transparent calcite. No. 3 is the variety "Flos Ferri" (flower of iron,) a coralloid form of aragonite. No. 4 is gypsum; variety alabaster, but it is of too low grade for the uses of statuary and ornamental purposes. No. 5 is Scheelite (calcium tungstate) and carries over 35 per cent. tungstic acid of commerce. Sample No. 4 is fluorite (fluor spar;) and material represented by the sample can be utilized as a metallurgical flux. It is also a base for hydrofluoric acid.

Ninety-five.

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—Q.: Sample from ledge in San Diego county. Please give per cent. silica. What are the black crystals?

W. T. P.

A.: Approximate percentage silica given at subheading. Black crystals tourmaline. Iron present.

Amphibole.

EXETER, July 28.—Q.: Am sending you twelve specimens of float rock picked up on my foothill ranch near Exeter. They are numbered, and I have a piece of each piece for reference. There are well-defined ledges, but no work has been done. Would like to know if any of them in your judgment are worth following up.

T. D. H.

A.: With the amphibole we find separate samples of low-grade talc, and specimens of tremolite (hornblende variety.) Sample No. 3 is worthy of further exploitation, and it is the only specimen that shows a chance for commercially valuable talc.

No. 1 is a mixture of talcose matter with iron oxides, aluminum silicate, lime and quartz. No. 2 is on the order of No. 1. No. 3 is above specially referred to. No. 4 is a mixture of tremolite with "mountain leather," a variety of asbestiform actinolite sparingly present on the coating. No. 5 is on the order of No. 4. No. 6 is an altered hornblende, and it is now chiefly iron oxides. No. 7 is amphibole with opal silica in the mass. No. 8 amphibole. No. 9 chert with opal silica. No. 10 is low-grade jasper quartz. No. 11 is impure jasper of no value. No. 12 is a milk-white quartz; iron sparingly present.

Xanthite.

NEWHALL, July 30.—Q.: I am mailing you three samples that are of more than ordinary interest to me. All of them are to be had within twelve miles of Newhall. In No. 1 I suspect that uranium is present, and probably the sample is carnotite; is it? No. 2 looks like quartz, but I am in doubt about the blackish globules on outside of sample. No. 3 is half of sample (the other half being kept by me.) Thanking The Times for its practical help to prospectors and miners.

J. K.

A.: The sample of gray-yellow substances is not carnotite, and uranium is not present therein.

It is named at the subheading and is, specifically, a variety of idocrase, and idocrase "comes under the head" of vesuvianite. Aluminum, lime, oxygen, hydrogen and silicon dioxide present in the mass.

The sample is "a mass of small rounded grains, easily separable from each other, and which appear, under the microscope, to be imperfect crystals, having a foliated texture." Translucent; of splendent luster (partly of resinous luster.) Sp. gr. 3.2, and is easily scratched with a nail. The term xanthite is of Greek origin and, freely translated, stands for "yellow."

No. 2 is quartz, and the microscopical botryoidal masses on the coating are from manganese dioxide in the mass.

No. 3 is apparently one-half of a kidney of magnetite (magnetic iron.)

Quite a Mixture.

SAN DIEGO, July 30.—Q.: Please find in this a sample that I cannot make out. What are the crystals in it; some blue, others green, pink and white? Is the yellow metal gold? Sample from Black Mountain district.

J. M. C.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample, from a mineralogical point of view, is very handsome, indeed.

The crystals you refer to are those of fluorite (fluor spar) and it is probable that, if the sample is representative of the deposit or ledge, it can be sold for fluorite.

The yellowish matter occurring in the mass sparingly is not gold; it is "yellow copper ore" of the mining boys (chalcopyrite.)

Tonopah.

SILVER GAINS BRIGHTER HUE.

Situation for Producers Is Much Improved.

Pay Day Proves Greatest in Camp's History.

Nearly Half-Million Dollars Is Distributed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Aug. 14.—A perplexing problem arising from the war has just been disposed of in local circles by the fact that the director of the mint has ordered the purchase of 50 per cent. of the silver produced by American mines at not less than 52 cents. Without a market, producers had been at their wits' end to decide upon a policy for the future. Now the smaller mines have been stimulated to make a greater effort to continue development.

The pay day this week was a big feature among recent happenings at the camp. In all $495,000 was distributed by mining companies in settlement of their pay rolls and current expense accounts. The disbursement was the largest for a single month in the history of Tonopah and compares with $250,000 a month paid out two years ago. The payments were in gold, to demonstrate that although a silver camp, Tonopah is able to meet all obligations with the same celerity as displayed on the Coast.

Under a new leasing agreement the Montana is now hoisting ore from the Midway, adjoining. Only the old workings of the Midway are affected by the lease, as that company will concentrate its own forces in developing territory from the new working shaft.

The arrangement is beneficial to both companies. The Montana has a mill of its own, but is short of ore, while the Midway has plenty of low-grade ore that would not stand the expense of shipping, but which could be handled at a profit when taken directly from the mine to the mill at the collar of the shaft, without railroad haul.

It is estimated that the Midway will receive benefit sufficient more than to offset the cost of developing in the northern end of the mine and thus relieve the treasury from the strain of keeping up a heavy outlay.

Tonopah Extension is making a bid for second place in the bullion output of the camp. The product for July reached 155,561 ounces, or the greatest in the history of the company. This bullion at the last silver quotation was worth $97,990. For the month of August it is expected this production will be increased 25 per cent. and the following month when the Extension has its increased mill capacity another 10 per cent. may be added to the total.

An important development has taken place in the extreme western workings of the West End, where a large body of good milling ore has been opened for a distance of 150 feet. On the 400-foot level where litigation work was in progress an unsuspected body of ore has been opened up and development work will at once be started on this vein, which promises to be one of the company's best.

Owing to the absence of silver quotations, shipments of ore from the Merger have ceased, and the entire working force has been concentrated on the lower zone of the workings.

Lazy and Noisy.

I. W. W.'S ATTEMPT TO ORGANIZE DISCONTENT.

Declare for "Right by Might" and Seek to Cause Financial Losses by Violence—Only 30,000 Members in "Good Standing" Out of Population of 90,000,000, Shows They Are More Noisy Than Forceful.

BY HELMUTH DUEBERG.

"NO GOD, no Master."

"Right by might."

"All wealth is produced by labor; labor therefore is entitled to all wealth."

"The machinery of production and private property is held illegally by the 'capitalist class,' which holds the laboring class in a state of slavery because of it."

"What is of benefit to the employer is self-evidently detrimental to the employees."

"Violence will be used if necessary to accomplish a social revolution without regard to life or property."

(From official I.W.W. Literature.)

Such are the fundamental maxims of the faith of the "Industrial Workers of the World"—that revolutionary labor movement, which during the past decade has visited the country like a cyclone—appearing suddenly here and there, manifesting itself wherever there was trouble brewing in the industrial skies, leaving devastation and destruction in its wake.

The I.W.W. is hardly an organization, as yet; rather a propaganda. With a nominal membership of 120,000, apparently a negligible quantity among a population of over 90,000,000, its organizers report a membership in "good-standing," that is, paid-up membership, of only a little over 30,000. Recruited generally from strata lower than those from which the labor unions and even the Socialist party generally draw their followers, this I.W.W. membership consists, according to the official reports of the organizers, "almost wholly of unskilled workers;" as a matter of fact, the I.W.W. order is made up of a shiftless, drifting and floating crowd, usually inclined neither to industry nor work. By virtue of its revolutionary, emancipatory and defying tone, and its fighting propensities, the movement particularly draws to it the young and adventurous, those preferring a roving, haphazard existence with a minimum of work and a maximum of excitement and friction with the authorities for which they are celebrated as heroes and martyrs rebelling against the "tyranny of the oppressing capitalist class," to steady, honest work.

ORGANIZED DISCONTENT.

Such is the comparative small number of the regulars of this peculiar order. Its sympathizers and potential followers, however, number in the millions. According to the words of William Haywood, one of its founders, the I.W.W. is "an ability to organize discontent." The actual signed-up members form merely the skeleton of the masses that are potential recruits of the order; and wherever labor trouble breaks out or is impending, the I.W.W. men on the ground lead the agitation, assume, or attempt to assume, the leadership of the strike, or whatever the form of demonstration may be, and by the now so well known tactics of inflammatory speech, sabotage and outright violence, "organize" and aggravate the existing discontent.

The I.W.W. is neither unionism, nor socialism, nor anarchism, and yet has something of them all. Its ultimate aim is to do away with capitalism by whatever means "may be necessary" to accomplish this. It is a continued revolution against the existing economic and social order with the final object of seizing the ownership of the machinery of production, the control of industry, from the capitalist, and the abolition of the wage system.

Like labor unionism, the I.W.W. purports to organize labor. But it fundamentally differs from unionism, in that, first, it organizes not the crafts, but all those employed by any one industry into "one big union." This in order to be able to paralyze the whole industry at one blow by a strike, and to avoid a contingency where only a part of the workers of an industry work while the rest, not being in the same union, remain at work, which moderates the effectiveness of the strike of the union involved. As for instance, when on a railroad, the firemen strike, while the engineers and all other employees of the road remain at work. Such a strike, the I.W.W. maintains very correctly, cannot be very effective. The I.W.W. organizes all branches of an industry into one union irrespective of the individual craft; one strike thereby paralyzing the whole industry.

But the more vital distinction from unionism is in the fact that, while the unions accept existing economic order, the wage system, and merely strive to enforce, through their organizations, better wages, shorter hours and generally to better conditions, often co-operating with the employer, the I.W.W. considers the wage system, like the Socialists, as fundamentally wrong, and as an outrage on labor. Like labor unions, the I.W.W. resorts to the strike, but with a view finally by a great universal strike to overthrow the existing economic system and take possession of the plants, the railroads, of the earth, and no longer to draw wages, no matter how high, but to manage the industries themselves and to receive what they consider their just share, the full market value of the article produced. The I.W.W. are constantly on a war footing and make no agreements, but verbal and the most temporary, and consider even those as a perpetrated wrong on labor, feeling themselves free to disregard any agreement made, at any time. Considering the capitalists as holding their place illegally and being, as a class, wholly corrupt, the I.W.W. in turn expressly reject any and all moral and ethical teachings of the existing order, feel free to break contracts and consider it a duty to disobey court injunctions for the class.

CONTEMPT FOR SOCIALISM.

From socialism, the I.W.W. faith differs mostly in the method of achieving its ultimate aim. The revolution of the I.W.W. is strictly economical, in method as well as aim, not political. The I.W.W. have but contempt for the Socialist's procedure of trying to reach the goal by votes. The I.W.W. detests all political campaigns and entanglements, considering them as inefficient. "Direct action," that is strike, sabotage and violence, where "necessary," are the only remedy the I.W.W. considers as competent to achieve the result of finally wresting the control of industry from the hated "parasite," the capitalist.

In that, the I.W.W. resemble more the anarchists, with the exception that the anarchist is the extreme individualist, who detests all fetters of Socialistic or communistic arrangements or anything resembling a state. But, like the anarchist, the I.W.W. hates to have anything "handed down from above," no matter how great a blessing. The I.W.W. propose to do things for themselves, and get what they consider theirs by strikes, by sabotage or by fighting. The only bargain they are willing to make with the capitalist, or employing class, is complete surrender of the ownership and control of the industries, having no confidence or trust in any compromise or reform.

ENCOURAGE CLASS HATRED.

The I.W.W. leaders stir up, carefully nurse and feed class consciousness and class hatred, telling their followers that, literally, the earth is theirs, and to take what is "wrongfully" withheld from them. The bitterness of those who have fallen victims to such spellbinders as Haywood, Giovanitti, Ettor and others, is such that they look with distrust at any well intentioned move to better the condition of the proletariat coming from any other source. The I.W.W. defiantly gives the rest of the world notice that it will take what rightfully belongs to the "workers," namely—the earth. Nothing less.

Discontent, the father of all revolutionary movements, is the origin of the I.W.W. It feeds and grows on trouble. Where there is no discontent the I.W.W. cannot operate. Like other economic philosophies that consider the existing order all wrong, and propose to turn it upside down, the I.W.W. faith is the child of the craving of the proletariat, incompetent and unequipped to earn more than a bare pittance, for the wealth of those around them who are more highly productive and efficient. This craving, mated with the consciousness of inability, or lack of confidence of ever earning or being productive enough to enjoy such wealth as surrounds them, begets a state of mind that makes willing recruits for any and all kinds of revolutionary and Socialist propaganda. And at the instigation and with the aid of such demagogues as William Haywood, Vincent St. John, Joseph Ettor, and Giovanitti, and others, this queer mongrel of economic thought, the I.W.W. propaganda, somewhat of a cross between unionism, socialism and anarchism, was launched after the great Colorado mining strike of 1902 and 1903. It also appears that some of these agitators have read some Nietsche, but found it rather heavy food. They appropriated at least some such catchwords as "slave morality," "the higher morality," "ruling class"—without, of course, comprehending the meaning of the "superman" philosophy, and also managed to catch something of that fiery, implacable spirit of defiance and of the contempt for Christianity that flared from the mighty German philosopher.

WHY I.W.W.'S ARE DANGEROUS.

It is this spirit of uncompromising and implacable defiance, together with studied tactics of awakening and rousing all the greed there is in human nature for the wealth that others have, and the expressed rejection of all existing moral and ethical obligations in the fight for the cause that make the I.W.W. appear so dangerous a phenomenon of social unrest. It is a question of whether the leaders, who are working night and day to arouse such passions among an ignorant, morally and intellectually, undeveloped, largely foreign proletariat, can control the uprising when some great occasion should give it unexpected impetus. Says Haywood, when he first after the great struggles in the Colorado mines in 1902 and 1903 turned his eye East to the great mill towns: "Here lay a task to my hand. Here were millions and millions of people working desperately and barely able to exist. All I needed was to stir those millions into a sense of their wrongs.

"The mill owners fear above all an I.W.W. strike, because we can make a great mass of ignorant people hold together. . . ."

The heads of the leaders of revolutionary movements often are the first to fall before the passions of the infuriated populace which they have helped to arouse. But it seems a peculiarly fascinating occupation, this making of revolutions, and neither the fate of the Robespierres nor Maderos appear to hold a lesson for these men.

However, the I.W.W. propaganda as yet has failed to take hold in any orderly settled manufacturing communities where work is done by skilled American workmen who live under decent conditions. The organization at present consists of three great national unions: Textile Workers, Forest and Lumber Workers, and Marine and Transport Workers, and 195 local unions in other industries employing mostly unskilled labor. But the I.W.W. is not even known to have originated the most important strikes which it claims as its greatest achievements. At McKees Rocks, Pa., at Lawrence, Mass., at Little Falls, N. J., the four biggest eastern strikes the I.W.W. participated in, the strike had begun before the I.W.W. was in evidence.

NOT AN IMPORTANT FACTOR.

As a matter of fact, the I.W.W. is not the factor in the labor and industrial world which the amount of publicity it has received would lead one to believe. And it has been owing to its tactics and methods, the invariable outbreak of riot and violence wherever the I.W.W. had charge of the strike that has given the I.W.W. an appearance of a far greater problem than the professed lawlessness of a handful of tramp demagogues deserved.

That the I.W.W. is pledged to violence, and commits violence, there can be no doubt. All that can be said to the contrary is that some of the more "diplomatic" leaders, as for instance, General Organizer Joseph J. Ettor, have been reluctant to admit that much to newspaper interviewers, but only to apologize humbly to the bolder ones of their guild when taken to task for being too "diplomatic" in their statements. Joseph J. Ettor, general organizer, replies to such an accusation by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, an I.W.W. leader and writer, in "Solidarity," Saturday, July 25, this year, as follows:

"I am accused of a desire to be 'diplomatic' and of attempting 'to make the I.W.W. principles palatable.' Let me say in reply that I am constantly in new fields for the I.W.W. and know that what opposition there is to meet because of the poison and prejudice that have been disseminated by the capitalist press, which has been given plenty of material by the agitation carried on by irresponsibles; I, for one, while I don't want to be 'diplomatic,' object seriously to a lot of wild-eyed statements about violence that only help district attorneys all over the country to build up their cases. Diplomatic? If necessary, until we gather sufficient strength, why not?

VIOLENCE USED.

As a matter of fact, some of the leaders seem to disagree as to what degree of violence is justified in pushing the cause, some brazenly deny violence. A great deal is made of that the I.W.W. never indulges in "unprovoked violence"—a mere hair-splitting subterfuge. The pompous Mr. Haywood, archagitator, who has perhaps incited more people to violence than any other labor organizer in the country, tries to blind the public with the statement that "we have a new kind of violence; when we strike, we strike with our hands in our pockets, etc."

But we may refer him and other doubtful, or not fully posted I.W.W. generals to the recent authoritative statement of Vincent St. John, one of the prominent leaders of the I.W.W., before the United States Industrial Relations Committee, that "violence would be used if necessary to accomplish a social revolution, without regard for life or property." St. John in his "History, Structure and Methods" of the I.W.W., further elaborates on this as follows:

"As a revolutionary organization the Industrial Workers of the World aims to use any and all tactics that will get the results sought with the least expenditure of time and energy. The tactics used are determined solely by the power of the organization to make good in their use. The question of 'right' and 'wrong' does not concern us."

Lessig, another leader, says: "We might hesitate at first to advocate it, but if we saw fit I guess we would."

Giovanitti, in an article in the Independent of October 13, 1913, on syndicalism, the particular form in which this social disease here termed I.W.W. manifests itself in France, says:

"As a matter of fact, if syndicalism does not openly advocate violence, as same anarchists do, it is neither because of moral predisposition against it, nor on account of fear, but simply because . . . it refuses to believe in any single omnipotent method of action."

"The law of least effort (without levity—this seems a very important law in I.W.W. 'philosophy,' being very often cited in its literature) will unconsciously but firmly induce the workers to refrain from violence, but if impellent needs and the inflexible necessity of getting certain results make it indispensably conditional to the solution of a deadlocked controversy, it will, of course, automatically assert itself, even without an expressed suggestion. In this case, it being neither counselled nor premeditated (?) violence is neither right nor wrong—it is either necessary nor unnecessary, effective or useless, as the resulting circumstances alone will determine."

Anent this discussion the following boastful quotation, a paragraph taken from an article entitled "Johanneson on the McNamara Case" in Solidarity, July 4, 1914, will prove interesting by its natural inference:

". . . . Burns never found anybody—not McManigal, not the McNamaras. He only found the cowards and traitors in our own ranks. There was one power they could not control and that was the power of loyalty and solidarity among us, and that is why they could not find the man with the glass eye."

TRY TO CAUSE FINANCIAL LOSSES.

The willful destruction of machinery, "laying down on the job" when no strike is on, any tactics to cause financial loss to the employer as by misdirecting shipments, by wilful mistakes spoiling the product, and all such childish, but harmful, tricks as are covered by the terms "irritation tactics" and "sabotage" are openly admitted by most any I.W.W. member, and are worked too openly to be denied. Literature termed "Technical Instruction" is distributed among the "workers," teaching them minutely just how to throw the employers' plants and business into chaos and giving valuable specific suggestions to the different trades of different industries.

The enthusiastic I.W.W. worker in a strike will do whatever is necessary, and considers necessary whatever there is to do to advance "the cause." The term "worker" merely means member, as a matter of fact a man need not show actual employment to be admitted into the I.W.W. or to remain in it. The organization knows no distinction of color or nationality, but takes in anybody and everybody, including "the man from the gutter." His one qualification necessary is that he hasn't anything, but wants everything everybody else has.

"We are not satisfied with a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. Such a thing is impossible. Labor produces all wealth. Labor, therefore, is entitled to all wealth. We are going to do away with capitalism by taking possession of the land and the machinery of production. We don't intend to buy them either. The capitalist class took them because it had the power to control the muscle and the brain of the working class in industry. (Simple! But whence this power?) Organized, we, the working class will have this power. With that power we will take back what has been stolen from us. (When?) We will demand more and more wages . . . We will demand and enforce shorter and shorter hours. As we gain these demands we will diminish the profits of the boss. We are taking away his power. We are gaining that power for ourselves. All the time we become more disciplined, more self-confident. We realize that without our labor no wealth can be produced. We fold our arms. The mills close. Industry is at a standstill. We then make our proposition to our former masters. It is this: We, the workers, have labored long enough to support idlers. From now on, he who does not toil, neither shall he eat. (If that were true now!) We tear down to build up."

(From official propaganda literature, "The Revolutionary I.W.W.," by Grover H. Perry.)

To hold up the employers for more pay by organized gangs of professional idlers and disturbers and destroyers of property, that is the gist of the I.W.W. propaganda. Agitators who tell masses of ignorant gullible people to seize by such methods what the hated capitalist "has stolen" from them, waste time in asserting that they do not advocate violence.

CAREFULLY CONCEAL THE TRUTH.

The I.W.W. leaders, like all labor agitators and demagogues, carefully refrain from telling their followers more than, in their own words, "It is safe for them to know." Such uncouth, crude and deceptive reasoning as "labor produces all wealth, therefore, labor is entitled to all wealth" made to people not used to reason and analyse, is a crime greater than all the violence ever committed in all the I.W.W. strikes, for it is just such teaching and manner of "enlightment" that is at the bottom of riot and violence. Ask an I.W.W. agitator what he means by labor; whether he includes in it even management: the foresight and training and technical ability requisite to direct large enterprises, and he will

On June 27th, 1913, 13½ months ago, W. L. Barnard and C. W. Hahn, both expert cactus men, made a
1000 of the Burbank variety to a ranch at Whittier (name given on application.)

This rancher was promised an average of 15 slabs for every one planted, in one year. Care and given this cactus by the owner, which led to wonderful results. Today some of the plants show over 100 able slabs. We estimate that at least one-quarter of them will show from 60 to 75 slabs. We estimate slabs are ready for delivery and planting now, after 13½ months.

This is the biggest story yet told in cactus—it is the absolute truth.

This cactus was developed under INTENSIVE FARMING methods.

The OCEAN VILLA INTENSIVE FARMING COLONY is the first intensive farming colony ern California. Its back bone is SPINELESS CACTUS—the choicest varieties.

Besides cactus, we plant such double profit crops as GLADIOLUS, POINSETTIAS, CALLA MEDICINE HERBS and GARDEN VEGETABLES.

OUR COLONY IS CO-OPERATIVE. We don't work the method of every man for himself. It might termed "Fellowship" farming. Someone has said that FELLOWSHIP FARMING, tersely put—is a highly ized scientific method of exploitation, applied to the profitable marketing of commodities and food stuff, ally produced on home lots, by intensive cultivation.

evade you with the agility of an eel; ask him if by the term labor he comprises the thrift, self-denial and courage to stake savings that created and made possible the plant that furnishes the jobs to the laborer, and he will laugh at you outright and tell you he cannot argue with you, for you and he have nothing in common.

Like socialism, and to a large extent, trade unionism, the I.W.W. movement makes the fundamental error of attempting to better the laborer's condition by forcing the employer to pay a higher wage for shorter hours than his services would bring in the open market; a method utterly false in principle, in that if successful in its immediate purpose, it tends to make the individual laborer more content with his existing status and takes from him the incentive to perfect himself; to better himself by promotion rather than by forcing higher wages from the employer. Higher wages for the same work as before mean merely, in the end, higher prices and general higher cost of living; and, by removing the incentive for attaining efficiency with a view to betterment by individual promotion rather than organization and force, tends to keep growing the already over-supply of unskilled labor, always on the increase because of the steady stream of immigration, and rapid increase of the lower strata of population; and thus results in still further cheapening the price of unskilled labor perforce of the law of supply and demand, while the jobs higher up go begging for lack of sufficiently trained men.

EXCITEMENT ATTRACTS.

But the I.W.W. agitator cannot, or will not, see this. Doubtless, it is easier, more attractive and exciting to loaf, strike and incite riots—the regular I.W.W. member seldom is a steady worker. It is the easier and, to that class of people, the more attractive way to bully the employer into yielding to pay blackmail than to seek improvement of one's condition by harder work, study after hours, general efficiency and some of the superhuman effort that test a man's real worth, the natural and best way for all concerned, but the harder way. St. John's statement that "the I.W.W., as a revolutionary organization, aims to use any and all tactics that will get the results with the least expenditure of time and energy," is significant and to the point. The I.W.W. has no confidence or professes to have no confidence, in that merit is bound to force its own reward. Dynamite is more to its liking. It involves less time and energy. (In accordance with "the law of least effort," quoted above.)

The I.W.W. members, unlike trade unionists and socialists, have practically no opinion on current political problems or happenings. They do not interest them, unless involving and affecting them most directly, or unless they think they affect them directly in one way or another. Whether the national administration is Republican or Democratic; whether the tariff is high or low; it all is of little interest to them. The majority of them is not equipped anyhow to form a rational opinion on such matters. The Panama Canal, they feel, will flood the Pacific Coast with unemployed labor. They think that the foreigner, particularly the Chinaman and the Japanese, is much more expensive to the employer than the white man, because less efficient, and for that reason feel gratified because the hated capitalists imported them in the hope of getting cheaper labor and found themselves disappointed, and have a problem on their hands besides.

Like every revolutionary movement the I.W.W. attracts the unselfish and courageous as well as the self-seeking, the criminal and the merely adventurous; but most of all the younger element. More than 90 per cent. of the members, according to official reports, are under 30 years of age. Most of them are "migratory workers" of no particular trade, and many of them fully deserve the epitahs with which they have been so generously endowed, as "bums," "I won't works," "tramps," "hoboes," etc. The majority of those generally met with in the I.W.W. headquarters in cities are just what these names imply.

DEMANDS OF UNIONISM.

Discriminatory Legislation Against Employers But in Favor of Their Workingmen.

[James A. Emery in American Industries:] Twenty-two States have already made it unlawful for an employer to communicate information to another employer with reference to participation in a strike of employees, or any other information the purpose or tendency of which is to discourage or prevent their employment. At the same time an almost equal number of States have said that it shall be lawful for a peaceful picketing to take place, that is, for a laboring man in a labor controversy to communicate information with respect to the employer to a person who applies to him for employment.

Thus we find our legislators in this peculiar position; that they say it shall be unlawful and criminal for one employer to tell another employer about a strike, but they say it shall be lawful and right for one workman to tell another workman about the conditions of a strike injunction during labor controversies. In other words, to say that they shall not be protected at the time when, peculiarly, they need protection. And unless the injunction does interfere with some act that the strikers contemplate, some act of an unlawful nature, what objection could they have to the injunction?

They answer promptly by telling you that what they object to is that the courts continually enjoin and prohibit them from doing things which are lawful in themselves. What is lawful in itself? Anything, with few exceptions, is lawful in itself. It is when a thing is used for an unlawful purpose that the hitherto lawful thing becomes unlawful.

There is no activity of a human being, even among the sweetest and most sacred things of life, that cannot be turned to an unlawful purpose. It is not alone that a man walking on a street can be walking there for an unlawful purpose. The communication, for instance, of information respecting the appearance of the police to another individual who is peacefully robbing a house.

There is nothing that men can do that cannot be turned to an unlawful purpose, and when it is turned to an unlawful purpose there should be no act that the machinery of law could not reach, or it cannot adequately protect personal liberty and personal property.

Nothing is a crime in the Federal jurisdiction except what Congress says is a crime. The common law of the States is as different as the States. It varies very greatly. It was accepted wholly by some and partially by others. The Federal jurisdiction cannot undertake to apply forty-eight standards to any given act.

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES AND STRIKERS OF THIS UNEASY WORLD.

DIFFERENCES over wages between the master teamsters of Albany, N. Y., and their employees have been settled by arbitration (the proper way to settle all labor disputes,) the agreement to date from May 1. The men get an increase of 5 cents a week from May 1, 1914, to January 1, 1915; then another 25 cents weekly increase from January 1, 1915, to January 1, 1916; then a 50 cent increase from January 1, 1916, to January 1, 1917, when another agreement will be made. The men agree that they will not strike for any cause during this period, but will submit all grievances to the Arbitration Committee, and abide by its decisions. Up to this agreement the men have been getting $15 weekly.

A strike against proposed wage reductions of from 15 to 25 cents a day is imminent at the Burden Iron Works of Troy, N. Y. Business depression and the large cost to the company of the workmen's compensation law compel these wage reductions.

If wages are reduced below the 7-shillings-a-day limit the coal miners of Scotland will strike immediately. If only a few go "out" the owners will, as agreed among themselves, declare a general lockout.

Peaceful intervention fails to settle the Liverpool, Mersey River (Eng.) strike of 3000 dock workers. Plans are being made for an extension of the strike to other ports of England. British colliery owners are proposing a 10 per cent. wage reduction and an increased output of 112 pounds per man per day. On refusal the collieries are being closed one by one. Already 1300 workers are idle, with every prospect of staying idle for months to come.

British trade union funds were depleted $3,750,000, or 11 per cent., in 1912, equal to 10 shillings per member, says the report of Robertson, chief registrar of Friendly Societies.

The I.W.W. does not court publicity. They prefer to do their devilish work in secret. They lurk in the dark and hidden places and belong to that class who "prefer darkness to light because their deeds are evil." They do not seek to better the laboring man's condition; their real object is to preach anarchy, sabotage, and to destroy all forms of government, and to accomplish their murderous design they come "as a wolf in sheep's clothing," masquerading under the holy name of labor. It is the ruty of every citizen, and especially so of the press, to strike this monster down with an iron hand, not forgetting the motto of one of the greatest fighters of our day: "The hardest blows bring the quickest results."

Gradually the coal mines of Colorado are reopening—some as open shops and some under new contracts with the United Mine Workers of America, when approved by the War Department, as martial law still prevails.

The strike of New York egg candlers (inspectors) continues. Employers are willing to agree to wages and working conditions demands, but will not recognize the union in any settlement under any conditions.

The threat to call a strike of 18,000 workers of the Lackawanna Coal Company has been abandoned.

The London building trades strike of 30,000 men has been settled.

A truce has been declared in the British marine engineers' strike which began in June.

The annual report of the National Union of Wool Sorters of Great Britain described the past year as one of the most extraordinary in the history of the union, not only because of the protracted dispute in regard to conditions and wages of alpaca and mohair sorters, but also in consequence of the abnormal unemployment experienced through the unexpected slump in the botany trade, which, according to the union, contributed largely to the failure of the strike. The dispute lasted twenty-three weeks and entailed on the union an expenditure of approximately $30,000.

The New York strike of printing press-making machinists is settled. The strikers get all their demands except recognition of the union.

The firms involved in the general strike of New York inside bronze and iron workers have formed themselves into a union for self protection. They will not, on any account, recognize the Inside Ironworkers' Union, which called the strike. While willing to pay the wages demanded, they not, either individually or collectively, sign the agreement for those increased wages submitted to them by the union.

The profit and loss of British strikes of the last ten years, prepared from recent government returns by Consul Hale of Huddersfield, show that the loss to the organized workers alone from stoppage of work due to disputes of all kinds in the United Kingdom has been equal to $84,741,000 in wages, not to speak of a vast sum spent in strike pay. Against this, the net gain in wages resulting from disputes is returned at $13,209,000, leaving a net loss of $71,531,000. In the same period the working classes as a whole have secured advance in wages estimated at over $72,947,000, but the greater proportion of these advances have been obtained through conciliation, machinery, and working agreements. Of every 100 strikes or other disputes recorded in the years under review, 50 per cent. have been won by the employers, 25 per cent. by the workers and the remaining 25 per cent. have been compromises.

Unfair.

DISSIMILARITY OF TREATMENT.

OF INSULTS TO SAILORS AND TO OPEN-SHOP WORKERS.

Violators of the Law Are Not the Rank and File of Union Men, but the Cowardly Leaders Who Always Remain Under Cover and Escape the Penalty Properly Their Own.

Under the title of "The Square Deal in Business," Hon. Milo D. Campbell writes in "The Square Deal" of the legislation pending in Washington and the comparative action of the government regarding the arrest of sailors at Tampico and the treatment of non-union men in Colorado, as follows:

There is pending in Congress at this hour, a bill introduced in both the Senate and the House, known as the Bacon-Bartlett anti-injunction bill. You are undoubtedly familiar with its provisions.

It would mean that in a labor dispute between employer and employee, in a strike for whatever cause, an employer of labor could not invoke a court for an injunction, except to prevent an irreparable injury to property, or to property rights.

It means that if workmen shall go out on strike, leaving their places vacant, they may stand outside the factory doors with clubs and guns, they may kill if need be to prevent other workmen taking their places. It means that they can ruin their employer and his business by boycott, and that the doors of the court are closed against him.

Only the workman injured could bring action against his assailants in the mob, if he could pick him out and prove his case. It is a bill to promote anarchy and to legalize treason.

Back of this bill are the labor unions of the country, encouraged and cheered on by every socialist, anarchist and political contortionist in and out of Congress.

They know that back of the judge stands the Sheriff, the Governor, the President of the United States, and that back of them are the militia, the army and navy, to maintain order and to enforce the decrees of the courts.

A few days ago, while Secretary Bryan was sending out from the White House windows doves of peace to France, England and other nations; while he was negotiating treaties for arbitration; a squadron of warships from our navy yards, by order of the President, was plowing the Atlantic southward, to avenge an alleged insult to a few sailors at Tampico.

The sailors were released within an hour, apologies were made, and the offending subordinate was arrested by his superior Mexican officers. But in addition, the rear-admiral of our vessel demanded a Mexican salute of twenty-one guns to our flag.

I am not complaining of the respect that we require to be shown to our flag by other nations and peoples, but we cannot forget that in the very hour when we were preparing for war upon Mexico, because of the so-called culminating incident, out in the mining regions of Colorado, in the center of this proud republic, an organization known as the United Mine Workers of America was swearing defiance to the flag of our country and painting the hillsides of that State with blood.

Its demands, seven in number, had all been granted, save one. The increased wage, the short day, the biweekly pay, their own weighmaster, these were all conceded, but there was one demand that was not conceded by the owners. It was the same demand refused in the Michigan copper strike—"the unionizing of the mines."

To this demand the owners said. "No! Sixty per cent. of our employees are non-union men. They have been faithful and loyal, and we do not propose to turn them into the mountains without a sufficient reason." And from that hour the mining war was on in Colorado.

These facts are today undisputed. They have been found and reported by commissions, officers and juries. It was the refusal of this unholy demand that has cost the lives of 300 men, women and children. The United Mine Workers demand unconditional surrender by the owners upon this proposition, or an arbitration of the question.

The word "arbitration" falls upon our ears with charm and music; but there are some questions of honor that nations do not arbitrate. There are relationships too sacred for arbitration. The marauder has no right to enter my home, to demand that I divorce my wife and turn my children into the streets; and if I refuse, demand that I submit the matter to arbitration.

Union labor has full right to seek recognition and to strike if it be denied, but it has no right to enforce that request by violence, boycott, nor to ask mandatory arbitration of that question.

The great copper strike in Michigan has ended as it should end, in a victory for order and the freedom of labor.

Gov. Ferris, with a clear vision of duty, without favor or prejudice, with the entire militia of Michigan at his side, commanded order, and peace reigned supreme. No threat or appeal could move him from his course, and tonight as an unadulterated Republican, I am proud of Michigan's Democratic Governor, for the heroism displayed in that trying hour.

JUDICIAL CONTEMPT.

A few weeks ago I sat in the Federal Court of Detroit and heard the testimony of witnesses concerning an assault by strikers upon some Pere Marquette workmen at Grand Rapids. The assault was at night when the workmen were on the way to their boarding-house. The witness defending them was the man in charge of the strike. He had been imported from Detroit for the purpose.

He justified the assault, on the ground that these free workmen were scabs, that they had no business upon the public streets of Grand Rapids, because they were an irritation to the strikers; that their places for eating and sleeping should be in the box cars down in the yards.

The man before the court, was given but ten days in jail. But it will be an incident I shall long remember. In passing sentence, Judge Tuttle, with flashing eyes, turned from the man before him, and pointing his finger at the leader, who had been testifying, but had himself escaped arrest, said: "Sir, I am sorry you are not included in this contempt proceeding. I have never before heard more brazen testimony in a court of justice. It has been defiant of law, order and decency. These men whom you have been advising, have become victims of circumstance. It it you whom I would be glad to sentence, if it were within my power." And that strike ended in Michigan then and there.

No, it is not the rank and file of union men who are violators of law; it is the cowardly leader, who always remains under cover. I am told that out at the stock yards, they have trained, educated steers. When the green cattle are unloaded, one of these steers is turned in with them, and he leads them on down through the alleys to the slaughter pen, while he returns for a fresh load. I need not make the application.

GRAFTING UNION AGENTS.

The Revelations in Chicago Might Be Comparatively Duplicated Elsewhere by Investigation.

[The Square Deal:] The rank and file of the labor unions must be somewhat amazed at the revelations of graft by their business agents in Chicago, and if they are wise they will demand a complete investigation to the end that the purification of their unions be accomplished. The uncovering of all sorts of evils has been quite prevalent in this country. Railroad graft and graft in our private business has been so exploited and uncovered that it is not now so popular and a few of the grafters have been relegated to life behind the bars and the same kind of treatment of union grafters when convicted will be a good thing for all concerned.

It has been charged many times and also proven in many cases that unscrupulous business agents of labor unions have used their positions as a private business enterprise. They not only have sold out their constituents but they have prevented them from having proper employment because of calling strikes which were entirely useless.

Nearly every large city where labor unions are strong is subject to graft conditions by walking delegates and business agents which the business men know and wink at. It is a case of working along the line of least resistance and the business men are to a large extent as much to blame for that condition as the grafting agents of the unions, because they submit, and many times they are the first offenders in attempting to bribe business agents so that they may have an advantage over their competitors. Honesty, is not a one-sided thing and if we are to have honesty in business, not only the business man but those whom he does business with must have a common integrity which will play the game in a square way. The trouble is with labor unions as it is with all other things. We create a splendid plan for co-operative betterment of the membership and then let the system run itself or else be run by men who make it a private graft. Members of labor unions and citizens generally must learn to know that eternal vigilance is the price we must pay to have business run honestly and no man should be permitted to be tempted by placing such power in his hands that he may use a good system for his own private ends. It will not do for labor unions to denounce capital in the Chicago case. It is only a repetition of what has occurred in many of the large cities. It is time for the unions to act and purify themselves, and it is time for good business men to stand for honesty and for themselves and all others who do business with them. It is useless to say that it is not your business because it is, and the neglect of your business always brings evil conditions.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

Belonging to a union cost the coal miners of this country during the past ten years $180,378,112 for wages lost while they were out on strikes, ordered by their unions. From this standpoint, one of actual fact, is labor union membership a paying proposition? In the same way, West Virginia coal miners lost $5,114,574 in the years 1910 and 1911; also, Illinois, in ten years, lost over $45,000,000. Yet the non-union miners of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, get much higher wages than do the highly-unionized miners of Illinois, or an average of $2100 a year against $556 a year. To repeat, does labor union membership pay?

Forced Out by War.

Between 10,000 and 12,000 employees of leather and calfskin plants at Salem, Mass., are out of work; as supplies of raw material have been cut off by the European war. Doubtless many American factories will similarly suffer.

Labor Famine Feared.

Heads of great industries in Eastern Pennsylvania fear a labor famine as a result of the present European crisis. Large numbers of Austrians and Hungarians are applying to their consul in Philadelphia for transportation back to their native country, while at South Bethlehem, officials of the big steel and coke plants received passports for 2000 men.

The Austrian Deputy Consul at Wilkesbarre, Pa., estimates that in his district of twelve counties, there are 80,000 to 100,000, of whom more than 30,000 will return to fight for their country. Coal operators are apprehensive, saying that such an exodus would mean a serious shortage in the working forces of the mines.

Newest Demands of English Labor.

Having gained their point, that the state should provide children of poor parents with one meal a day at the schools, a section of the labor party of Great Britain is now pressing for three meals, beds and other comforts for the pupils in the poorer districts.

The government is asked to embody in the promised educational bill such proposals as these: Specialists in physical culture to be appointed for every elementary school; waste land to be used by local authorities for erecting movable buildings wherein the children can be educated and given sleeping accommodations when necessary; bathing and washing facilities to be provided in schools, parks and public playgrounds; three meals a day to be supplied to scholars from public feeding centers.

Wages and Living in Malaga, Spain.

Minimum and maximum wages in Malaga, Spain, are:

Trade—	Cents per day.
Mining	54 to 72
Metallurgy	72 to $1.08
Other industrial	45 to 63
Blacksmiths	54 to 72
Masons	54 to 67
Carpenters	50 to 72
Stonecutters	50 to 63
Painters	54 to 72
Shoemakers	54 to 72
Field laborers	36 to 45
Tailors	72 to 90
Dressmakers, women	36 to 45

In the various trades children's wages range from 5 to 18 cents a day. The laboring classes buy only the cheapest kinds of food, clothing and household furnishings, and as to wages, are but little better off than they were ten years ago. Cost of living is high. Here are some of the prices:

	Per pound, cents.
Common brown wheat bread	4
Meats, ordinary cuts	12@22
Salt codfish	12
Sardines	20
Fresh fish	8
Rice	5
Potatoes	2
Peas	5
Sugar	9
Coffee	40
Charcoal	2
Common wine, per quart	5
Kerosene, per quart	16
Milk, per quart	4
Gas, per 1000 cubic feet	$1.58
One-candle-power electric, per month	.96
Yearly rent, laborer's house	$13.50
Yearly rent, house for middle classes	$75.00

Daily wages, as above, won't go far on these prices.

Pancho Unabashed.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] Pancho Villa, with hands red with blood and with two living "married" wives and unrecorded loves-on-the-side, has declared himself "head of the Mexican Church." And he does not bring up even the tail end of a religious procession.

THE PARASITE AGITATOR

Is Curse of Labor Conditions Because He Feels Compelled to Bring About Some Kind of Strife.

[Pacific Coast Mechanic:] Complete harmony between associates is the prime requisite for success and results.

The employer and the employee are the two partners in any given business or industry. Their interests are absolutely bound together. That which promotes the condition of one equally promotes the condition of the other.

Improvement and increase in the business guarantee steady employment to the employee and enlarge his opportunities for advancement. Improved conditions for the employee assure greater efficiency on the part of the employee and result in direct benefits to the employer.

The wise employer gets into close contact with his men and women, studies their needs and creates a binding link of confidence and mutuality.

The equally wise employee considers himself vitally interested in the success of the firm he is working for, pays greater attention to good service and less to the time clock, and strives to strengthen the bond between himself and his employer.

The curse of the whole situation is the parasite agitator who neither works nor offers work to another. He groups a number of workingmen into a "union" on false promises. With the failure to "deliver" he is compelled to bring about some condition of strife which will allow him to appear on the scene as the champion and protector of the men, and will prove to his men the necessity of further retaining his services. The point of interest is that he is not a protector in a defensive position, but that he falsely creates the trouble which will later demand his agency.

The preponderating majority of American workingmen and working women are substantial and sensible men and women. When labor presents its case directly instead of through unscrupulous agents it will find that the employing interests are friendly to it and more than willing to meet it fairly and to deal with it justly.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF UNIONISTS

Was the Cause for an Uncalled-for Demonstration Among the Harvest Workers in Oklahoma.

[E. W. Howe's Monthly, Atchison, Kan.:] Possibly you noted a recent incident in Oklahoma. Before the wheat harvest began thousands of idle men flocked to that State and collected in the towns. A week before harvesting actually began there was a strike of harvest hands in one town, and marching, and violence, and speech-making. The farmers who had wheat not yet ready to cut were denounced as plutocrats, oppressors of the poor, etc., although a large majority of them lived on farms heavily mortgaged and had not raised a decent crop in two or three years.

The strikers marched through the town carrying banners lettered to this effect:

"Four dollars a day, and eight hours."

Who does not know that this absurd spectacle was due to the encouragement everywhere given strikes?

A $3,000,000 union station is being built in Kansas City and the builders have about concluded that it will be necessary to take the work out of the hands of the unions to insure its completion. That's the reason the Michigan copper miners and the Colorado coal miners fought so bitterly against the union: experience has taught them that, with walking delegates in control, the operation of the mines on any basis would be almost impossible. Employers do not object to the real principles of the union; they object to the politicians of organized labor, who prosper only when there is trouble.

RENOVATION AT "THE PALMS."

New Street Work and Public Utilities Being Installed—Ocean Park Heights Mecca of Beautiful Homes. Property Values are Enhancing.

SYNOPSIS OF ARTICLE.

Afloat in the stream of metropolitan prosperity.

Why land values increase in this district.

Location, railroad facilities, good roads and streets.

"A climate that can't be beat."

Scenic beauty of the district with pretty homes buried in flower gardens and parks.

Schooling facilities, new buildings under construction costing in all, $285,000.

Society of the district, churches, civic clubs and fraternal orders.

Realty values, giving prices of various classes of properties for sale in the district.

Needs of the communities and opportunities for outside investors.

Names of property owners who will give further information on the district.

Caught in that tide of prosperity and development which is rapidly sweeping westward from Los Angeles and is to leave in its wake a city extending from "the mountains to the sea," the attractive suburban district long known as the Palms is now undergoing a happy mutation. Two miles west of the Palms, and located upon a series of gently rolling hills, giving a distant view of the Pacific, is the Ocean Park Heights section, with a group of beautiful suburban homes.

These localities present, at this particular time, about the same opportunities to suburban homeseekers and realty subdivision men as did Hollywood, Alhambra and Glendale some six or eight years ago. The improvement of this property is as inevitable as the development of the city of Los Angeles itself. The success of these communities is amalgamated with the success of Los Angeles. Virtually the territory is already a part of the metropolis. Geographically, it is the most natural spillway for the surplus population of the city, and politically, it is only a question of months before the entire district is legally annexed to Los Angeles.

Already the residents of the Palms have voted to annex to the city of Los Angeles, and the annexation movement will most probably be consummated in a year or so by the people of Los Angeles formally voting to accept the Palms.

LAND VALUES INCREASE.

In the meantime property values will continue to increase. And just as the residence property of Glendale and Hollywood increased two or three times in the course of as many years so must parallel conditions be realized here.

The basis of this prediction is in the fact that land values in the Palms and Ocean Park Heights districts are very moderate and uninflated. In some respects the prices of many of the best unsold residence lots might even be considered low when cognizance is taken of the many public improvements which the communities already possess. The addition of other public conveniences is just about to be made, which will further increase the property worth, and as a measure to almost guarantee the enhancement of land values comes annexation to Los Angeles.

As an ideal suburban residence section the assets of this district are numerous. The general environment here is equal to the best found anywhere in Southern California. The locality further possesses the distinction of having more attractive conditions and inducements for the suburbanite than are usually found in any one place.

LOCATION.

The first and perhaps the most important asset is its proximity to Los Angeles.

The Palms is located about four miles west of the present city limits of Los Angeles on the Venice Short Line of the Pacific Electric Railroad. The same line passes through the heart of the Ocean Park Heights section. This electric car service affords a rapid and frequent means of transportation to both Los Angeles and the beach. Through the largest part of the day the Short Line maintains a twenty-minute service in either direction.

Along the northern edge of the territory is the Santa Monica Air Line of the Pacific Electric, while the Playa del Rey electric line skirts the extreme southern portion.

Here are three of the best maintained and best-operated lines of the Pacific Electric system, connecting the district here described, directly with three of the most popular beach resorts in the West—Venice, Santa Monica and Playa del Rey. Either of these resorts is within from fifteen to twenty minutes' riding distance from any point in either the Palms or Ocean Park Heights, while from any point on the Short Line Venice is but a ten-minute riding distance. It takes about the same time to go to Los Angeles.

GOOD ROADS.

Besides these exceptionally fine railroad connections, this district has a most pronounced advantage over many surburban communities in having an intricate network of some of the best roads and automobile boulevards in the south.

Extending from the west end of Washington street in Los Angeles to the city of Venice, is one of the county good roads. This is of macadam construction and one of the best traveled roads of the county. It is practically a level road all the way and parallels the Venice Short Line tract, one-half a mile to the south, entirely through this district. Several hundred thousand motorists pass over this Washington boulevard, annually, and these travelers are a great advertising medium for the territory. It is via this road that the recently installed auto-bus service between Los Angeles and Venice, travels.

Skirting the tracks of the Short Line is the lately completed Pico-to-the-Sea boulevard. This is also a well-built county road of the same type of construction as the Washington boulevard. It extends east and west entirely through the district connecting Los Angeles and Venice.

Along the northern edge of the territory is a third macadamized roadway extending east and west and connecting Los Angeles and Santa Monica. This is known as the National Highway. It traverses a rolling section of beautiful landscape and has only just been completed.

In addition to these main passages for traffic must be mentioned the well-paved streets of each of the districts here described. Throughout the Ocean Parks Heights there are several miles of excellently paved streets while the people of The Palms are now about to expend the sum of $125,000 upon improving their thoroughfares. When this work is completed the automobilist will practically have a continuous driveway of city streets from Los Angeles to Venice and Santa Monica in addition to the splendid boulevards already mentioned.

In consideration of the numerous good roads, The Palms and Ocean Park Heights districts might aptly be termed the autoist's paradise.

CLIMATE.

What every resident of this section boasts about, is the climate. So pronounced and emphatic are the local people on this point that the stranger is convinced that the climate here is more than good.

In regard to temperature it is stated that the district is somewhat more equable than Los Angeles due to its being closer the ocean. It is affirmed that on the hottest days there is a difference of several degrees in favor of this district over Los Angeles. Due to the peculiar formation of the hills this vicinity experiences a considerable freedom from fogs as compared to the city. Always, winter and summer, spring and fall a soft and balmy zephyr steals across this country direct from the Pacific with all its fresh-made virtues, uncontaminated. There are no severe winds at any time.

LANDSCAPE.

This district lies on a flat plain encroaching on hill slopes on both its northern and southern sides. The soil is for the most part a rich, deep black loam, which is also accompanied, in places, by a lighter sandy loam or on the hill slopes by a heavier clay loam. All of it is ideal soil for the making of the suburban flower garden.

Every residence has its setting of ornamental trees, shrubs and flowers. Most of the homes have spacious lawns hedged with long rows of stunning red geraniums and bordered with fan palms or pepper trees. The date palm is also much in evidence and is usually set in the middle of a verdant carpeting of white clover or blue grass. A hundred varieties of roses scent the air throughout every month of the year. Few places are without an orange or lemon tree to beautify the back yard as well as to furnish the family with lucious fruit. Not infrequently, in traveling through the district one suddenly drops upon a galaxy of floral loveliness surrounding an artistic home. White snowballs, hydrangeas, chrysanthemums and Shasta daisies contrast their light colors against brilliant red and yellow roses, pink carnations, gorgeous hollyhocks and delicate lilacs. Pergolas and tressles along the side of the houses support dense masses of climbing vines. Lantania, morning-glory, honeysuckle, moon vine and bougainvillea mingle their foliage in weighty profusion. Shaded retreats and nooks harbor varieties of ferns, pansies, violets and if, in the kingdom of flora beauty there are any plants which will not grow in this locality they will never be missed among the luxurious abundance of pretty flowers that will grow here.

In both Ocean Park Heights and The Palms there are a number of subdivisions where residence lots may be purchased in a delightful environment just awaiting the erection of a house to make the suburbanite a lovely home. Sidewalks, curbing, street work, are complete in these tracts and shade trees are planted along the streets. In several tracts special areas are set apart and tastily parked with lawns and trees to lend an additional touch of beauty and refinement. Throughout some of the tracts ornamental electroliers have been erected to illuminate the streets at night. These attractions, plus the convenience of public utilities such as gas, electricity, domestic water and telephone service create an environment of all the suburban home luxuries which could be desired. All lots in these subdivided tracts are sold under specific building restrictions and a purchaser is assured for all time that there will be no decline from the first-class standard.

A feature of interest to the suburban housewife in this district is that all the leading retail stores of Los Angeles make deliveries by wagon or auto truck several times a week. Besides this service The Palms has its own retail stores where general commodities in the line of groceries, hardware, drugs, confections, auto supplies and allied things may be purchased.

SCHOOLING FACILITIES.

One of the chief advantages for families living in this district is its fine schools. With the exception of one grade school at The Palms the other schools are entirely new and in process of construction. They will thus provide everything new, modern and clean for the pupils, which is somewhat of a contrast to the twenty and thirty-year-old school buildings, not as elaborately equipped, which children have to attend in many of the longer-established communities.

At The Palms there is a $35,000 frame building which has housed the pupils of the elementary grades for a number of years, but the rapid increase of population has demanded larger and better quarters. The old frame structure is now to be used merely as an auxiliary building to a new $60,000 brick school which is in course of construction and which will probably be completed in time for the opening of the fall term of this year.

There are 160 pupils attending The Palms school and competent teachers are provided.

The High School students of both The Palms and Ocean Park Heights attend high school in Venice. The new Venice Union High School, built by the combined efforts of all communities is now being erected at a point on the Venice Short Line quite close to Ocean Park Heights. This is to be one of the most elaborately equipped polytechnic schools in the county and is costing in the neighborhood of $225,000. It will be opened some time within the next six months. This institution will furnish complete instruction in the various branches of technical and academic education as taught in the Los Angeles high schools. There is a large area of ground surrounding the plant, where extensive experiments will be carried out in the studies of botany and agriculture. Manual training, domestic science, physics, chemistry, art, leather and brass work will be taught.

SOCIAL.

A word relative to the class of people residing in this district will be pertinent under this heading.

For the most part, the homes in this locality are owned by well-to-do business men who have selected this community as a retreat from the commercial atmosphere of the city. Several are retired from active business life and have erected palatial residences environed with sumptuous luxuries.

But this is not a district of exclusively rich people. Between the concrete mansion with its red tiled roof and beautiful grounds and large three-story frame residence with its impressive gables and cornices, stand the artistic white-roofed bungalows and cottages of the less wealthy. And these charming little homes have a neatness of design which allow them to fit in anywhere between larger places and be ornamental.

The owners of these classes of homes are lovers of the refined and admirers of the beautiful, and such people usually make congenial neighbors.

There are several church buildings in the district, all of which have well-attended services each Sunday. Many of the people ride into Los Angeles to attend church.

The Ocean Park Heights Club is a sort of improvement association having fifty members who are residents of the community. These people discuss matters pertaining to the civic welfare of the district and have been instrumental in establishing street improvements and lighting districts.

The Palms Chamber of Commerce is a civic improvement body consisting of about fifty members. This organization conceived the issue of annexation to Los Angeles and engineered it to a victorious finish. The chamber is also taking the initiative in floating $125,000 bonds for street paving work.

The Palms postoffice supervises rural routes extending through the entire territory and mail is delivered daily to all the residents. The Los Angeles daily papers are also delivered by these means and arrive at the homes every morning.

At The Palms is located a branch of the Citizens' State Bank of Sawtelle. This bank has deposits over $315,784 and resources which will aggregate close to $400,000. The Palms branch of this bank affords convenient facilities to the local people and is doing a large business.

Domestic water is supplied by a private company at The Palms. The concern has a well located on the top of a hill in the northern part of the district, which is 300 feet in depth. A large volume of fine pure water is pumped daily and is stored in two large reservoirs, one containing 275,000 gallons, and the other 120,000 gallons. From these storage tanks the water is gravitated under a forty-pound pressure to the houses in a district covering two and a half square miles. A flat rate of $1.50 per 1200 cubic feet is charged the consumers monthly.

The Southern California Edison Company furnishes the gas and electric current consumed in the district.

REALTY VALUES.

Residence lots in this district can be purchased at the present time at from $500 to $800 each. These are of standard size, 50x150 feet and accessible to all the public utilities. Acre lots in subdivided tracts range in price from $2300 to $3000, which include all street work and public conveniences. Tracts of from ten to twenty acres in size may be purchased from $1800 to $2500 per acre. Some of these properties are ripe for subdivision at the present moment.

In the buying of property, here, it is customary for the purchaser to pay from one-fourth to one-third down and the balance to run two years, or so, at 7 per cent. interest.

NEEDS.

The Palms needs a small, but first-class hotel, which will cater to commercial men and transient visitors. In connection with this should be operated a dining-room, as there is no place, but private residences, where people may dine at the present time. There is no hotel or lodging-house in the district.

Several of the business men have suggested that a motion-picture theater, operated two or three times a week, would do a good business. All facilities such as electricity, a hall and the general conveniences used for such an amusement attraction could be readily had in The Palms.

A small general merchandise store, carrying a line of groceries and confections, might find a good location in Ocean Park Heights.

Put it where the fun is. Put it on the shores of the Pacific with nothing between you and China but blue water and salt breezes. POLITICAL TIPS.

A significant indication of the collapse of the Progressive party was a recent meeting in Indianapolis of 100 men who voted the Progressive ticket in 1912, but who all announced their return to the Republican party. Some of them had been leaders in the Armageddon movement, but can now see no reason for continuing in opposition to the Republican party. The Democratic free-trade tariff is proving a great aid in bringing the Progressives back to the Republican party.

Senator Joseph L. Bristow of Kansas, formerly a good Republican and a valuable aid in the Postal Department of the McKinley administration, but who flirted with the Progressives of Kansas in the campaign of two years ago, has found himself defeated for renomination, although he claimed to have returned to the Republican party with the same fealty as of old. He has, however, proved a strong man in the Senate and his presence will be missed. Bristow has been naturally an independent, and when in the Postoffice Department he uncovered some scandals that were not congenial to President Roosevelt. His first attempt to enter the Senate was as an independent candidate against Senator Long, a favorite of President Roosevelt. He was defeated, but was later elected as a Republican.

Seven former Republican Representatives to Congress from Illinois, who were defeated in 1912, are seeking this year to regain their seats, the best known among them being ex-Speaker Cannon and W. B. McKinley. Each of the seven has opposition in the Republican ranks and will have to contest the nomination in the primaries. Because of their prominence the greatest interest will center on Cannon and McKinley's campaigns, both in the primaries and in the subsequent election, if they be nominated.

Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi showed his hot southern blood in the Senate the other day when he felt he had been rebuffed by the Foreign Affairs Committee. He wanted immediate consideration of a bill authorizing the purchase by the government of freight vessels owned by private citizens of any country to be used for the export of the crops of the United States. The committee opposed haste, and leaving the committee-room he immediately wrote out his resignation, and caused a sensational scene in the Senate by the statement: "I cannot further afford to serve on the Foreign Relations Committee, it holding its views and I holding mine. It would be a stultification of myself." He was then sat upon by the Senate refusing to accept the resignation, it being declared out of order and reflecting on members of the body. He then left the Senate chamber to cool off all by himself.

The members of Congress who stick close to business are getting tired, and notice has been given to those members who regularly attend the baseball game, and others who have gone home, that whenever a "no-quorum" develops the sergeant-at-arms will go out into the streets and to the baseball park and golf courses, and even to homes of the members, and arrest the Congressmen and bring them back to the Capitol. There are approximately 200 members of the House away from their duties at this time. It takes 218 to make a quorum, and those who have remained on duty feel that if the others would return they might have a chance to take a day off, or if not, the others should come and attend to business as long as they are paid for it.

The victory of James E. Ferguson for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Texas was a defeat for President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, both of whom had written letters strongly urging the nomination of Ball. Ferguson's plurality was about 40,000, a good substantial victory.

Peter Lyon of Knouts, Ind., who has been a long-time worker for the Democratic party in his section of the State, now says that he shall give his unqualified support to the Republican State ticket. His reason is, that the Democratic party went before the people of the State two years ago on a platform of retrenchment and economy, but instead the Legislature devoted its time to increasing the salaries of public officers and creating expensive commissions. Mr. Lyon evidently believes that consistency is sometimes a virtue even with the Democratic party.

Massachusetts Democrats are evidently favorites with President Wilson. Charles S. Hamlin having been promoted from Third Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Congressman Peters of the Eleventh Massachusetts District is nominated for Hamlin's place. Mr. Peters, however, will only get $5000 a year in his new position, as against $7500 as a member of Congress. Some people might not like to have friends ask them to drop $2500 a year just for a little additional honor.

Charles Shurtz Vrooman, who started out to be a Senator from Illinois, and could hardly say enough against Secretary Bryan for indorsing Lawrence Stringer, has had his mouth closed by being made Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. He must now whoop it up for Stringer.

In the recent Kansas primaries the Democratic vote was far short of what was expected and the Republican vote was twice as large. The Progressive vote was so small that it might be counted as scattering, and it promises to be so insignificant at the November election that it will be of little help to the Democrats. Kansas is evidently Republican again.

The Progressive party in Ohio, the same as in California, has handpicked its candidates, they being picked out, and considering themselves nominated, in advance of the primaries. The same has been true in Kansas and Indiana, and it is evidently a Progressive method.

The practical suspension of imports from Europe because of the war has made the Democratic tariff a matter of little or no importance from the protective point of view. Money to pay for the extravagances of the Wilson administration will now be raised by internal taxation of some kind.

There seems no hope that the Democrats will be able to adjourn their Congress. Senator Kern, the Democratic leader, has ceased making predictions regarding adjournment.

"I had hoped that Congress could adjourn by September 1," said Senator Kern, "but I have no such hope any longer."

RE-DISCOUNTING ACT IS DELAYED.

Bill to Aid Crop Financing to Be Passed Quickly.

Plan to Obviate Disturbance Caused by the War.

Reserve System to Be Ready Within Ninety Days.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—An effort to remove limitations imposed by the Federal reserve act on re-discounting by banks of acceptances based on import and export business was delayed in the House today by Representative Wingo of Arkansas. Chairman Glass of the House Banking and Currency Committee said the bill was necessary to facilitate the financing of the export crop of cotton and grain. It is probable it will be put through early next week.

Representative Wingo objected to the consideration of the measure, declaring it should be considered by the Banking and Currency Committee.

Under the Federal reserve act, member banks may re-discount with the Federal reserve banks acceptances based on the exportation and importation of goods, having less than three months to run, provided that the amount of such re-discounts shall at no time exceed one-half of the capital and surplus of the re-discounting banks. Member banks may discount for their customers similar acceptances running up to six months sight, to the amount of one-half of their capital and surplus.

The Glass bill authorizes the Federal reserve board in its discretion to remove limitations as to the amount of acceptances to be rediscounted and would allow reserve banks to re-discount six months' acceptances.

GLASS'S VIEW.

"With the disturbance caused by the European war," said Mr. Glass, "it is desired by the Federal reserve board to facilitate in every possible way the exportation of cotton and grain. The Organization Committee of the new reserve system discovered that there have grown up a number of banks who make a specialty of financing the export trade which find it necessary to handle acceptances beyond the limitations of the reserve act as passed."

Chairman Glass said he understood the new Federal reserve system would be in operation in about ninety days, although reserve banks in New York, Chicago and St. Louis would probably be organized immediately.

An effort probably will be made to secure a meeting of the Banking and Currency Committee for the consideration of the bill, although the chairman has been unable to obtain the attendance of enough members to do business for some weeks. If this fails the bill may be passed under suspension of the rules.

GERMANY'S INDUSTRIES.

The Protective Policy Has Enabled the Manufacturers to Greatly Outgrow Those of Great Britain.

[New York Commercial:] In the current number of the British Review an article appears which has aroused much interest in Great Britain, and has already become the subject of a heated controversy between the Fair Traders and the Free Traders in the manufacturing centers of the north of England. It presents the case in a clear way, which is hard to controvert, and the author of it, Thomas Good, substantiates his argument with documentary proofs that cannot be doubted. At the end of the Franco-Prussian War Germany was far behind England in foreign commerce and domestic industries, whereas today she is England's greatest rival in that respect. Germany has been handicapped by inferiority of soil and of coal and mineral supplies, and has been compelled to import a very large part of the raw materials used in manufacturing. In the iron and steel trades Germany's progress has been most notable, because Great Britain had such a long start in the race. Mr. Good says Germany is now making 19,000,000 tons of iron a year against Great Britain's 10,000,000, and 16,000,000 tons of steel against Great Britain's 8,000,000 tons, and now employs 2,500,000 workmen in the iron and steel trades against Great Britain's 1,500,000. In exports Germany last year led Great Britain by more than 1,000,000 tons of products of iron and steel.

Sheffield, Birmingham and other centers of the tool and cutlery trade enjoyed a practical monopoly of the trade of the world a half century ago as far as fine goods were concerned. In the manufacture of most classes of cutlery Germany now surpasses England though the Germans have to import all the steel used in making such goods. In the finest class of cutlery, including razor blades, Germany imports drop-forged blanks from England and grinds and finishes them. England's loss of this particular branch of the cutlery trade is due to some extent to the more stringent factory acts in force in that country, which, in guarding workmen from injury and protecting them from the dust of the grinding machines, lower their output, at least that is the explanation which some British Free Traders offer for the remarkable decrease in the output of what was once the most famous product of English steel factories.

It is what Mr. Good says about the much-disputed question of wages and cost of living that has created the greatest surprise in the minds of readers of the British Review. It may be said in passing that Mr. Good expresses the greatest admiration for the work done by the Washington Labor Bureau in compiling statistics on this subject, and he cites the little-read reports compiled by the commission appointed by former President Taft to prove his case. Quoting chiefly from these American statistics, Mr. Good comes to the conclusion that Germany is providing for more employment than is Great Britain; that she is paying wages at least a little higher, and that the rise in wages is making more rapid progress than in Great Britain.

He also maintains that food is not dearer under protection than under free trade, and that in Germany the necessaries of life are as cheap as in Great Britain, and the luxuries such as a prosperous working man likes to enjoy from time to time are actually cheaper because they are less heavily taxed. This brings out the fact that, while the United Kingdom is a free trade country as far as ordinary manufactures, raw material and articles of food are concerned, everything that can possibly be classed as a luxury, including tea and tobacco, is very heavily taxed.

His conclusion is that wages keep going up in Germany faster than the cost of living, whereas the contrary is the case in Great Britain. Mr. Good says that Great Britain, at a high taxation cost, provides free trade for foreigners, while Germany protects her own people, and British capital and workmen go abroad while the British markets are deluged with foreign goods. This is not new in a general sense, but the argument has perhaps never before been put so strongly and clearly before the people of the United Kingdom.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

Pink beans were not the only variety which advanced yesterday morning. With the announcement that the Lima Bean Growers' Association of Oxnard had advanced quotations to $5.50 in place of $5.15, at which price some of the early contracts were made, the dealers here put the price up correspondingly. Pink beans advanced only 25 cents. Other varieties were very firm and some further advances on the already high market may result.

Sugar jumped another 50 cents, putting the market to $8.05 on standard cane and $7.55 on beet sugar produced right at home. All of the other grades and varieties were similarly advanced. Salt remains unchanged and there was no striking change in flour or meat for the day. Dried fruits are declining while other products go up, this due to the fact that much of the fruit intended for export cannot get out of the country.

There was no change in the egg market. Prices are firm with very light arrivals. These have dropped to an average of less than 200 cases a day during the past week. Yesterday only 185 cases were reported in. Butter stuck at 25 cents, with no trading at all. Receipts were 41,050 pounds. Cheese arrivals were 9610 pounds. The advances in foreign varieties and the increased call for American produced cheese is expected to create a higher market soon.

Potatoes are a little more firm than they have been because the northern dealers and growers are holding back on their shipments here. Receipts were 4122 sacks yesterday. Sweets are weak and onions are steady. Of the former 122 sacks and the latter 202 sacks were reported in.

Apple arrivals were 2507 boxes; peaches 4457 boxes; pears, 2681 boxes. Cantaloupes are cheaper and watermelons are selling as low as ¾ cent a pound up to 1 1-4.

A. L. Dennis being duly sworn, declares that he is and has been for twelve years Superintendent of Circulation of the Los Angeles Times; that the above detailed statement of circulation for the month of July, 1914, is correct, and shows the circulation of The Times for each day of the month named.

A. L. DENNIS,
Superintendent of Circulation, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of August, 1914.

[Seal]
T. L. CHAPIN,
Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other local newspaper.

RATE ATTACK VEILS ISSUE.

Lumber Men Seek Action by New Methods.

Arizona Commission Plans Chinese Wall.

At Least Railroad Men Are So Convinced.

Things are not what they seem in a complaint which was filed last week with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Charles R. McCormick & Co. and other Pacific Coast lumber interests against the Santa Fe and other railroads. It is not the railroads that are attacked, but the Arizona Railroad Commission, and the real question at issue is not the ostensible one of rates, but of State rights.

In important particulars, the complaint has points of resemblance to that which precipitated the now famous Shreveport case. But the stake is larger, being nothing less than the continued movement through this port to Arizona yearly of more than 100,000,000 feet of lumber, principally mine timber.

Some weeks ago the Arizona Railroad Commission lowered the rates on lumber from Flagstaff, Williams and Cliff to other Arizona points. As a result the unusual spectacle is produced of a commodity moving within a State at a lower rate than it moves into the State. In other words, a ton of lumber originating within Arizona can be hauled a mile more cheaply than the same quantity of lumber can be hauled over the boundary line from California—half a mile in California and half a mile in Arizona, for instance.

CHINESE WALL.

The lumber interests of the Coast, as Manager Olsen of the McCormick company stated yesterday, contend that the Arizona Commission's action constitutes discrimination, a building of a sort of Chinese wall around the State. In other words, there is the seeming propensity to foster home industry at the expense of outside interests; interests which, in this case, are compelled to absorb long-haul charges in order to compete with the Arizona lumbermen.

In filing their complaint the Pacific Coast lumbermen are emphatically not asking the railroads to meet the cut of the Arizona Railroad Commission. They are fighting for a principle, not for pence, and would be satisfied if the Interstate Commerce Commission should compel the Arizona Commission to restore the old schedule of rates.

By and large, it is the Interstate Commission's fight. And some epoch-making fighting it will be, according to traffic men, as Assistant General Freight Agent Reinhardt of the Santa Fe; a fight that will establish precedents.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, during the period that Arizona was a Territory, was the rate-fixing body for that bailiwick. It so happens that the rates which the Arizona Commission has just lowered were made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In other words, the Interstate Commerce Commission will be called on to sit in judgment on rates which it itself fixed.

PRICE-CUTTING.

But the question is, all things considered, of prime importance to the railroads. "It is," as Assistant General Freight Agent Reinhardt of the Santa Fe stated, "the question of how far a State can go in fostering home industry and whether or not they will be permitted to aid a home industry in price-cutting."

Furthermore, the railroads are precluded from cutting their interstate rates to the Arizona Commission's pattern by the following paragraph in the body's order: "In establishing rates on lumber and timber which we deem reasonable as compared with the San Pedro rates, we announced that, if the carriers further disturb this relationship by a reduction in the San Pedro rates, it is to be reasonably expected that this commission will make a similar readjustment of the rates in Northern Arizona."

A Donkey—Boy Diplomat.

[Baltimore American:] Ben Haden dug his big toe into the sand and grinned. A donkey-boy learns many things; in Egypt he is a diplomat. Many strangers had he brought to the Great Tomb and measured his reward by their ardor and enthusiasm. Today he sat in the shade beside his donkeys and pondered.

A young man and a young woman, both tall and good to look upon, he had guided across the desert, and they complained not of the glare or heat, nor gave praise to Allah for the shade of the rock. At the tomb he led them through the long galleries, pointed out everything of interest, and they made no comment. He left them before the gods surrounded by the hieroglyphics of the past, seated at the feet of the Great Rameses gazing mutely, not at the wonders of Egypt, but into each others' souls, wherein that mystery of love as old as the race of man struggled for utterance.

Patiently Ben Haden waited, smiling the while, and reckoned many backsheesh in the silence.

SLAIN BY MISTAKE.

Blackhand Assassins, Following Intended Victim, Are Thought to Have Murdered Wrong Man.

Pueblo assassins are credited with the murder of Phillippo Petrelia, and the attempted slaying of Michel Tofota, young Italians who were attacked Friday night while leaving the residence of Mrs. Anna Celonia, No. 245 South Avenue Eighteen, according to information given the police yesterday.

The tragedy is believed to have been entirely unintentional, and the two men victims of mistaken identity. Mrs. Celonia reported to the police that she believed that her brother, C. Luttoelmonda, was the intended victim. He manages a grocery at North Broadway and Avenue Twenty.

When the brother and sister were in Pueblo, they told the police yesterday, they received numerous blackhand letters. In each instance money was demanded, with the penalty of death threatened if the demands were not met. So vigorously did the parasites attack the grocer and his sister in Colorado, that they fled from there, disposing of their small business and reinvesting their money here.

Several months later, the Pueblo blackmailers caught their trail again and appeared in Los Angeles, introducing themselves with a series of letters demanding money. The brother made arrangements to meet a representative of the gang, explaining that he would come with the money. Instead, he was armed, and when he met the blackmailer, opened fire. The man was later caught in Pueblo, but insufficient evidence was then available to warrant extradition.

Since then the gang has repeated its demands for money, and the police believe that assassins were watching the Celonia home to slay the brother, when the shooting of the two uninterested parties occurred. Michel Tofota is still at the Receiving Hospital, and the surgeons are hopeful of saving his life.

TO BUILD SCHOOL.

The Talmud Torah, a local Jewish organization, has had plans drawn by O. M. Warner of this city for a one-story frame school building to be erected on North Breed street near Brooklyn avenue. The structure will be 40x50 feet in size and is designed in a rustic effect.

FUNERAL OF MINING MAN.

Died from Injury Received in Mexico and Is Borne to the Tomb by His Old Friends.

The funeral of Horace C. Garber was held at Rosedale Cemetery yesterday afternoon, his death having occurred last Sunday, but the remains were held awaiting the arrival of his nephew, J. B. Barney, from Sonora, Mex. The deceased was a native of Tiffin, O., and when a young man he went to Socorro, N. M., and became interested in mining. About twenty years ago he went to Parral, Mex., located the Santa Catrudis mine, which he sold to a syndicate, and later organized the Yaqui Smelting and Refining Company at Sonora, to which he devoted his attention. During May of this year he was injured and suffered from blood poisoning, when he came to this city in the hope of saving his life. After a short service at Bresee Bros.' chapel the body was buried with Masonic rites in Rosedale Cemetery. His only relatives are J. B. Barney,

"MAURY" BEATS WILDING BUT AMERICA LOSES CUP.

Williams Beaten by Brookes in Spite of Great Rally in Third Set — Wilding Beaten by the Superior Play of McLoughlin, Who Shows Wonderful Form—Cup Now Goes to Australasia.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FOREST HILLS (N. Y.) Aug. 15.—After a twelve-months' stay in the United States the Davis cup, the trophy which carries with it the world's team tennis championship, has resumed its international travels.

On the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club here this afternoon the Australasian team, challenger for the trophy, clinched its claim to the silver bowl by winning the third and decisive match of the tournament from the United States team, holder and defender of the much-coveted prize.

BROOKES WINS.

Norman E. Brookes, captain and leader of the Antipodeans, and R. Norris Williams II, America's second ranking player, were the two contestants in the final battle which marked the passing of the cup.

While the greatest gathering of tennis enthusiasts that ever assembled for an international tennis match looked on, Brookes defeated his

HEAVYWEIGHT ROAD RACE ENDS MOTOR TRUCK TOUR.

Even Dozen Perfect Scores, With Burst of Speed at Finish, Feature Great Commercial Car Reliability Contest—Clever Young Driver Loses Victory Considered 'Already Won.

BY AL G. WADDELL.

TWELVE perfect scores were made by trucks entered in the great—motor truck road race which finished yesterday afternoon. The twelve entries which rolled into Riverside with clean slates, Friday night, completed the long run without a single penalty; but one car lost after a glorious victory.

Jack Cort piloted the little Mission truck over the entire course without losing a single point. The car was third to finish yesterday afternoon, covering the entire 203.5-mile course in ten hours, fifteen minutes. The Technical Committee passed the car and when the brake and gear tests were called, the victory went glimmering.

Cort was excited. Attempting to make a quick start, he stripped the studs off the Mission's universal, and was disqualified. Young Cort's driving was one of the features of the hard contest. He is but a youngster and was out on his first competition under the rules of the American Automobile Association.

FIRST TO FINISH.

The first truck to finish was the Kissel-Kar. The White, No. 13, driven by Carl Means, was second. The Mission, White and Kissel came out of the Broadway tunnel together and O. C. Kern was able to crowd the Kissel into first place a few hundred yards from the finish, on North Broadway.

A few minutes behind the little Mission, the Autocar, driven by C. F. Walsh, rolled into fourth, followed by Bert Frost in the Nenominee, No. 21.

Twenty-two out of the twenty-four entries finished with high scores. Eleven trucks now have perfect scores to their credit, according to the observer's reports. The contest board and the Technical Committee will meet Monday and the official road scores, economy figures and mechanical reports are to appear in The Times Tuesday morning.

The run was an unqualified success. In fact, it was the greatest contest of the kind ever staged in this country, in many ways.

SUPREME TEST.

For a test of the efficiency and durability of the motor truck, no better course could have been found, according to officials, drivers and entrants. There never has been such a field of commercial cars started in a raceof this kind and the performances of the different power wagons was a surprise to the truck dealers themselves.

The worst roads in four counties were picked for the runway, and practically every car finished on its own power, hours ahead of schedule time. Deep sandy ruts, rough detours and soft stretches were all covered without the use of gig-boards, shovels or any other means of assistance.

Due credit must be given to Bert Smith, promoter of the contest, for the large entry list and the wonderful success of the run; but there were a number of instances during the tour where mismanagement and scrambled brains brought about wrangles and ball-ups.

POOR SPORT.

As a sporting event the affair was an absolute failure. The trucks were not fast enough to attract as much attention along the route as a cherry in a cocktail.

As an endurance run for trucks, heavy and light, the contest was a sure winner and as a heavyweight road race, it was quite some little event.

As an outing, the prolonged demonstration of loaded trucks was not so worse. There might have been a greater demonstration if Firestone Smith could have recruited his army to war strength.

The first day's run was the most disastrous to the score sheets, although the last leg of the trip, made yesterday, was considered by far the most difficult. Between Etiwanda and Ontario, the road is in wretched condition and many of the entrants who drove over the route in touring cars said that it would not surprise them to see half the trucks stick in the deep sand; but they all got through and ahead of the schedule.

LOST WAY.

The little Homer truck wandered off the course and was disqualified, but the driver rejoined the fleet at Ontario and drove into Los Angeles although officially declared out of the run.

J. P. Barker, designer and builder of the Homer engine, was on the truck and expressed himself as well satisfied with the run although he was Light Class.

OLD LINES ARE NOW DESERTED.

Light Four Model Takes the Mitchell Lead.

Same Care in Building that Made Popularity.

Underslung Appearance Is Great Feature.

That the 1915 automobile season will be a light car year is the belief of P. H. Greer.

"No one will deny that the public is clamoring for a light, practical car," said Mr. Greer. "A light car means advantages in many respects, with the important feature of light expense a potent factor. However, this is no sudden turn of public opinion, but rather a gradual decision after seasons of experience."

The Mitchell-Lewis people having felt the pulse of public opinion, have prepared themselves to meet this rising contingency. It is the policy of the Mitchell people to give the public what it wants.

The light four Mitchell, while a radical departure, still embraces all the dependable features of Mitchell products, and will in no way interfere with the production of the standard Mitchell cars.

The method of substituting inferior materials and cheaper workmanship has no place in the Mitchell plan. Keynotes of Mitchell body design, as illustrated in the new light Four, are clean lines, complete equipment and convenient operation. The running boards are long, wide, and covered with aluminum edges. The drive is left-side, with eighteen-inch steering wheel and corrugated finger grips.

From the tail lamp to the radiator cap this new popular model has been selected and incorporated with the same degree of care and efficiency that has made the Mitchell Six a standard.

All of the bright parts of the car are nickel-plated, while the body finish is dark imperial French blue, which, together with its dignified torpedo streamline appearance, stamps the new car as one of the most handsome of late designs.

The rear axle is of the full floating type, the type that offers the utmost in accessibility and long life. The driving shafts are removable without disturbing the wheels, which revolve on flexible roller bearings, on the outside of the axel proper.

All of the indicating devices and instruments are mounted on the cowl board, back of which, beneath the deep scuttle dash, is the eighteen-gallon fuel tank, partitioned with baffle plates that prevent the splash of fuel—in addition to acting as a reinforcement to the tank.

Both emergency and service brakes work on pressed steel wheel drums, the hand brake is internal and the foot brake external, and both are quickly adjustable without dissembling. The springs are half-elliptic in front and underslung in the rear, so that the side sway of the overhung type is avoided. At the same time the advantages of underslung frame construction are obtained without its disadvantage of low clearance, and these underslung rear springs give low center of gravity, which helps to prevent skidding.

Different Now.

GREAT CHANGE IN AUTO GAME.

SPEEDWAY TRIALS HAVE PART IN DEVELOPMENT.

Years of Experience Built Into New Models and Failures of Past Make Late Cars Success With Low Gasoline Consumption and Trifling Upkeep.

Few persons realized five years ago that in the year 1914 one would be able to step into an automobile, press a button and then start away on a trip of a thousand miles' duration without a single thought of trouble, which used to be part of the daily experience of motorists.

The result of innumerable racing contests on the speedway, road and desert has done much to perfect the modern automobile. The experience of the factory engineers in numerous tests has been built into the 1915 motor car. The trials and tribulations of thousands of automobile owners have all borne fruit and the present-day automobile is the result of years of efforts expended by hundreds of experts in their respective lines.

The 1915 Lozier models, both the four and the six-cylinder, illustrate the advancement made in recent years by the factory engineers and designers. Instead of the heavy-car type, expensive, hard on tires and with records of gasoline consumption, the 1915 Lozier car is light, with a powerful but flexible motor, easy on tires and inexpensive to run.

AUTO LENGTHENS THE MAIL ROUTES.

Rural mail carriers who use automobiles will soon receive $1800 a year. At the present time the standard rural route, twenty-four miles long, calls for a maximum compensation of $1200. A bill reported by the House Postoffice Committee increases this amount by $600 for carriers using motor cars.

Officials believe that a yearly allowance of $1800 will enable carriers to purchase and maintain automobiles of the cheaper type. With the use of the automobile a route can be lengthened, and the Postmaster-General has recommended an increase to fifty miles.

MOTORING HOME.

The motoring party of Salt Lake mining men who arrived in Los Angeles two weeks ago after a fast trip from the Mormon City in Earl Haskett's 1915 Lozier touring car, returned from a four days' visit in San Diego and yesterday departed for San Francisco on the return trip to Salt Lake.

Veteran at Game.

CALIFORNIA MOUNTAIN TOURING REAL SPORT.

CONFIDENCE in one's car is the greatest joy of motoring, according to Dr. Morton L. Gibbons who has just returned from his sixth motor vacation trip of 1500 miles through the California mountain regions. Dr. Gibbons drives a 1914 Cadillac. In his party were four. A complete camping outfit was carried.

The trip took them up the coast well into Northern California and then east to the Nevada line, south to Lake Tahoe and home. The doctor loves the out-of-doors and when he starts on a trip he bids farewell to civilization as evidenced by seven-course dinners, steam heat and enameled bath tubs.

The route followed was by way of the coast road through Marin county and north past Cloverdale, Greenwood, Ft. Bragg, Usal and Kenny to Alton. Alton is twenty-five miles south of Eureka, and here the road turns eastward, leaving the coast and working rapidly inland.

Through Redding, Shasta and McCloud they traveled and then instead of taking the road to Susanville they went directly to Honey Lake, over a trail seldom traveled by motor car. In fact, the doctor said that to the best of his knowledge, the Cadillac was the first car through there this season. This road saves forty miles on the trip to Honey Lake, but it is a peculiarly hard one. In one place it travels through a swamp where it is a case of keep moving or sink.

From Doyle, the road leads over Beckwith Pass to the Sierra Valley and Truckee. The home journey was made by way of Lake Tahoe, Placerville, Sacramento and Stockton.

WINTONS POPULAR.

Andrew Carnegie has purchased a Winton "Six." Alvin Markle, the coal operator of Hazleton, Pa., has also purchased one. He was one of the first buyers of Winton cars, having received the eighth vehicle marketed in the United States by Alexander Winton. This was in 1898. Johnny Ray, the comedian, also is driving a Winton this season. J. A. Flannery of Pittsburgh, W. G. Bierd and many others have purchased 1915 Winton cars.

GRAPHITE HELPS.

In order to keep the tires from sticking to the rims it is necessary to prevent the rusting of the rim and this is most satisfactorily accomplished by the use of flake graphite. The graphite is mixed into a creamy paste by adding a small percentage of gasoline. This is then applied to the rims the same as ordinary paint. The gasoline evaporates and leaves the graphite, which not only prevents rusting to a large extent, but holds the bead of the tire away from the metal of the rim.

SKYLAND HEIGHTS ROAD IS IN SHAPE.

SPLENDID RESORT MAY BE SAFELY REACHED BY AUTOISTS.

The private auto road leading from the Crest road in the San Bernardino mountains to the Skyland Heights resort has been declared safe and in splendid shape by people who have passed over it on camping trips.

The Skyland Heights resort is one of the largest and finest family resorts in the San Bernardino mountains. The grounds are extensive. The view from this resort is one of the finest to be had in the mountains.

Auto parties are accommodated at the inn, and they can secure gasoline for their cars at the Skyland store. Parties intending to stay for several days can rent cabins or tents with complete equipments.

Five trout streams are within easy reach of Skyland, and good auto roads lead to all of these streams. The fishing is excellent. Little Bear Lake is within an hour's drive over a fine road.

MORE ROOM NEEDED.

Larger quarters are needed by the Master carburetor company, and already the service and installation department has been extended from Los Angeles street clear through to Santee street. The business is growing so rapidly that the present equipment is inadequate to meet the needs of the company, and it is expected that further announcement of improvements and additions will be made from time to time.

One of the heavyweights.

The 10,000-pound Saurer truck entered by the Mack Motor Truck Company carried a load of horseshoes and fought for place in the heavy class and the Zobelein trophy.

The Jeffery Quad drives, steers and brakes on all four wheels, built as U. S. army specifications to carry a four-mule load in severest army field work.

The Jeffery Quad drives through shafts to all four wheels. It was designed to meet the demands of the U. S. army for a "power wagon" capable of carrying lbs. with 20% overload capacity, anywhere four mules can go.

And so successful has the Jeffery Quad proven in actual service over all kinds of grades, roads and fields, that it is already replacing the army mule.

The big Jeffery organization has built a wonderful car. Quad parts are interchangeable to a remarkable degree. The four wheels are all alike, so are the two axles, the brakes, the drive shafts, etc.

How powerful the quad is, the illustration shows. It takes its load easily up a 40 per cent. grade, and by reason of its four wheel braking, can stop at the driver's will at any angle.

The quad will carry two tons over plowed fields and literally clamber out of gullies five or six feet deep. More than this, it will pull a five-ton and on good roads trail several up to 15 miles per hour, but you full speed and loaded, within its the new body design attention has been given to in- refinements. An example is the curtains which are fastened from the inside; in fair weather they are stored in a convenient metal box placed directly behind the front seat and the usual tedium of having to disturb the tonneau passengers when curtains are to be used is done away with.

Heretofore it used to be the practice to hold the folded-down top in position with leather straps. The new Overland has a unique clamp, which holds the top so securely as to prevent all rattling. Leather pockets are provided in all doors, which, in addition, have metal beading for protection from the weather.

TIRE FAMINE IS NOW PREDICTED.

NOT ENOUGH RUBBER ON HAND NOW TO SUPPLY TRADE THREE MONTHS.

That the automobile tire trade faces the most serious crisis in its history is the statement of A. W. Savage, president of the Savage Tire Company. No less than a famine in tires will result in the next three months, and the rate raise of a few days ago is but a mild forerunner of what will come in the near future. President Savage states that the tire manufacturers have not enough rubber on hand at present to supply the car builders for three months, not to include the thousands of motorists who are constantly buying new tires.

The cause of the threatened famine is the unsettled shipping conditions, according to Col. Savage, and his statements are not those of a calamity howler. He is a wise business man, and has kept in close touch with the rubber business. He warns all motorists that they should lay in a complete stock of tires for the next six months if they wish to be armed against the raise in price which is sure to come, unless conditions change at once, for the time is not far distant when there will be few tires in the open market.

NEW MODELS DRAW FOR NEW AGENCY.

The new Premier models that are being exhibited by Smith Bros., the new local agents, have met with instant popularity.

The demonstrator has been kept on the jump and two cars were delivered. E. J. Brazier and John C. Woods are now riding in new Premier models.

Two shipments are on the way and will be here next week.

MERIT OF ARTICLE TELLS THE TALE.

Among the many reasons given in the automobile industry for the success of this or that product, it is well to remember that the merit of the article in question is by long odds the most important factor. It is the cars that make good that enjoy a steady sale. It is the automobile accessories that prove their value and live up to the claims that are made for them, that are always recommended by their users to other buyers.

Just how true this is was shown last week in St. Marys, Pa., when W. A. Robbins of the Findeisen & Kropf Manufacturing Company, went there to place a Rayfield carburetor on a Stearns-Knight "six." As a result of the installation of this one carburetor, the Rayfield people have since sold in St. Marys nine carburetors for Stearns-Knight cars.

MOTOR-MAKERS OF DETROIT RATED.

According to information furnished by twenty-five manufacturers of automobiles in Detroit, they have built during the first six months of 1914 a total of 239,902 cars. Of the twenty-five concerns seventeen make pleasure vehicles and some of them also make commercial vehicles; five are exclusive manufacturers of commercial cars, and three make electric vehicles.

A total of 237,794 pleasure cars were made by the seventeen companies. The five commercial vehicle manufacturers built 1258 delivery wagons and trucks. The three electric vehicle manufacturers reported having constructed 850 vehicles.

The Minnesota State automobile directory places the total registration of automobiles in the State at 53,599 cars.

The Big Six—7-Passenger Touring Car, $2550.

The Thos. B. Jeffery Co., is devoting itself to the production of motor cars most modern in their mechanical superiority, unexcelled in quality and quite distinctive in up-to-the-minute style and beauty.

The success of the Jeffery Four, the first high-grade, light-weight, economical car of quality to be sold in America at a moderate price, has enthroned this car as a leader among Fours.

Its distinguished companion, the Chesterfield Six, will through the possession of the same inherent quality, naturally command the same position among Sixes. It would not be possible for the Jeffery Company to maintain this leadership through adherence to the old annual model policy.

It is their policy, instead, to give Jeffery owners the best motor car they can possibly build with complete disregard of all prejudices of engineering design or selling practices.

RACING MAN COMES BACK.

Omar Toft Takes Agency for San Diego Town.

Posed Pilot of Phantom Car in Auto Game.

Price of Small Car Lowered for Season.

Omar Toft who was recently suspended from the American Automobile Association on account of his connection with the non-appearance of the French De Lage racing car in the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races, has contracted for the Car-Nation agency in San Diego. He left yesterday afternoon in one of the new models for the southern city.

Toft has driven in a number of the California speed events and is well known locally. He should do well with the Car-Nation in San Diego.. With the reduction of the price to $560 for the roadster and $575 for the touring car delivered here on the coast with the extra equipment, hundreds of the little cars should be purchased during the coming season in California.

Toft, it is claimed, will make an effort to have the contest board of the A. A.A. reinstate him so that he can re-enter the speed game.

H. L. Allen of Upland has signed up with Brown and Ruggles for the agency in his territory which comprises Upland and Ontario. Together with Toft he piloted one of the Car-Nation touring cars out of the city yesterday afternoon and the two will drive as far as Upland together, after which Toft will drive on down to San Diego by way of the inland route.

Wesley Ruggles who has been back at the Car-Nation factory attending the dealers' convention wired a message to Herbert Brown last Tuesday to the effect that on account of increased factory production the Car-Nation price would henceforth be reduced from $640 for the roadster and $675 for the touring car to $560 and $575, respectively, delivered at Los Angeles.

MYSTERY CAR DESIRED BY ARMY OF DEALERS.

No One Knows What New Machine Will Look Like and None Dare Speculate, but Backing of Great Factory Is Enough to Make Automobile Men All Over the Country Fight for Agencies.

BY AD G. WADDELL.

THE most talked-of automobile ever introduced in America is the machine built by Dodge Bros. of Detroit, which is to make its first appearance about October 1.

All over the country motor-car dealers are fighting for the Dodge agencies. More than 200 applications have been made for the Los Angeles agency alone. Among the local dealers to apply for the agency here are many of the best-known automobile men in Southern California. And that is not all. Easterners also have applied for this territory. A number of New York automobile men have made attempts to secure the local territory and each application has been backed by more than $250,000.

One of the local men who is now putting up a hard fight for the Los Angeles Dodge Bros. agency is Harold L. Arnold, the Hudson distributor. Arnold admits that he has applied for the agency along with the other 200 or more dealers; but beyond that he claims to know nothing regarding the new car or his own prospects for securing the local agency.

Arnold heard of the car to be put out by Dodge Bros. He went East to visit the factory. While there he did not see a single car, a set of specifications nor a drawing. He was unable to learn the price of the new car; but he did see the largest automobile factory in the world. This made him more anxious than ever to secure the agency for the new car in Los Angeles.

The name of the car to be put out October 1 is not known as yet. It has been announced that the car will sell for less than $1000 and that is all that anyone knows.

The machine was designed by a corps of American and foreign engineers.

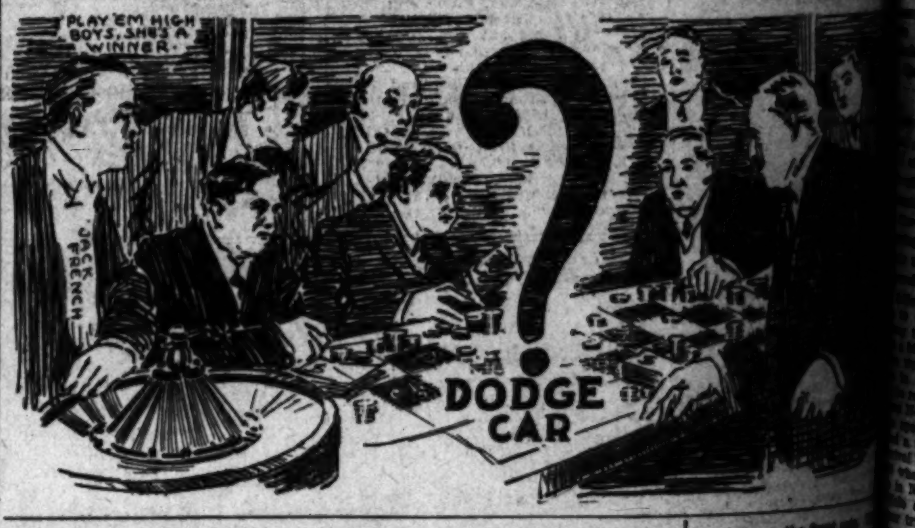
After the car's design was decided upon the sales organization was cultivated. J. I. French was placed at the helm here on the Coast as district selling agent. French is well known in this section, having been connected with the motor-car industry for many years.

ALL ARE KNOWN.

There is a file in the office of the Dodge Bros. plant with the name and record of every big leaguer in the automobile and allied industries.

The largest local automobile concerns do a certain amount of case-hardening. For this work, cyanide is used. Five pounds will last several months at the average large garage in this city. Dodge Bros. use 10,000 pounds of cyanide a week for case-hardening; 520,000 pounds a year or, better still, 210 tons of cyanide a year.

The loading platform at the Dodge plant is thirty feet wide and 900 feet long—two city blocks.



PLAY 'EM HIGH BOYS, SHE'S A WINNER.
JACK FRENCH
DODGE CAR

The home of the new machine is said to be not only the greatest automobile factory in the world, but one of the greatest factories of any kind ever built.

It is claimed that the combined Hudson, Cadillac and Chalmers factories use approximately 54,000 connecting rods in a season. Dodge Bros. have made 296,000 connecting rods for the first run of cars, or almost six times as many as the Hudson, Chalmers and Cadillac combined.

The great Detroit factory makes 33,500 finished gears a day.

Up to August 1 there were 6000 men employed by Dodge Bros. Since that date the number has been increased to 8500. More men than are in the combined National Guards of California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico.

In one room of the plant there are forty-five drop forges with hammers ranging in pressure from 500 pounds to five tons.

There is a car built in Detroit by the Dodge Manufacturing Company, but that plant has nothing to do with the Dodge Bros. factory.

In a year the Dodge plant uses 3,000,000 gallons of oil for heat-treating alone. This is 6000 barrels, 1200 carloads. An average of four carloads a day for heat-treating purposes alone.

The great factory is equipped with all the modern labor-saving devices known to the engineering profession.

Monorails and magnetic cranes are located all through the factory. All the scrap metal is picked up by magnetic cranes, dumped into a separator, where the oil used for lubricating is extracted and run back into underground pipes, where it is cooled and run into settling tanks and used again at an even temperature for lubricating.

BIG BACK YARD.

A short time ago the plant needed more room. Twelve city lots were purchased, the houses were torn down and the tract was turned into a factory yard.

Dodge Bros. operate their own switch engines on their own tracks in the factory yard. They have a steam crane similar to the ones used by railroad wrecking crews. If there is anything too heavy for their monorails or magnetic cranes the steam wrecker is called upon.

With this great factory, Dodge Bros. have the facilities for building hundreds of cars a day and it is little wonder that there is a riot for the agencies, although the car is still unknown except to a very few who are really on the inside.

DESERT-STAINED MITCHELL IN.

With the speedometer showing a total of 2800 miles and the occupants of the car bronzed with the desert heat and sun, a big Mitchell Six pulled into Los Angeles from Kansas City last week after a tough but perfect run.

The car was driven by Walter Boyd who, in company with his father and brother, left the eastern city July 6, and who, despite the wide detours and rough country traversed, never once applied a tool of any kind to his car.

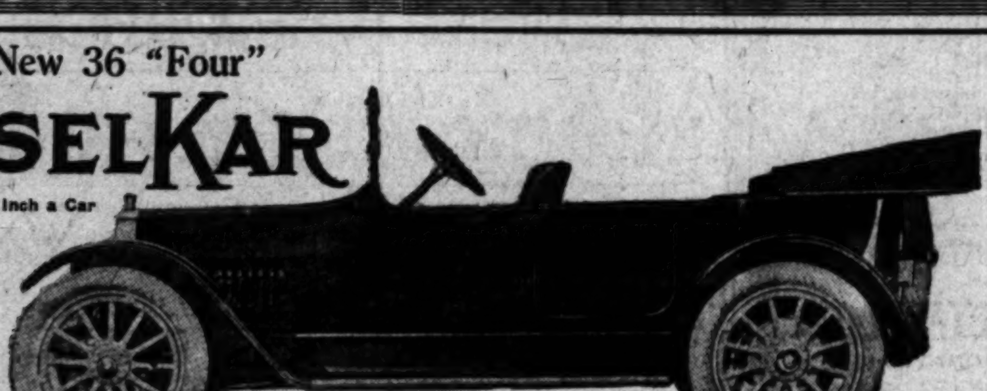
The chassis of the car has been fitted with a roomy body and travels on regular passenger car wheels. It is equipped with bell and whistle, and even a genuine cow-catcher is bolted in front of the radiator.

The car is used to transport railroad employees to and from Transcona and Winnepeg, and the chauffeur combines the duties of conductor, engineer and switchman. He is the only auto driver belonging to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The New 36 "Four"

KISSELKAR

Every Inch a Car



The single compartment, two-door touring body

First high grade, full sized manufactured car at a popular price—$1585 (with either 2-door or standard 4-door body)

F. O. B. Los Angeles.

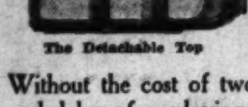
Here it is, a fully equipped, regular sized manufactured automobile of established high grade at $1585—a hitherto unheard of price for a car of this class.

Here also is the first touring car readily converted into a closed coach for winter driving—a family carriage for all-year service without the expense of changing bodies.

Kissel-built in every main essential in one plant, of the same high grade materials and workmanship that have justified the KisselKar's eminence among upper class automobiles, this model is in striking contrast with assembled cars costing as much, or more.

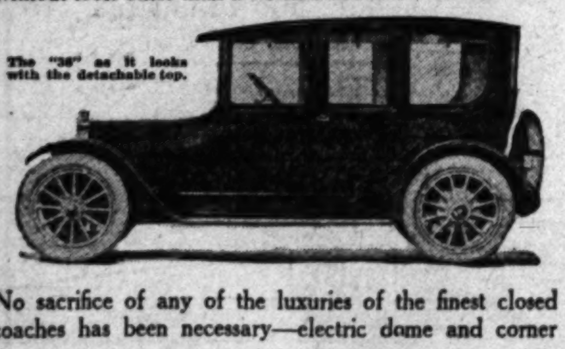
The ALL-YEAR Car with detachable top

For $350 additional, a detachable top is furnished with the Two-Door "36," converting it into a perfect Sedan—the ideal family car for winter.



The Detachable Top

Without the cost of two separate bodies or the expense and delay of employing a carriage-maker twice a year to make the changes, the KisselKar 36 "Four" is fitted to all-year service. Two persons can attach or detach it without tools other than a wrench and screw-driver.



The "36" as it looks with the detachable top.

No sacrifice of any of the luxuries of the finest closed coaches has been necessary—electric dome and corner lights and every nicety of equipment is retained. Here's your opportunity to secure a car for open driving in summer, and one that can be quickly turned into a closed sedan for the winter months.

Quality and Refinement in Big Measure

Analyze—If you are motor-wise and will analyze and compare, you will appreciate the KisselKar 36, and its great responsive 4⅛x5½ engine.

Construction—If you know steels, workmanship and the importance of perfect balance, you will appreciate the construction of the KisselKar 36.

Value—If you have been looking for a popular priced, manufactured car, built as perfectly and expertly as cars of higher cost, you will appreciate the value of the KisselKar 36.

Comfort—If you have sought vainly in other cars for your conception of easy riding, quiet operation and freedom from vibration, you will appreciate the comfort of the KisselKar 36.

Flexibility—If you have wished for a car that will take the hardest hills on high, and slow down to a pedestrian's pace without changing gears, you will appreciate the flexibility of the KisselKar 36.

Economy—If you realize that a car, to be economical, must live long, depreciate slowly, be reasonably easy on tires and fuel, and be therefore of medium weight, you will appreciate the economy of the KisselKar 36.

Convenience—If you have deplored the necessity of either garaging your car during cold weather or buying a separate closed body, with the incidental expense of making a change twice a year, you will appreciate the convenience of the detachable top that is furnished, at small additional cost, with the KisselKar 36.

Beauty—If you are critical and exacting in regard to appearance and refinement, you will appreciate the beauty of the KisselKar 36.

Completeness—If you demand the newest mechanical improvements, such for instance, as springs guaranteed against center breakage, vacuum fuel feed, dimming head lights, automatic spark advance, and others, you will appreciate the completeness of the KisselKar 36.

PRICE—The KisselKar 36-"Four" at $1585, fulfills in every respect the full measure of value expected by far-seeing men who have prophesied that a capable and complete manufactured car of recognized upper-class, would one day be offered at a much lower price.

We are now prepared to show you the 36-"Four"—also the new 48-"Six" with the two-door body and detachable top or standard four-door—and the 60-"Six," America's leading big "Six." Call and see us or write.

Horse Not in It.

GOVERNMENT TESTS NOW MADE WITH MOTOR CAR.

REALIZING that the work of measuring traction resistance of country roads and city streets can be carried on much better and more accurately for the automobile traffic by using a motor car in place of horse-drawn vehicles, the government has purchased a Winton Six, with a special body, in which has been installed the McCormick dynamometer used in these tests.

The government has been for some time studying the power necessary to move a given load over roads of any condition, from the city pavement to the muddy, sticky country lane or the severe mountain grade. Horse-drawn vehicles have proved inadequate to the needs of the observers, and in their place the Winton is now doing the work.

The dynamometer is mounted on the regular Winton chassis, with a specially-constructed body of the surrey type. The driver's seat accommodates three persons, while behind it is the instrument board and desk. Two seats are provided in the rear for the operators. The body is entered by steps at the rear.

The mechanism installed in the car records the power delivered on the driving shaft, the speed of the car, the distance traveled and the time consumed over any given condition of road with a given load. Two observers and two operators often take notes on the conditions of the highway, and check and compare their accounts. The instrument is calibrated on the basis of power delivered at the rear wheels.

WILL PROVE WORTH OF WARTIME AUTO.

It is claimed that every nation involved in the present European trouble has at least 100 automobiles in the field and England has more than 1000 motor cars and trucks in service.

The warring powers have impressed for service hundreds of privately-owned machines, mostly touring cars. With this great number of cars in the conflict, a most severe test for the automobile is insured.

The total number of automobiles of all makes sold by dealers in Palermo during 1913 was 141, as follows: Italian, eighty; American, thirty-three; French, fourteen, German, six; Belgian, six, and Austrian, two. They were almost all low or medium-priced.

Concentration of weight very near to the front end of the car is undesirable.

MANY CHANGES MADE ON CAR.

SMALL MACHINE GIVEN LARGER BODY WITH MANY OTHER IMPROVEMENTS.

Detailed improvements mark the new Saxon car, the first shipment of which is now en route to Southern California.

The Saxon company has undertaken to present a car for 1915 that looks more like a real automobile. With this end in view, a larger body in new colors has been provided. Running boards connecting with the fenders add to the attractiveness of the car.

A rubber floor mat is made a part of the regular equipment and the upholstery is of better quality. The gasoline filler is on the cowl, so that it no longer will be necessary to remove the hood to fill the tank.

The single-piece hood that was somewhat inconvenient has been abandoned for a three-hinged bonnet.

High Sierra Tour.

MOTOR MARATHON STAGED AS GASOLINE VACATION.

AN IDEAL long-distance tour has just been completed by F. M. Crampton of this city. Young Crampton works for the Standard Oil Company and when his vacation of two weeks came this summer, he decided to visit Lake Tahoe, Yosemite Valley, Gen. Grant National Park and Sequoia National Park.

It was an ambitious trip for two weeks, for the distance of 1800 miles must be covered in fourteen days, but the experience of 7800 miles that he had already driven his car convinced him that the average of 130 miles per day, even if most of it was mountain traveling, could be done.

It was the second car of the same model, a Metz speedster, and the first one had carried him 22,000 miles, so he felt confident in starting away for the long, quick journey into the wilds of the high Sierras.

He took his boy companion, F. L. Morris, with him, and went up the coast route to San Francisco, then into Lake county and across the Coast Range to Sacramento, and on to Lake Tahoe over the Emigrant Gap route, reaching an altitude of 8214 feet at the summit.

At Lake Tahoe the boys drove their machine over the west shore road past Emerald Bay to Tallac at the south end of the lake, there turning back over the Placerville grade and south through San Joaquin Valley to Stockton.

Here they left the main traveled roads and struck into the high Sierras over the Big Oak Flat road to Yosemite Valley and out over the Coulterville route to Fresno.

At Fresno they turned east into the high country again, glad to leave the heat of the valley for the 6500 elevation and big timber of Gen. Grant Park, from which point they negotiated the steep grade over Happy Gap to the Sequoia National Park, with its trail trip to the largest tree in the world, a veritable giant, named after Gen. Sherman.

This tree is 279 feet high and 103 feet in circumference at the average base of the tree. Crampton says that one feature alone is worth the trip to Sequoia Park, and the Metz Company's map of the run was of great assistance to him in keeping the right road.

The trip was more than 1800 miles and they used seventy-two gallons of gasoline and three gallons of oil, this averaging twenty-five miles to the gallon of gasoline and 600 miles to the gallon of oil.

They carried one extra tire, but made the run without a blowout, having only one puncture as the sum total of their tire troubles.

Piston displacement has been reduced from 183 to 153 cubic inches for this year's Coupe de l'Auto race (to be held in France if the war ends in time,) and in order to make the event unusually difficult a mountainous course has been selected through Auvergne, where brakes will be an important factor. At present only nine entries have been received.

Branch Manager Declares War When Output of Great Tire Factory Is Cut Down Below Minimum.

The average daily output of the United States Tire and Rubber Company is more than 16,000 motor car tires, according to John Weise, manager of the local branch. Four large factories are operated by the company, which claims the largest producing plant of its kind in the country.

In giving the number of tires put out by the four plants recently the 16,000 appeared as 6000, and as a result, Weise has been fighting his best friends ever since.

The Summer Cruise.

SOUTH COAST YACHTSMEN ON SANTA CRUZ ISLAND.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH COAST YACHT CLUB CAMP (Frier's Harbor, Santa Cruz Island) Aug. 12.—With eleven pleasure yachts with some sixty-odd pleasure hunters aboard, anchored at or near this little harbor, the summer cruise of the South Coast Yacht Club has proved a big success. The yawl Trojan was the last of the fleet to arrive, coming in late this afternoon from Santa Barbara. The yachts here, besides the Trojan, are Mischief, Minerva, Descanso, Myth, Marie, Seamore and Seabird of the South Coast Yacht Club and the Amanda of the San Diego Yacht Club. The Royal is at Ladies' Harbor, while the Siwash is at Pelican Bay.

The power cruisers Descanso and Amanda were the first arrivals on Saturday, the auxiliary sloop Seabird coming in next after a twenty-four-hour-run, mostly under power.

The yawl Seamore and sloop Mischief came in on Sunday, while the Minerva and Marie arrived on Monday. The little Myth made port on Tuesday.

The Trojan put in to Ventura with a sick cook and then made Santa Barbara before coming across the channel today. The Royal also touched at Santa Barbara on Monday before going to Ladies' Harbor. The Siwash with a crew of four took on a couple of dozen Stanford students at Santa Barbara and made Pelican Bay the permanent camp.

Tuesday the Seabird took out Commodore Hubbell and Mrs. Hubbell and Capt. and Mrs. Cox for a fishing trip up the coast to Ladies' Harbor and the Painted Cave. Fifty-four fine bass made up the day's catch, the largest bass, a twelve-pounder, being caught by Al Killian. The yacht was taken into this wonderful cave, the farthest end being explored from the skiff.

Today Capt. Beatty took most everybody in camp on an exploration of this mammoth marine cave, while Capt. Cox in the Amanda took the Seabird crew and Commodore and Mrs. Hubbell to Prisoners' Harbor, where a three-mile trip was made inland to the vineyards and ranch of the Santa Cruz Island Company. A huge bonfire lured most of the bunch ashore tonight. With all of the fleet now in, the camp promises to be a lively one for a week at least.

The personnel of the fleet is as follows:

Mischief—Commodore Hubbell, Mrs. Hubbell, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rhoades, Miss Hubbell, Rex Hubbell and Nat Fitts.

Amanda—Capt. and Mrs. William Cox.

Seabird—Capt. E. D. Seward and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Killian.

Myth—Vice-Commodore H. W. Mellen and Mrs. Mellen.

Minerva—Capt. L. V. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Logan, Dr. and Mrs. V. A. Goodrich and William Bailey.

Seamore—Capt. H. W. Wyatt, Mrs. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Gray, Miss Cass, Ross W. Bennett and Robert Smith.

Marie—Capt. L. H. Haller, H. C. Chambers and Charles Hunt.

Descanso—Capt. J. Davis Beatty, Mrs. Beatty and H. C. Reed.

Trojan—Capt. E. W. Taylor, Fred Taylor, Mrs. F. W. Taylor, Misses Barbara and Alma Taylor, Miss Lewis, H. D. Brown, Harold Goodenow, Mick Breslin, Leval Lund, Harry Bachelor and Henry Carlton.

Royal—Ex-Commodore D. H. Laubersheimer, Mrs. Laubersheimer, Dr. and Mrs. George Laubersheimer and son Toney, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Craig, Frank Dee and Clevis Harrison.

Siwash—Capt. Howard Wright and party.

AUTO TOGS.

A rubberized silk plaid cape with green and blue coloring and yellow cross stripes is the latest thing for motoring. The reverse side is of gray. A deep yoke and full hood for head wear makes it ideal.

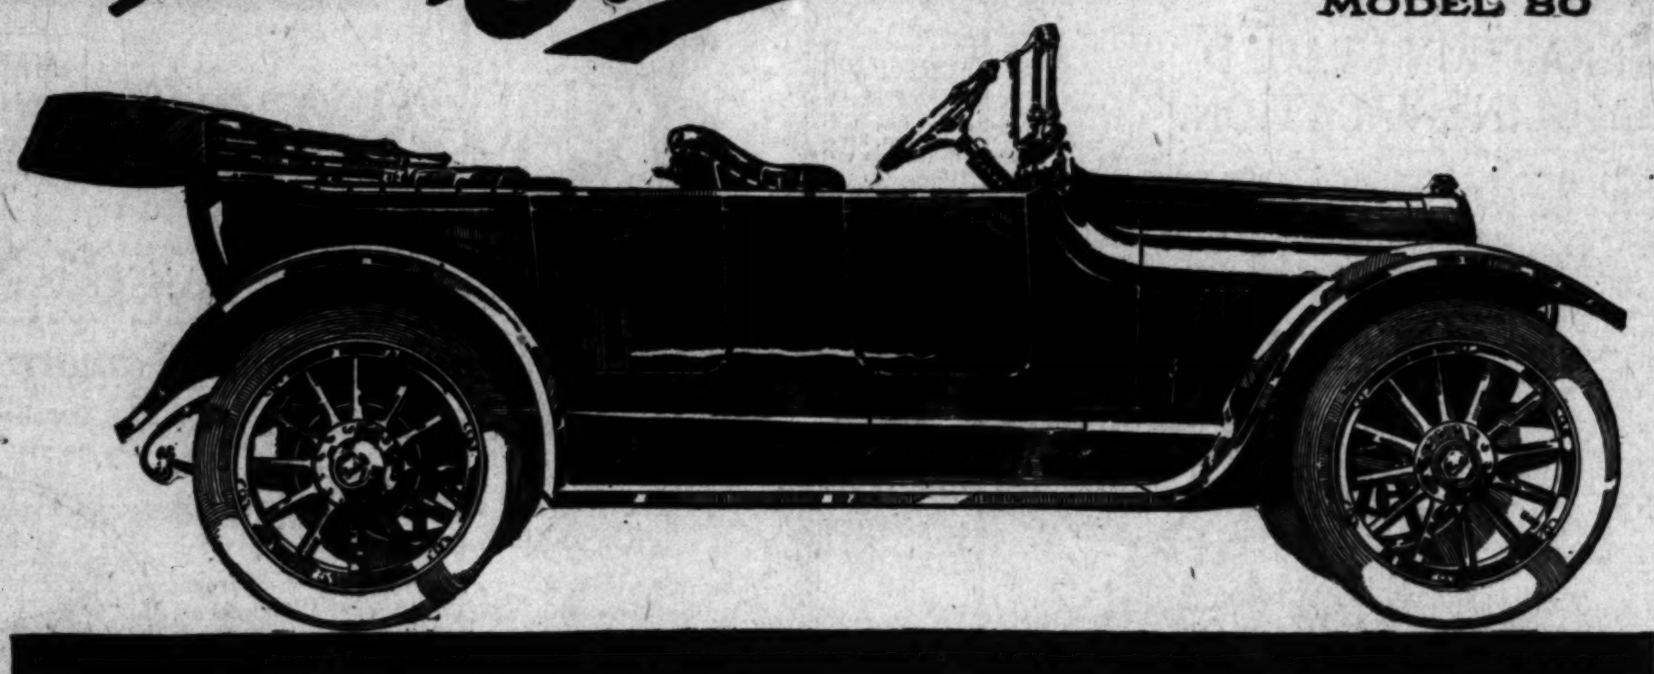
On many boulevards may be seen seen a late parasol of English coaching model. It comes in black and white and with a rose lining. There is also a smart little plaid parasol, which folds into the handle and has frames adapted to stand a stiff wind.

A stunning white velour raglan coat, now available, has black satin pipings, big jet buttons and a rose basket patterned lining of white silk.

BIG BUSINESS IS TIRE SALE SCORE.

A record of 4000 tires in forty-eight hours is claimed for the local branch of the United States Tire and Rubber Company. These motor car tires were put out by the local manager, John Weise, last Thursday and Friday, a week ago, and in order to get out the orders, it was necessary for all the help to work overtime Saturday and practically all day Sunday.

1915 Overland $1075
MODEL 80



The Latest and Greatest Overland of All

THE latest Overland—model 80—is now on exhibition at our local dealers. This is, by far, the handsomest and most artistic car we ever produced.

Again we have made expensive improvements, costly enlargements and incorporated numerous, high-priced refinements.

But we have not advanced the price.

This Overland has a beautiful, brand-new stream-line body. Its full sweeping stream-lines blend and harmonize perfectly with the balance of the symmetrical design. All visible lines are absolutely clean, unbroken and uninterrupted.

The new crowned fenders, new rounded radiator, new hood slightly sloped, and flush U doors with disappearing hinges, contribute the additional touches of exterior grace and modishness which distinguish costly imported cars.

The new tonneau is much larger—both in width and in depth.

The new cushioned upholstery is also considerably deeper and softer.

This model is equipped with the finest and most reliable electric starting and electric lighting system. All switches, in a compact switch box, are conveniently located on the steering column. Thus in the driving position, without stretching forward or bending down, you start the car, drive the car and control the electric horn and all head, side, tail, and dash lights.

This car has left-hand drive and center control.

The tires are larger this year, being 34" by 4" all around. These tires can be quickly detached from the rims which are demountable. One extra rim furnished.

Wheelbase, 114 inches
Larger tires, 34 inch x 4 inch
Demountable rims—one extra
Left-hand drive
Beautiful new Brewster green body finish
Complete equipment

This new Overland has longer, improved and underslung rear springs which make it one of the easiest riding cars in the world. It rides with remarkable smoothness, taking the ruts and rough spots with the ease of the highest priced cars.

Ignition is high tension magneto, independent of starting and lighting system. It requires no dry cells.

Fundamentally the chassis remains as before. The front axle is larger; the wheels are larger; the frame heavier and stouter; gears are made of nickel steel; there are integral grease cups in spring bolts; and other mechanical refinements which are described in detail in our new catalogue.

There is the famous, powerful, speedy, snappy, economical and quiet 35 horsepower Overland motor; and a long wheelbase of 114 inches.

This car comes complete. Electric starter, electric lights, built-in windshield, mohair top and boot, extra rim, jeweled magnetic speedometer, electric horn, robe rail, foot rest and curtain box.

The latest and greatest Overland is ready for immediate delivery.

Our local dealer is now taking orders. Make arrangements for your demonstration now.

RIVERSIDE POLOISTS WIN CUP BY NARROW MARGIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 15.—Riverside beat the Midwick polo team by ¾ of a score in the fast match played this afternoon, and won handsome cups presented to the members of the winning team by J. Berman.
The Midwick team showed up every minute and with his quick powerful strokes took it from the Midwicks many times. Maj. Ross and Carleton Burke, who played back on the two teams played excellent games. The game was refereed by John B. Miller, the Pasadena polo authority.

The trophies were handsome cups of copper and Roman silver on each of which was the Coronado Country Club crest done in white and green enamel, the club colors. H. Lett of the Riverside club was unable to be here and Maj. Colin V. Ross took his place. The line-up was:

Midwick—Ted Miller, No. 1; Reggie Weiss, No. 2; Harry Weiss, No. 3; Carleton Burke, back.

Riverside—W. H. Dupee, No. 1; H. Pattee, No. 2; Hugh Drury, No. 3; Maj. Colin V. Ross, back.

The score was: Midwick—Goals, Burke 2, R. Weiss 2, Miller 1; total goals, 5; penalty, foul, H. Weiss, ½. Net score, 4½.

Riverside—Goals, Drury 3, Dupee 1, Pattee 2; total goals, 6; penalties, safety, Maj. Ross; foul, H. Drury; penalties 3-4. Net score 5 1-4.

Capt. Cookson, who refereed many of the games last winter and played in the summer games here this season, left yesterday for Victoria, B. C., and from there he will go to England, where he has volunteered for the service.

There were some, of course, who did not enter into the speed end of the run. The Moreland trucks played their own game, stringing along in a circus parade formation. The Mack truck was handled conservatively and no attention was paid to speed.

SPEEDY WHITES.

The White pilots were instructed to hit the ball, and they did. O. R. Fuller was strong for fast stuff all along the trip and the only three kickers on the run were Fuller, who wanted speed; J. F. Lakin, who wanted no speed, and the Moreland crew, which howled for a favorite brand of fuel.

The cars which finished with perfect scores were the three Morelands, the Mack, two Internationals, White No. 13, Republic, Moore, Kisselkar and Menominee, and the Mission which was later disqualified.

The running time of the White No. 13, for the entire 203.5 miles' course was 9hr., 54m. The little Mission was next with a running time of 10hr., 15m., while the Kisselkar was a close up third with 10hr., 46m., for the long run. The time for the Autocar was 11hr., 13m., and the Menominee took 10hr., 47m., for the run, while the Vim's time was 11hr., 37m.

HUNTING NOTES.

First blood of the deer season was drawn by Ralph A. Marhoefer, one of El Monte's crack shots, on the Mt. Wilson trail at 5:30 yesterday morning. Marhoefer was driving the stage down the trail about a mile from the summit when he saw a buck cross in front of him. Although he was armed with only a Colt's revolver, he stopped the machine and picked the deer in the shoulder from a distance of 100 yards. The buck was a two-point, 135 pounder. The hunter wins the George Cline trophy, a Winchester 401 automatic, given by Cline-Cline Company.

Bert Begue bagged a 125-pound five pointer at 6 o'clock yesterday morning in the Big Tejunga and arrived at the B. H. Dyas sporting goods house before any other hunter, thereby winning as first prize the right to have his deer mounted. The second prize given by this company—a 22 Savage high-power, was won by Nick Hugo, hunting with his brother, Mathias Hugo, in the Soledad. Their buck was a 160-pound, three pointer.

Ed Dietrick reports bagging a good spike in back of Santa Monica at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

Pete Peterson 'phones that he has located several in the Malibu and that he expects to get them tonight.

The general outlook for deer this season is good. Cutting the time limit down to thirty days is a good proposition and seems to have improved the situation already. The hunters seem to be more careful, as is evidenced by the fact that more are reporting sighting does than last year.

Since both emergency and service brakes are applied to the same pair of wheels, when one set is in use it is absolutely useless to apply the other, modern brakes always being adequate in design to slide the wheels when fuly applied. The only exception to the rule is the not infrequent occasion when one set of brakes or the other may not be working properly, or when a so-called equalizing device fails to equalize and only one wheel is braked down.

Wisconsin motor car registrations have passed the 50,000 mark. The total registration for 1913 was 34,646, and the 1914 list therefore shows a gain of approximately 30 per cent., or, to be exact 29.9 per cent. The total revenue from all registrations is in excess of a quarter of a million dollars.

In order to avoid congestion, Newark, N. J., has passed an ordinance forbidding the parking of cars within corners. The ordinance also forbids seventy-five feet of the principal street parking of cars within twenty-five feet of fire hydrants throughout the city. Bright headlights, which have a tendency to blind, dazzle or confuse users of the streets, must be properly shaded. The ordinance does not state, however, who is to define the proper shading.

Willys utility truck in action.

Quicker and more certain response to throttle and spark adjustments may often be obtained on an old car if light springs are introduced in such a way as to take up the lost motion caused by wear of the connecting parts. Such springs cost practically nothing and can be readily applied.

More than $500,000 worth of cars will be exhibited by the Dallas Automobile Dealers' Association at the State Fair, which opens at Dallas, Tex., October 17. In addition accessory dealers will have complete displays in the exhibit. No admittance to the exhibit will be charged.

In a recent case in Idaho it was held that the State Legislature had the right to exempt motor vehicles from taxes by reason of the provision in the State's Constitution which gave them the power to exempt from taxes from time to time in any cases where such a procedure might seem necessary and just.

youthful opponent, 6-1, 6-2, 8-10, 6-3. The victory, added to those of Wilding over Williams on Thursday and Brookes and Wilding over McLoughlin and Bundy in the doubles yesterday, gave Australasia the three out of five matches necessary for possession of the championship trophy.

"MAURY" WINS.

Following this contest, McLoughlin defeated Wilding, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, but the result had no international bearing, being merely a masterful exhibition of the court game such as only players of this caliber can give.

With the score in matches standing 2 to 1 in favor of the challengers, Williams was plainly nervous under the responsibility that rested on him when he took the court with Brookes shortly after 2 o'clock. Brookes, veteran of many Davis cup battles, was calm and determined and showed clearly in his opening shots that he did not intend to give his opponent the slightest advantage which he did not earn.

WILLIAMS WEAK.

Brookes's strokes and tactics did nothing to allay the nervousness of Williams, and as a result the latter's efforts to hold his opponent in check during the first two sets were pitifully weak. He made a game rally in the third set, giving a splendid exhibition of the game he is capable of at times. It was his final rally, however. Brookes, profiting by his opponent's tendency to stroke the ball beyond the court boundaries or into the net, quickly ran through the fourth and deciding set.

As was the case when Williams met Wilding, the erratic young American really beat himself, for he netted approximately three times as many shots as Brookes and drove the ball out twice as often. His habit of serving the second ball as fast as the first also counted heavily against him, for he had ten double faults to Brookes's one.

BRILLIANT.

When he was stroking the ball in top form, however, he was Brookes's master. This was shown by the number of brilliant placement shots he made in the third set, which he won 10-8, despite twenty-seven nets and five double faults. Brookes let Williams play himself out, however, and came back strong in the fourth set, rushing to the net at every opportunity and blocking off his opponent's drives until Williams grew erratic again and faded away before the tactics and placing of the veteran.

The 15,000 spectators, who furnished a gallery and setting for the matches never before equaled in Davis cup play, tried to cheer Williams on to victory and as a result brought about one of the most ludicrous exhibitions ever witnessed in an amateur sporting event in this country.

ROOTING.

All through the third set every brilliant stroke by Williams was cheered until the uproar, a typical American case of rooting, could be heard far across the Long Island plains. Brookes, unable to handle Williams's service and returns, grew peevish and several times dropped his racquet and placed his hands over his ears.

When Williams finally won the set and the crowd really broke loose, the Australasian threw his racquet on the ground and, sitting down on the sand box, held his head in his hands. Many thought he was crying. He eventually got up and walked into the clubhouse. He appeared to regain his poise when, upon returning, he was given a great round of applause by the thousands whom he had mutely accused of unsportsmanlike action.

BROOKES CHEERED.

After his victory Brookes was placated with cheer after cheer and when he went over and patted the Davis cup which stood upon a table between the courts, the crowd attempted to give the Australasian kangaroo cry "Koo-yo-oo" in honor of the winner. This broke down the last of Brookes's reserve, and he laughed and waved his hand like a pleased schoolboy.

The only satisfaction the representative American gathering gained from the day's play was the convincing manner in which National Champion McLoughlin pushed Wilding as well as Brookes off the world's championship singles pedestal and mounted it himself as the greatest individual tennis player in the universe. After witnessing the Davis cup follow the polo trophy across the ocean, this proved an encouraging omen of its return again within a few years.

A REAL DUEL.

When the auburn-topped Californian faced Wilding nothing was at stake from a cup standpoint and it was a personal racquet duel between the American champion and the player who defeated him in straight sets in the challenge round of the English all-comers' match at Wimbledon last year. Having defeated Brookes in straight sets on Thursday, McLoughlin tore into Wilding at terrific speed and gave the towering Australasian a crushing defeat that he is likely never to forget. He served and hammered away at Wilding's returns with cyclonic force until the latter was either run off his feet or left standing flat-footed by the lightning strokes of his master.

Then McLoughlin would suddenly vary his game and by cross-court or solftly-placed strokes leave Wilding floundering yards away. The latter was game, however, and did not go down without a struggle. He put everything he had in the way of speed and cut on the ball, and as a result the two players raced back and forth across and up and down the court until they were dripping with perspiration.

MAURY SLOWS.

After two of the most sensational sets ever witnessed on an American tennis turf, McLoughlin slowed up and grew erratic, losing the third to Wilding. But with a rest and a rub-down he was himself again and quickly completed his task of demonstrating that the Wilding-Brooks company no longer held a monopoly upon the world's tennis titles so far as singles were concerned.

WILLIAMS NERVOUS.

Williams was extremely nervous at the opening of the set and Brookes easily ran it into a 3-love lead. Williams won the fourth game, his service and placing being too much for the veteran. Brookes proceeded to win the next three games and set by 6-1 by steady playing. The score, first set:

Brookes  ....................4 4 4 6 4 4 4—30—6
Williams ....................0 1 0 8 2 2 0—13—1

Brookes took the initiative at the opening of the second set, outplaying Williams in every department of the game, and winning the set 6-2. The American missed many placement shots by inches. The score, second set:

```
Brookes  ....................4 4 4 4 1 4 0 4—25—6
Williams ....................2 0 1 0 4 0 4 0—11—2

IMPROVEMENT.

Williams opened the third set by winning his service and the gallery tried to cheer him on to steadier playing. His driving became truer, and he led at 2-1 when Brookes began to rush to the net and block off returns for placements. (At two-all both were playing championship tennis.

Williams won the fifth game by hitting the lines with rifle-shot-like drives. Brookes made it 3-all in his service game and the youth soon led, 4-3, due to the veteran's errors. The challenger made it 4-all in a deuce game by gaining the net and chopping off his opponent's drive. Williams won the ninth game by first long-range shots. Brookes made it 5-all, after deuce had been called three times ball game. Slim was wilder than a European war rumor and walked eight men, but only two of those eight passes figured in the scoring. Six of the walks were wasted on innings that produced no runs. Glancing further over in the box score we discover six errors trailing the Angels. Those six boots brought ruin upon Slim and his companions.

Comedy of Errors.

SOME ERRORS.

They were beautiful errors. Just like most errors, except that they came in big bunches. They were dark completed, smooth shaven, plainly dressed and heavy set. Very heavy set, in fact. They sneaked upon the field at times when least expected. The first one passed unnoticed, but the uproar increased with continual influx of those large, juicy boots. Five of them knocked the pins from under the Angels, let in the four runs and then hurried on into the box score as conclusive evidence of their part in the miserable affair.

Slim heaved a slight sigh after each additional error, took another hitch in his belt that was trying to hold a pair of forty-two ball pants around a thirty-two waist, and then pitched a little bit harder. It is tough work trying to win a ball game when your team-mates insist on throwing it to the four winds and in several other directions all at once. Slim decided it was a hard world at the best, busting his neck over a ball game that he had no chance to win.

REAL FIELDING.

Big Ed Klepfer was batted twice as hard as his narrowly constructed opponent, but the Tigers fielded superbly in the pinches. The two Angel scores were made in separate innings. One when Slim Love crossed Big Ed with a single after Meek had been purposely walked; and the other on a triple by Ellis, followed closely by Moore's single. The rest of the time Ed had the Angels admiring third strikes or trickling feeble blows towards waiting fielders.

Litschi, first man up in the second, drew one of the two passes that brought down trouble upon the head of Slim Love. Borton continued on his slugging career with a double to left that scored Louie. Babe cantered over to third on McArdle's out. Bliss dumped a bunt towards Slim and streaked for first base. Borton came thundering towards the plate and Slim stopped to gaze at the spectacle. Finally, he cut loose with a heave to Meek, but Borton hit the dirt for the safety signal from Phyle.

BLISS SCORES.

Klepfer sacrificed Bliss to second and Carlisle pounded a grounder into Moore's hands. Charlie picked the ball up, dropped it, fumbled it and kicked it around until Carlisle had reached first and then shot the ball home in anticipation of nailing Bliss. Meek dropped the ball and Bliss scored. Leard grounded out.

The Angels dented Klepfer's defense for a run in their half of the same inning. Ellis beat out an infield hit and went to second on Moore's demise at first. Johnson fanned. Big Ed walked Meek with respect. Love came up and made Ed's strategy look foolish when he slapped a single into left, scoring Rube.

The Angel fans and Slim may have been encouraged by the one run outburst, but they forgot to reckon with the second generation of those beautiful, luscious errors. They arrived in consultation form during the fifth inning.

KLEPFER SINGLES.

Klepfer made his monthly single to open that inning. Carlisle made first base when he forced Ed at second base. Walter was heaved out at second base when he attempted to steal. Nothing to excite or worry Slim, so far. But wait. Slim issued his second effective pass, to Leard. Bill immediately stole his way to second and continued around towards third base, when Johnson failed to cover the bag. Meek made a perfect peg and Leard should have been nailed several fathoms. Kane then poked a grounder at Moore. Charlie kicked the ball around a bit, fondled it, and then shot at someone sitting in the right field boxes. Leard scored and Kane reached second, while Abstein was finding the strayed pill.

Bayless busted into the burlesque with a triple into the portion of the field lying between Maggert and Wolter. Leard scored and Dick rested on third to await further developments. He had a short wait. Johnson picked up Litschi's grounder and threw in the general direction of the grand stand roof. Bayless scored the third run of the inning and the sixth and last one of the game. Borton flew out.

Johnson made another error in the sixth, but we won't hold that against our usually reliable short stop, as no one scored.

ELLIS TRIPLES.

Rube Ellis smote a triple into deep left-center to open the sixth and scored a minute later on Moore's single of retribution. Johnson flew out and Meek singled, but Love and Wolter were infield deaths and the last bit of Angel animosity disappeared.

Meek caught a nice game after that third inning error. Boles intercepted a foul tip with his meat hand during the first inning and Dad was drafted into service. He gathered two hits, a walk and one out in four trips up. He heaved out three base runners with pegs that would have brought a glow of pride into Archer's cheek.

A pair of them today. The scores:

Should Germany abandon the idea of holding the 1916 Olympic games at Berlin because of the war and the events come to the United States, Secretary James E. Sullivan of the Amateur Athletic Union, favors holding the contests at Washington, D. C. A mammoth stadium would be constructed at the national capital.

HUB PERNOLL IS WILD AND LOSES.

THOUGH HIT HARD HE MIGHT HAVE WON BUT FOR TWO WILD PITCHES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—Although Oakland hit Pernoll, the San Francisco pitcher, freely enough today, had he not let go with two wild pitches in the third, the game must have gone more than nine innings for a score. As it was, the Oaks won, 1 to 0.

Zacher, the Oakland centerfielder, furnished the game's big sensation by stopping Mundorff's sizzling liner in the fifth with the tip of his glove. It was one of the season's most spectacular stabs, and it probably prevented the game being tied, as the bases later were filled in that frame.

WOLVERTON'S WANDERERS AT LAST TAKE A GAME FROM THE RUNAWAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 15.—Portland and Sacramento divided a double-header today, giving Portland five out of six played. Southpaw Williams was effective in the first game and won, 6 to 4. Portland played erratic ball behind Krause, who was hit hard. Gregory was knocked from the box in the second game, and Portland won in a romp, 12 to 2. Score:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

SENATORS EASY FOR BIG CHIEF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Philadelphia shut out Washington today, 6 to 0. The best the visitors could do with Bender was to get one runner as far as second base. Shaw was knocked off the rubber in six innings, Bender aiding in the rally in the sixth session with a home run drive which also scored Schang. It was the Athletics' twenty-fifth victory in the last twenty-eight games played. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Washington	000000000—	0	5	1
Philadelphia	10100400x—	6	8	0

Batteries—Shaw, Harper and Henry; Bender and Schang.

VEAN GREGG IS HARD TO HIT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—McHale kept Boston's hits scattered until the eighth, when Cady's double, Henrickson's out and Hooper's single gave the Red Sox the only run of the game. New York was unable to hit Gregg when hits meant runs. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
New York	000000000—	0	9	1
Boston	00000001x—	1	8	0

Batteries—McHale and Nunamaker; Gregg, Shore and Cady, Thomas.

TIGERS EASY FOR MITCHELL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Mitchell's brand of pitching was too much for Detroit today and Cleveland won, 7 to 1. Mitchell held Detroit to six hits, well scattered, and struck out eight men. Dubuc was batted hard in the first and seventh innings. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Detroit	010000000—	1	6	3
Cleveland	30000040x—	7	12	1

Batteries—Dubuc and Stanage, Baker; Mitchell and Egan.

WHITE SOX ARE EASY FOR BROWNS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Aug. 15.—Errors and bunched hits gave St. Louis a 7-to-4 victory over Chicago this afternoon. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Chicago	010110001—	4	9	4
St. Louis	03000301x—	7	9	0

Batteries—Wolfgang and Schalk; James and Agnew.

OAKS LAND INFIELDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OAKLAND, Aug. 15.—The Oakland club announces the purchase of Scotty Alcock, infielder of the Chicago American League team, who will join the Oaks next week in Portland. In return for Alcock, Oakland gives Tommy Quinlan, outfielder, and an option on Pitcher Prough.

Quinlan will not report to the White Sox until the season closes.

BOSTON TAKES THIRD STRAIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Boston reduced New York's lead to three and a half games today by taking the third straight game of the series by a score of 2 to 0, the winning runs being scored in the tenth. The game was a pitchers' battle between Mathewson and Tyler, the local star faltering in the last inning when Boston scored two runs on Smith's single, Mann's sacrifice, Gowdy's second triple and a wild pitch. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Boston	0000000002—	2	5	1
New York	0000000000—	0	5	0

Batteries—Tyler and Gowdy; Mathewson and McLean, Meyers.

PIRATES SHUT OUT THE REDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—Pittsburgh today shut out Cincinnati by a score of 2 to 0 in a pitchers' battle between Conzelman and Ames, the latter being removed in the eighth inning to try an emergency batter. Miller, who batted for Ames, made a hit. Ames allowed only five hits and his successor, Schneider, retired Pittsburgh in the eighth without a hit. Seven hits were made off Conzelman. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	000000000—	0	7	2
Pittsburgh	00001100x—	2	5	0

Batteries—Ames, Schneider and Clark; Conzelman and Coleman.

BROOKLYN TWICE BEATS PHILLIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROOKLYN, Aug. 15.—Brooklyn took both games of a double-header here today by hitting the ball when Philadelphia was making errors. In the third inning of the first game they bunched five hits on top of two errors for five runs. Tincup was knocked out of the box in the second game. Getz, who was purchased from Newark today, owing to O'Mara's injury, fielded and batted well. Scores:

First game:

		R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia	020000100—	3	11	3
Brooklyn	10510001x—	8	14	2

Batteries—Alexander and Killifer; Ragan and McCarty.

Second game:

Brooklyn	21021124—	13	15	1
Philadelphia	00103001—	5	9	1

Batteries—Tincup, Baumgardner and Burns; Pfeffer and McCarty.
(Called in eighth.)

ST. LOUIS LOSES IN PITCHERS' DUEL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 15. — St. Louis defeated Chicago, 2 to 1 today, in a pitchers' duel. Vaughn's wildness, with errors by Saier and Schulte, cost the locals the game. The fielding of Sweeney, Archer, Huggins and Dolan was brilliant. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	000000110—	2	5	1
Chicago	000001000—	1	6	1

Batteries—Doak and Snyder; Vaughn and Archer.

Charles B. Durborow of Philadelphia, the long-distance swimmer who lost to Sam Richards in the recent match race between them in the Delaware River, is among the contributors to send the Boston amateur to England to try and swim the English channel.

KAUFF A DEMON ON THE BASES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 15.—Indianapolis and Buffalo divided a double-header here today, the local team winning the first game, 5 to 4, Bennie Kauff registering what proved to be the winning run in the fourth when he stole home. The visitors took the second game, which was called at the end of the eighth inning by agreement, 8 to 3. Scores:

First game:

		R.	H.	E.
Buffalo	100100100—	3	7	1
Indianapolis	211100001—	5	10	2

Batteries—Moore, Moran and Blair; Kaiserling and Rariden.

FAST FIELDING SAVES CHICAGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Pittsburgh outpitched today but played a loose fielding game and the locals won, 10 to 6. Hendrix was in trouble in several innings, but fast fielding saved him. Score:

		R.	H.	E.
Pittsburgh	201001020—	6	14	4
Chicago	10024111x—	10	13	2

Batteries—Dickson, Walker, Leclair and Berry; Hendrix and Wilson.

BATSMEN WIN TWO FOR KANSAS CITY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16.—Kansas City won two games from Baltimore today. Packard was too much for the visitors in the first game and the locals won, 4 to 3. Consistent hitting won the second game for Kansas City, 11 to 2. Scores:

First game:

		R.	H.	E.
Baltimore	000000030—	3	6	0

NO THRILLS ON GRAND CIRCUIT.

WALTER COCHATO TAKES THE FREE-FOR-ALL PACE WITH EASE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KALAMAZOO (Mich.) Aug. 15.—An afternoon of ordinary sport was furnished for the closing day of the Kalamazoo Grand Circuit meeting. There were five events on the card, but the thrills were lacking. The weather was ideal, track fast and all conditions pointed to fast time, which was lacking throughout.

The only thing that approached a feature occurred in the 2:12 trot. The judges were dissatisfied with the showing made by Bonington in the third heat, so they removed Driver Dickerson and put Billy Andrews up. Bonington won the next two heats easily. Andrews was allowed $200 for driving the mile.

Walter Cochato won the free-for-all pace in straight heats, the time being 2:07¼, 2:03¾ and 2:04½. The 2:17 pace, 2:07 pace and 2:15 trot also were each won in three heats.

FLYING SPARKS OF MOTORDOM.

Over 100,000 automobiles are licensed in the State of Iowa.

Windsor, Canada, is considering the building of a municipal garage. Practically every city department now owns a machine. The Mayor is heartily in favor of the project to take care of these automobiles.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has held that the accidental killing of a person by an automobile, even when the car is exceeding the State speed limit, is not manslaughter unless culpable negligence has been proven.

Commencing October 1 a cab company will begin operating taxicabs in New York with charges of 25 cents for the first half mile and 5 cents for each additional quarter mile, making 35 cents for the first mile, and 20 cents for additional miles.

Capitalists have put under way a plan to build a two-mile brick motor speedway within a short distance of the city limits of Minneapolis to cost $500,000, and to be ready by the fall of 1915. Little excavation work is necessary as the land is level. Large grand stands will be erected.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

A START OF CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

DOES it seem absurdly early to begin planning for Christmas gifts? You may tell me that the thermometer is in the nineties; that you are absorbed in summer holiday plans and outings; that if you had any leisure thoughts you would give them to your arrangements for settling the house and adjusting your wardrobe for the fall; that the children's school outfits must be looked after, and that you are only too glad to banish Christmas preparations to the back of your brain.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding I say to you, begin now to decide what you shall give at the Yuletide and make or secure as soon as possible the commencement of the Christmas store of remembrances.

There are a number of excellent reasons for doing this. Perhaps the first and chief is that the only gifts worth making are those which come of loving thought and study and that these cannot be bestowed when you are in the midst of the rush and hurry which inevitably prelude Christmas. The present into which you put yourself, your heart and effort is of incalculably greater value than one which can be bought with mere money. More than this, the cost of the remembrance in actual cash is often more than you can afford if you would make a gift in any degree in proportion to your affection, whereas the work you have devoted to it increases beyond measure the merit of the article.

Another reason for starting your Christmas tokens betimes is that it is a genuine comfort to have some of them off of your mind before the actual time when you must make ready for the holidays. You know what the strain will be then, how much there will be to devise in the way of arrangements for the children coming home from school or college or in the line of entertainments and similar festivities, for charity or church or in a purely social way. Every gift you get now and mark and put aside for this one or that will be so much clear gain to you later on.

Saves on Holiday Bills.

Still a further advantage is won by spreading out a trifle the expense of the Christmas preparation. All of us are rather inclined to shrink from the large outlay which is inevitable at holiday time, and although we may affirm that it makes no difference at what period the money is spent, since it all goes anyhow, there can be no doubt that it is a relief to pay in advance for some of our Christmas gifts and not anticipate with dread the sheaf of bills which will come crowding in upon us with the New Year.

While we are on the topic of money let me tell of an expedient followed by a friend of mine for accumulating her Christmas money. The first week of the year she begins saving systematically for the next holidays. She starts by putting aside 5 cents; the next week she makes it 10, the week after 15. Each week she puts in 5 cents more than she did the week before. For a while the amount she lays aside is little or no burden. By the first of June she is putting away more than $1 a week, and she tells me that sometimes it is rather difficult —"but not so hard," she adds, "as to pay out fat sums all at once in December." The largest amount she ever has to devote to her fund is $2.50 at one time.

I am afraid to say just how much these small weekly savings come to by the time Christmas arrives, but I know it is well over $60 and this sum she has acquired by savings she has hardly felt. Think of what it is to have any such amount in cash to spend on Christmas remembrances! I must add that if she has any purchases to make for gifts in advance she takes the price of these from her fund, so that she does not feel the pull of paying for them.

Some of us may not think that we can afford even the small weekly contribution and in that case the saving may be reduced by beginning with 2 or 3 cents a week and increasing weekly in the same proportion. Of course the sum total will not be as great but even $25 or $30 which has been saved in minute quantities will come in comfortably at Christmas time.

Plans Ahead for Suitable Gifts.

The custom of planning ahead gives variety and aptness to the gifts we make. For example, a friend of mine who is clever with a camera prepares all her own Christmas and New Year cards herself. She takes scenes she has visited and which are beautiful in themselves or interesting from association and mounts them on cards that she letters skillfully with the name of the place and her own name or initials. If she were not able to do the lettering satisfactorily she could have her name engraved from her card plate or daintily printed on the mount of the card. Even with this added expense the cards would cost far less than those she could order done at a stationer's and they possess the individuality that no cards made by wholesale could offer.

In the same way she enlarges pictures of beautiful landscapes and mounts them as calendars or has them framed as little pictures to give glimpses of the country to city folk. No money can purchase such presents and their value is enhanced by the thought and love put into the work.

Any kind of handicraft is acceptable and now that so much embroidery is worn the woman who is skilled with her needle is able to make delightful presents. One of the most pleasing gifts I had Christmas consisted of six dainty handkerchiefs embroidered with my initials and close in value to these I placed a hand made jabot rich in the love of the far distant kinswoman who had cared enough for me to take the time and the trouble to make the bit of neckwear. Such articles, like collars and cuffs, revers, guimpes, and other items of adornment, never come amiss, for no woman ever has too many of them, just as no man is ever over supplied with ties. If you can knit these in silk or knit silk socks you may be sure you are preparing a present which will be received with enthusiasm.

Gifts to the Housekeeper.

Homelier gifts of household plenishings appeal to the housekeeper. Again and again have I been delighted at Christmas by receiving a couple of fine towels worked with my initials from a friend who knew my love for nice napery. Once or twice they have been guest towels, at other times those of the ordinary size. A set of bureau and pincushion covers was a valued gift last holidays; table cloth or napkins, doilies or centerpieces make my heart to sing, especially when they are enriched with my monogram or initials. Any one with money can go into a shop and purchase such articles, but when a friend has given time and toil to marking them for me she furnishes a proof of her love and thought for me which touches me deeply.

Men, too, can be remembered in some similar fashion. One busy woman I know is knitting for a brother who is addicted to much bathing a set of face cloths or wash cloths. They were begun along in the early spring, for her leisure moments are few, and she is knitting into them many loving thoughts as well as countless pleasant memories for herself of the books she has had read to her and the happy chats which have taken place while she wielded the needles.

For the benefit of any one who wishes to follow this worker's example let me say that a cloth is begun with fifty stitches, using the No. 6 knitting cotton and steel needles. The work is done closely, that the clothes may not stretch apart, and they are made square. The body of the cloth is entirely plain, the same on both sides, and a different border is knitted to each. When the cloth is the desired size and has been finished off, a fancy edge is crocheted to it, the initials of the one for whom it is intended put in the corner of the cloth with chain stitch of colored cotton. The set will be sent in a dainty box and I venture to predict that they will receive more appreciation and be held in higher esteem than many a gift which would have cost twenty times as much in cash.

Sewer Has Wide Choice.

The woman who is versed in the varied stitches of knitting and crocheting should never be at a loss for something to give to a friend or a member of her family, either man or woman. Crocheted [illegible] and scarfs, either in heavy wools, light zephyr, or silk, never come amiss for men and women, and these, too, will value the sweater or veranda jacket or other light or heavy wrap for porch use in summer or for cold mornings in winter or for an extra to wear under a coat in bitter weather. A man's appreciation of a well made sweater is beyond words and he will be delighted, too, with an afghan to draw over his shoulders when he throws himself down for a [illegible] it perhaps as well as would a woman a similar cover for her use in a [illegible]

I have already referred to the [illegible] socks and ties of silk for men, but those who wear knickerbockers in tramping, hunting or fishing will value even more the long stockings of heavy wool if some woman loves the wearer enough to undertake the task of making them. It all goes back to this—the love which prompts the task and makes the labor light.

"Nothing I have had this Christmas has pleased me better than that brush and comb case," a woman said to me last December, displaying an envelope of white linen prettily embroidered. "I have always wanted something to use on my bureau for my comb and brush to keep them from the dust, and to know that dear Jenny took the trouble to make me this herself adds to its value. She always gives me what I want."

Yet Jenny is in slender circumstances. One year her gift was a little silk [illegible] case, to use in traveling; another time a tiny linen money bag for wear about the neck; once before, a linen cover [illegible] to put the nightdress when traveling. Always the present was the work of her own hands, of slight financial cost at the outset, but made valuable by thoughtful effort. It had cost her time and trouble to find the minutes to make her gifts, and the consideration bestowed on the needs of the recipient and the [illegible] to render it worthy of the love [illegible] it were beyond price.

So start your Christmas presents [illegible] Think over the preferences of the [illegible] to whom your remembrances will go. [illegible] about you on your wanderings and [illegible] to pick up acceptable tokens, or [illegible] some of the hours of rest in busying your fingers in making something which will supply a felt want in the life of a [illegible] or friend. If it is hot weather when you attempt the task the thought of Christmas chill may help you to forget present discomfort.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I WOULD like to have directions for making corn portieres. I wish very much to see a set and would be glad if there were some one living in the city who owned one of these portieres whom I could call on, to inspect it. MRS. J. T. B."

Can some one supply full directions for making such portieres? As I recall them the grains of corn were strung on stout cords something in the fashion of the Japanese curtains which Josh Whitcomb described as "whiplash curtains." These last were made of beads or other nonedible materials, but the corn portieres had the disadvantage of offering attractions to hungry rodents, and I have heard of more than one corn drapery which was ruined by the nibbling of mice. The strings on which the grains are held yield quickly to the attack of sharp teeth, and one break brings the whole line to the ground. None the less, the corn portieres are attractive when grains of good color are chosen, and I hope the correspondent may have a chance to view the hangings and to receive instructions for making them. Our Cornerites may write to me for the address of Mrs. J. T. B. with a view to granting her request.

Recipe for Popcorn Balls.

"I am desirous of getting hold of a recipe for popcorn balls. Those I make always crumble. I would also like a good recipe for baked beans. I am sending mine for French chocolate cake. It is delicious: Whites of three eggs, one cup of sugar, three-quarters of a cup of butter, half a cup of milk, one and a half cups of flour, one and a half teaspoons of baking powder. This makes the white part. For the dark part the same ingredients are required, except that the yolks of the eggs are used instead of the whites. The cake should be baked in four layers and a filling put between them made as follows: One pint of milk, two eggs, half a cup of sugar, one tablespoon of cornstarch. Flavor with vanilla. The filling must be boiled before the flavoring is added, stirring until thick and smooth. "G. E. M."

Thank you very much for the directions for chocolate cake. The recipes you ask for are as follows:

POPCORN BALLS—Make an old fashioned molasses candy and cook to the point where it spins a thread. Just before removing from the fire stir in enough popped corn to thicken it. Take the mixture out of the pot by the spoonful, and as soon as it can be handled roll the corn and molasses into balls. These must be rolled over and over in dry popped corn until no more of these will adhere to the balls and the latter wrapped tightly in waxed paper and kept in a cool and dry place.

BAKED BEANS—Soak two cups of white beans over night in cold water. In the morning pour this off, soak the beans an hour longer in warm water, drain them again and put on them enough hot water to cover them. Drain once more, at the end of half an hour, and cook them over the fire in boiling salted water until tender, but not broken. Pour the water from them, turn the beans into a bean pot or deep dish, placing a half pound of sweet salt pork in the middle. Put a half teaspoon of dry mustard, a saltspoon of celery salt, and a tablespoon of molasses into a large cup of boiling water and pour the mixture over the pork and beans. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven for at least three or four hours; longer cookery will do no harm. The genuine old time baked beans cooked all night in a slow oven.

Sick Boy Needs Help.

"I am a widow and have one boy; he has been sick for a number of months and needs delicacies of various kinds to help build him up again. I am not able to get these things for him on account of great financial difficulty, since I have not had work for some time and am not able to leave him on account of his severe illness. MRS. G."

Cornerites will, I am sure, be interested in the sick boy and his mother and put her in the way of work or of securing the delicacies the boy's condition demands. My own observation leads me to think that it is often want of appreciation of how to prepare such dainties that stands in the way of serving them to invalids, and this may be the case with Mrs. G. In that event a little housewifely counsel would stand her in good stead and the sympathy and interest she needs would be of unquestionable good to her and to her son. I shall be happy to supply her address to any who wish to offer service to this applicant.

Unable to Walk.

"Do you know of any one who has a reclining chair which is not in use? My mother is an invalid suffering from an internal complaint, which makes it impossible for her to walk. There are five of us in the family and it is impossible for us to buy what she needs. I am just back from a tuberculosis sanitarium myself and I take the care of my mother. If some one could spare us such a chair it would be a great help. S. D."

Will not some one of our ardent Cornerites send to me for the address of this sufferer and ascertain if there is not some way in which she can be supplied with the chair she needs? Age is hard to bear, invalidism and helplessness are far worse, and it is the duty of us all to do what we can to lighten their burden.

Coin Dated 1880.

"Can you advise me whether or not a $5 gold piece dated 1880 and having the letters "J. Brock" stamped across the face is of any especial value? I have been told that it is. F. L. P."

On this I must refer to our constituency. My own impression is that the value of a coin is lowered by having lettering of any sort on it except that which legitimately belongs to it, but I may be mistaken. I am also told that it is a penal offense to deface coin of the country by putting any inscription upon it, but this again is only hearsay, and I am open to correction. I shall hope to have a satisfactory reply before long.

Rhubarb Jelly.

"Will you please print a recipe for rhubarb jelly? Should something be added to it to make it harden? "MRS. R. C."

Directions for making rhubarb jelly have been given in the Corner since the receipt of your letter and our columns are too full to permit me to repeat it so soon again. I hope that by this time you have seen it. I may add that I was recently informed that when fruit jelly will not form the process may be aided by the addition of a little of the white lining of the lemon peeling, which is said to contain pectin, or the ingredient which assists in making fruit jellies firm. I give you the counsel as it was given to me in case you may care to try it, as I have not yet had the opportunity to do so for myself.

Teachers of Dressmaking.

"I am an interested reader of the Corner and your Cornerites do so many helpful things that I wonder if you or they can tell me anything about government positions. Are teachers of dressmaking employed in the schools and if so how does one set about getting such a position? I am capable of teaching dressmaking in all its branches and also the system as taught in the universities in London and higher technical schools in England. I am English and have only been here a few months, so that I do not know the ways of this country. "N. D."

My own impression is that you should make inquiries about the details for securing such a position as you wish at the office of the board of education, but for corroboration or correction of this I must refer to some of our readers. Can someone advise the querist how to set about finding out if teachers of dressmaking are employed in the public schools and how to be put in touch with those who award these positions? I know that manual training and industrial pursuits of all kinds receive more attention in our schools now than ever before, but I fancy that the specific lines of work vary in different cities. Will someone who knows the ground kindly furnish the desired information?

Taking Summer Boarders.

"I wish to get a little advice from you about taking summer boarders. I am an only child and live alone with my mother, in a big, roomy house about a quarter of a mile off the main road, on a little hill with a pretty view and a bit of woods right back of it. We have a nice garden and keep a hired man to do the heavy work. The house has few modern conveniences beyond one bathroom with hot and cold water, but it is quite thoroughly furnished, and my mother and I are both good cooks. We have enough just to get along on, but I would like to earn enough money to go away in the winter for a few weeks. We are a few miles from town, not far from the trolley line, and a good many of our friends have said they could fill the house if we would only take in occasional boarders. I don't want to advertise, and I don't believe it would be necessary. The main thing I wish to ask is what to give the people to eat. Would I have to set a fussy table, and what should I charge? J. H. N."

If you have a good garden and are a careful manager, you ought to make money by the arrangement you suggest, if you handle it properly. Don't undertake too much at first. If I were in your place I would start by having people come out for week ends, say from Friday to Monday or Tuesday, and no longer. That will give you the rest of the week to settle things. Don't attempt to put on airs. Have your rooms neat, [illegible] and simple, with good beds, plenty of towels, and everything fresh and [illegible] For breakfast have [illegible] eggs or bacon, coffee, tea, [illegible] If you have your dinner in the middle of the day, you can serve soup or not, as you wish; meat, two vegetables and a plain sweet. For supper or tea [illegible] if you have a late dinner, give a [illegible] savory dish of eggs or cheese, [illegible] a mince, or a good salad, potatoes [illegible] and butter, a sweet, cake, and tea or cocoa. If it is hot, have iced tea. [illegible] everything else, be sure to have plenty of fresh vegetables and fruit, [illegible] milk, cream, eggs, and all the dairy products. Don't try to give too much, but do see that everything is the best of its kind and daintily served. As to charges, I do not believe that you can make the enterprise pay for less than $1.50 a day for each person. Your garden ought to do much for you in the way of fruits and vegetables, but don't be led into thinking you are undertaking an easy job. At the same time, it is well known that summer boarders may be a paying proposition with careful management.

Motion Picture Writing.

"I am the wife of a young [illegible] in a small town. I am in poor health and consequently an expensive [illegible] I am going to try to write stories for motion pictures. Will you kindly tell me how I can find out in what firms will accept stories? Are there books of instruction for sale? [illegible]"

My sympathy for you is strong. I know few lots more unhappy than that of the woman married to a man in narrow circumstances when her health is so precarious that it lays a heavy burden on him. It is really harder for you than it is for him, although probably you will not believe this and it is possible that neither does he. My feeling for you makes me regret the more that I cannot give you the information you desire. [illegible] motion picture [illegible] might supply you with the desired [illegible] aire, but I have a [illegible] that it takes more than the need of money and the desire to work for it to enable one to compose stories for motion pictures. Those who get up these [illegible] secure their material from [illegible] old and new, and employ trained [illegible] to prepare the stories they [illegible] "movies." Old books of which the copyrights have expired furnish them [illegible] suggestions, and they pay for the right to reproduce new stories from popular writers and novelists.

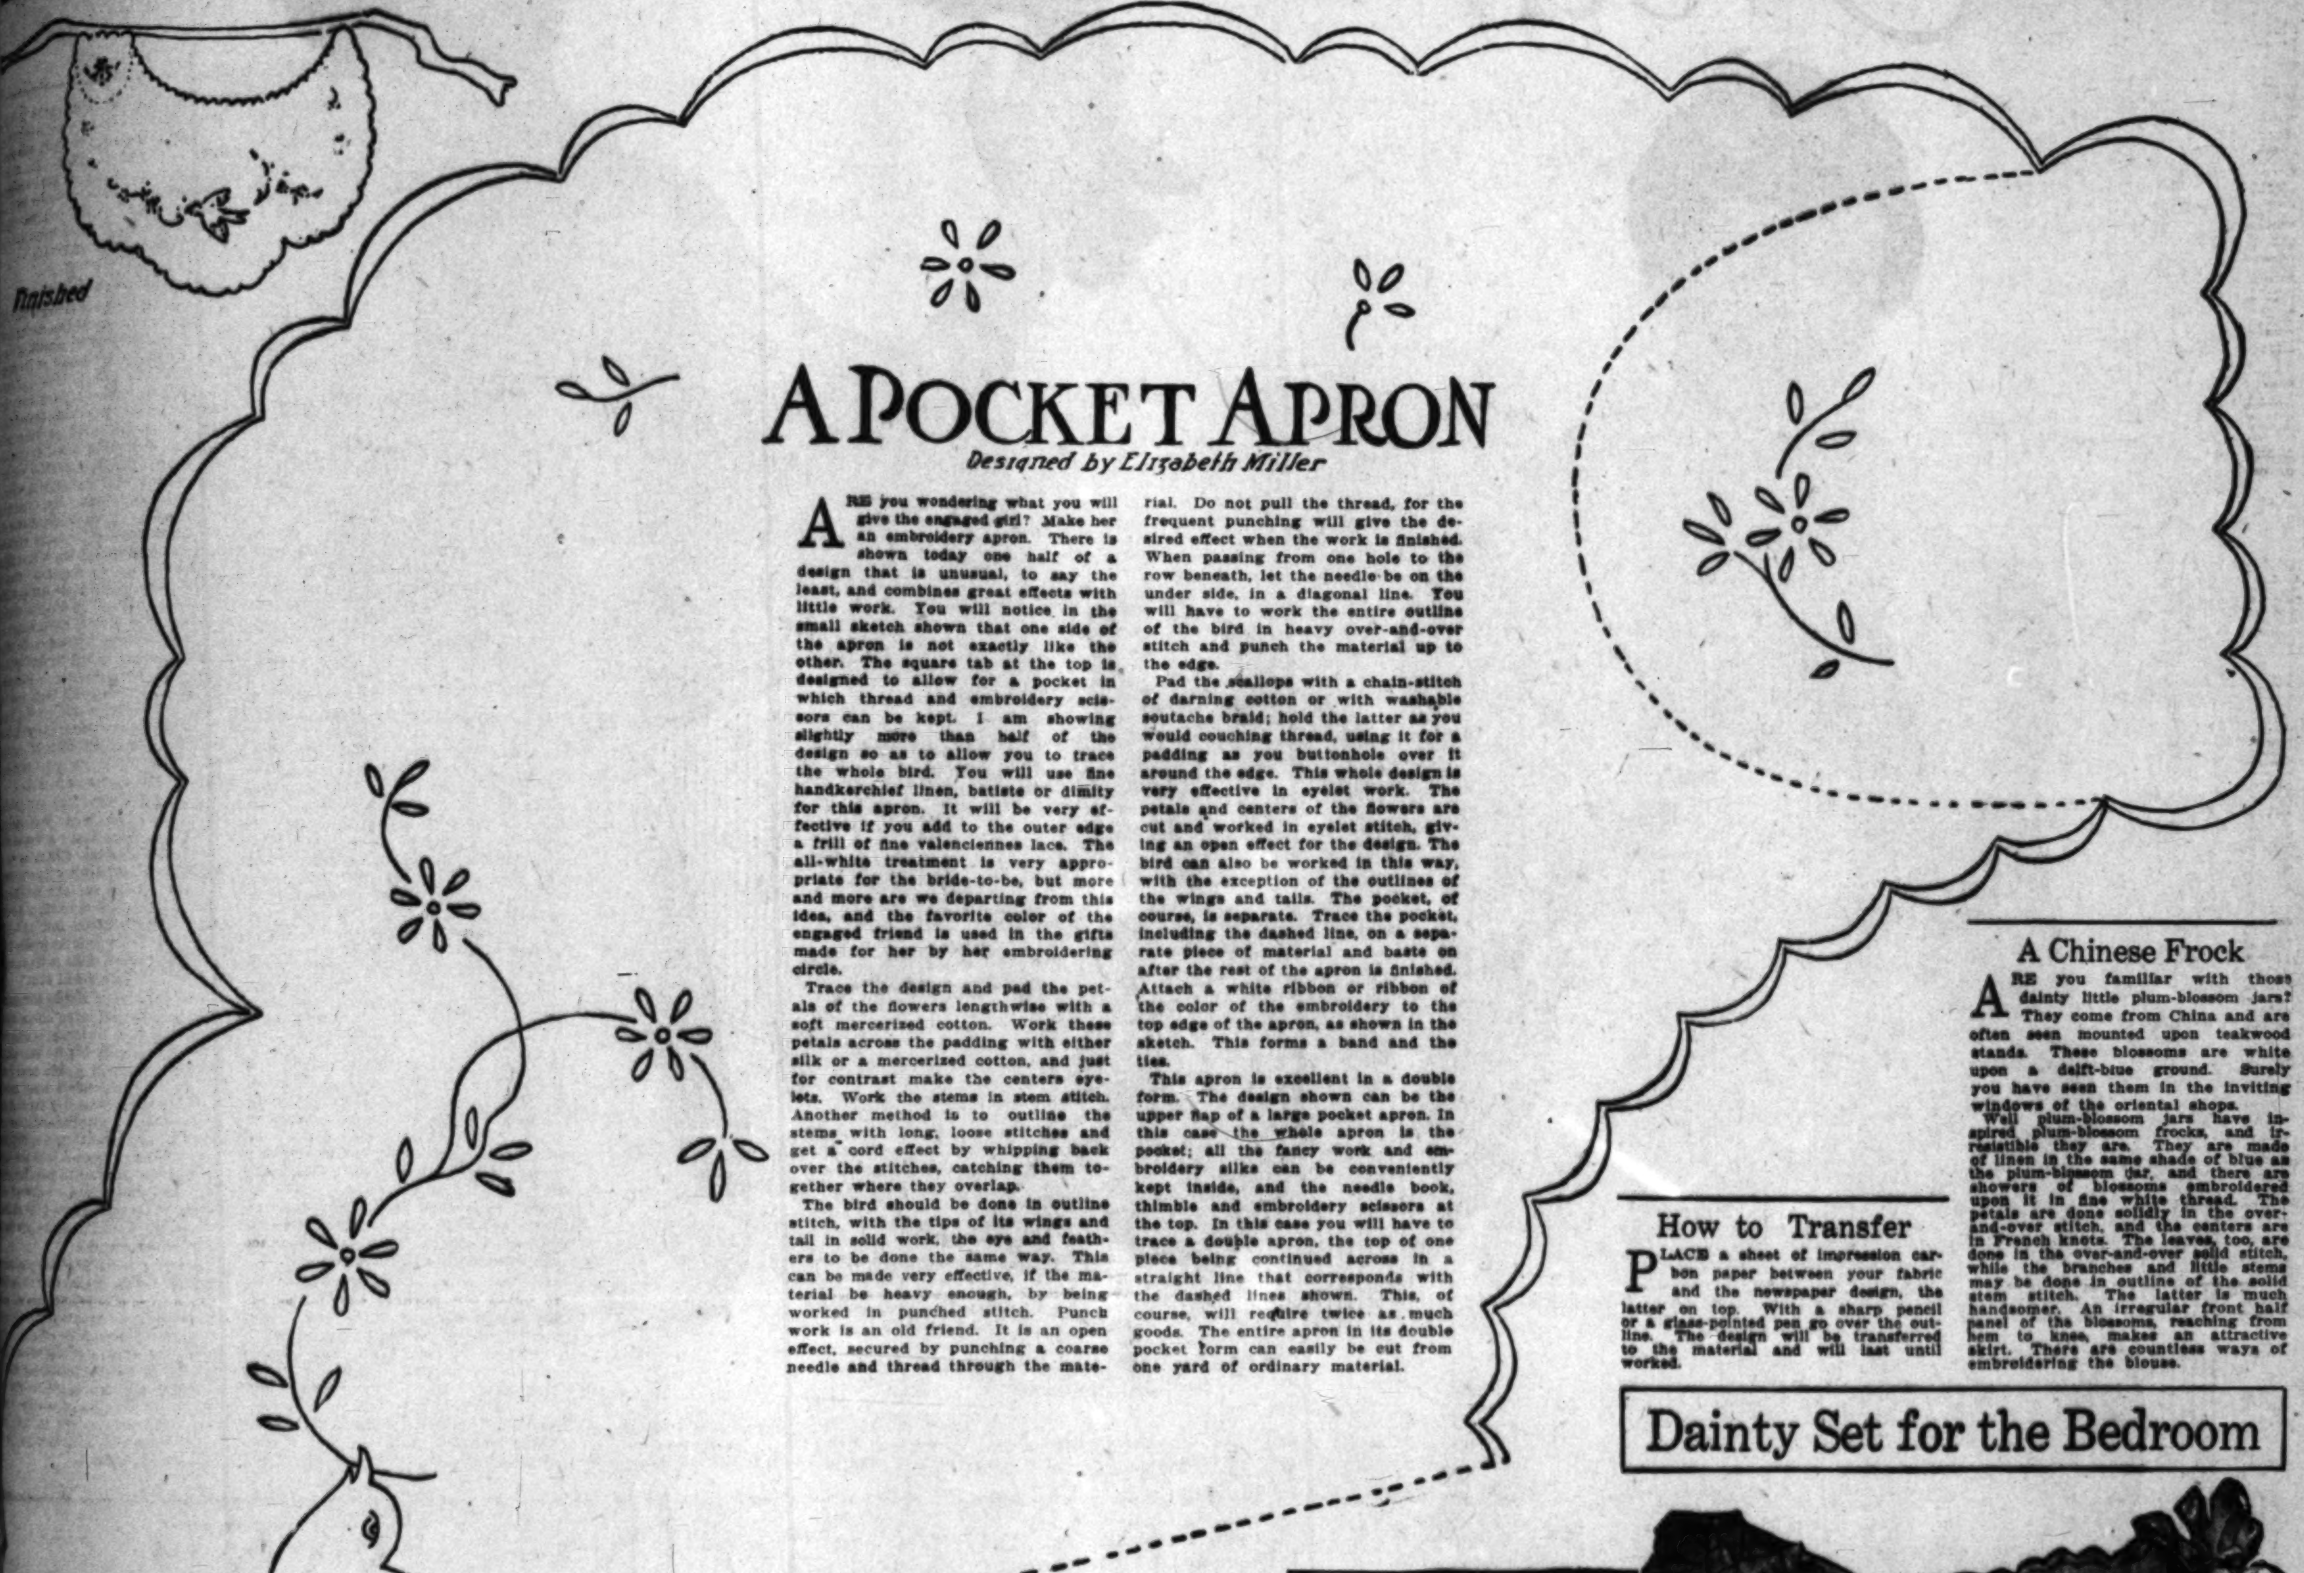
For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD



One Half of Design

A POCKET APRON

Designed by Elizabeth Miller

ARE you wondering what you will give the engaged girl? Make her an embroidery apron. There is shown today one half of a design that is unusual, to say the least, and combines great effects with little work. You will notice in the small sketch shown that one side of the apron is not exactly like the other. The square tab at the top is designed to allow for a pocket in which thread and embroidery scissors can be kept. I am showing slightly more than half of the design so as to allow you to trace the whole bird. You will use fine handkerchief linen, batiste or dimity for this apron. It will be very effective if you add to the outer edge a frill of fine valenciennes lace. The all-white treatment is very appropriate for the bride-to-be, but more and more are we departing from this idea, and the favorite color of the engaged friend is used in the gifts made for her by her embroidering circle.

Trace the design and pad the petals of the flowers lengthwise with a soft mercerized cotton. Work these petals across the padding with either silk or a mercerized cotton, and just for contrast make the centers eyelets. Work the stems in stem stitch. Another method is to outline the stems with long, loose stitches and get a cord effect by whipping back over the stitches, catching them together where they overlap.

The bird should be done in outline stitch, with the tips of its wings and tail in solid work, the eye and feathers to be done the same way. This can be made very effective, if the material be heavy enough, by being worked in punched stitch. Punch work is an old friend. It is an open effect, secured by punching a coarse needle and thread through the material. Do not pull the thread, for the frequent punching will give the desired effect when the work is finished. When passing from one hole to the row beneath, let the needle be on the under side, in a diagonal line. You will have to work the entire outline of the bird in heavy over-and-over stitch and punch the material up to the edge.

Pad the scallops with a chain-stitch of darning cotton or with washable soutache braid; hold the latter as you would couching thread, using it for a padding as you buttonhole over it around the edge. This whole design is very effective in eyelet work. The petals and centers of the flowers are cut and worked in eyelet stitch, giving an open effect for the design. The bird can also be worked in this way, with the exception of the outlines of the wings and tails. The pocket, of course, is separate. Trace the pocket, including the dashed line, on a separate piece of material and baste on after the rest of the apron is finished. Attach a white ribbon or ribbon of the color of the embroidery to the top edge of the apron, as shown in the sketch. This forms a band and the ties.

This apron is excellent in a double form. The design shown can be the upper flap of a large pocket apron. In this case the whole apron is the pocket; all the fancy work and embroidery silks can be conveniently kept inside, and the needle book, thimble and embroidery scissors at the top. In this case you will have to trace a double apron, the top of one piece being continued across in a straight line that corresponds with the dashed lines shown. This, of course, will require twice as much goods. The entire apron in its double pocket form can easily be cut from one yard of ordinary material.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

A Chinese Frock

ARE you familiar with those dainty little plum-blossom jars? They come from China and are often seen mounted upon teakwood stands. These blossoms are white upon a delft-blue ground. Surely you have seen them in the inviting windows of the oriental shops.

Well plum-blossom jars have inspired plum-blossom frocks, and irresistible they are. They are made of linen in the same shade of blue as the plum-blossom jar, and there are showers of blossoms embroidered upon it in fine white thread. The petals are done solidly in the over-and-over stitch, and the centers are in French knots. The leaves, too, are done in the over-and-over solid stitch, while the branches and little stems may be done in outline of the solid stem stitch. The latter is much handsomer. An irregular front half panel of the blossoms, reaching from hem to knee, makes an attractive skirt. There are countless ways of embroidering the blouse.

BABY'S FLY NET

[illegible] is a fortunately waning [illegible] of putting a dilapidated [illegible] of mosquito netting over [illegible] crib or perambulator while [illegible] sleeping. This, of course, answers the purpose of protecting the [illegible] from flies and bugs of all [illegible] if she is out of doors—where [illegible] be most of her nap time. [illegible] that are useful should be [illegible] as well, if it is possible for [illegible] so, and beautiful the mosquito netting is not.

[illegible] fly net is made of cur[illegible] of a rather fine texture. Only [illegible] of it is used, for, of [illegible] it is desirable that the baby [illegible] all the air possible. The [illegible] in cream or white, preferably white. It must be cut in a [illegible] or oblong that will cover [illegible] and drop at least half-[illegible] the floor. This net must be [illegible] about the edges to keep it [illegible] and trim and to keep it upon [illegible] in a high wind. The [illegible] for the purpose can be [illegible] by the yard. They are taped, [illegible] very easy for them to be [illegible] to the end of the net. Turn [illegible] in once at the edges [illegible] it so with the thumb and [illegible]. Then place the tape over [illegible] it down, and baste both [illegible] and tape fast with [illegible] of firm stitches. To run [illegible] the net by machine is [illegible] to attach it by hand. Now [illegible] process comes in. [illegible] edging is bound a [illegible] either in color or white. [illegible] necessary to turn in the [illegible] ribbon binding, for the [illegible] edges. The binding may [illegible] on the machine or sim[illegible] and then briar-stitched [illegible] down through to the [illegible] of the cover, with silk [illegible] wish to use the white [illegible] as it is apt to yellow. If [illegible] is used and silk is used for the stitch, it is better to use a color, such as pink or blue, that will not yellow. Such a fly net is pretty and easily laundered. French knots may be used instead of briar stitching if preferred.

Not only is the fly net described nice to make for one's own baby, but it is a delightful gift and a simple one for the childless woman to make for any new baby in whom she is interested.

A Homemade Vestee

ALTHOUGH few blouses are hand-embroidered just at the present moment, one may spend time and fancy stitches upon the pretty vestees that are being worn with plain blouses. If you do not wish to make the vestee itself, simply buy one ready-made and proceed to embroider it, either in white or colors. As one always needs several of these little neckwear fixings, however, it is a good plan to make the whole vestee at home. Take a bought vestee and lay it over a paper, so that you may cut out a pattern. Then proceed to lay the paper pattern over the material for the new vestee and cut that out. It is well, if you intend to embroider the vestee, to sort of sketch the outline of the paper pattern upon the material before it is cut, then mark the design to be embroidered upon it, do the embroidery and then cut out the vestee. The homemade vestee may be prettily edged with buttonhole-stitched scalloping. While some of the vestees are embroidered in color, those of white material are prettiest embroidered in white. Do not use white silk, for it will turn yellow in laundering. If colors are to be worked upon the vestee, silk is far better, for appearance' sake, to use than thread. Besides, colored silk launders beautifully. A vestee done in ecru organdie is very smart. This may be embroidered in ecru to match the material or in a contrasting color.

Sanitary Hair Receiver

A HAIR receiver that is washable is a boon. Of course, the china ones are also sanitary, but the receiver in question is really for the traveler's bag or grip. She can take it with her on a journey and save the combings, if she so wishes, or dispose of them when opportunity offers. It does seem that that is one thing that the average hostess will forget to provide, a hair receiver; and one's hair, somehow, will hop out of the waste-paper basket and float about the room, in spite of all we can do. When the traveler has a little lingerie receiver, she simply takes it from her grip and hangs it on the side of her dresser and deposits all her combings therein. The receiver is really nothing more than a tiny bit of lawn or washable silk, shirred into a ball-like bag. There is a shirring at the top of the material and at the bottom. The beginning of the bag is but a rather narrow strip of silk, and then the shirring at either edge is done. It is best to hem the top in the form of a casing and then to run a ribbon through it, so that it can be drawn up at will. To this top casing is attached a long ribbon loop, one on either side of the bag, to hold it in position to receive the hair and to act as a hanger, so that it may be attached to the dressing table at a moment's notice.

His Tie Rack

THERE are so few fancy things one can make with a needle for a man that when a novelty does come upon the scene that one thinks will meet with his approval, it has to be snapped up pretty quickly before some other girl or mother or sister has a chance to present him with it. Here, however, is a little tie rack that is so odd that it is hardly likely any one will have a chance to duplicate it before you get it made. On it are the words, "I wouldn't wear it to a dog fight." Not half so discouraging as it is funny when you get the rack completed. Take a disk of heavy cardboard, two together if you wish it strong, and cover it with heavy linen, on which is embroidered or sketched a little puppy with ridiculous wide-apart legs and the quoted words written about him in the blank spaces. To this disk is attached a double ribbon, to which in turn is attached a large embroidery hoop, upon which the ties are to be hung. This hoop is wound with silk or ribbon to match some color in the covered disk or in the silk used to work the little puppy. To the top of the covered disk is attached a ribbon loop finished off with a bow, so that it may hang on the wall. The embroidery hoop makes the nicest kind of a rack for the man creature's ties.

The Realistic French Knot

IT IS surprising how realistic some flowers can be made with the little French knot when it is given sufficient consideration and care. For instance, purple clover worked in French knots is startling in its nearness to nature's own product. You can obtain the stamped design with little dots forming the clover blossom. Sometimes these are not sufficiently close to make a realistic blossom. After you have worked the stamped dots in French knots, fill up the blank spaces between, so that the blossom is more or less packed. Two shades of purple should be used in making the blossom, a lighter shade at the top and the darker shade near the base of the flower.

Then there is the yellow goldenrod. A close examination of the real flower will convince you that it is apparently made up of odorous French knots. If possible, the goldenrod worked in yellow silk French knots is even more realistic than the clover blossoms.

Equally as effective as the goldenrod is wild carrot, or "queen's lace," worked in white French knots, with green foliage in the conventional leaf stitch. Daisy centers were never so natural as when done in the yellow French knot. The knots must be very closely packed to make the center look like the center of the real flower, and the correct shade must be carefully selected. This precaution must be taken in doing the goldenrod, too. About the same shade is used for both goldenrod and daisy centers. It is a yellow with just the faintest suggestion of green in it, such as you will see in nature's own goldenrod and daisies.

While the French knot was at first looked upon as a novelty, there is scarcely a doubt that it has come to stay. Once the knack is acquired, it is one of the easiest and quickest of stitches, and it has helped greatly in the artistic and natural evolution of floral decoration in art needlework.

Your Underskirt

IF ONE of your light crepe de chine frocks is out of date or somewhat worn, it isn't necessary to cast it aside or to give it away. Instead, make an underskirt of it. If the skirt of the frock isn't very wide, it will be all the better for this season's petticoat. Even when wide frocks are worn, the underskirt, to be smart, must be scant.

If you wish a flounce on the underskirt, this can be cut from the material used in the bodice. It matters not how many pieces must be put together to form the ruffle, for the seams can be skillfully concealed when the flounce is accordion pleated. This pleating can be done at a professional pleating establishment for a very small sum.

If there is not enough material for the making of the whole skirt, the upper half of the skirt may be of lining or lawn the same color as the material.

You will very likely place a bias piece as finish at the top of the ruffle. It enhances greatly the appearance of the petticoat to ornament this bias piece with French knots or to run a little vine of chiffon or silk buds about the top of the flounce.

Dainty Set for the Bedroom

The Pincushion is Ribbon Trimmed ◆◆

◆◆ Flower Filled Baskets on Ecru Linen

THERE is hardly a more acceptable gift to the housewife than a bedroom set of dresser and chiffonier covers, pincushion, etc., for her guestroom. We can never have too many plain and fancy linens, for the frequent laundering which is usually necessary so wears upon them that one must keep constantly adding to the supply.

Because the guestroom is not in constant use, housewives frequently resent the changing of the covers as often as they change such covers in the habitually used bedrooms, and yet of all rooms in the house the guestroom must be fresh and inviting in appearance. One such resentful woman hit upon the happy plan of making her guestroom covers of ecru linen. It is surprising, too, how much longer these faintly tinted covers remain clean, at least in appearance. The smoke and dust which sift through the windows of her city house do not seem to have the same marring effect upon the ecru as upon the dead white, and as a consequence much wear and tear upon the linen and grumbling from the laundress are saved.

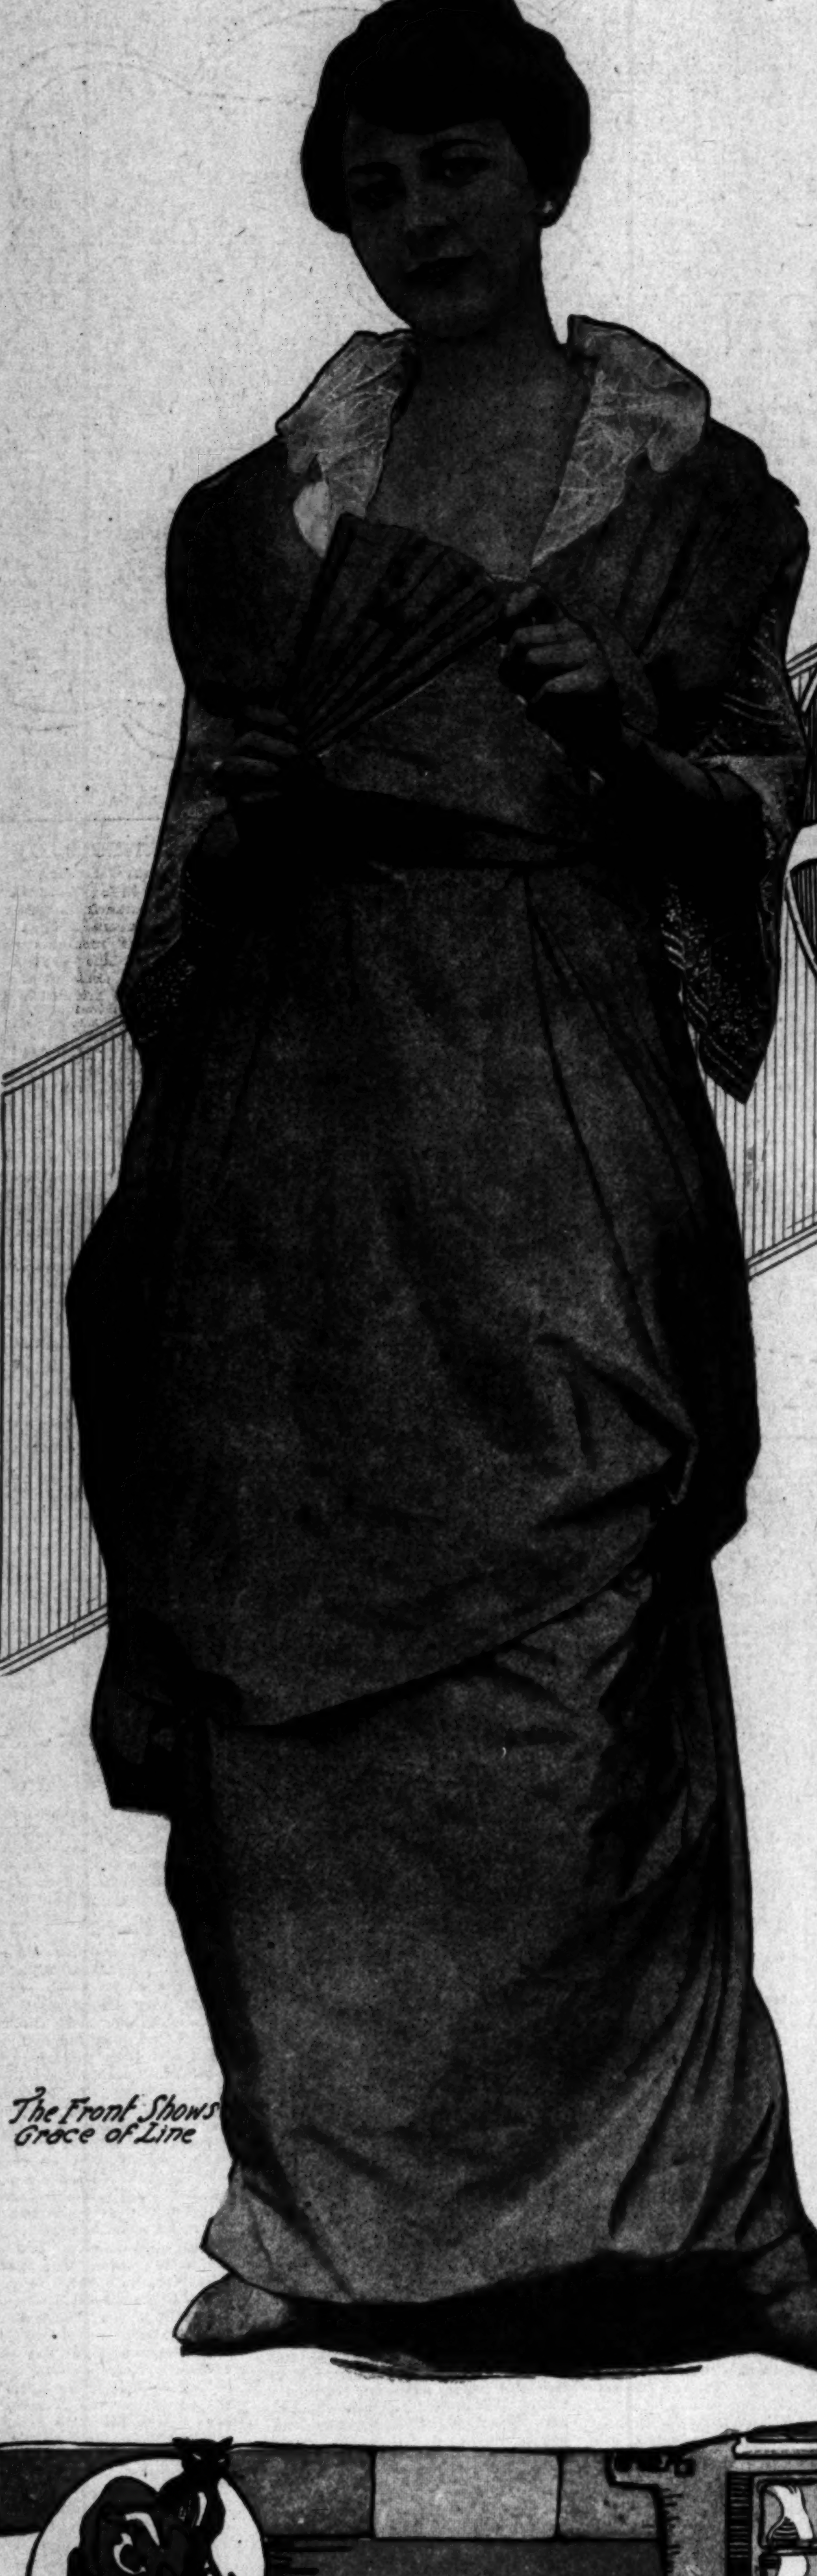
While the covers shown are in ecru, they can, of course, be duplicated in white. Either batiste or linen may be used. The former is the daintier, but the latter is the more serviceable, so you have your choice. However, the design of tiny flower-filled baskets is sufficiently dainty to relieve the heaviness of the linen. The color used for these flowers (they resemble roses more than anything else) may be done in a color to match the room. If you do them in pink or yellow they will be unmistakably roses, but if your room is in lavender, the little flowers can be made to look very much like ragged robins, while pale blue may also be appropriately used. The foliage should be in two shades of green, both soft greens, with a suggestion of gray in them.

The color used in the flowers should also be a soft pale shade, with a deeper shade in the centers of the flowers. The baskets can be worked in straw color or a deeper brown, resembling the artistic red willow baskets that we now see in the shops. The flowers are done in tightly grouped French knots and the leaves of the foliage are in lazy-daisy stitch, while the stems are in outline. The basket may be worked in outline stitch. The edges of the covers are buttonholed, but allowed to remain uncut and with the goods extending about a half inch beyond the scallops. To this edge of the material is whipped either cluny or torchon lace. The scalloping should be done in ecru or green or the flower color.

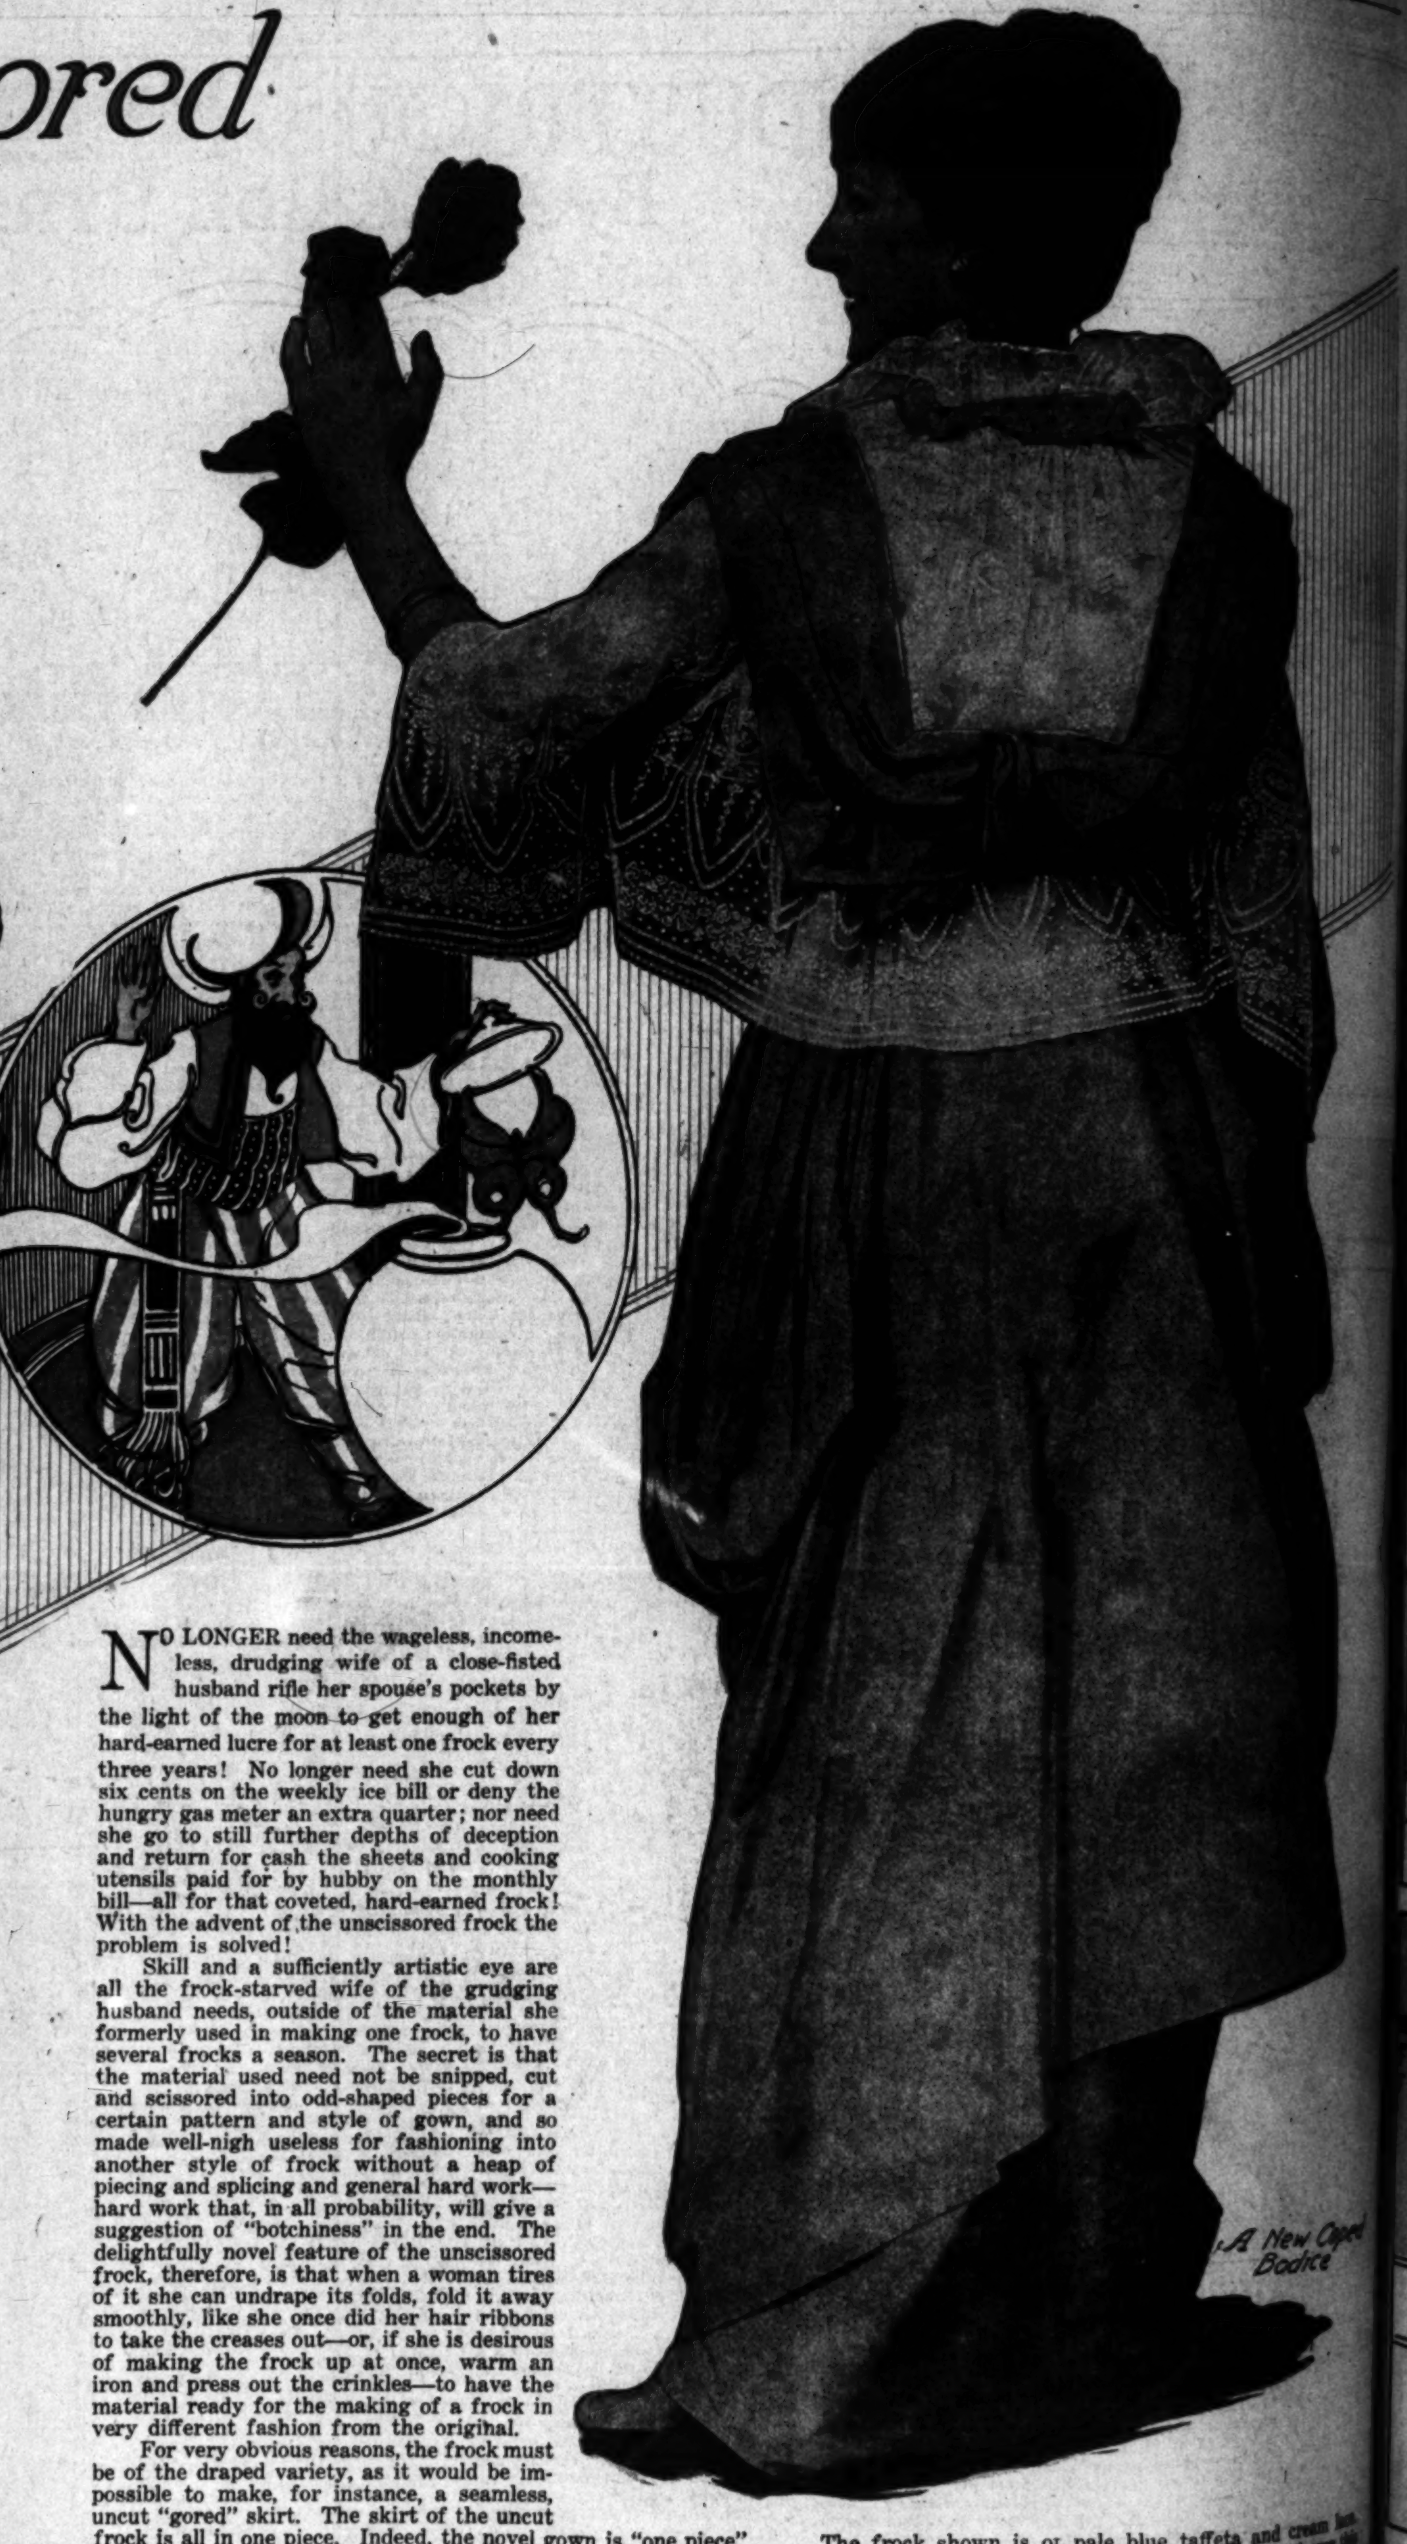
The complete set of these covers should include covers for the dresser, dressing table and the chiffonier. To still further carry out the design in the room, a pincushion may be made of the same material and worked in the same colors. The most modern shape for the cushion is oblong. Cut two oblongs the same size, buttonhole them about the scalloped edges and eyelet them at equal and corresponding distances about the edges. The bottom oblong is plain, but the top oblong is done in the same design as the covers for the dresser, etc. Now take the cushion and cover it with a piece of the same material as is used for embroidering, and see to it that a broad flap edge is left on the cushion so that it peeps out between the edges of the buttonholed scalloped edges and affords a pretty finish. This straight flap may be of a color if you wish to have it so. The two oblongs are then placed one on the top and one on the bottom of the cushion, and laced up with colored ribbons and rosette bows placed at each of the four corners.

If you cannot procure the covers and cushion ready stamped, an art needlework shop should be able to do the stamping for you, or you may be able to get in such a shop a perforated or transfer pattern of the design, which you could place at regular intervals over the unstamped material.

An Unscissored Frock



The Front Shows Grace of Line



A New Caped Bodice

NO LONGER need the wageless, incomeless, drudging wife of a close-fisted husband rifle her spouse's pockets by the light of the moon to get enough of her hard-earned lucre for at least one frock every three years! No longer need she cut down six cents on the weekly ice bill or deny the hungry gas meter an extra quarter; nor need she go to still further depths of deception and return for cash the sheets and cooking utensils paid for by hubby on the monthly bill—all for that coveted, hard-earned frock! With the advent of the unscissored frock the problem is solved!

Skill and a sufficiently artistic eye are all the frock-starved wife of the grudging husband needs, outside of the material she formerly used in making one frock, to have several frocks a season. The secret is that the material used need not be snipped, cut and scissored into odd-shaped pieces for a certain pattern and style of gown, and so made well-nigh useless for fashioning into another style of frock without a heap of piecing and splicing and general hard work—hard work that, in all probability, will give a suggestion of "botchiness" in the end. The delightfully novel feature of the unscissored frock, therefore, is that when a woman tires of it she can undrape its folds, fold it away smoothly, like she once did her hair ribbons to take the creases out—or, if she is desirous of making the frock up at once, warm an iron and press out the crinkles—to have the material ready for the making of a frock in very different fashion from the original.

For very obvious reasons, the frock must be of the draped variety, as it would be impossible to make, for instance, a seamless, uncut "gored" skirt. The skirt of the uncut frock is all in one piece. Indeed, the novel gown is "one piece" in more ways than one. Not only are bodice and skirt joined, but the material used in bodice and skirt are not separated in any way.

There is, of course, the objection of the material's remaining one color. While the frocks can be different in design, the color remains the same. If a woman dresses in one color, the objection is removed. Many smartly dressed women do this, saving money thereby and never being put to the expense of extra hats and accessories for different colored gowns. If you have auburn hair, you might safely stick to brown in most of its shades; while if you are very light, either blue or green would be a safe selection, and so on.

The frock shown is of pale blue taffeta and cream lace. There is a very simple foundation of white lawn, and over this the uncut length of silk is draped and tacked here and there with just enough scattered stitches to keep it in place. The silk used in the bodice is only a continuation of the silk used in the skirt; high girdle, shoulder drapery and even the bow in the back being cleverly manipulated from the uncut length. The net ruffle about the neck is the upper part of the lace bodice-cape in the back, the piece of lace being unscissored and, indeed, just as it came from the shop counter, with the exception of a hemming along the raw edges.

The window decorator drapes such a frock upon his wax subjects every day in the week. Why not you?

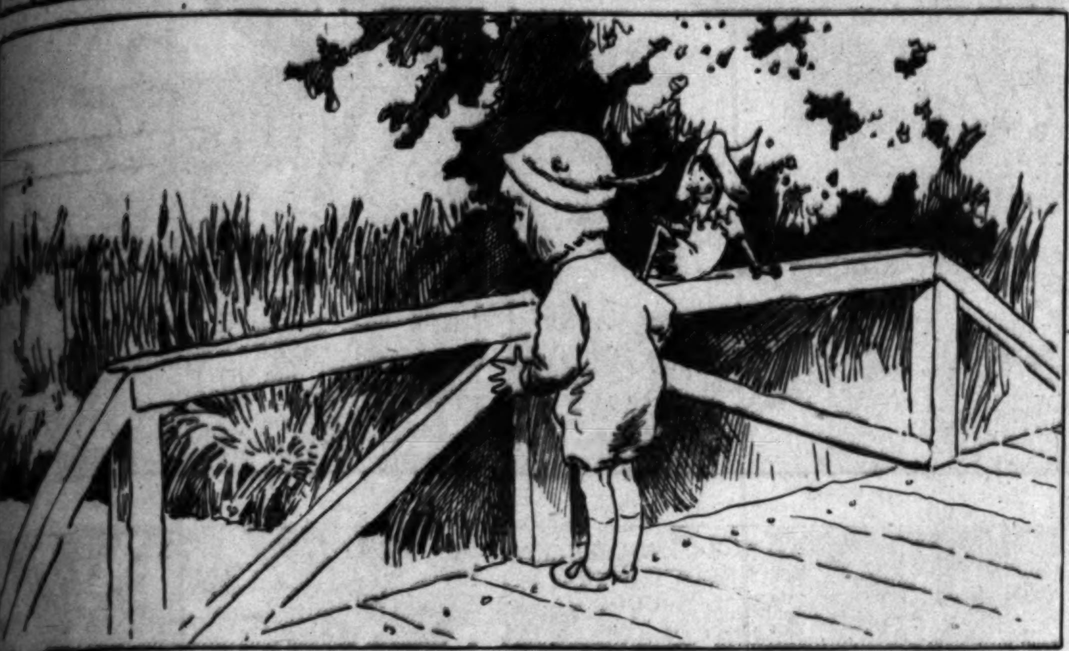
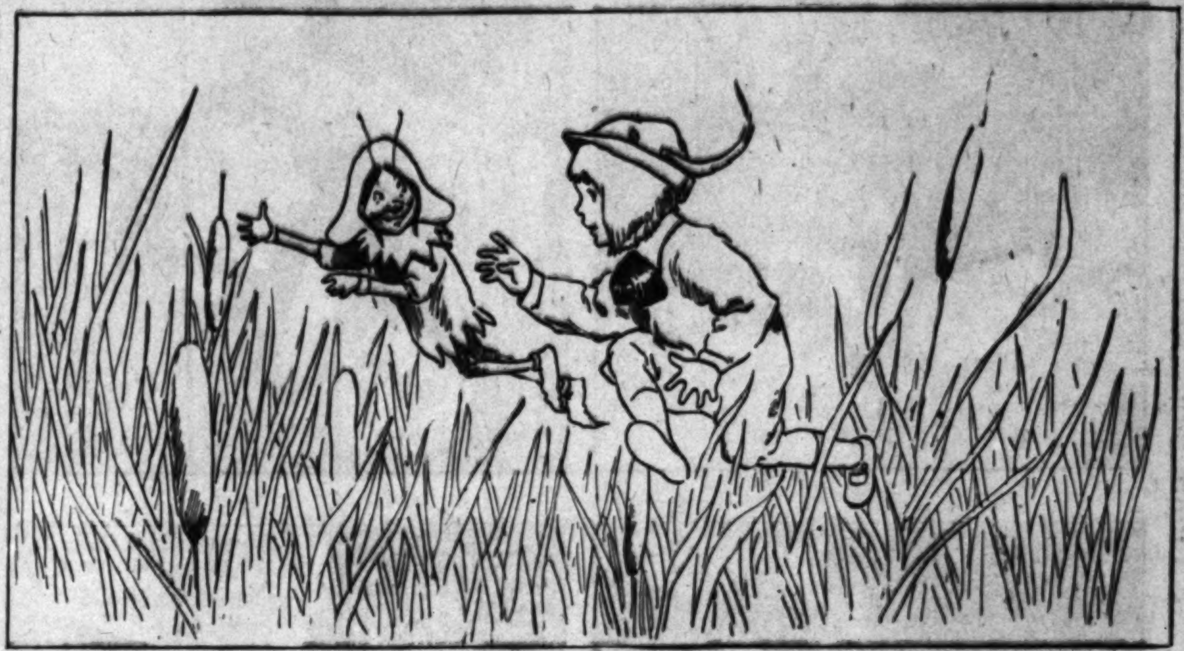
MR. TWEE DEEDLE

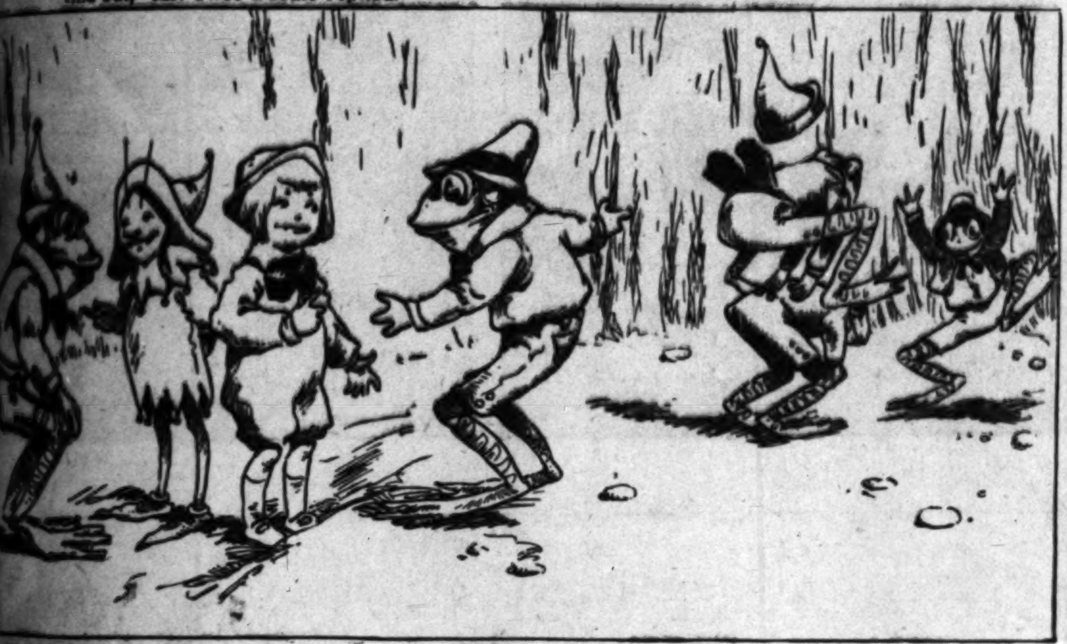
THE ADVENTURE WITH THE GREEN FROGS • BY JOHN B. GRUELLE •



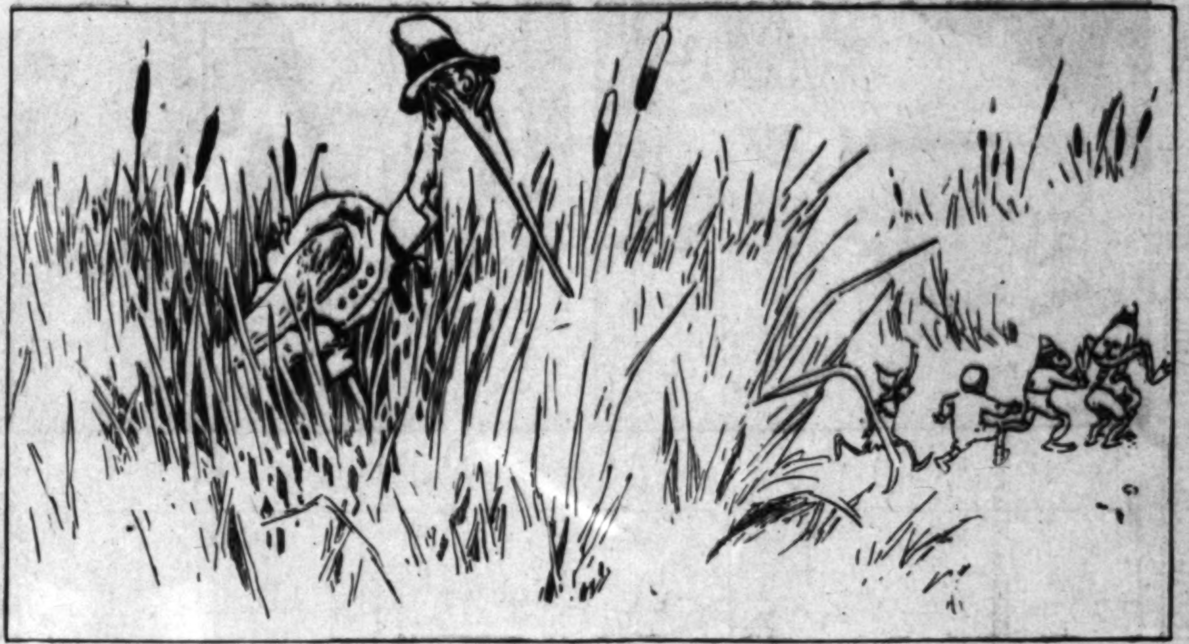
1—"Wonder where this little stream goes to—out in the big marsh?" Dickie said to Mr. Twee Deedle as the two stood on a bridge looking at the fish in the water. "That will be easy to find out," Mr. Twee Deedle replied.



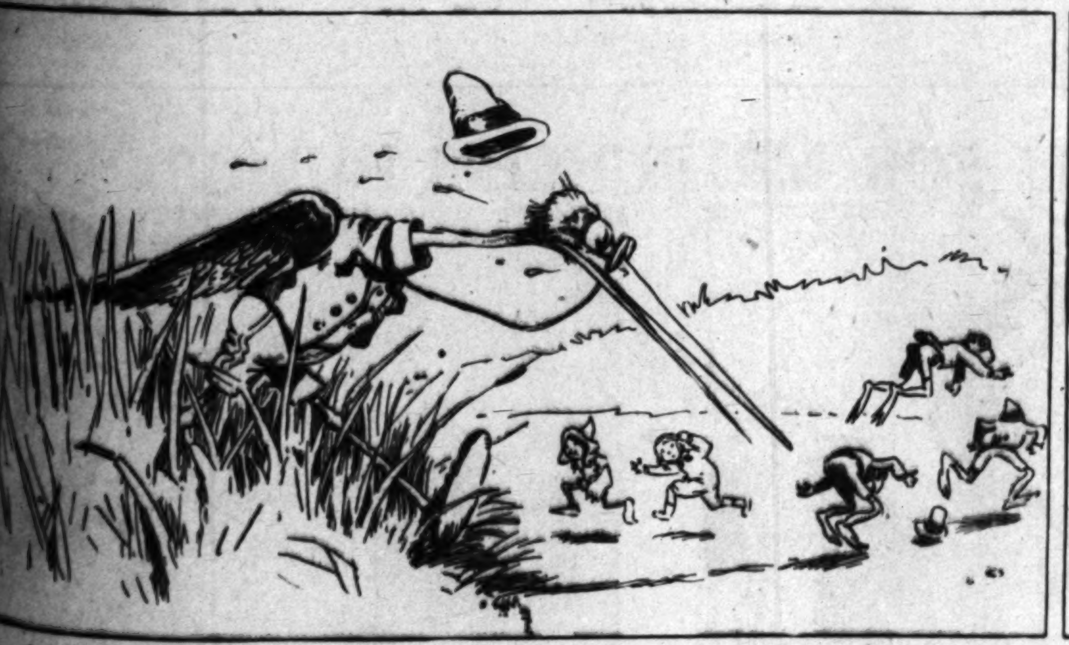
2—"We will fly over the water and the cattails and see what we can find near the centre of the marsh. Perhaps the stream runs into a hole in the ground!"



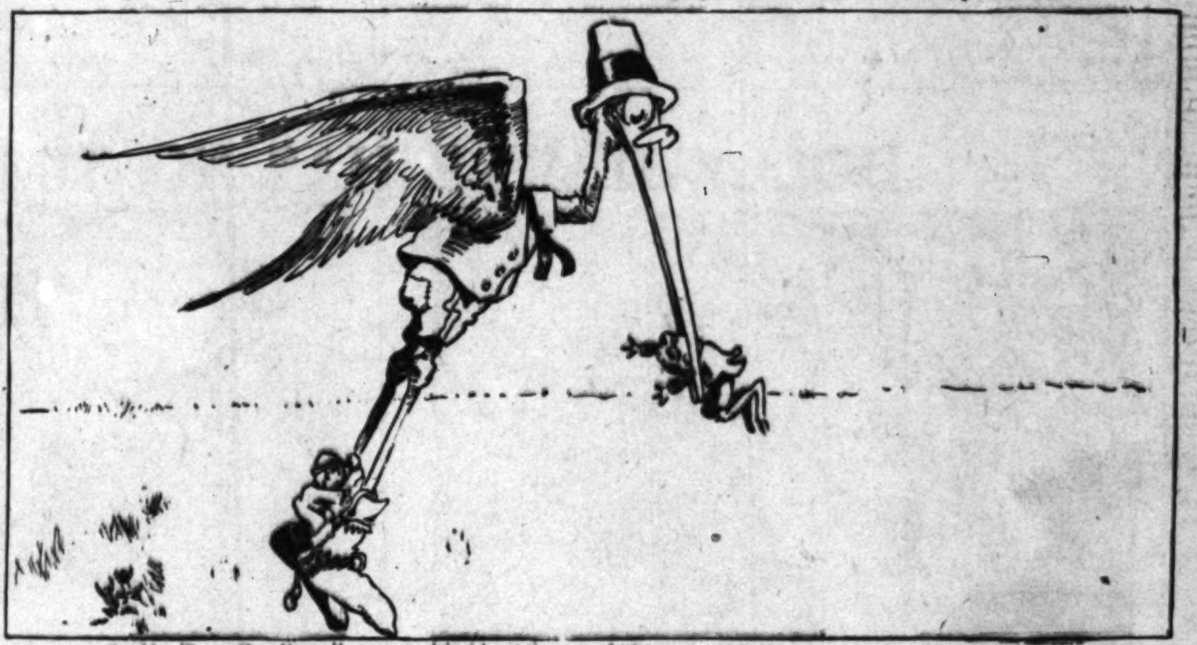
3—But when the two reached the centre of the marsh they saw a number of green frogs playing leap frog, and Dickie wanted to stop. Of course, the frogs asked Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie to join in the game.



4—Mr Twee Deedle, Dickie and the frogs were having lots of fun, when along came old "Longshank" Crane. "Here's fine sport for me!" he muttered to himself. "If I can only slip up quietly and catch one of those frogs I'll carry him way up in the air and let him drop into the water."



5—So old "Longshanks" crouched as low to the ground as he could until he was almost upon the players, then, with a joyous cry, he dashed out of the tall cattails and seized the nearest frog.



6—Mr. Twee Deedle called to Dickie to catch one of "Longshank's" legs, while he caught the other, and they were carried high up in the air as the crane, not knowing they were hanging to his legs, flew away with the struggling frog.

7—Dickie was just about to ask Mr. Twee Deedle how they would get back to earth again when Mr Twee Deedle said a magic word and the two began to regain their natural size, and old "Longshank," not having strength to carry them, sank to the ground.

8—Mr. Twee Deedle made old "Longshank" sit upon a stone and apologize to the frogs. "Suppose," Mr. Twee Deedle said to him, "that you were playing with your brothers and some large creature should come and carry off one of your brothers." "It would make me feel very sad," old "Longshank" replied, "and I am awfully sorry that I did not think of it in that light before." "We will let you go this time," Mr. Twee Deedle told him, "but the next time you must stop and think that what means fun for you does not always mean fun for another!"

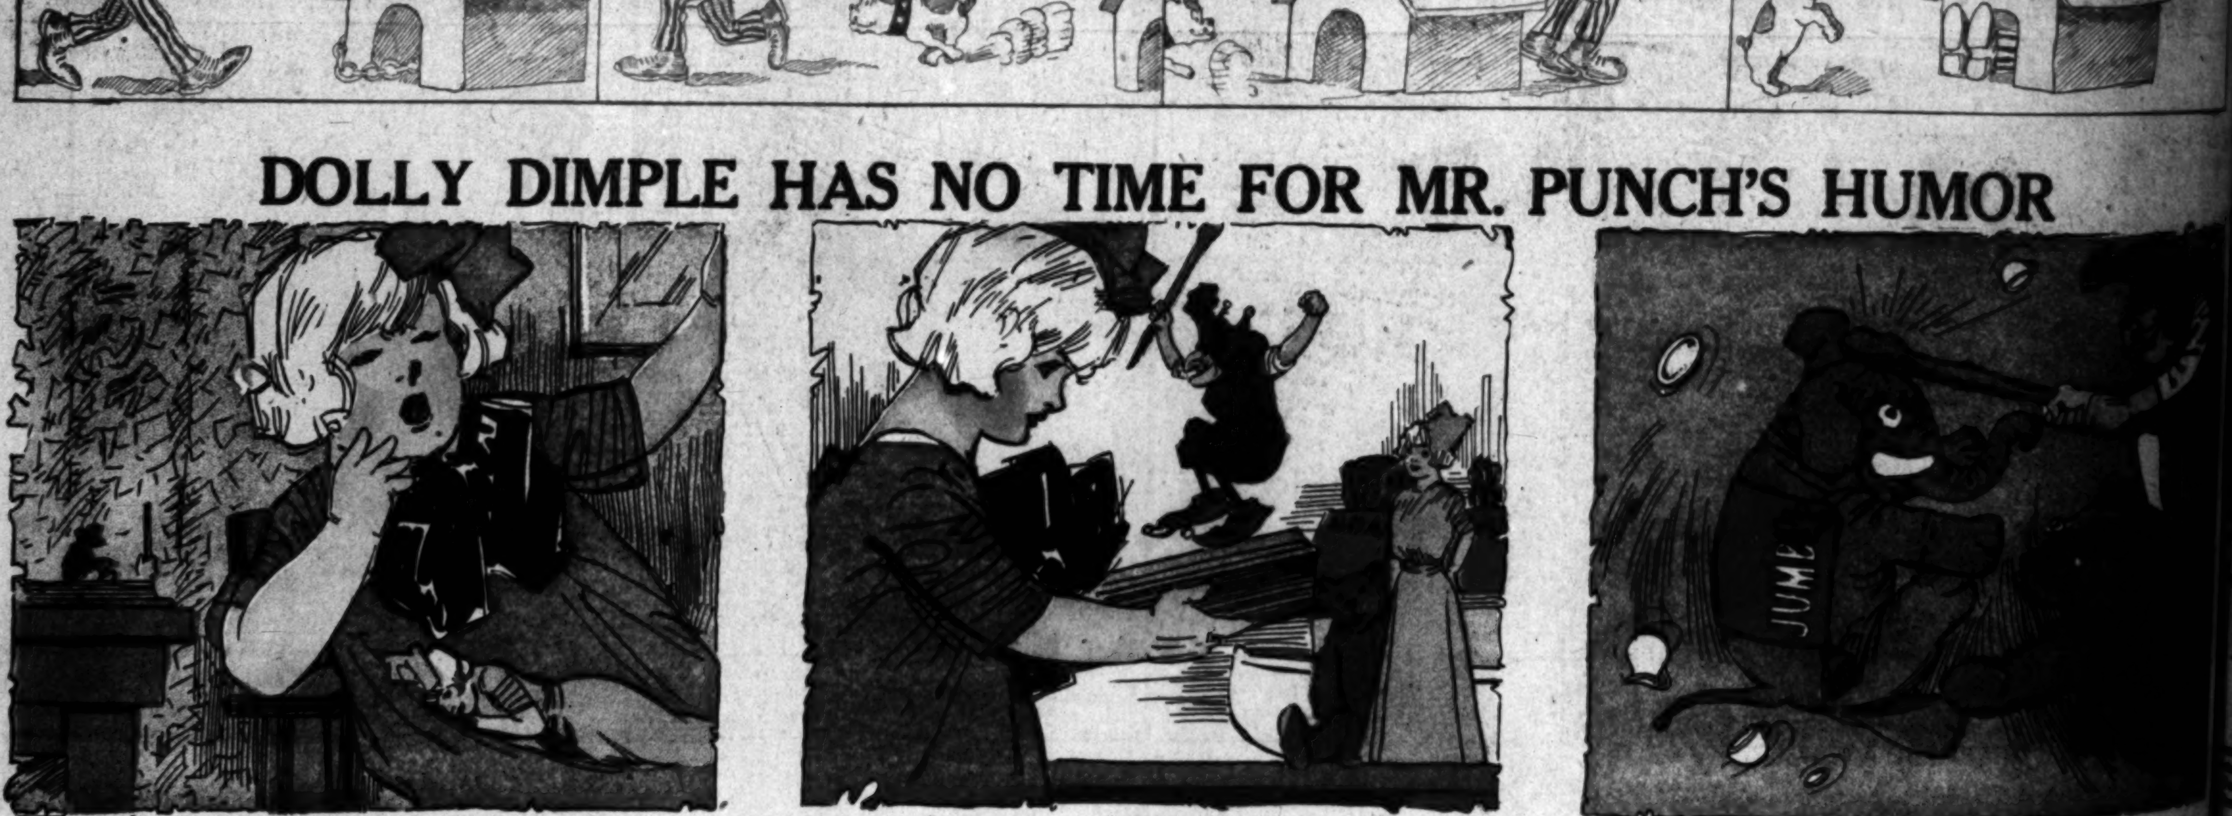
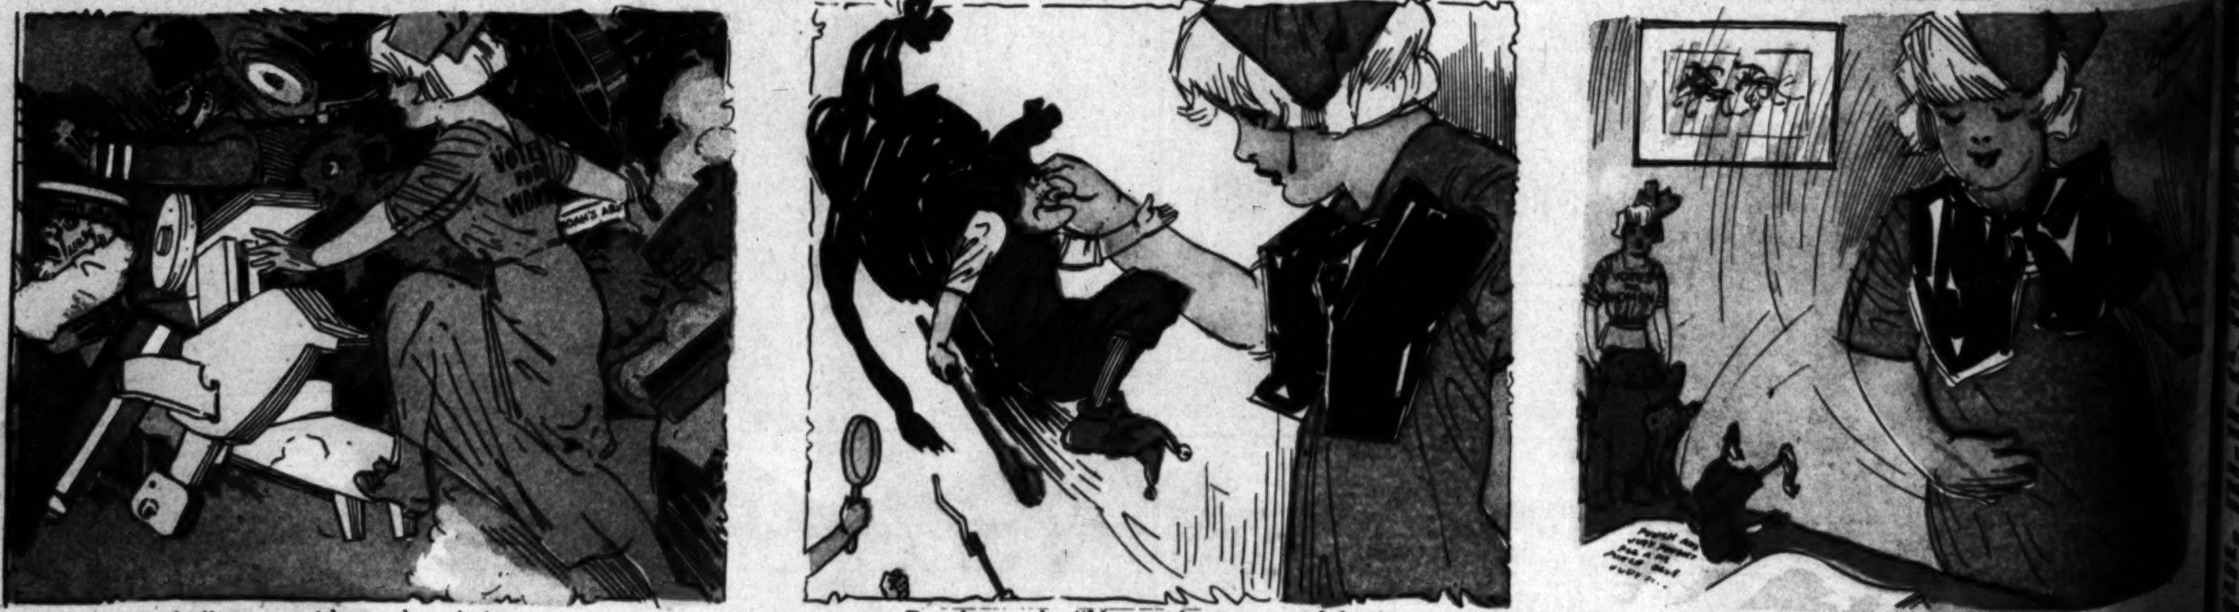
DOLLY DIMPLE HAS NO TIME FOR MR. PUNCH'S HUMOR



"Some lively fun," says Dot, "would help."
"At fun," a voice bawls, "I'm a whelp!"

And out jumps Punch. "A showman old
Am I," he cries. "My fun behold!"

He starts a lively rub-a-dub
On heads all 'round him with his club.



VOTES FOR WOMEN

And all retort with wrath and riot.
"For goodness' sake," cries Dot, "be quiet!"

Punch growls, "You said you wanted fun!
"I did," says Dot, "not murder done.

"I see no mirth nor common sense
In fun at other folk's expense."
